Mr. Shrubb said to the Times last night after his race at the roller rink— "That talk of Tom Flanagan's is baby talk. I wired him this morning, and also wired the same thing to the Buffalo people, that I would give Longboat the 20-mile race first if he would deposit $2,000 as a guarantee that he would run the 10-mile and 15-mile races afterward. Or I would deposit $2,000 as a guarantee that I would run the 15-mile or 20 mile race after the 10-mile race. If that is not a fair and straight proposition then I don't know what is. If Longboat wants to run with me on Flanagan's proposition of the 20-mile race first, he has got to put up his deposit. That is my final statement."

"I also told Flanagan to-night over the phone when he called me up that I would consent to run 15 miles first and the other two after and would demand no deposit."

Shrubb also denied that he was ever beaten by Meyers in a relay race, as Flanagan stated in the Star last night. He said he would give Meyers 125 yards at any time in a two mile race. He also said that he has always beaten Meyers.

Shrubb will meet Flanagan, the Indian's manager, in Toronto on Saturday and see if a match could not be arranged.

The Cabinet in a Panic

Washington, Dec. 1.—Official advices received at the State Department from Mr. Henry W. Furniss, United States Minister to Hayti, and Commander John Hood, commanding the Tacoma, indicate that the Haytian Government is in a most precarious condition, that the revolutionists are successful all along the line, and that the Cabinet is in a panic as a consequence.

Efforts made to have President Nord Alexis resign are confirmed in official despatches. From every point of view, the situation is reported extremely critical, with American and foreign interests endangered.

The Knights of Pythias Dedicated Their New Hall with a Smoker

Last night was a memorable one in the history of Marathon Lodge, Knights of Pythias. It was the formal dedication of Pythian Castle Hall and it was celebrated by a visit from the Grand Lodge officers and a smoker. A large number of members and their friends were present and greatly enjoyed the entertainment.

Pythian Castle is on the third floor in the new block, erected by the Toronto Savings & Loan Company on Simcoe street, and it is an ideal place for such purposes. It is centrally located, and as far as furnishings and equipment is concerned the new lodge room is equal to any. It is modern in every respect, and everything is very handy. The furnishings are handsome and new. The walls are done in red, and beautiful red curtains hang over the windows, while several pictures decorate the walls. The whole place presents an appearance which is at once attractive and pleasing.

The Knights of Pythias are their organization in Peterborough, have made very rapid progress. It is a good Order and one which takes in only the best type of manhood. The members are all workers, and they are working harmoniously. What they want now is an increased membership, and they will start right out after it. The entertainment last night will go a long way towards introducing many strangers into the Order.

At half-past seven a meeting of the lodge with the Grand Lodge officers was held, and at nine o'clock the doors were thrown open to the public.

A bountiful supply of pipes, tobacco and cigars were on hand and assisted materially in the pleasures of the evening.

Has a Fleet of Flying Machines

Halifax, N. S., December 2.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, writing from Baddeck, C. B., says the Aerial Experiment Association is actively employed on flying machine experiments there and at Hammondsport, N. Y. Dr. Bell adds that Dome No. 4, McCardy's "Silver Dock", has been completed in Hammonsport, and is expected to take the air to-day, or as soon as the weather will permit. Aerodomes No. 5 and No. 4 are rapidly approaching completion at Baddeck, but will not be tried until after the Hammondsport experiment has been completed. Dome No. 4, McCardy's "Silver Dock", has been built by the Aerial Experiment Association after plans approved by J. A. D. McCurdy, a native of Baddeck and graduate of Toronto University, aUnd one of Dr. Bell's chief assistants, McCurdy has made a large number of flights in Dome No. 3, "Juneibug". Dr. Bell says that no man in America, except the Wright brothers, has made so many successful flights

Dandelions In Bloom Along the Roadside

Reeve Scott, of Smith, was in the city yesterday with a drove of cattle, and he made the statement that on the way in he noticed at several places dandelions were blooming along the roadside. He was greatly surprised to see them, as it is seldom those yellow heads have much to say at this time of the year. The very mild weather is the cause of it.

Body Exhumed and Post Mortem to be Held

An investigation is being held into the cause of the death of Roland Lyette, whose death resulted from a bullet wound some time ago at Oregon, in Harvey township. It will be remembered that he and another youth, Tommy Gordon, were out together, when in some manner Lyette was killed.

The judges court upon the Court of Revision was held in the City Council chambers last night, when quite a number of appeals from the Court of Revision's decisions were heard.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

(LIMITED)

OCTOBER TO MARCH is the time to plant orange lemon and grape-fruit trees in Cuba.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most lucious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

TEN ACRES planted in oranges and grape fruit will produce when in bearing, an income of $2,700.00 to $5,00.00 per annum, thus rendering the owner independent for life.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

CUBAN FRUITS can be gathered and shipped when fully ripened, whilst Florida fruits are usually shipped green, the result being that the first are most lucious and wholesome and more eagerly sought by the buyers. No frost or snow, no extreme heat, and one of the healthiest climates in the world.

CALL AND SEE recent photographs of results. Prospectus seen on appliaation. Every information freely given

THIS COMPANY owns over 100 tobacco plantations, producing some of the finest grades known to the trade.

MORE THAN 70,000 citrus fruit trees (orange, grape-fruit and lemon) have already been planted, and more are being continually added.

NOW IS THE TIME to purchase. Under existing circumstances it will be but a short time before these fruit lands will bring many times their selling price.

IMMIGRATION

It is announced that the total immigration to Canada for the seven months, April to October, was 100,575, as compared with 212,024 last year, a decrease of 102,449, or 48 per cent. The total immigration via ocean ports from the 1st of January until the end of October was 86,481, as compared with 204,617 for the same period last year, a decrease of 118,136. The immigration from the United States for the same period was 50,238, as compared with 49,455, an increase of 783. The figures show decreases which Canadians will view with equanimity and increases of a sort on which they may be prepared to congratulate themselves.

THE BRITISH NAVY

The launching of the Collingwood, the most powerful of all the British battleships, adds another and a most formidable unit to the great naval aggregation which gives Great Britain the command of the seas. The Collingwood—named after one of the most gallant of our naval heroes—is the third of the great cruiser-battleships laid down in 1906, the Indomitable and the Inflexible being the other two. The development of the new type of battleship has been very rapid during the last few years, and the Dreadnought type was—notwithstanding various criticisms in some quarters—the inevitable outcome of the war in the far east. The British Admiralty was the first to lead the way in this development of a new type, but it was along a path that could not—as Mr. McKenna, the First Lord of the Admiralty, said recently—be shunned, unless we were willing to let other nations distance us in the severe struggle for naval supremacy. It is unfortunate that an Empire, the greatest interest of which is peace, should be compelled to appropriate such enormous sums as those comprised in the British Naval Estimates for maritime defence equipment. But the pace has been set by other nations, notably by the German Empire, among others, and there is apparently no escape from the enormous expenditures involved in the construction, equipment and armament of such huge and complicated fighting machines as the Collingwood and her sister ships.

No other nation occupies the position that the British Empire holds in regard to the maintenance of its defences and the provision required to put and maintain them in an effective condition to meet all demands that may be made upon them. Upon her Navy Great Britain must depend for the first line of defence of the shores of the British Isles for the certainty of the food supplies of the people of those islands reaching them; for the protection of a world-wide commerce and the security of every corner of an overseas empire the like of which the world has never before known. The cost of such an insurance against attack is enormous, but failing some international agreement for the limitation fo armaments a reduction in the annual premium to secure that assurance seems to be impossible. Sooner or later the daughter nations of the Empire must bear some of the share Empire must bear some share of the burden now borne alone by the Mother Country. Some one way or another as it may, the federation of the Empire must be reached one day, and in the solution of that great Imperial problem Britannia's trident will be in fact, as in name, the property as well as the symbol of the British Empire as a whole.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

PUBLIC PUNISHMENT.

The Days of the Whipping Post, Stocks and Branding Irons.

Up until the end of the war and a little while after the whipping post and stocks stood not far from the northwest corner of the courthouse and between that building and the present postoffice, and there the last whipping took place, though as it began it was sought to be stopped by a federal officer. The sheriff was, however, simply carrying out the mandate of the old court of pleas and quarter sessions.

In those days the stocks and the whipping post, too, were special attractions, notably to boys. The latter were allowed to ridicule people who sat in the stocks, which held their hands and feet, but not to throw anything at them.

Of course this deprived the boys of some degree of pleasure, yet they contrived to get a good deal of fun out of the thing anyway. It seems odd now even to think of such scenes as these must have been. Figure to yourself passing by the courthouse green at Charlotte or Raleigh and seeing a gentleman held by the ankles and wrists by wooden bars, sitting there in the sunshine for all the world to look at.

Those were the days of the branding iron too. A set of gyves of iron, in use for holding the ankles or wrists, are on exhibition here, but of branding irons there are none. These were used here in January, 1865, for the last time.—Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.

VANITY OF CONVICTS.

The Way Some Men Spruce Up in the Penitentiary.

"The vainest lot of men I ever did know are behind these walls," remarked a convict in the penitentiary. "For fastidious dressing and cleanliness I have never seen anything like it. Those who have been accustomed to sleeking up on the outside grow much worse in here, and those who never even combed their hair on the outside have it as cleanly parted as they can. I know of a hundred instances where convicts have risked being paddled or having time taken away just for the sake of shaving. They get hold of a razor or improvise one and keep it in their cells, along with the calendars.

"I know of one instance of a trusted prisoner who begged for weeks to be allowed to wear a hat instead of the prison cap because he thought he did not look well in it. Whenever they get an opportunity they press their trousers. They save collars for Sundays and appear very clean and neat and nice in chapel. I guess it is all because they have time to think about themselves more than ever. If a man has nothing but himself to think about he takes more pride in himself. Or maybe they want something with which to pass away the time in their cells."—Columbus Dispatch.

Blankets of Bark.

In Ecuador, one of the South American republics, the bark of a tree which grows on the slopes of the Andes is utilized for the making of blankets. The blanket is over six feet long and over five feet wide and is as soft and pliable as though it were made of flannel. It is about the thickness of a good flannel blanket and can be rolled up and put in a strap without hurting or injuring it. This tree or bark blanket is merely a strip of bark cut from a section of the trunk of the blanket or demajagua tree. The Indians make a cutting around the trunk to get it, and they prepare it by soaking it in water until it is soft. It is then pounded so that the rough outside can be stripped off and the inside alone left. The inside is of fine fibers so joined together by nature that it makes a beautiful blanket, warm enough to be used as a cover and soft enough for a mattress.

Change of Signal System Advocated

New York, December 2.—Love, liquor gambling and improvements in automatic safety devices and signals were some of the things held responsible for many railroad accidents by speakers at the 18th annual meeting of the New York and New England Association of Railway Surgeons yesterday.

Change of signal systems now in use by the railways was advocated in a paper by Prof. George M. Stratton, of the University of California. "One hundred persons may be killed in an accident due to the colorblindness of the present engineer," declared this professor, "and it is time that a change for better safety be made."

Officers were elected as follows:—President, Dr. J. M. Wainwright, Scranton, Pa.; vice-president, Dr. C. A. Pease, Burlington, Vt., and Dr. G. C. Madill, Ogdensburg, N. Y.; corresponding secretary, Dr. George Chaffee, Brooklyn; recording secretary, Dr. C. B. Herrick, Troy, N. Y.; treasurer, Dr. J. K. Stockwell, Oswego.

"OXOL"

The word "Oxol" does not mean one food, or one preparation No; "Oxol" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. & T. C. Windsor of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen, and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them mean money.

But now our Company owns outright one and one-half-miles of the same California Mother Lode and its promise is better than the other was at the same stage. It can be reached any day from San Francisco.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

We need and want milling equipment immediately, and are therefore offering a block of stock at the sacrifice price of ten cents per share (par value $1.00) for quick sale.

B. BROUGHTON, Mgr. Hamilton Stamp & Stencil Works, Hamilton

This Company holds 22 Timber Berths, aggregating 52 sq. miles (33,280 acres), all Carefully Selected, containing over 800,000,000 Feet of Finest Timber Bought by this Company at the Exceptionally Low Figure of 26 Cents per Thousand Feet

All of this timber is located in the Willow River District on solid level ground, lies close beside good water for logging, and is mostly White Spruce of a superior quality. It averages 30 inches in diameter and ranges from 90 to 160 feet high. The limbs commence half way up. There is some good tall Pine and Balsam. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Surveys both cross the Willow River lower down than our limits.

British Columbia White Spruce is infinitely superior to the Ontario variety, and makes the finest finished lumber for interior work. It also makes splendid lumber for general use. Ends of logs and logs too small for lumber can be utilized for pulp, as WHITE SPRUCE IS UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE THE FINEST MATERIAL IN THE WORLD FOR PULP FOR FINE PAPERMAKING.

The limits were cruised by James M. Anderson, of Sutton West, an Ex-Crown Timber Agent, and the company has on fyle at its office a number of letters from some of the most prominent business men in Canada in recommendation of his capability and integrity, and from settlers in the Caribou District, verifying his report of the timber.

The company has also issued in pamphlet form the report, dated October, 31st, 1908, of Mr. H. P. BELL, M.I.C.E., member Am. Soc. C.E., at present Superintending Engineer on the Government Staff on the Trent Valley Canal, at Campbellford, Ont., who was employed by the British Columbia Government in 1874-5-6 to make a survey up the Willow River Valley for the proposed route of the British Pacific Railway, and who cut the Govt. trails through the Willow River District in 1895. His report substantiates Mr. Anderson's in every detail, and in view of Mr. Bell's pre eminence among the Civil Engineers of America, among whom there is no higher authority on the topography of the Caribou District, his report willbe universally accepted as being entirely correct. Mr. Bell was recommended to this company by M. Collingwood Schreiber, Consulting Engineer to the Dominion Government, and Chief Engineer of the Western Division of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Good Timber if Well Located is the Safest and Best Investment in the world to-day

FIRE DOES NOT DESTROY MATURED TIMBER; it kills and stops the growth, but if cut down WITHIN TWO YEARS AFTER the fire this timber will make first class lumber, but fire does destroy the young growth of small saplings, thus depriving the coming generations of their timber supply. ANY RELIABLE LUMBER DEALER WILL VERIFY THIS STATEMENT.

The C.P.R. holds several timber limits in British Columbia, and after reserving the best, is selling the second class timber at $2,00 per 1,000 feet on the stump. If we sell our selected timber at the same figure in three years, on a basis of $224,000 paid-up capital,

Each Hundred Dollars invested To-day at Par will brigg a return of $722.52

This is not exaggerated ; $2.00 per thousand for good timber is a ridiculously low price. In Ontario Spruce is now worth from $7.00 to $9 00 per thousand feet on the stump and is rapidly increasing in value.

The Company has reserved $36,000 Treasury Stock to provide for future Gov't License fees

American Syndicate Buy Timber Lands

Fredericton, N. B., December 2.—New Brunswick's choicest timber limits will be sold to capitalists of Massachusetts, represented by F. D .Davis, of Lawrence, and C. S. Baxter, of Boston. The price will be about $2,500,000, and it is said that the International Paper Company, of New York, will eventually become the owners and carry on a more extensive business than that of the present owners, the Alexander Gibson Railway & Manufacturing Company. Supporting the stories of the approaching sale is the fact that the Gibson company have not as yet contracted with their operators for the winter's cut, although in past seasons they had men in the woods long before this time.

.....The.....
Plow Woman

By Eleanor Gates

"Nothing to report but failure," he repeated, and let the orderly pull off his stiffened overcoat.

"The troop?" asked Colonel Cummings anxiously.

"All safe." The other hung his cap on a nail, his belt upon his overcoat.

"Thank heaven! That storm—I was afraid. Where did it catch you?"

"On the Knife. We put up with some half breeds. It was hard on the horses, but a rest for the men."

The colonel led the way into the library.

On his entrance a figure in the dusk behind the stove sprang up with a questioning cry. It was young Jamieson.

"Easy, easy, for God's sake!" begged the captain. He put out one arm as if to ward off a blow.

Jamieson brought up. He saw the look of defeat in Oliver's bloodshot eyes, and his voice quaked, his body shuddered in mortal terror of what he was to hear.

"It's bad news, but not as bad as it might be," began the captain. Colonel Cummings offered him a chair. He dropped into it. "It is said that your mother and sister are alive, and will be delivered up to us in the spring, provided there are no executions here. But—I didn't see them, and I don't know where they are."

Jamieson coughed down a heartbroken protest and, as if stunned, tottered weakly toward the stove.

Colonel Cummings knotted his hands together. "Where's Matthews?" he asked.

He was answered by the slamming of the outside door and by a voice in the entry. A moment later there was a sharp tattoo on the library door. The colonel opened it and answered the interpreter's salute.

With Matthews seated on the army cot and the commanding officer pacing to and fro, Captain Oliver made his report. He stood at the window, his arms folded, his eyes following his superior.

"We located the camp easily," he said. "The directions given by the hostages were exact. But that is about the only thing that did come easily. The rest was all procrastination.

"At noon on the tenth day out we saw ahead of us on a ridge a single Indian. I selected four men to make a swift detour, thinking that perhaps they would discover a hunting party just over the crest. But the slope beyond was unoccupied, and there were only the marks of one pair of moccasins. I concluded that the solitary brave was scouting, and I was right.

"A few miles farther we sighted a half dozen Indians. They were watching us from a hill. I called a halt. Then I took two men and Mr. Matthews and made forward. We carried a truce flag. They let us come within talking distance. They knew, I am sure, why we were there, but they asked no questions—just told us that the command was expected to advance no farther than a grove that lay a little ahead, to our right. I assented to that, and said I wished a conference with their head chief. They promised me an answer later on and at once withdrew to a rise a mile behind. There they stayed until, after a careful reconnoiter, we entered the grove.

"Late that afternoon Mr. Matthews and I again rode forward to speak to a trio of warriors. One of them, a big, bony fellow in a splendid bonnet, asked what we wanted. The interpreter told him. The Indian said that the head chief was very sick and that he could not leave his lodge. He told us we might accompany them to the village, which lay a few miles farther up. Of course I rejected the proposal.

"Well, I saw there was no use to haggle in that fashion. I ordered the interpreter to go into particulars. He proceeded to state your terms."

At this point in the narrative Colonel Cummings stood still. Captain Oliver advanced toward him a step and met his eyes in a curious, helpless way.

"It was queer," he continued, "but what Mr. Matthews told them didn't seem to scare them any."

"Oh, it didn't!" cried the colonel angrily and once more began to pace.

"No, they grinned at him and chattered together. Then they rode away. When dark came on, fearing treachery, we left the grove for a sheltered place farther down. Our scouts then set out for the Indian village, going across the river and far around to the right. On their return they said that the Sioux camp numbered several hundred wigwams, while just above was a village of dog soldiers.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a sudden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is now so directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It purifies, strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen those nerves—restore them as stated, with

All Are Thankful

By our Junior Reporter.

The following lines were found on the desk of our city editor, having evidently been left there late last night. It is not often that our junior has one of these attacks, but the spasm is usually severe while it lasts.

SUNNY JIM.

I am thankful for the way the people voted
I am thankful for the splendid run I made;
Though it was a rather heavy load I toted—
("Sunny Jim" is now a fairy in a glade)—
I showed a speed that was, indeed, surprising
I am glad that I shall sit where Bob Hall sat;
In Toronto I began my early rising,
And I'm thankful, mighty thankful, too—for that.

BOB'S GRATITUDE.

I'm thankful for the hits that I have made
I'm thankful for the heads that I have dented,
I'm thankful for the part that I have played,
I'm ready now to quit the game contented (?)

HAM'S REMARKS.

I'm thankful for the trouble I'm escaping,
If I'd troubles I'd be thankful just the same
I'm thankful to be able to be shaping
My programme for another little game.
I'm thankful to have had the chance to run;
I enjoyed the exercise and won't deny it;
To me it's such exhilarating fun,
That I hope to have a chance again to try it.

EVY'S THANKFULNESS.

I am thankful that I very seldom boast,
I'm glad that no one interviews me;
I'm glad whenever Jimmy gets a roast,
The people who keep after him amuse me,
I'm thankful for the job I hold at present,
I'm thankful to have found the world so fair;
I hope that heaven will be one-half as pleasant
When I reluctantly land over there.

Peterborough Curling Club will Admit a Ladies' Curling Club

Eastern Ontario Curling Association May be Formed—New Secretary Appointed—Lighting System In Operation

May Hold a Bonspiel Here Soon

An enthusiastic meeting of the curling club was held in the new rink last night for the first time since it was completed, although a couple of committees have met. A large number were present and everyone is well satisfied with the new structure. The lighting system has been installed and the whole rink is illuminated. It presented a very attractive appearance. The light is a good clear white one, and the whole ice surface will be evenly lighted. There will be no shadows and the curlers can see as well at night as on the brightest day. As far as can be seen now the new system will be eminently satisfactory. There are two lights on each post, with a double row down the centre of the rink.

The new heating system was also used last night, and while it was cold outside it was very warm inside.

In opening the meeting the President stated that it was a great pleasure to be permitted to meet in this handsome building after the little place they had last year. Judging from the way the people wished to join, the game this year was going to be the greatest in the city. It was now hard to keep the people out. The meeting to-night was called for the purpose of electing skips, and this would be proceeded with at once.

Secretary Waddell then read the minutes of the last meeting, which were adopted.

NEW SECRETARY.

Mr. Waddell stated that he would not be able to accept the office of secretary again, as he had held that office for three years.

Much regret was expressed at Mr. Waddell's retirement from office.

On motion of Mr. T. F. Matthews and Mr. W. E. Talbot, Mr. Harry Fpote was nominated, but he could not accept. Several others were nominated, but all withdrew.

Gerald Rickham, J. H. Ferguson, George Gireaux and Dr Wightman were all nominated.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson was finally elected Secretary of the Peterborough Curling Club.

SELECTION OF SKIPS.

It was suggested by the President that a committee be appointed to nominate the skips.

Mr. Matthews suggested that the skips be selected in open meeting and that a committee from those skips be appointed to arrange the rinks and to be very careful that all the old players are not put on the same rinsk. This was adopted and also the skip will choose his own vice skip.

Moved by R. Hicks, seconded by Mr. Brightman, that all the skips who were elected last year and who are on the membership roll this year be re-elected with power to add to their number.—Carried.

LADIES TO CURL.

It was suggested that the ladies be allowed to curl this winter. It appears that some of the ladies would like to get into the game, and some of the men are in favor of allowing them to curl.

Mr. Brightman expressed himself as very much in favor of allowing the ladies to curl in the morning or afternoon without a fee this year.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, when asked his opinion, said that by all means allow them to curl in the morning and afternoon.

Mr. O. N. Brown said he was in favor of allowing the ladies to curl as he would only be here in the evenings.

Mr. Brightman moved that the ladies be invited to form a curling club.

Mr. T. F. Matthews moved in amendment, that a fee of $1.00 be charged each lady member for the use of the ice. Mr. Waddell seconded the motion, and it carried.

EASTERN ONTARIO ASSOCIATION

A letter was received from the secretary of the Belleville Curling Club asking for the views of Peterborough on the proposal to form an eastern Ontario curling association with Port Hope as the western limit, Lindsay the northern, and Prescott as the eastern, and that annual bonspiels be held. He is communicating with the other clubs in the district.

On motion of T. F. Matthews and Mr. Brightman, the communication was received and action deferred to another meeting.

SCHEDULE COMMITTEE.

The following were elected as a schedule committee— Messrs. Gireaux, Foote and J. H. Ferguson.

PETERBOROUGH BONSPIEL

Considerable discussion was aroused when the Peterborough bonspiel for this season was mentioned. It has been the desire for a long time to hold a big bonspiel here, and especially now that the curlers have such a handsome rink. No doubt it would be quite an attraction and many outside clubs would no doubt be glad to receive an invitation to take part in it.

On the other hand it was pointed out that as there were a great many new members this year who would wish to practice for a year before

Cold Snap Here to Stay

The cold snap is here to stay for a while. Such is the weather man's ultimatum. Out west it dropped as low as 21 below, at Battleford, but the west is promised milder weather for to-day.

The storm which passed over Ontario has now reached the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the cold wave has spread over the greater portion of the continent. Fresh gales have prevailed from the lakes to the Maritime Provinces, attended by a change to decidedly colder weather. The probabilities for the lower lake region are for northwest to west winds, fair and decidedly cold, with local snow flurries. To-day it will be fine, with little change in temperature.

Board of Education Has Closed an Historic Year

With Tuesday night's meeting the Board of Education completed the most historic year in its history, a fact which is known to and recognized by everyone. It has truly been a year of action and as a result this city, which has a reputation throughout the Dominion as a manufacturing centre, and as a most attractive place in which to live, is now risen to the front ranks as an educational centre. It is doubtful if any town or city in the Dominion, comparing population, can equal the schools, (buildings and equipment), and teaching staffs of Peterborough. If there is a place, then that community is indeed fortunate.

For twenty-five years there was practically nothing done to improve the school accommodation until probably three or four years ago. At that time the Board of Education was face to face with the serious and urgent proposition of supplying more schools, more teachers, better equipment and better teachers. To the credit of the board they faced their task like men, and they have carried out an extensive programme very successfully, and without the least friction or disagreeableness on the part of the members, although at one time there was great opposition in a certain circle against a part of the plans. But now that the work is completed, even the few faultfinders are bound to admit that they were mistaken.

Since the plans were formulated the board has expended in the neighborhood of $150,000 of the people's money. To show for it they present the new King Edward Public School—a twelve-roomed building, with eight rooms already occupied, and a bright prospect for three more being opened next year; the Queen Alexandria School, which was enlarged to a ten-roomed school, is nearly filled, and is being used by the Normal School students as a training school; the Collegiate Institute, which is one of, if not the finest schools in the province. It is a handsome structure. It is well built. It is light, airy and perfectly sanitary. It is furnished and equipped with the very newest and most up-to-date furnishings and equipment. It is a credit to the city and the pride of the citizens.

The King Edward School cost, complete $36,000

The Queen Alexandria School cost, complete $20,000

The Collegiate Institute cost complete $80,000

In addition to the improvement in the buildings and equipment, the teaching staffs have been added to and the best teachers in the province secured, while all along the line the salaries have been raised, so that the city is ahead of Peterborough. All the schools are open and are running as smoothly as clockwork. There is perfect harmony among the teachers, the principals and scholars, and much of this is due to the wisdom of the governing body in making their selections and carefully looking after their work.

Board of Education Members Whose Term Expires

There will be four members of the Board of Education to be elected at the January elections unless the old ones are returned by acclamation. Those whose terms will expire are Messrs. R. Fair, this year's Chairman; Dr. Morrison, who was Chairman of the Collegiate Institute Building Committee; Wm. Robinson and B. F. Ackerman. All these gentlemen, except Mr. Robinson, have been on the board for several years and have seen a lot of service. It is understood, although not officially stated yet, that they will all seek re-election. It is still doubtful, however, whether there will be an election of the Board of Education, as no new men have definitely stated that they will make a try for office. It is known, however, that several have aspirations, and if there is a contest it will be a warm one.

Junior City Hockey League Adopted a Constitution

A meeting of the Peterborough Junior City League was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. parlors with the following teams represented: The Chieftains, by Harry Munro; the Otonabee A. A. C., by G. Harris; the P. C. J., by Harry Hall, and the George Street Methodist by Stanley Wade. Secretary Treasurer J. A. Clarke occupied the chair.

The constitution of the Senior City League was adopted with the erasing of a number of the clauses, viz.:

First, that any player eligible to play in the Junior City League will be allowed to participate in two Junior O. H. A. games, and that the Chieftains be allowed to draft players from the league.

Second, That the players be allowed to play in the church league.

Third, That no player who has played in the Senior City League be allowed to play.

It was also decided that the Senior League be approached as to whether they will allow the Junior League to use the rink the hour preceding the senior games, and the juniors in return must sell 100 tickets for the Senior League to defray the expenses.

Another meeting will be held on the 15th, when a schedule will be drawn up. Each team must have its entrance fee paid before the next meeting.

Tables are Turned with a Vengeance in Hayti, An Infuriated Mob

The People of Port Au Prince Have Revolted Against the Government — Order is Preserved

Take Possession of City with Ease

Port au Prince, Hayti, Dec. 2.—The people of Port au Prince have revolted against the government. They are now in possession of the city. There has been no fighting with the Government troops. A provisional government has been established and General Legitime has accepted the presidency of the new administration.

The events of the morning came before they were expected. Uneasiness was noticed throughout the night on the part of the people, but it was not thought the outbreak would occur so quickly, nor that the movement would be successful without the shedding of a drop of blood.

TWO OF THE BUTCHERS.

General Jules Coicou, the military commander of Port au Prince, is among the refugees, as is also General Hyacinthe. Coicou is the man who caused the assassination of his own brother and two of his cousins last January for complicity in the unsuccessful revolutionary movement which broke out at that time, and Hyacinthe is the official who presided at the wholesale massacre that followed the suppression of this outbreak. He has taken refuge at the German Legation.

Sings in Cafe for a Living

Paris, Dec. 2.—The Princess De Broglie, who was a Mrs. S. B. Veit, of Chicago, has begun divorce proceedings against her husband on the grounds of desertion.

She is singing in Paris restaurants to earn a livelihood for herself and children, and every night she makes a round of the better known cafes.

ARE YOU WEAK AFTER SICKNESS?

Later on It Will Be Harder to Get Strong than Today. What are You Doing to Get Well?

A case in point is well exemplified in the following letter from Mrs. V. J. Wilder, wife of a well known citizen of Pittsfield, who writes: "I had a nervous disorder that completely prostrated me. I couldn't sleep, and would lay and toss about all night, arising in the morning more tired than ever, head heavy, eyes dull, and every bone and muscle aching. I tried to get along without calling in a doctor, but was finally driven to it. He treated me for some time, but with no perceptible improvement in my health. Some one recommended Ferrozone. The change it effected in my system was noticeable almost instantly. I gradually took on flesh. The 'all-gone' feeling left me. In less than six weeks I was fully recovered from what looked to me like an everlasting sickness. I will always recommend Ferrozone feeling with sincerity that it is an honest, powerful, health-giving tonic.

Try Ferrozone today!

The nourishment and vital energy it supplies is wonderful.

Ferrozone makes you feel better at once, it's good for men, for women, for children—just the thing for everybody seeking better health. Sold by all dealers 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50.

Britain and Germany Running a Neck-and-Neck Race for Supremacy

Great Britain Must Spend Eight Millions a Year More—Cause for Much Deep-Seated Anxiety

Germany's Strong Bid for the Lead

London, Dec. 2.—"Our Endangered Sea Supremacy" is the subject of a weighty article in the Quarterly Review, which draws attention to the fact that Great Britain and Germany are now "running a neck-and-neck race."

The article finds cause for deep-seated anxiety in the manner in which Mr. Asquith and his colleagues, in endeavoring to placate the Socialistic section of their supporters, have forced the United Kingdom into a position of extreme financial difficulty." Points from the article are:—

In the past three years the amount of British shipbuilding "has barely exceeded the quantity placed to the credit of the German fleet alone."

In the last three budgets surpluses have been secured by postponing necessary expenditure on the navy.

Whereas in the past three years British naval expenditure has been reduced by an aggregate sum of £2,000,000, as compared with the high-water mark of 1904-5, German naval expenditure has risen by £12,000,000.

No provision has been made for the adequate maintenance of the fleet in future years, and the Government has ignored the naval crisis which is approaching.

The German Navy Act of this year has pledged the German Empire to a naval expenditure of £200,000,000 in the next ten years.

Britain has twelve Dreadnoughts in hand against Germany's ten. Each year Germany will add four to these ten. Germany, in fact, will strengthen her fleet at the rate of one Dreadnought per quarter, one 26-knot cruiser every six months, and one destroyer and one large submarine every month.

A demand is made for a British programme of six ships of Dreadnought type, with cruisers and destroyers in proportion, to be begun early in the summer, as essential for 1909.

It is obvious that there is another side to this question, and this other side, we believe, is accurately represented by the following statement which we have received from a naval correspondent:—

"Whatever may have been the building programme of the British Government during the past two years, it has sufficed to assure our equality to the two-power standard until the year 1911. This assertion is based on the obvious argument that the Dreadnoughts have not made all other classes obsolete. It is clear that the launch of the Dreadnought does nothing more than make the older type of ships obsolete one for new construction"—a very different thing from the statement that one German Dreadnought makes obsolete all British battleships of pre-Dreadnought days.

The point to be borne in mind is that ships of the first line have a limited period of life. The case may be put in the form of an equation; If we call Dreadnoughts D and ships of the pre-Dreadnought period F, and assume that D equals F, then as long as we maintain the two-power standard. Eventually F vanishes owing to age and British D must equal German and French D.

British, French, D plus F
German D plus F

There is an ample margin of pre-Dreadnoughts to maintain the two-Power standard to 1911, so that it is the future programme that mainly concerns us.

Six armoured ships, six unarmoured cruisers, sixteen destroyers every year with the usual complement of submarines and auxiliaries, would keep us just ahead of the two-power standard until the completion of the German programme. This would mean an ad-

A Vancouver Sensation

Vancouver, B. C. Dec. 2.—A sensational story in the Vancouver British Province [illegible] working among the Sikhs and Hindoos of the Pacific Coast unearthed the details of a proposed uprising against British rule in India. The story is to the effect that scattered outrages are now taking places in India for the purpose of scattering the the British troops. The main rising will take places in April next at Amritsar. Stocks of arms of modern type, recently manufactured in Japan and smuggled into India, are hidden in various districts.

Substitutional Service Granted

Special to the Times.

Toronto, Dec. 2.—A substitutional service was granted by the court this afternoon in the case of the protest against the election of J. R. Stratton for West Peterborough.

When the party who is to be served cannot be found to be served in person, the court grants the privilege of leaving the notice at the party's house, and it has the same value.

TRAVELLER'S VALUABLE FIND

Travelling on the I. C. R., Mr. Harry Towers, St. Paul street, St. John, N. B, found a box of Zam-Buk, the great skin healer. He was suffering from badly chapped hands at the time, so applied the balm. He says— "Zam-Buk eased the pain and smarting, healed the cracks and made my hands quite smooth. Finding it so good, I kept a supply handy, and have since proved it a really wonderful healer. It cures cuts, sores or burns equally well, and I would not like now to be without a supply."

Mr. Towers is only one of thousands who are glad they heard of Zam-Buk. There is no skin disease it will not relieve and cure. Its fame is spreading everywhere, and it is now regarded as nature's great "first-aid" in workshops, on the farm, or in the home. No traveller should be without it. Every home should have a box always ready for use. A little Zam-Buk rubbed regularly on the hands and face before retiring each night will keep the skin soft and free from chaps, cold-sores or disease.

If you have a cut, a bruise or some irritating skin disease, which has defied all ordinary remedies, apply Zam-Buk. It first cleanses a wound by killing off all harmful bacteria. Then it builds up new tissue, cell by cell, just as a bricklayer lays row after row of bricks; then it covers the wound with new, healthy skin, and the cure is effected.

Zam-Buk is also a cure for piles. It gives speedy relief and ends the throbbing, burning pains. Skin diseases, such as eczema, itch, ulcers, barber's rash, rashes due to blood-poison, etc., cannot resist its powerful, healing virtues. Purely vegetable, it is an ideal combination of power and purity. 50c a box of all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Reject cheap, harmful and dangerous substitutes.

Will Hold Postmortem on Late Roland Ayotte

There is suspicion that Roland Ayotte, the ten-year-old boy who met his death in Harvey township on the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 12th, was not killed accidentally, as was reported at the time. It was said he shot himself accidentally. But the boy's mother and his uncle, Mr. Ayotte, are of the opinion that his death resulted from different causes than those stated, and Coroner Gray, after careful investigation by himself and High County Constable Cochrane, decided that it was necessary to hold an inquest. The inquest was opened yesterday at the Lakeview Hotel, Young's Point. A jury was empanelled and went to the Young's Point Catholic Cemetery to view the remains of the boy, the burial taking place on Saturday, Nov. 12th, two days after the death. The evidence of Dr. Young, who made an examination of the body was heard, and he decided it was necessary to make a post-mortem examination before he could report satisfactorily. He will be assisted in this by Dr. Boucher. The remains when viewed by the jury were in a decomposed state. The post-mortem examination will be made on Thursday, and Coroner Gray has issued an order for burial after the post-mortem has been held.

FIRST SITTING

The following were the jury empanelled yesterday— Andrew Allen, foreman, Joseph Walsh, Wm. John Bullock, W. E. Young, Josiah Bullock, Wm Lane, Robert Freeburn, Ambrose Davis, Peter Bullock, James Kearney, Fredrick Young, Edward Young, Matthew Young.

Dr. Young, sworn, said— "I viewed the body of the late Roland Ayotte and I saw a wound on the chest, but I could not tell what caused said wound on deceased's chest. I also saw marks on the face, but I could not tell what caused these marks. I could not tell unless by post-mortem examination, nor could I tell the cause of deceased's death except by a post-mortem examination."

It was moved by Juryman Fred. Young and Juryman J. F. Kearney that Dr. Young have an assistant on post-mortem to be held over the body of the late Roland Ayotte.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically and I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Shrubb Wins Another.

There was a big crowd at the roller rink last night to see Alf. Shrubb run against three local runners. The distance was a mile and a half and it was done in 6 min. 45 sec., which was much better than the night before. The race throughout was most exciting and the crowd applauded liberally. Shrubb was only successful in gaining one lap on the three men, and they crowded the finishing line together. The runners were Webb, Montgomery and Hatches.

To-night Shrubb will meet all comers a half mile each. The more the merrier.

Bill Metheral Fell Off Scaffold at Port Colborne

Port Colborne, Dec 2.—W. J. Metherall, a young machinist of Peterborough, while working at the Government elevator this morning, fell from a scaffold on the tower, a distance of 25 feet, to the dock, landing on his feet. It is thought that with the exception of being badly strained and the shock to his system, Mr. Metherall will suffer no serious results because of the accident.

"Bill" Metherall's friends in this city, where he is widely known, will regret very much to hear of the accident to him. Considering the fact that he fell such a distance, he was very fortunate in not meeting with serious injuries. His home is at 474 Aylmer street and he is a son of Mr. Joseph R. Metherall.

To stop any pain in 20 minutes, take one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. See formula on the box. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about this formula. It can't be bettered. Womanly pains, head pains, any pain gets instant relief. Box of twenty Pink Pain Tablets, 25c. Sold by all dealers.

OTTAWA'S WATER DIFFICULTY

The Chaudiere between Ottawa and Hull is practically dry. Only tiny streamlets are visible, trickling over the rocks, most of which are bare. Six months ago the foaming waters combed over these natural walls off stone eight or ten feet deep. The low water which produced the abnormal conditions in the picturesque rapids have caused the greatest set back to manufacturing in the twin cities since the arrival of any of the industrial kings. The Eddy and Booth pulp mills have been idle for two months, and steam auxiliary plants are in general use for such operations as can be carried on. The cut shows the bare rocks which form the "Big Kettle," and also the north end of the new dam being built at the head of the falls at a cost of half a million dollars.—Ottawa Free Press.

Waking a Deaf Person.

"To waken a deaf person who wishes to be called at a certain hour is about the hardest proposition a hotel clerk runs up against," said a member of that genial fraternity. "To ring the telephone is useless because the man couldn't hear if you rang until doomsday. Knocking, for the same reason, is equally futile. Now and then a guest who has lost his hearing suggests that he leave his door open all night so we can walk right in and shake him, but even though he does appear to be a dead game sport there are so many chances of somebody else less gulleless than ourselves walking in ahead of us that we cannot consent to that. So far the only satisfactory way found for waking a deaf lodger is to tie a string to his wrist, pass the string through the keyhole and then tug away at it at the appointed time. That method, however, is rather primitive. It seems to me that the man who can patent a harmless artistic device for waking the deaf is sure of fame and fortune, not to mention the gratitude of hotel clerks."—New York Sun.

The Mullahs of India.

A mullah, or, as it is more properly written, mollah, is a title given in India and throughout the east generally to a religious leader of any description. Thus the sultan of Turkey is a mollah, because he is the supreme head of the moslem world. And there are hundreds of others. To most of the more conspicuous among them we prefix the adjective "mad." This, however, must not be taken to mean that they are insane, the word being used rather in its oriental significance of "inspired." The person of the mollah is sacred. Not even the mighty Habibullah himself would care to lay a sacrilegious finger on one of these saintly personages. If he were to venture such an unheard of thing, vengeance would surely overtake him. For it is the cardinal principle of the Ulima—as the mollahs are collectively termed—that an injury purposely caused to one of their number can only be atoned for by the death of the individual inflicting it.

Greatest Danger to Swimmers.

"It isn't cramp," said a life guard, "that carries off so many good swimmers. After all, what is a leg or arm cramp? Couldn't a good swimmer easily turn on his back and float till the attack departed? No, cramp won't account for the strange seizures that in a twinkling turn a very fish of a swimmer into a helpless, speechless, drowning paralytic. What accounts for this business is water inhaling. A swimmer inhales spray through the nostrils, it passes through the pharynx, behind the epiglottis or windpipe guard as it so down into the windpipe. The result is nearly certain death. Swallowing water does you no harm, but breathing it may kill you. How to avoid accidentally breathing it, though, that is a question nobody seems able to answer."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or attenuating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Ice and Mice.

For horses suffering from inflammation of the lungs an old prescription was a mixture of shot and powder in milk. This has ever been applied to human beings. In "Idlehurst" mention is made of sparrow shot, five or six to the dose, to be taken twice a day, as a remedy for "brown kiters," which is believed by the English farm laborers to be caused by the "lights" (their term for lungs) rising up the windpipe. The shot is supposed to weight them down in their rightful place. Sussex, England, is the scene of "Idlehurst." It was a Sussex woman who was ordered by the doctor to put some ice in a bag and bind it on the temples of her sick boy. Inquiring after his patient the next day, the physician received the reply, "Oh, Tommy's better, but the mice are dead!"

Then He Got His.

A young Lancashire lad joined the army and soon after his arrival at headquarters got into trouble. Accordingly he had to face his commanding officer next morning.

The usual preliminaries were gone through, when, contrary to orderly room etiquette, the recruit commenced to defend himself.

"Silence!" roared the adjutant.

"Thou shut up," said the prisoner. "I'm not speaking to thee. I'm talking to the old chap in the chair."—London Scraps.

Too Much For Him.

"How true that old saying is about a child asking questions that a man cannot answer," remarked Popleigh.

"What's the trouble now?" queried his friend Singleton.

"This morning," replied Popleigh, "my little boy asked me why men were sent to congress, and I couldn't tell him."—Chicago News.

Did He?

"You never saw a man who understood women."

"Well, I knew a man once who claimed that he did."

"And did he?"

"Well, he never married one."—Houston Post.

Her Chin.

Dawson—The facial features plainly indicate character and disposition. In selecting your wife, were you governed by her chin? Spenlow—No, but I have been ever since we married.

Her Ears In Danger.

Susie had left her toys about the kitchen. Mother (picking them up)—Susie, if you leave these things about the kitchen again I'll box your ears and throw them in the ash pit.

Burma's Popular Sports.

A form of speculation very popular in Burma is bull racing. A certain native sportsman is the owner of one of these bulls, for which he has refused an offer of 10,000 rupees. It has won several races and is looked after and as carefully tended as a Derby favorite. The owner values it at 25,000 rupees, and, it is said, it brings him an annual income of from 12,000 to 15,000 rupees. It is carefully guarded by four men lest it may be got at and "doctored."

Burmans also patronize boxing eagerly, but the art can scarcely be practiced according to Queensberry rules, for we are told by a provincial reporter that he has observed that "even the best boxers strike out with their eyes tightly shut, and if they do hit each other it is more by chance than anything else."—Calcutta Statesman.

Ward System for Electing the Aldermen

When the city council meets on Monday night the aldermen will be presented with a petition asking them to pass a by-law at once to go back to the old-fashioned way of electing aldermen, viz., the ward system. It appears that a body of people are not satisfied with the election of municipal legislattors at large. The petition is now being circulated, but it is doubtful if anything can be done by the aldermen at this late date.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are sold by druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine, nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—a large box—48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

B. BROUGHTON, Mgr. Hamilton Stamp & Stencil Works, Hamilton

This Company holds 22 Timber Berths, aggregating 52 sq. miles (33,280 acres), all Carefully Selected, containing over 800,000,000 Feet of Finest Timber Bought by this Company at the Exceptionally Low Figure of 26 Cents per Thousand Feet

All of this timber is located in the Willow River District on solid level ground, lies close beside good water for logging, and is mostly White Spruce of a superior quality. It averages 30 inches in diameter and ranges from 90 to 160 feet high. The limbs commence half way up. There is some good tall Pine and Balsam. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Surveys both cross the Willow River lower down than our limits.

British Columbia White Spruce is infinitely superior to the Ontario variety, and makes the finest finished lumber for interior work. It also makes splendid lumber for general use. Ends of logs and logs too small for lumber can be utilized for pulp, as WHITE SPRUCE IS UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE THE FINEST MATERIAL IN THE WORLD FOR PULP FOR FINE PAPERMAKING.

The limits were cruised by James M. Anderson, of Sutton West, an Ex-Crown Timber Agent, and the company has on fyle at its office a number of letters from some of the most prominent business men in Canada in recommendation of his capability and integrity, and from settlers in the Cariboo District, verifying his report of the timber.

The company has also issued in pamphlet form the report, dated October, 31st, 1908, of Mr. H. P. BELL, M.I.C.E., member Am. Soc. C.E., at present Superintending Engineer on the Government Staff on the Trent Valley Canal, at Campbellford, Ont., who was employed by the British Columbia Government in 1874-5-6 to make a survey up the Willow River Valley for the proposed route of the British Pacific Railway, and who cut the Govt. trails through the Willow River District in 1895. His report substantiates Mr. Anderson's in every detail, and in view of Mr. Bell's pre eminence among the Civil Engineers of America, among whom there is no higher authority on the topography of the Cariboo District, his report willbe universally accepted as being entirely correct. Mr. Bell was recommended to this company by M. Collingwood Schreiber, Consulting Engineer to the Dominion Government, and Chief Engineer of the Western Division of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Good Timber if Well Located is the Safest and Best Investment in the world to-day

FIRE DOES NOT DESTROY MATURED TIMBER; it kills and stops the growth, but if cut down WITHIN TWO YEARS AFTER the fire this timber will make first class lumber, but fire does destroy the young growth of small saplings, thus depriving the coming generations of their timber supply. ANY RELIABLE LUMBER DEALER WILL VERIFY THIS STATEMENT.

The C.P.R. holds several timber limits in British Columbia, and after reserving the best, is selling the second class timber at $2,00 per 1,000 feet on the stump. If we sell our selected timber at the same figure in three years, on a basis of $224,000 paid-up capital,

Each Hundred Dollars invested To-day at Par will brinq a return of $722.52

This is not exaggerated ; $2.00 per thousand for good timber is a ridiculously low price. In Ontario Spruce is now worth from $7.00 to $9 00 per thousand feet on the stump and is rapidly increasing in value.

The Company has reserved $36,000 Treasury Stock to provide for future Gov't License fees dition of about eight millions a year to the Navy Estimates.

SUPREMACY SAFE.

Although British naval supremacy is safe, it is certain that we must not rest where we are. Germany is setting a pace that forces us to quicken ours. If we were at war with Germany we would have to raise money by loan, probably at the rate of from two to three million pounds a week. Germany has declared financial war against all maritime nations—and especially against Great Britain—and we should meet her by financial expenditure. To do this Germany asks us to raise eight millions per annum above the normal expenditure of former years—or—allowing for automatic increase in cost of production and the higher standard required—say, seven millions a year for nine years; that is a loan of £63,000,000 spread over nine years, instead of £250,000,000 spread over little more than one year.

The internal administration of the British Navy is quite sound. The disaffected who hold in public are loyal neither to themselves nor to their country. Everybody may not be agreed upon the same policy, but all loyal people desire that the policy of the Government shall have a fair trial.

FIRST LORD'S POLICY.

Mr. McKinna, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared in a speech at Glasgow that our duty was to see that the Navy was as strong as was necessary for security, and, if need be, to throw in a small percentage for greater security.

"We have," he said, "remarkable evidence constantly recurring of the presence of mind, discipline, daring, and recource of the men. Nothing has struck me so much as the vitality of their fighting spirit. The temper of all ranks is such that we might be living to-day on the morrow of Trafalgar.

"The maintenance of our Empire and our very independence itself as a nation rest upon the supremacy of our navy.

"Our duty is to make sure that our Navy is strong enough to meet successfully any foe or reasonably probable combination of foes.

"Suffice it for us that we have, and mean to have, a Navy strong enough for absolute security."

"The night passed quietly. In the morning a single brave came riding toward us. He stopped beyond rifle reach. I sent the interpreter out. He returned to say that the chief promised him fair treatment if he would come alone. I took it that the camp was anxious for a little entertainment and that one white was to furnish it. I didn't consider this second proposal a minute. It was worse than foolish, I thought. But"—he looked toward the cot—"Mr. Matthews didn't agree with me. He went. It was a magnificent bit of courage, sir."

The colonel wheeled. "By Jupiter!" he exclaimed. "You did that?"

Matthews smiled and crossed his legs awkwardly. "Oh, it wa'n't nothin'," he said, forbearing to glance up. "I savvy Injuns, you know. I—I was willin' to take the chances."

Colonel Cummings looked down. After a moment and without changing the position of his body he turned his face slowly in Oliver's direction. The eyes of the two officers met and flashed messages of doubt.

When the commanding officer looked at the interpreter again it was on his lips to say, "But you were afraid to enter the stockade with me." He checked himself, however, and instead reached for Matthews' hand. "It was a magnificent bit of courage," he agreed. "Tell us what happened."

Matthews fingered the blanket on the cot. "I seen the chief," he said, "and told him what you told me to tell him. When I got it all out he says to me: 'The white women ain't here. They're with the Wyomin' band, and the Wyomin' band's up in Canada. Now,' he says, 'the band 'll come south in the spring. So tell Colonel Cummin's if he do no hangin' I'll send the white women home then.'"

A low groan came from behind the stove. Young Jamieson came out, his features distorted with grief and shining with tears. "Think of it! Think of it! Not till spring! Are they well? How are they treating them?"

"Oh, so so," said Matthews significantly.

Young Jamieson understood. He went back to his seat, sobbing with the hysterical weakness of a sick man. "He's bungled the business, colonel!" he said bitterly. "Oh, God, if you had only let me go!"

"Yes, yes, my dear boy," answered the other soothingly, "but please remember that you couldn't have talked with them. The conference would have been carried on through Mr. Matthews just the same."

There was a silence, broken only by Jamieson's weeping.

"Is that—all?" asked Colonel Cummings at last, addressing himself to the interpreter.

"Yes, sir."

Shortly afterward, when he was gone, the two officers left the library for the reception room and discussed the expedition in low tones.

"I have a feeling, colonel, that our interpreter wasn't fair in this thing," was Captain Oliver's first confidence. They were standing at a front window, watching Matthews cross the parade ground to the barber shop.

"The same thought occurred to me."

"And yet—it doesn't seem possible"—

"Oh, if Bond had only come sooner!"

"Bond! He here?"

"Yes—just half a day too late."

While they were talking Matthews was losing his tow beard and mustache, and a good length of hair. This over and his supper eaten, he reappeared at headquarters and went with Colonel Cummings to the stockade.

Much to his chagrin he found the evangelist there, ready to be present at the interview with the hostages, but the Indians understood his predicament and accepted the speech he made for the little it was worth. It was a speech that, repeated by David Bond, set Colonel Cummings' last suspicion at rest.

Lounsbury arrived at Fort Brannon the next day, appearing in time for breakfast. His early advent, which he explained away nonchalantly, was the cause of some good natured teasing.

"Say, Lounsbury," observed one officer, "I thought you were keeping a store."

"Get out!" he retorted. "I'm down here to see that you fellows do something for the good money Uncle Sam pays you."

"Why, don't you know?" said Major Appleton. "John's here to sell the sutler some sandy sugar."

"That's right," agreed the storekeeper. "And I'm going to put up a plant to make brown sugar out of the Muddy."

Lounsbury could afford to laugh with them, not being the only butt of the jokers. Fraser suffered, too, for a tattling private who had spent the night at Shanty Town let it out to a corporal, who told it to a sergeant, who told it to a cub of a second lieu-

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes nerves and heals tired mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, super nerve sustenament, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—for a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Weary, Worn Out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly this Spring this Article is worth Considering.

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys, fail to work properly, health surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proven in the case of James Burton, of Lewistown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned off the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly.

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure helpful for old and young.

entering a bonspiel, and also that as many were obliged to pay an increased fee for membership and to buy a new pair of stones, that they would not be willing to stand the expense.

Some thought the club should be content this season to work up enthusiasm in the local club, and to interest as many outside towns as possible to come here for friendly games. That would introduce the rink and go a long way towards advertising the next year's bonspiel. As a matter of fact, with some thirty local rinks a very good bonspiel could be held here without the additional expense.

There were many in favor of the bonspiel idea, so the matter was laid over until another meeting.

The Ontario District Tankard Cup won last year by H. F. Foote's rink, was presented to the club, along with a framed group photo of the rink. The presentation was made by Mr. W. H. Ferguson on behalf of the skip, and it was acknowledged by the President, and by a motion moved by Mr. H R. H. Kenner.

The members of the successful rink were Messrs. M. G. Tooley, D. Hall, R. M. Waddell and H. F. Foote, skip. The trophy is a very handsome one and will be a very valuable addition to the club's collection.

A case will be purchased by the club in which to keep the trophy.

"There's a Reason"

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in concentrated and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Obituary

LILLIAN HILL.

After an illness that has been of long duration, Miss Lillian Hill, daughter of Mr. Henry Hill, Jackson avenue, passed away with startling suddenness at the family residence on Tuesday night. The family were preparing to retire for the night at 11 o'clock, and one of the members, as has been the custom, took a glass off water into the sick room for the daughter's use. The distressing intelligence was then gained that the daughter had passed away a short time previous, while the rest of the household were down stairs. While it was known that Miss Hill was in poor health, it was not believed that her condition was so low.

The deceased was 25 years of age. She is survived by her parents, her sister and two brothers. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

From an Old Pioneer

The town of Barkerville is situated at the head waters of the Willow River, Cariboo District, B. C., a fact that will add great weight to the importance of the following letter, which speaks for itself:—

Barkerville, B. C., Oct. 17, 1908.

John W. Gordon, St. Catharines, Ont.

Dear Sir,—As requested I am writing you about the timber, possible streams for floating logs, character of the country, etc., on the Willow River.

The timber consists of a dense growth of spruce, with some pine, fir, balsam and cedar scattered. It will range up to three and one-half feet in diameter. That this timber will be in great demand with the advent of a railroad into the district goes without saying, and it is a well known fact that the timber in this section of the West is appreciating in value at a very fast rate.

The country, generally, has gentle sloping side hills with many small streams flowing into the Willow River. These can be utilized with a minimum of labor and expense to transport logs to the river, which is from 75 to 150 feet wide, and should offer no difficulty to log transporting.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) JAS. WENDLE.

350 Fishermen were Drowned

Tokio, Dec. 3.—Thirty-five Japanese fishing boats were caught in a typhoon yesterday off Hatau Island in Kwatsu Bay and were wrecked.

It is reported that 350 fishermen lost their lives.

The Board of Works Committee Met and Completed the Year's Work

The last meeting of the Board of Works for this year was held last night, when the committeee cleaned off the slate and got everything in shape for Monday night's meeting. All the members were present and they flowed a most successful season.

SEWER EXTENSION.

Mr. Taylor was present and asked to have the Aylmer street sewer extended north of Smith street. He had a couple of new houses there, and as there is only a stretch of about 150 feet he thought it could easily be done.

The chairman stated that if the council could get the assurance of the water commissioners that the water would be laid the council would lay the sewer.

The clerk was asked to writte the commissioners and see what they were intending to do.

Mr. Little was present and stated that he had been charged with street watering and the service had been extremely unsatisfactory.

Engineer Hay will make a report on the matter.

S. Hartley wrote the committee in reference to supplying stone for crushing. No action was taken at this item.

Clause two of the building by-law will be amended, cutting out the word iron and substituting the word concrete. Thus the by-law will read brick or concrete walls inside the fire limits.

The Peterborough Light and Power Company was granted permission to erect three poles on the west side of Dougal street north of Murray street.

The by-law for $21,000 to pay for the extension of streets will be increased by $500 to provide for the purchase of a strip of ten feet on the street at the Normal School.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Morgan that Father Kelly be offered $10 in settlement of the damage sustained by his pony some time ago in Ashburnham.

A letter was received some time ago from Wm. Logan claiming damages to his blacksmithing business while the Brock street bridge was being rebuilt. The bridge was closed for a month and a half.

There was no cause of damage to Mr. Logan's business, as he had access at all times to his blacksmith shop. The city solicitor stated that there was no legal claim against the council. The committee therefore decided to take no action.

Two Year Term for Aldermen

A two year term for aldermen will be tried in Peterborough. It has probably long been forgotten by the majority of citizens that a year ago the city was successful in securing special legislation allowing a two year term for the municipal legislators. The date set for this act to come into force is the election in January, 1909, which is the coming election. The act provides that for the first year the six aldermen who secure the highest number of votes will serve for two years, and the six candidates who secure the next highest votes will serve for one year. Thus only six aldermen will have to be elected each year instead of twelve, as at present.

The result of the two year term will be watched with interest, as it has long been claimed that the city's business suffered by the frequent change in members and policy. There is everything in favor of the move, and will no doubt bring out the best class of men in the city.

The petition in circulation asking that a vote of the people be taken in January on the proposal to return to the ward system will not likely be favorably considered by the council at this time, as it would completely disorganize the whole system about to be tried, as all the aldermen would have to retire and seek reelection next year if the ward system carried.

The special legislation, however, provides that two aldermen be elected for each ward, and that the candidate receiving the highest number of votes sits for two years, and the candidate receiving the next highest number shall sit for one year.

By a return to the ward system the two year term would be postponed another year, which is unnecessary, and the ward system of electing aldermen is by no means desirable in the best interests of the city. Busy business men who have the ability to handle civic proposition positively refuse to waste several days or weeks canvassing his ward for the purpose of defeating a man who has been brought out by a bunch of enthusiastic sore heads. Canvassing at municipal elections should be discouraged. There is nothing of a monetary nature to municipal life to be gained by an alderman or his friends. The service of an alderman is purely devotion of one's talents to the city for its welfare.

Shrubb Shot a Fox After Big Day's Hunt

The English runner and the holder of the world's champion professional distance records, Alf. Shrubb, had a very enjoyable experience in the Canadian woods yesterday. He was invited by a couple of local sports to go out for a day's fun, and he was not slow in accepting the invitation. The three men armed to the teeth and with three dogs tramped seven and a half miles to Heath's woods, where the dogs were turned loose. The animals soon got on the track of a fox, but it was nearly an hour before they got it out in the open. Then the hunters got busy and Mr. Shrubb's ability to run distance came in handy. It took after the fox and chased around the fields for near is another hour, when he finally got within range and let go one charge. The fox dropped, and now the sprinter is the proud possessor of a beautiful fox, which he is having mounted by Mr. Elcome, and will take it back to England with him. Shrubb thinks the country around here is magnificent, and he intends returning before long.

A By-Law to Purchase Permanent Fair Grounds

It is now up to the citizens to say whether or not it is desirable to purchase at the present time the grounds now used for exhibition and race meet purposes. The fair directors have succeeded in increasing the fair receipts to such an extent that they have a surplus. They feel now that it is time for the city to take hold of the affair and make it a municipal undertaking. To accomplish this the directors claim the city should purchase the grounds and give the exhibition a permanent home. Until such is provided the fair people refuse to erect new buildings and it would be almost useless to endeavor to hold a fair next year with the present buildings, which are not fit for such purposes. If the city buys the property, which will cost $ 0 00, the fair directors will erect the buildings.

Mr. Rush asked the committee of the whole council if they desired to do anything in regards to the matter.

Ald. Buller at once said yes, and he moved the following motion which carried without further discussion—

Moved by Ald. Buller and Ald. Lovey, that the council submit a by-law to the people in January for the purchase of the fair grounds for fair and park purposes. The price to be $30 000, and an option to be secured.—Carried.

A Grant to the House of Providence

The committee of the whole council met last night and went over its file, on which were several matters to be dealt with before the year closes. These questions were mostly old ones, but the committee put the finishing touches on them, and on Monday night when the council meets, all that will have to be done is to pass the committee of the whole report embracing all the matters, thus cutting short what would otherwise have been a long session.

HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE

The sub-committee appointed to consider the request of the House of Providence for a grant, reported that they held a conference with Rev. Father McColl and learned that there are fourteen adults and five children in the House of Providence from the city, and that of these only one is being paid for, by the Charity Board. The city has, through the Charity Board, been paying the Protestant Home for the maintenance of several inmates, and they were of the opinion that the two homes should be treated alike, and recommend that a grant of $250 be made to the House of Providence up to the end of 1908.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—The Canadian Pacific Irrigation Company will be prepared in future, it is said, to undertake settlement work by contract for those who cannot move onto their farms immediately. A striking innovation is the proposal that the company shall wait for land to settlers with the proviso of "no crop, no payment," so that the land shall pay for itself. The company will send weather reports to the St. Paul office for distribution in future, to overcome misleading reports as to the weather in the Northwest. The area in this undertaking is about 150 by 240 miles.

Port Au Prince Saw Night of Wild Looting and Pillage--12 Killed

General Dispersed Mob with a Few Courageous Citizens—President Alexis was Driven Out

Many were Killed in the Hayti Riots

Port au Prince, Dec. 3.—The stirring events of an historical day which saw President Nord Alexis driven from his capital by an infuriated mob at his heels, were followed by a night of looting and pillage. The passions of the populace had been aroused, and after being defeated in their endeavors to do bodily harm to Nord Alexis, they turned their attention to well-stocked storehouses and the residences of the supporters of their late President. They were rapidly getting out of hand when the authorities succeeded in controlling the situation. Twelve men were killed before order was restored.

BROKE THE DOORS OPEN.

People from the Belair and Salinas sections of the city invaded the business quarter and lost no time in turning to the work of pillage and robbery. They divided into bands, and worked their way down one street and up another, breaking into the stores that offered the best chances of loot. The locks of doors that barred their progress were blown out with rifle bullets. The pillage was well under way by o'clock, and by 10 o'clock eleven stores had been completely looted. Nine of the establishments belong to Syrians, while Haitiens owned the other two. The proprietors stood by and helplessly witnessed the destruction of their property.

Goods were hauled out into the street and divided among the mob, the members of which became enraged over the division of the spoils and were soon fighting among themselves. In these encounters four men were killed.

Smith Street Bridge

At the committee of the whole last night Ald. Phelan brought up the matter of the Smith St. bridge, and asked the committee to decide how much money was to be placed in the by-law for the new bridge. The engineer's estimate for an 18-foot span was $40000 and for a 24-foot span, which would accommodate the street railway track was $49,000.

It was moved that $49,000 be asked for, and then if the council decides to build the smaller bridge, the extra money would not be used. This motion carried.

Canada Interested in Gang of Alleged Safe Crackers

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 3.—A special from Minneapolis says— Nine men supposed to be members of a gang of professional safe-crackers, wanted in various towns of the Northwest and other points in Canada were captured here in a raid on rooms at 27 Eastman avenue, Nicolet Island, by Pinkerton Detective Ole Ringdahl, of St. Paul, and four Mill City officers. A complete outfit of explosives and various accessories commonly used by safe-crackers, was confiscated. The catch is considered by the police of the Twin cities to be most important. The men under arrest give these names— M. F. Howard, Thos. Burnes, Edward Leburg, Harry Dean, W. J. Stols, Joseph Brown, Mike Bermingham, John Baker and Gustaf Peterson.

The Provincial Police Department is in communication with the St. Paul authorities to-day concerning the wholesale arrest of yeggmen. It is strongly suspected that the men who have blown open safes in Manitoba during the past summer will be found among those captured last night.

It has been no secret in local police circles that most of the robberies in the small towns of this province lately were perpetrated by crackmen from the other side. In many cases the robberies were traced directly to points across the border.

A MURDER TO CLEAR UP.

It is thought that the two men who killed Mike Sagar while robbing a store at Elkhorn, Man., may be among the number caught at St. Paul. Photographs of the prisoners will be secured at once, and an effort will be made to identify them as crackamen who operated in Western Canada. Good descriptions have been obtained in many instances of the yeggmen who worked in Manitoba towns.

Rev. Dr. Workman Case May be Echo of Civil Court

Montreal, Dec. 3.—Special. — The case of Rev. Dr. Workman will again be to the forefront next week. Announcement has been made that the Court of Appeal of the Methodist Church, will meet in the Board Room, Wesley buildings, Toronto, on the evening of Dec. 8, and to this court, it is understood, Rev. Dr. Workman will take his case.

Long Delay in the Case

The claim of Dr. Workman's friends that the delay of over a year in having the case finally settled, has been a great injustice to him. They say that in no law court in the world would a case have been allowed to hang fire so long especially when the defendant is under no specific charge. The fact that he has been and still is uncertain as to what the final outcome of the case will be, makes it impossible to definitely settle on a course of action. They further say that Dr. Workman's opponents have been active in causing the delay.

The Professor's Dismissal

The story of the trouble which culminated in this appeal is as follows.

On Oct. 22, 1907, the Board of Governors of the Montreal Theological College, dismissed Rev. Dr. Workman from the staff of the college on the ground that "the doctrinal views of Dr. Workman are not in accord with the standards of doctrine and articles of religion of the Methodist Church." This action on the part of the Board was based on the report of a special committee appointed to consider the case.

In particular, it was alleged before the committee that the Rev. Dr. Workman had described the account of the Virgin birth of Jesus as a "myth," and that he held unorthodox views with regard to the doctrine of the Trinity.

Dr. Workman's Defence

Rev. Dr. Workman denies both allegations. In a phamplet prepared especially for members of the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Workman says,

"In every part my teaching is in harmony with all evangelical standards. There is some divergence of statement of course, because historical exegesis requires it; but there is no rejection of vital doctrines, much less repudiation of the facts on which such doctrines rest. . . When a young man at college I joined the Methodist Church. I did so after much consideration, not because of Methodist training, but from personal choice so that I have always regarded myself as a Methodist of the Methodists."

Augustus Sawers Walked Into River at Campbellford

Information is received from Campbellford of the death by drowning at that place of Augustus Sawers, C. E., under circumstances that compel a belief in his own responsibility for the ending of his life.

The deceased gentleman was for some time past and up to the time of his death, employed professionally with Messrs. Buchanan & Bogue, contractors, Campbellford.

The facts in connection with his death are that on Wednesday Mr. Sawers was confined to his bed at the Queen's Hotel, where he boarded. Early yesterday morning before six o'clock the proprietor of the hotel, Mr. David Lynch, heard a slight noise in the hall upstairs. On investigation he found Mr. Sawers in the hall, quite without clothing. He called Mr. Fawkes, a fellow engineer, who was also a lodger in the house, who got Mr. Sawers to put his night shirt on and return to bed, he also returning to his room. A short time afterwards the landlady of the house looked into Mr. Sawers' room, but he was not there.

Immediate search discovered his night shirt hanging on the railing of the verandah of the hotel, and in the snow tracks of naked feet leading to the river. These were followed up to a point about yards above the bridge, where they ended. The river at this point has a depth of about twenty feet. The river is being dragged for the remains, which have not up to the time of going to press been discovered.

Alf. Shrubb Won Again Last Night

Only two runners appeared at the roller rink last night to meet Alfred Shrubb in his final engagement here. They were Russell and Montgomery, each taking half-mile. The race was very good and great interest was taken in it. Shrubb leaves this morning for Brockville, and on Saturday goes to Toronto to meet Tom Fanagan to try and arrange a match with Longboat. Then the English runner will go to Boston for a couple of weeks.

A Departmental Store Opened by Mr. N. Routley

N. Routley, corner of Park and Brock streets, has doubled his capacity so as to open a general departmental store. He is adding dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, and a butcher shop. You can now secure any household necessity that is carried by the largest stores in the business centres of the city. Mr. Routley is a young man who has gained the confidence of the people by honest dealing and giving value for their money and thereby building up a large business.

Wedding Bells

PAKENHAM—BUCK

Norwood, Dec. 2.—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Buck, Asphodel, was the scene of a very pretty wedding this afternoon, when there took place the marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss Lillie B. Buck, to Mr. William E. Pakenham, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pakenham, of this place.

Only the relatives of the contracting parties were present. The marriage was solemnized under an arch of evergreens and white flowers, by Rev. W. H. Adams, pastor of the Methodist Church, conducting ceremony. The bride, who was attended, entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by her cousin, Miss Ruby Buck. She wore a beautiful gown of white lace over silk and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. After the ceremony and the receiving of congratulations, the party repaired to the dining room, where a sumptuous repast was served, the table being decorated with pink carnations, smilax and evergreens. Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham left on the afternoon express for Toronto, the bride travelling in a green ladies' cloth suit, with hat to match, and wearing a set of beautiful mink furs, the gift of the groom. The guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham, Peterborough; Mrs. D. Sanders, Mrs. Parsons, Mr. F. H. Buck, Toronto; Miss Hewitt, Brighton. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham will reside on Belmont street.

WORRIED TO DEATH

INDIGESTION, LOSS OF SLEEP HEART PALPITATION.

A Case that Proves Prompt Action is Wise when Health is Poor.

"At night I would wake up with vague feelings of fear and numbness in my hands and other parts of the body," writes Mr. E. X. Smeaton, of St. John's. "I had grown thin and pale, and at night it was very difficult to get enough warmth for my feet to get asleep. My digestion was poor, and appetite very uncertain. The form of nervousness that worried me most was starting at every little thing, which resulted in such violent heart action as sometimes frightened me. Finally I had to give up my work, which was inside office work, so languid, nervous and weak had I become. Through the intervention of a friend I was induced to use Ferrozone. My appetite improved at once, circulation also improved and Ferrozone accomplished the renewal of my blood and natural warmth seemed to come back to my limbs. At the same time Ferrozone built up my constitution. I became quite strong and resumed my occupation. In brief, I am well."

Ferrozone is the only remedy of its kind in the world—it makes you feel better at once; when you are tired, dull, dispirited—when you feel there is nothing in life for you, that's the time to take Ferrozone.

What a change Ferrozone makes! Your blood sings through your veins, carrying nourishment to every nook and corner of the body, you feel the exultant thrill of abundant nerve force, you learn the luxury and delight of being at your best—in perfect good health.

Just try Ferrozone and see how much better you feel; it's the one remedy in all the world that will get you bracing health at once. Sold everywhere, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2 50, at all dealers.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are real dyed druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine, nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—a large box—25 Preventics—all 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

Four Men Shot at Dryden and One of Them will Die

Kenora, Dec. 3.—Four men were wounded last night in a shooting affray, which took place at Dryden, Ont.

Four shots took effect.

The wounded are—

Richard Denna, of London, Eng., shot in abdomen; will die.

Daniel Foy, shot in neck and right side.

A Stanton, shot in knee; and Wm. Sharpe, wound in thigh.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there: the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it: besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

WOMAN AT HER BEST

A woman is at her best between twenty-five and forty. Her best I consider the union of the physical, mental and sentimental beauty. Between the ages I have named all of these combine to make her most perfect.

I speak in advance from many countries. This is not strictly true in America, for here women lose their sentiment very early, and no woman who has not sentiment is beautiful. American women are the most practical of all women. We [illegible] French woman is the most romantic of women. That is not true. The French woman will make tremendous sacrifices of money and station for the man they love. If the American woman has any sentiment it is before she reaches twenty-five. She [illegible] fought, struggled and [illegible] and she is ashamed of it and smothers it. But up to [illegible] little. She has no head. She merely enjoys herself in the light, superficial way and that is right.

After twenty-five she begins to read. It takes ten years of reading to know much. So it is not until she is thirty-five that she is really entertaining. Then, too, there is more hope that a woman will study her individuality and refuse longer to be a slave to fashions.

Here again I must qualify by saying this is not so true in America as in Europe, especially in France. The American woman says—"It is the fashion." I must have it. No matter how I look in it." The French woman says: "The large hat is the fashion. It shall not be for me because it is not becoming" and she persists in wearing a small or medium sized hat and remains beautiful. The American woman in her madness for fashion loses all sense of proportion. She is spoiling her beautiful body by destroying its fine lines. She does not consider that she is dressing to please the man who cares nothing at all about how she looks, but who likes dresses and ribbons, and flowers, merely to sell.—Alphonse Mucha.

Preparing Clothes for Deserving Poor.

The Dorcas Society met again on Tuesday at the home of Mrs Rankin, Gilmour street. Although working very industriously, time passed away pleasantly, and all agreed to meet again on Tuesday next to finish the clothes on hand. After Christmas the good work will be continued. Three worthy families have been very materially assisted. The society would like more children's clothes and underclothing.—Com.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why Mr. Prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital [illegible] heading druggists [illegible] Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days and the improvement will pleasantly and surely tell. Sold by all druggists.

MAY FIND MISSING SON.

Queen's Ride on Scenic Railway May Unite Parted Family.

Queen Alexandra's ride on the scenic railway at the White City, London, a short time ago may possibly lead to a millionaire, Thomas Fletcher, a flour merchant, of Cleveland, Ohio, finding his lost son, a young man of 30.

Ten years ago Mr. Fletcher, Jr., married against his father's wish, and was promptly turned out of doors. Since then the young couple have never been heard of, though it is the father's belief that they are in England.

Mr. Fletcher is a friend of Mr. Bostock, who is running the Empress Hall at Earl's Court. The other week Mr. Fletcher came to the Animal King in a most excited state, showed him a photograph which had been taken of the Queen at the White City, and declared that one of the young men sitting on one of the rear seats of the car was his lost son. Mr. Bostock, who had met the youth, had to admit that it was certainly very much like him.

To discover him an advertisement was inserted in the agony columns of the newspapers, asking if those who had the honor of riding with the Queen on the scenic railway would kindly communicate with Mr. Bostock at Earl's Court. Nineteen replies were received, though in all there must have been twenty-five persons on the car. These nineteen were asked to come to Earl's Court and make themselves known to H. Hilliard at the Empress Hall.

Fourteen turned up, evidently anxious to know the meaning of the letter they had received. When it was explained to them they expressed sorrow for Mr. Fletcher, though one or two of the gentlemen declared that as Mr. Fletcher was reported to be a millionaire they were open to be adopted. It was clear that the lost son was not among those who turned up.

"We have not given up hopes," declared Mr. Bostock, "for we have only met some fourteen out of the twenty-five, and it is possible that young Mr. Fletcher might be among the remainder. It is his father's belief, as a result of inquiries he has made through Pinkerton's Detective Agency, that the couple are in England. Unfortunately, Mr. Fletcher had to sail for America a few days later, owing to the receipt of an important cable from his business house there. I expect him back, however, in two months.

"My instructions are to do my best to find the young man, and then to cable his whereabouts to his father. I can assure him he will receive the heartiest of welcomes, and all will be forgiven."

Punched the King's Head.

It is curious to note that there are two men living who have punched the King's head. One, named Attrill, who is now 70, was employed fifty years ago at the building of Osborne Cottage. The Prince of Wales used to go down to watch the building, and one day, in a fit of mischief, he struck Attrill with his stick. Attrill immediately gave the prince several blows. Attrill was summoned before Queen Victoria, who rebuked the prince severely. The Queen then gave Attrill the post that he has held ever since. The other is Sergt. John Paton, V.C., a Mutiny veteran, who for forty-five years has been warder in the penal department of New South Wales. "I was at Chobham Camp, in Surrey," he says, "busy cleaning my accoutrements, when a young slip of a boy came towards me, kicking things out of his way. 'Clear out!' I roared, but he came smilingly on, so I went towards him and 'clipped' him under the ear: 'Do you know what you've done?' a fellow-soldier asked, with an awestruck face. 'Yes,' I replied; 'taught a young cub manners.' 'Good heavens, it's the Prince of Wales!' Well, well—he's now King, and I'm an old man."

Not Very Funny.

"I did my best to be entertaining," said the young man in a voice of sorrow.

"Did you succeed?"

"I'm afraid not. I recited Hamlet's soliloquy. She looked at me reproachfully for several seconds and then exclaimed, "I don't think that's very funny."—London Telegraph.

His Conscience.

"He's forever prating about what his conscience tells him. What does his conscience tell him, anyway?"

"Apparently it usually tells him what awful sinners his neighbors are."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Where She Gets Her Ideal.

She—I wonder if you are just the kind of man I want. He—What kind of man do you want? She—I can hardly describe him to you. He—Don't try. What's the name of the book?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash value in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 10 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

JAMES M. ANDERSON, Ex-Crown Timber Agent, West Sutton, Ont.

B. BROUGHTON, Mgr. Hamilton Stamp & Stencil Works, Hamilton

This Company holds 22 Timber Berths, aggregating 52 sq. miles (33,280 acres), all Carefully Selected, containing over 800,000,000 Feet of Finest Timber Bought by this Company at the Exceptionally Low Figure of 26 Cents per Thousand Feet

All of this timber is located in the Willow River District on solid level ground, lies close beside good water for logging, and is mostly White Spruce of a superior quality. It averages 30 inches in diameter and ranges from 90 to 160 feet high. The limbs commence half way up. There is some good tall Pine and Balsam. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Surveys both cross the Willow River lower down than our limits.

British Columbia White Spruce is infinitely superior to the Ontario variety, and makes the finest finished lumber for interior work. It also makes splendid lumber for general use. Ends of logs and logs too small for lumber can be utilized for pulp, as WHITE SPRUCE IS UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE THE FINEST MATERIAL IN THE WORLD FOR PULP FOR FINE PAPERMAKING.

The limits were cruised by James M. Anderson, of Sutton West, an Ex-Crown Timber Agent, and the company has on fyle at its office a number of letters from some of the most prominent business men in Canada in recommendation of his capability and integrity, and from settlers in the Cariboo District, verifying his report of the timber.

The company has also issued in pamphlet form the report, dated October, 31st, 1908, of Mr. H. P. BELL, M.I.C.E., member Am. Soc. C.E., at present Superintending Engineer on the Government Staff on the Trent Valley Canal, at Campbellford, Ont., who was employed by the British Columbia Government in 1874-5-6 to make a survey up the Willow River Valley for the proposed route of the British Pacific Railway, and who cut the first trails through the Willow River District in 1895. His report substantiates Mr. Anderson's in every detail, and in view of Mr. Bell's pre eminence among the Civil Engineers of America, among whom there is no higher authority on the topography of the Cariboo District, his report willbe universally accepted as being entirely correct. Mr. Bell was recommended to this company by M. Collingwood Schreiber Consulting Engineer to the Dominion Government, and Chief Engineer of the Western Division of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Good Timber if Well ocated is the afest and Best Investment in the world to-day

FIRE DOES NOT DESTROY MATURED TIMBER; it kills and stops the growth, but if cut down WITHIN TWO YEARS AFTER the fire this timber will make first class lumber, but fire does destroy the young growth of sm llsaplings, thus depriving the coming generations of their timber supply. ANY RELIABLE LUMBER DEALER WILL VERIFY THIS STATEMENT.

The C.P.R. holds several timber limits in British Columbia, and after reserving the best, is selling the second class timber at $2,00 per 1,000 feet on the stump. If we sell our selected timber at the same figure in three years, on a basis of $224,000 paid-up capital,

Each Hundred Dollars invested To-day at Par will brlug a return of $722.52

This is not exaggerated ; $2.00 per thousand for good timber is a ridiculously low price. In Ontario Spruce is now worth from $7.00 to $9 00 per thousand feet on the stump and is rapidly increasing in value.

The Company has reserved $36,000 Treasury Stock to provide for future Gov't License fees

Mr. John M. Duck, the new manager of the Traders' Bank in this village, arrived here last week to assume his duties at this branch. Mr. Duck had been for some time manager of the branch of the bank at Norwich, Ont., having gone there from the Windsor branch.

Mr. G. B. Hilliard was in Peterborough on Tuesday, on business.

Mrs. Halifax, a former resident of Lakefield, who has been residing in England for the last few years, has been paying a short visit to her sister, Mrs. Roland Strickland. She left for Toronto and New York on Saturday last.

Mr. Isaac Whitney, of Marelock, is in the village on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Short.

This week the firm of R. Graham and Son celebrate the forty-fourth anniversary of the establishment of their dry goods and grocery business in Lakefield. This well known firm has been so long and favourably known to the residents of this village and the surrounding district that mention of the above fact will cause the liveliest interest in the minds of their many friends and patrons. They rank as one of the oldest, if not the oldest, established firm in the County of Peterborough.

Mr. M. Quigley, who has been spending a few weeks at Cobalt, returned home last week.

Miss Josephine Strickland and Miss Gwynneth Tate leave in a short time for the west. Miss Strickland goes to Vancouver to pay a visit to her sister, Mrs. J. H. Peck, and Miss Tate to Regina, to stay for the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Mytton.

Mr. E. A. Tanner spent several days in Toronto last week on business. He returned home on Saturday last.

remark, who told it to every officer at post, with the single exception of the "K. O.," that Fraser, the good, the discreet, the unimpeachable, had played poker with Matthews at the Trooper's Delight from taps to "reveille" and lost his last dollar.

The tale had leaked out by the hour of Lounsbury's arrival. When the storekeeper heard it, together with the embellishments it carried by reason of its having so often changed hands, he first gave Fraser a grip to show his gratitude and then sat back and enjoyed the fun. Fraser, sorely tried by the taunts of his brother officers, repaid Lounsbury with glances of wounded reproof.

It was Lounsbury who took possession of the note.

"Blame it all, old man," he cried when he could get a quiet word with the other, "why didn't you help me out? You're a nice one! Letting these chaps think I'm a sport when you know"—

But Lounsbury only laughed the harder and was among the first to dub the lieutenant "a sad devil."

The storekeeper did have business with the sutler, though not the kind suggested by the major, for after being closeted with that worthy a half hour Squaw Charley was dispatched to the Lancasters' with a basket and a note which read:

Mr. Evan Lancaster.

Dear Sir—Owing to the fact that a lot of B troop's surplus rations in the way of beans, butter, bacon, flour, salt, pepper, dried apples, prunes, rice, vinegar, molasses, etc., are piling up on my hands, I wish to dispose of same in some way at once and at any sacrifice. Would it be possible for you to relieve me of some of these goods and pay me back next summer out of your garden? Also hope you can find room for a table, benches and extra lumber on same terms. If you can do this you will greatly oblige,

Yours very truly,
JAMES MADISON BLAKELY,
Sutler, Fort Brannon, Dakota Terr.

P. S.—Enclosed find samples which please keep if satisfactory. J. M. B.

When Squaw Charley returned from the shack he bore an empty basket and the following reply:

Dear Sir—Thank you. We would like to do what you said if you will please chalk it down. We will pay next summer and maybe before. I will keep count too.
DALLAS LANCASTER.

It was Lounsbury who took possession of the note. He smiled over it and put it carefully away in his innermost pocket.

And now there remained one other thing to do. He dropped into the billiard room and commenced playing, occasionally going to a window that commanded the river. When, after a game or two, he saw a man approaching from Shanty Town, he put up his cue, sauntered opportunely out and met the interpreter.

"Well, Matthews," was his greeting.

"Well?"

"I just wanted to be sure that you know Lancaster's got that tenth point I spoke about cinched."

"Yes?"

"And that what I said before you went away still goes. You hear?"

"I ain't deef," said Matthews, noncommittal.

"That's all." And Lounsbury went back to his billiards.

The interpreter continued on to the stockade, where he was more fortunate in the delivery of the true message he had brought.

"The white women were not at the winter camp," he said, "so they could not be sent, but your brothers promise to come to save you. Watch for signals from Medicine mountain."

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else—actually least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—named Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. It does so gently, yet pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a head to be, it's blood pressure. If it's pain in back, neck, limbs, nerves, anywhere. If you are sleepless, restless, feverish, nervous or suffering any blood pressure. That simply you certainly, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it promptly, and the tablets surely distribute normal blood pressure.

Prove your finger, and doesn't it get red and sore and angry? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll finger where pain is—although it simply Congests there.

We send all 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

HOW TO TELL

If the Kidneys and Liver are Not Acting Well.

Thousands die every year from aggravated kidney distress that could have been saved if they only knew.

Your back may ache, you think it's tiredness or physical weakness.

You grow irritable and nervous—it's put down to loss of sleep.

Joints ache, muscles get sore,—that's all put down to bad weather.

Then digestion gets poor, appetite fades away, color bleaches, spirit droop.

Can't you see it's all from your over-worked kidneys, which can't keep the body clear of poisons that are now surging through the whole system.

Cure your kidneys with Dr. Hamilton's pills.

"When I was so stooped and back weary, so lame and sore with kidney and bladder trouble, I cured myself quickly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills" writes C. C. Ferrier, a well known merchant in Plainsville. "Dr. Hamilton's Pills touched the spot at once, gave my back ease, lifted depression and weariness, made a new man of me. I can also say for a good spring medicine to clear and enrich the blood Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal."

The housewife whose aching back makes every little duty a burden, the working man who is tired all day and can't rest at night, whose back aches, and whose feet swell—these people have kidney trouble. Women whose kidneys are sick, suffer continually from blind and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, bearing down pains, sharps twinges when stooping, distressing urinary troubles, aching muscles and joints, lack of appetite and loss of sleep. Reach the cause. Cure the kidneys. Use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills, which have cured thousands. 25c at all dealers.

Wedding Bells

KEMP—COVENEY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Stephen Coveney, 84 Dunlop street, when his eldest daughter, Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Thomas Kemp. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the George Street Methodist Church, in the presence of about twenty guests. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the bride and groom.

Second Annual Concert

The second annual concert given under the auspices of the congregation of Knox church will be held on Tuesday, December 15th. The committee who have charge of the affair promise as interesting an evening as that which was provided last year. As stated, this is the second annual affair of this kind and for that reason a special programme is being arranged. It will be the aim to eclipse the success of last year's concert, and the later announcements will be awaited with interest by those who are looking forward to the event.

Father and Son

Both Gained Health on Right Food

A food that will build up the health of a man and that can be digested by a baby, certainly has value worth considering.

The following report from an Ohio wife and mother is to the point and interesting.

"My husband has suffered great agony from stomach trouble, at times, for five years. Finally, after six months in the hospital, he was operated on for appendicitis.

"From that time he grew weaker and thinner until, when we brought him home he was reduced from 165 to 109 lbs.

"Then he began to at for breakfast, Grape-Nuts with cream and a soft boiled egg. For dinner a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream, toasted bread and a glass of warm milk. For supper same as breakfast with a baked potato, one or two poached eggs, and a glass of warm milk.

"After two months on this diet he had nearly regained his normal weight. He took out-door exercise, and got plenty of sleep. He has no more trouble with his stomach, and can eat anything.

"These results induced us to try Grape-Nuts on our 8 months baby, who from birth had been puny. Nothing seemed to agree with him, although we tried to whole list of Infant Foods.

"When I began to feed him Grape-Nuts with warm milk poured on to make it soft, he weighed only 13 lbs. After six weeks of his new diet he has gained 7 lbs., and is healthy and happy."

"The Mikado"

Presented by Local Amateurs in a Highly Creditable Manner

The world-famous comic opera, "The Mikado," was presented at the Grand Opera House last night by the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company, under the skilful direction of Mr. Richard J. Devey. There was good audience present, and the whole piece was interspersed with hearty applause, showing that the efforts of the talented company were warmly appreciated.

The opera was prettily and appropriately staged, and the costumes were characteristic and gorgeous. Mr. Devey is deserving of considerable credit for the many charming groupings of the characters and chorus, which groupings, together with bodily movements, presented a number of irresistibly pleasing pictures. The company have the piece well in hand, and act the opera as well as sang it, in a very acceptable manner. In fact, for a first night performance by amateurs last evening's offering was wonderfully free from glaring errors, and furnished an entertainment capable of giving pleasure to any music-loving audience. Last night's presentation certainly bespeaks a crowded house at the second performance this evening.

Mr. N. Greenhalgh, as the Mikado, fits the character admirably, while it goes without saying that the singing of Mr. G. Chandler as Nanki-Poo was up to his well-known high standard of excellence. Mr. Ernie Dalton made a very acceptable Ko Ko (Lord High Executioner), and on several occasions he won prolonged applause. His best offering of the evening was "Tit Willow." Mr. John King, as Pooh Bah, sang, and carried his character with a proper humorous degree of haughtiness. Pish Tush was well presented by Mr. Avann. The Three Little Maids from School was charmingly represented by Miss Florence Lancaster as Yum Yum, Mrs. W. A. Greenslade as Pitti Sing, and Mrs. Armstrong in Peep Bo. They won the heartiest of appreciation from a demonstrative audience. Miss Lancaster was especially acceptable in the Fan Song. Mrs. R. J. Devey's interpretation of Katisha was truly admirable; she and Mr. Greenhalgh sing and act their characters in company in a very professional manner, without a hitch or a marring omission of detail in any point. Also in the song "Tit Willow" Mrs. Devey and Mr. Dalton were most enthusiastically encored; in fact, a third recall was demanded, but Mr. Devey would not permit it owing to the length of the piece.

The chorus is a strong one, and well trained, and the whole production reflects much credit on all concerned.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

the milk vendors in the city were greatly incensed over the publicity given the milk tests. They wished him to ask the council to have the publicity discontinued, as the milk, after being carted around all day would not test the same.

Ald. Gillespie stated that that was all nonsense. Milk will last exactly the same no matter how long it had been carted about, so long as it was not sour or the cream was not floating.

The aldermen were all opposed to the publicity of the tests being discontinued, as the milk now being supplied was the best that had ever been supplied.

NEW LIBRARY.

His Worship asked what had been done in regard to the new library.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he had seen Mr. Lundy, owner of the lot at the corner of George and McDonnel streets, and he had consented to extend the option on the property for another thirty days at $5,000, and would wait until the first of March for the money without interest. He of the river. All the places and officials who are available were selected again this year.

The city clerk brought up the matter of paying the officials. He said that for years they had been paid as follows—

Deputy returning officer $1, poll clerks $2, police officers $1. Last year they were paid this, but afterwards applied to the council and got a bonus. The clerk asked that a paragraph be inserted in this by-law settling this matter.

It was moved and seconded that the deputy returning officer and poll clerks be paid the same as usual and that the police officers be paid $1.50.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Morrow and Ald. Young, that the city clerk write to the proper authorities re the Aylmer street crossing on the C. P. R. tracks.

recommended the city to accept that offer. On motion this recommendation was adopted.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

Ald. Bradburn stated that his committee had not yet done anything towards the erection of an isolation hospital. He stated that a report had been submitted to the council, but it was sent back.

The council considered that it was very desirable to have something definite done this year.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he would call a meeting of his committee Friday afternoon and make a report to the council on Monday night.

This notion was made more urgent owing to the prevalence of fever in the city at the present time, and also to the fact that Kingston has had to pay $14,000 already this year on account of smallpox.

POLING PLACES

The committee took up the question of arranging the polling places and officers for the coming election in January. There are fourteen polling stations this year, while there were only eleven last year. The three additional are all on this side

65 Families Made Homeless by Fire

Centralia, Pa., Dec. 4.—Sixty-five families are homeless in this city as the result of a fire which wiped out three squares of property in the heart of the town.

The fire started late last night in a building occupied by a moving picture show and spread rapidly among the frame houses.

Citizens of the town have made temporary arrangements for the care of the families.

The total loss is estimated at $1000,000.

Quaker Oats Co. Turn Out a Train Load Every Day

There are few mills in the Dominion which can boast of daily output of a solid train load per day. This is, however, what the Quaker Oats Co. can do and did do on Thursday. A train, consisting of 33 box cars, are filled with the products of the Quaker Oats Co., pulled out of the C. P. R. station at noon yesterday. The produce was only what had been burned out the preceding 24 hours and its total weight was 1,350 tons.

When asked about the matter Mr. W. H. Denham, the superintendent, informed them that they are busy at the mills just now and that they can turn but a train load every 24 hours. The one which left yesterday was for eastern points.

The city was indeed fortunate in securing the Quaker Oats Co., and if a few more could be secured the same size it would be a good thing.

Many Sunken Logs in Otonabee River and Stony Lake

A great quantity of sunken pine in the Rideau Lake section has been secured by the Ogdensburg, N. Y., Soda Pulp Co., and will be raised by means of dredges and will be taken to Ogdensburg for use in the mills. The pine, although under water 80 years, is sound, and it is thought some 500,000 cords can be recovered. The timber was left while lumbering operations were undertaken in the Rideau region.

The appearance of the above item in an exchange has caused some local people to think that there are several million feet of logs lying in the bottom of the Otonabee River, also the Kawartha lakes.

It was stated that it would pay a person or a company to undertake to rake the bottom of the Trent waterway.

Getting Ready for the Xmas Mails

The rush of mail for Christmas distribution is not being felt at the local post office yet, but nevertheless the work of the postmen is already becoming heavier, but not to a very great extent. The real rush commences about Dec. 20th, and continues till the first of the year.

On Dec. 15th two extra men will be placed on the post office staff for inside handling of the mails and when the rush is on, locked mail bags will be sent to stores in different sections of the city from the post office. They will be carried by express and left at the stores of the postmen to call for, as the quantity of mail will be too great for the postmen to handle direct from the post office. The bags will be very securely locked.

RUGBY

This being Lindsay's first year in the pigskin game and winning the championship without a single defeat seems of a remarkable character. The boys, under Manager McHugh's and Captain Cotton's instructions, have certainly put up a fine season, and to complete the autumn work they will meet on Saturday the 5th inst., the Parkdale twelve for the Dominion Junior R. F. U. championship at Toronto.

At least it is expected that the Lindsay Greys will play this game on Saturday. Word was received by the manager of the local team that this was the date chosen and the Lindsay boys will likely accept the invitation.

The team from its last workout on the grounds could not be in better shape and the rules of the game as well as the signs have been well planted into their caps, not in their boots.

The game in the town has not taxed the hold on the town citizens it should, and the boys cannot do the work unless the support is given them by their townspeople, for whose name they are fighting to win the championship and have it put down as "Lindsay Junior R. F. U. Champions of Canada.

The locals will leave on Saturday morning of the before mentioned date for the Queen City and those following them, it is expected will get club rates.

The following is the expected lineup which will form the stone wall against the Parkdale twelve.

Sylvester, full back; B. Greene, F. Greene, and Cotton, halves; Kilteo, quarter; McQuorrie, Dougan and Newton, scrimmage; McHugh, Koyl, Conway, Murdie, McKenzie, McGregor, wings, spares, Bigelow and Nesbitt.—Lindsay Free Press.

Daniel Maloney Lost His Home Through Fire

Mr. Daniel Maloney, of Douro, suffered the loss of his home by fire on Thursday night. The flames broke out from some unknown cause between twelve and 1 o'clock, and the occupants were only aroused in time to escape with their lives. Everything in the house was destroyed, while the building itself is a complete wreck. Mr. Maloney has moved into another house he owns on another farm, and will make that his headquarters for the present at least.

Municipal Politics Are Still Quiet

It is beginning to look as if the municipal electors all through will be quiet. There has, as yet been no announcement as an opponent to Mayor Rush, and he will in all probability be given a second term. There does not seem to be anyone very anxious to take a crack at the aldermen or the members of the Board of Education, while it is very doubtful if anyone will oppose Mr. T. F. Matthews for the water commission. Unless there is a good fight for some of those officers the prospects for the several money by-laws being carried with a two-thirds majority are not very bright. If for vote out for the by-laws, there should be a hot contest.

Construction of Big Storage Dam at Foot of Lake Temiskaming

For Maintaining Sufficient Supply of Water in Ottawa River During Dry Season.

The Power Plants will Get Benefit

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—Tenders have been received by the Department of Public Works for the construction of a dam at the foot of Lake Temiskaming that will permit of the storage of 27,878,400,000 cubic feet of water in that lake to be used during the dry season to maintain a sufficient supply of water in the Ottawa river for power purposes.

Later on dams will also be built on Lake Kippewa, Lake Quinze, Barriere river, Lake Expanse, and on Kakiwagi Lake for a like purpose. But the Temiskaming is the first of the large water basins on the Upper Ottawa to be utilized for storage purposes, and if present expectations are realized the dam at the Long Sault Rapids, just below Temiskaming, will be finished by next fall.

It will be 1,100 feet in length and will be so constructed as to keep the lake level from falling within eight feet of the low water mark. At the same time the dam will be six feet below the high water mark in Lake Temiskaming of 1904, and so will not involve the flooding of any private property or the payment of any land damages. The banks of Lake Timiskaming are for the most part high, and the same is true of some of the other storage basins which the government scheme is to utilize. The plans are now about complete for the dams at the Quinze and Barriere rivers, so that these works can be placed in hand at an early date. Temiskaming alone, however, has an area of 125 square miles, and it is confidently expected by the government engineers that the construction of this single dam will have immense benefit on the river level below. Seventy-five thousand dollars was voted by Parliament last session towards the scheme for the conservation of the waters of the Ottawa, and more will doubtless be provided next session. In the meantime the power plants at the Chaudiere have joined in the construction of a dam in the river which will prevent the water running to waste over the Chaudiere Falls.

Made Demonstration

Willemstad, Dec. 2 — Three Dutch warships, the battleship Jacob Van Beemskerk and the cruisers Friesland and Gelderland, have made a demonstration against Venezuela. Together they steamed yesterday along the coast from Puerto Cabello to La Guaira at a distance of three thousand yards from the shore. The Jacob Van Beemskerk returned here this morning. The two cruisers are going to Maracaibo, where they will make a similar demonstration.

RHEUMATISM

A Very Bad Case that Was Cured By Persevering with an Old Time Remedy.

"Were it not that I had great patience and perseverence," writes Mr. Fritz Keller, well known in London, "I would still be racked by chronic rheumatism, which was my unhappy lot for three years.

"I didn't have acute rheumatic fever as so many have—with me the pain and stiffness came on gradually. When I kept quiet, as on Sunday, I was free from pain—but being a working man I had to move about and the pain was simply awful, though after an hour's resting it would subside.

"I got the idea into my head that although the pain was in my joints, the rheumatic poison was in my blood. My druggist said "Ferrozone," was a wonderful blood tonic, and I began to use it. At first it didn't help at all, only change was a better appetite and more strength. Not being a doctor I didn't know that Ferrozone was all the time working at the root of the disease. I kept right on with Ferrozone and in three months was cured. There is no more stiffness, no pain, and I am as limber as forty years ago."

Every kind of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Nerve Pain and Blood Disorder is quickly cured by Ferrozone. Satisfaction guaranteed. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

No Funds for Protests in Province of Quebec

Montreal, Dec. 4.—So far only one election protest has been served in the Province of Quebec, this being against J. P. Brown, Liberal member-elect for the county of Chateauguay. It is generally understood in political circles here that there will be no protests further than some that have been ordered by individuals in various counties; in other words, that the two parties have come to an understanding whereby neither side will put up the necessary funds for the fighting of such cases in the courts. This will mean that there will be no protest entered against Chas. Marcil in Bonaventure.

Larger Garrison Should be Maintained in Africa

The request of the Boers that a large British garrison should be maintained in South Africa is not unreasoning incident. There is no reason to doubt the sincerity of their request. It is easy to see that the presence of a considerable British force there would be of financial benefit to the country, since it would cause the disbursement of a considerable sum of money in the pay and maintenance of the troops. But without regard to the rather selfish view there are other reasons why such an arrangement might be desirable. The color question is one that South African statesmen have always with them, and the Ethiopian doctrine, so assiduously preached by American and native nihilists among the blacks might have results that the presence of a military force would usefully check. Apart from all local considerations, there are some Imperial interests that may be regarded as in favor of the maintenance of a force in South Africa. It is the half-way station to India, and a convenient point from which to despatch troops to the East in case of need. We see the request from the Boers has given occasion for the suggestion that the Imperial Government might meet it by raising a few regiments from among the younger Boers. This would be only following the course adopted in other parts of the Empire with satisfactory results, and there is no reason to believe that under discipline and the leadership of British officers such a force would not be as loyal to their colors and as efficient as the troops raised in other parts of the Empire. The Empire has been largely built up by the utilization of the natives in different parts of it, and there is excellent raw material to be found amongst the Boers.

Isolation Hospital Question

The Isolation Hospital will not be erected this year. It is now too late, although the business will be advanced so far that the incoming council will be able to go ahead and complete it the first thing in the spring. The property committee has had the matter in hand and they have prepared plans and specifications for a brick building which will cost in the neighborhood of $7,000. This is for a permanent structure, and one which will accommodate both scarlet fever and diphtheria. But it will require a permanent caretaker at an expense which the committee did not particularly wish to consider, as it would be altogether out of proportion to the number of patients that would be treated during the year.

It is also claimed that there should be no necessity of an isolation hospital here, until a few years ago, when the inspector of hospitals was through the city on one of his trips ordered the two hospitals to discontinue treating patients suffering from contagious diseases. The hospitals had gone to a lot of expense in preparing for handling such cases and were able to do it with satisfaction, why they cannot do so again is what the committee could not understand.

The use of an hospital tent was discussed. These tents are 14x28 feet inside, and 15x30 feet outside and cost $85. They will permit of the erection of a stove, and can be kept as warm as desired. But they do not seem to answer the purpose.

The committee finally decided to have the city clerk write the Secretary of each of the hospitals with a view to holding a joint meeting, when the matter will be talked over. It is also the intention to make representations to the Provincial Secretary and see if the inspectors contentions cannot be altered. There is no necessity of this city being called upon to go to the expense of erecting a new hospital.

Hamilton Ballot Case Men Sent to Jail

Hamilton, Dec. 4.—The first case under Hon Mr. Foy's Provincial Act passed at the last Legislature and known as the Controverted Election Act, designed to further ourb the disposition towards electoral improprieties, was opened here at eleven o'clock this morning, when Harry Dillabaugh and William Lawson were placed on trial before Mr. Justice Clute and Mr. Justice Anglin on charges of offering for sale and illegally giving out respectively a book of ballots.

Dillabaugh, it will be remembered was appointed as a poll clerk, and Lawson as a deputy for the Provincial election in West Hamilton in June last. On the Sunday previous to the day of the election, it is alleged, Dillabaugh offered to sell W. McLaughlin, a Liberal worker, a series of ballots for $100, and that he exhibited for sale certain ballots given to him by Lawson.

Mr. D. L. McCarthy, Toronto, who appeared for the accused, told the court it was true that a book of ballots passed from one person to the other prior to the election. This was a serious matter, but the Crown did not allege. Mr. McCarthy maintained, that there was any criminal intent.

Dillabaugh was charged with "taking" and Lawson with "supplying" ballots illegally. Both pleaded not guilty. Crown Attorney S. F. Washington conducted the prosecution.

Lieut.-Col. A. H. Moore, the returning officer, was the first witness. When Lawson admitted having loaned the ballots to Dillabaugh he had forthwith cancelled Lawson's appointment and taken away the box, ballots and books. Lawson told the witness he loaned Dillabaugh the ballots on the latter's representation that he was going to trap McLaughlin, who was a Liberal, by a bluff.

McLAUGHLIN'S STORY

Wm. S. McLaughlin was the next witness. He said he was chairman of five wards for the Liberals in the election in question. He said he met Dillabaugh at the opera entrance on Friday, and Dillabaugh said in a joking way, "Don't you want to buy some ballots?" "I took it as a joke, and laughed, too," said the witness. McLaughlin said he subsequently saw Dillabaugh on Saturday night. He came into the store and said he had some ballots. "I was anxious to see them," said the witness. The two men were in the far corner at the back of the store." "I asked him how much he wanted for them," added McLaughlin, "and he said he wanted $100. He showed me the ballots, put them back into his pocket and walked out."

Judgment was given at 3.15. Lawson was sentenced to two months and Dillabaugh to four months in jail.

Liberals Meet and Talk Protests--Conservatives Also Preparing for Rush

Toronto, Dec. 4.—With West Peterborough and South Ontario petitions fyled, the Conservatives promise to protest a large number of other Federal elections. Protests in South and North Perth are practically decided upon, and there will also be a protest in Brantford. These five protests seem the most definitely certain, but Conservative lawyers also speak of attacking Hon. Messrs. Aylesworth and Graham in North York and Brockville, besides putting in petitions regarding the elections in West Kent, Glengarry, North Waterloo, South Huron, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and South Grey.

To-morrow the last day for fyling protests will tell the tale. Some of the ridings being mentioned are undoubtedly intended merely for sawoff purposes.

Hon. Messrs. Graham and Aylesworth, Whip W. S. Calvert and a number of Liberal stalwarts from various parts of the Province, have been in conference to-day at the King Edward Hotel, and are still in session this afternoon.

The Hon. Mr. Emmerson is also at the King Edward, but not in connection with the meeting, which deals solely with Ontario seats.

Mr. Godfrey, Mr. Robinette's partner, stated this morning that the Liberals will go on with the protest in Centre Toronto. The petition, like all the rest, is made out in blanket for mto cover everything in the calendar. It is understood, however, that the chief charge will be bribery by agents, although an effort will also be made to disqualify Mr. Bristol. The Conservatives promise a counter pretition.

Other ridings likely to be protested by the Liberals are Peel, North Simcoe, Nipissing, West Algoma and West Hamilton.

Only Sorry He Did Not Shot Thirteen--One of His Victims will Die

Dryden, Dec. 4.—There were fourteen in the party in camp on Wednesday night, and all were quietly sitting around the room, according to reports which have been received from the scene, when, without a moment's warning or provocation, Jos. Milroy jumped up and shouted, "Stand back, I am going to shoot." He was flourishing an automatic revolver, and before anyone could escape, he fired five shots in rapid succession, everyone of which took effect.

Milroy then made his escape, but was captured yesterday morning about a mile from the scene of his crime by Constable Rollo. He expressed no regrets and after inquiring how many of his shots had taken effect, he observed that he would have shot the lot if he had had time.

Milroy was an employee of the G. T. P., and the three men, who were seriously wounded, are teamsters in a lumber camp.

The wounded men were taken to Kenora. Denna is not expected to live, but the others will recover.

Milroy will be up for preliminary hearing on Saturday.

Denna came to the west from London, England.

At the request of the British Government the powers which accepted invitations to the conference have forwarded a list of subjects which they consider should be discussed. The United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Spain, Holland and Japan will be represented.

The American delegates are Rear Admiral Charles Stockton and Prof. Grafton Wilson, of Brown University. Commander John H. Gibbons, naval attache at the London Embassy, will act as aide. Seventeen Lives Lost Off Newfoundland

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 4.—Seventeen persons perished in a storm that lashed the Newfoundland coast for 48 hours.

In all ,ten fishing vessels have gone ashore, most of them breaking into fragments on the rocks. The victims of the gales were members of the crews of three of these craft. The fishermen were all residents of Newfoundland fishing villages.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

DIVORCES INCREASING

The United States Bureau of Census has just completed a compilation of the statistics of marriage and divorce covering a period of twenty years, from 1887 to 1906, inclusive, which, according to the Niagara Falls, N. Y. News, shows that the marriage rate based on the total population is higher in the United States than in any other country for which reliable statistics are available. In the year 1906 there were in the United States 93 per 10,000 population. Based upon the adult unmarried (single, widowed or divorced) population, the rate becomes 321 per 10,000, indicating that each year something over three per cent. of the unmarried adult population marry.

Divorce rates appear to be much higher in the United States than in any of the foreign countries for which statistics relating to this subject have been obtained, and according to the Government report the total number of divorces reported for the 20 years, 1887 to 1906, inclusive, was 945,625. For the earlier investigation, covering the 20 years, 1867 to 1886, inclusive, the number reported was 328,716, or hardly more than one-third of the number recorded in the second 20 years. At the beginning of the 40-year period, covered by the two investigations, divorces occurred at the rate of 10,000 a year at the end of that period was about 60,000. This increase, however, must be considered in connection with increase in population.

An increase of 30 per cent. in population between the years of 1870 and 1880 was accompanied by an increase of 79 per cent. in the number of divorces granted. In the next decade, 1880 to 1890, the population increased 25 per cent. and divorces 70 per cent., and in the following decade, 1890 to 1900, an increase of 21 per cent. in population was accompanied by an increase of 66 per cent in the number of divorces. In the six years from 1900 to 1906, population, as estimated, increased 10.5 per cent. and divorces 29.3 per cent.

It thus appears at the end of the 40-year period divorces were increasing about three times as fast as population, while in the first decade (1870 to 1880) they increased only about two and two-thirds as fast.

This is certainly an alarming state of affairs, the continuation of which will tend to wreck the very foundation of society. The bulwark of the nation is the home. If the homelife be destroyed in this way how shall the nation stand. The condition thus revealed by the Bureau of Census, is one of the problems that social reformers will find very difficult of solution.

Companion Shot
Young Jas. Northey

A shooting accident occurred in Fenelon Falls on Saturday. The victim was James Northey, son of Mr. W. Northey Jim, with his companion, Donald McIntosh, were off for a hunt, and McIntosh stopped on the road to load the gun, when by some way it was discharged, the charge entering Northey's leg back of the knee. The bullet entered between the two main arteries. Dr. Johnson was called, and it was found necessary to administer chloroform in order that the bullet might be extracted. However, the wound was dressed, and the patient is doing well.

Keene

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

The Last of the Selkirk Settlers

Winnipeg, Dec. 5.—While John Mackay, who died yesterday in Toronto, was the last of the Selkirk settlers actually born on Scottish soil, there still remains one who was among the last party landed on the shores of Hudson's Bay.

This is Miss Matheson, aunt of the Archbishop of Rupert's Land, who was born on the voyage across the Atlantic in 1815, then a foud monthsa' trip. She is still in the enjoyment of all her faculties, and resides near St. Andrews, Man.

No newspaper or magazines in this country pretends to rival the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. It is in a class entirtely by itself. It is the greatest family and farm paper printed to-day. It is simply marvelous what value one gets during the year in that great weekly. "OXOL"

The word "Oxol" does not mean one food, or one preparation No; "Oxol" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. & T. C. Windsor of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compcessed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen, and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them mean money.

One agent only in each district who has sole contract of the local trade for agents name. See future advertisements, etc.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making the offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quarts mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quarts ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

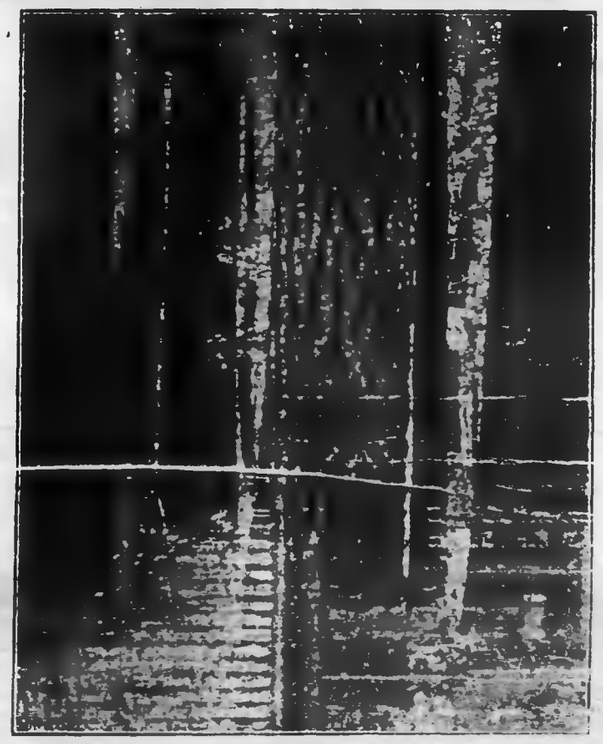
B. BROUGHTON, Mgr. Hamilton Stamp & Stencil Works, Hamilton

This Company holds 22 Timber Berths, aggregating 52 sq. miles (33,280 acres), all Carefully Selected, containing over 800,000,000 Feet of Finest Timber Bought by this Company at the Exceptionally Low Figure of 26 Cents per Thousand Feet

All of this timber is located in the Willow River District on solid level ground, lies close beside good water for logging, and is mostly White Spruce of a superior quality. It averages 30 inches in diameter and ranges from 90 to 160 feet high. The limbs commence half way up. There is some good tall Pine and Balsam. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Surveys both cross the Willow River lower down than our limits.

British Columbia White Spruce is infinitely superior to the Ontario variety, and makes the finest finished lumber for interior work. It also makes splendid lumber for general use. Ends of logs and logs too small for lumber can be utilized for pulp, as WHITE SPRUCE IS UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE THE FINEST MATERIAL IN THE WORLD FOR PULP FOR FINE PAPERMAKING.



The limits were cruised by James M. Anderson, of Sutton West, an Ex-Crown Timber Agent, and the company has on fyle at its office a number of letters from some of the most prominent business men in Canada in recommendation of his capability and integrity, and from settlers in the Cariboo District, verifying his report of the timber.

The company has also issued in pamphlet form the report, dated October, 31st, 1908, of Mr. H. P. BELL, M.I.C.E., member Am. Soc. C.E., at present Superintending Engineer on the Government Staff on the Trent Valley Canal, at Campbellford, Ont., who was employed by the British Columbia Government in 1874-5-6 to make a survey up the Willow River Valley for the proposed route of the British Pacific Railway, and who cut the Govt. trails through the Willow River District in 1895. His report substantiates Mr. Anderson's in every detail, and in view of Mr. Bell's pre eminence among the Civil Engineers of America, among whom there is no higher authority on the topography of the Cariboo District, his report willbe universally accepted as being entirely correct. Mr. Bell was recommended to this company by M. Collingwood Schreiber, Consulting Engineer to the Dominion Goverament, and Chief Engineer of the Western Division of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Good Timber if Well Located is the Safest and Best Investment in the world to-day

FIRE DOES NOT DESTROY MATURED TIMBER; it kills and stops the growth, but if cut down WITHIN TWO YEARS AFTER the fire this timber will make first class lumber, but fire does destroy the young growth of small saplings, thus depriving the coming generations of their timber supply. ANY RELIABLE LUMBER DEALER WILL VERIFY THIS STATEMENT.

The C.P.R. holds several timber limits in British Columbia, and after reserving the best, is selling the second class timber at $2,00 per 1,000 feet on the stump. If we sell our selected timber at the same figure in three years, on a basis of $224,000 paid-up capital,

Each Hundred Dollars invested To-day at Par will brug a return of $722.52

This is not exaggerated ; $2.00 per thousand for good timber is a ridiculously low price. In Ontario Spruce is now worth from $7.00 to $9 00 per thousand feet on the stump and is rapidly increasing in value.

The Company has reserved $36,000 Treasury Stock to provide for future Gov't License fees

CHAPTER XVII.

THAT year in the northland winter encroached greedily upon spring. The latter end of March the weather did not moderate. Instead the wide valley became a channel for winds that were weighted with numbing sleet. Then April returned angrily, bringing cold rains and blows to check all vegetation.

But April half gone, a tardy thaw set in. The icy covering of the river split into whirling blocks, the snow grew soft and baily, the crust rotted and picked up. Soon the tempering sun drove the drifts from south exposures, when a freshet coursed down the coulee and the low spots on the prairie filled until they were broad ponds, around which the migrating wild fowl alighted with joyous cries. Now eaves dripped musically, slushy wagon ruts ran like miniature Missouris and were traveled by horny frogs, prairie cocks made each dawning weirdly noisy, and far and near where showed the welcome green blue eyed anemones sprang bravely and tossed their fuzzy heads in the sharp air.

Throughout this season the shack had but one visitor—Squaw Charley. He brought fuel and once a week a basket of supplies from "B troop." Occasionally he came swinging a brant by the neck or carrying a saddle of fresh venison; but, though his manner was as friendly as ever and he seemed no less grateful and devoted, he was always strangely worried and distraught. The evangelist called by once or twice when storms or the rushing ice pack in the river did not prevent his crossing. As for Lounsbury, he traversed the bend often on his way to Brannon, and if he saw a face at a window waved his hand in pleasant greeting, but he kept to the road.

Since the morning of the aurora the little family had ceased to speak of him. That silence was neither demanded by the section boss nor agreed upon by the three. On Lancaster's part it grew out of the sneaking consciousness of the ingratitude he did not regret. On the part of Marylyn it arose from two causes—a sense of girlish shame at having confessed her attachment and a fear that her father would discover it. With Dallas, consideration for the feelings of her sister made her shrink from mentioning Lounsbury. Yet there was another reason, and one no less delicate—she, as well, had a secret to guard.

But in the mind of the elder girl the thought of Marylyn's happiness was the uppermost. There were dread moments when it seemed to her as if that happiness were to be shattered.

During all the past weeks Marylyn had carefully harbored her fancies about Lounsbury. Certain of the calico covered books on the mantel had no little part in this. Their stories of undying affection—of bold men, lorn maidens and the cruel villains who gloried in severing them—helped her to fit her little circle into proper roles. She loved and must crush out her passion. Lounsbury, whom she loved, had been sent away by her father, and she lived up to the play consistently. She saw the storekeeper anguished over his banishment; saw depths of meaning in the good natured salutes he gave the shack. With herself, she accepted loneliness as a sign of deeper suffering. She was tortured by self pity, by the doubt she had flung at Dallas, by the firm belief that her heart was hopelessly fettered. Gazing into a piece of looking glass that served her for a mirror, she marked with sorrowful pride her transparent skin and lustrious eyes. She sighed as she watched from the windows. Patiently she listened for footsteps, her face half turned to the door.

And yet what she took so tragically was nothing but failing health. What was not a fact the night of her admission to Dallas, was almost come to pass. The few days of great cold and hunger in February, coupled with long confinement in the dirt floored house, were having their effect. She was on the verge of illness.

Lancaster, whenever he noticed her dejection, was inclined to [illegible] "the looks [illegible] poupoon fo' [illegible] she'd [illegible] been slapped," he [illegible] declared, "an' is expectin' sh[illegible] other kamanin' any minit. If she'd cry she'd shore weep lemon juice." Again, he reckoned that she had picked up "some notion." Jealous and suspicious as he was, however, he got no nearer the truth.

But Dallas—she was misled far more than either Marylyn or their father. She fought away from the idea that her sister might be breaking physically and tenderly as a mother yearned over her. Anxious eyed, she noted the pallor of the childlike face, the melancholy expression that had come to be habitual. She fretted over the sparseness of the younger girl, who ate only when she was urged. If asked with

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr Shoop's Headache Tablet—presses blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified In Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter surely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmers, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to bestow renewed activity and strength to every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Happy Now

A Blessing to the Home

"It certainly has been a blessing in our home" writes a young lady in regard to Postum.

"I am one of a family of twelve, who before using Postum, would make a healthy person uncomfortable by their complaining of headache, dizziness, sour stomach, etc., from drinking coffee.

"For years Mother suffered from palpitation of the heart, sick headache and bad stomach and at times would be taken violently ill until about a year ago she quit coffee and began Postum.

"My brother was troubled with headache and dizziness all the time he drank coffee. All those troubles for my sister and brother have disappeared since Postum has taken the place of coffee.

"One of my brothers declared he would stick to coffee if it killed him, which we thought it was doing. One day we ran out of coffee and being a mile from town we gave him Postum without saying what it was.

"My Oh!—he said, 'the coffee is the best today I have ever tasted.'

"A sister was ill nearly all her life with headache and heart trouble, and about all she cared for was coffee and tea. The doctors told her she must leave them alone, as medicine did her no permanent good.

"She thought nothing would take the place of coffee until we induced her to try Postum. Now her troubles are all gone and she is a happy little woman enjoying life as people should.

"I think everyone who makes Postum according to directions on the package will find it a success."

"There's a Reason."

Name given by Postum Co, Battle Creek, Mich., read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Obituary

Death summoned Thursday at the early age of twenty-three years and two months, Frederick Harold McLean, 337 McDonel street. About thirteen months ago the deceased became ill from tuberculosis and gradually became weaker until death summoned him last night, a few minutes after five o'clock. The young man came to Peterborough about three and a half years ago with his parents, from Midland, where he was born. He was a painter by trade and was well known among that fraternity in Peterborough. He was a member of No. 4 Company, 57th Regiment, and was well liked by all his acquaintances there.

Surviving him, besides his parents, are three brothers, Robert of Toronto, Charles of Parry Sound, and George of Peterborough, and two sisters, Lillian at home, and Martha in Toronto. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's Church, at which the deceased was an attendant, will officiate at the funeral.—Midland and Toronto papers please copy.

LOCKIE McINTOSH

Word was received by relatives in the city last night that Mr. Lockie McIntosh passed away at his home in Lindsay after having suffered for three years from heart trouble. He was about fifty years of age and was very well known in the city and especially among the curlers, who will regret very much to hear of his death. He was one of the curlers who went from Lindsay to Winnipeg a couple of years ago and cleaned up the trophies. The deceased was very popular in his home town. He was also a well-known railway engineer, having driven the G. T. R. flyer for some time between Toronto and Peterborough, until he was seized with heart trouble. Since then he has been able to get around, but never could return to his work on the engine. Messrs. Angus and Alex. McIntosh, of this city, John, of Springville, James, of Milwaukee, and William, of Winnipeg, are brothers. Mrs. Chas. Davidson, of Peterborough, is a sister, and another sister resides in Portage la Prairie.

MRS. ROBERT M'FADDEN

The death occurred yesterday at 6 a. m. of Mrs. McFadden, the wife of Mr. Robert McFadden, lot 1, con 12, Douro township. The deceased was seized with a paralytic stroke last evening, the second with which she had been afflicted and passed away yesterday morning.

The late Mrs. McFadden had been a resident of Douro since last spring, coming there from Norwood where she had resided for four years. She was fifty one years of age and is survived by her husband and six children. They are Robt. Allen, residing at home; Thos. J., and William H., living in Manitoba; Mrs. Thomas Lowrie, Mrs. Wm. Watt, Highland Grove, and Mrs. Johnston McClure, Toronto.

The funeral will take place at Highland Grove on Monday, the remains leaving on the early G. T. R. train on Monday morning.

Celebrated Their 35th Anniversary

The celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Fitzgerald, on the second marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Fitzgerald, were jointly celebrated Thursday night at the home of the latter, 637 Union street. Guests to the number of about twenty were present, including some from Bethany, the home of Mrs. P. Fitzgerald (nee Miss Hanna), and a delightful time was spent.

The occasion naturally recalled to memory incidents in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald of bygone days. Among those were that thirty-five years ago yesterday, there was a foot of snow on the ground, but which later disappeared.

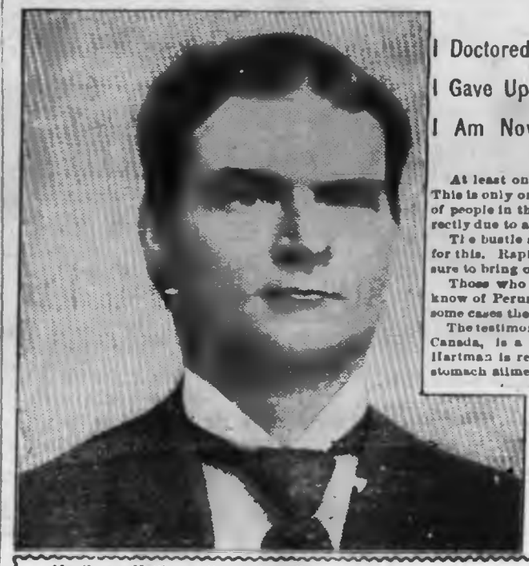
ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

TROUBLED WITH STOMACH FOR SEVEN YEARS.



I Doctored With Six Different Physicians.

I Gave Up All Hopes of Ever Being Cured.

I Am Now Like a New Man, Thanks to Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin.

At least one person in ten has some stomach difficulty. This is only one way to say, that there are a vast multitude of people in this country who are suffering from ailments directly due to a deranged stomach.

The bustle and hurry of American life is mainly to blame for this. Rapid eating, worry and anxiety after eating, is sure to bring on stomach difficulty sooner or later.

Those who suffer from stomach derangement ought to know of Peruna. Peruna rarely fails to bring relief, and in some cases the restoration is almost magical.

The testimonial of Mr. George H. Simser, of Grant, Ontario, Canada, is a fair sample of the sort of testimonials Dr. Hartman is receiving concerning Peruna as a remedy for stomach ailments.

Mr. George H. Simser, Grant, Ont., Can., writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for about seven years.

"I doctored with six different doctors. Some of them seemed to help me at the time, but failed to cure me. Some said it was cancer of the liver, others said it was dyspepsia or indigestion.

"Last fall I suffered so much that I gave up all hopes of ever being cured. I had headache, toothache, and lots of other troubles too numerous to mention.

"At that time, my wife was taking Peruna and Manalin and she urged me to try them. I took them, but without the least faith.

"At or a week or so I felt a great deal better, so I continued to use them.

"After I had taken two bottles of Peruna and half a bottle of Manalin, I felt real well.

"I am now like a new man, thanks to Peruna and Manalin."

Dyspepsia for Twenty Years.

Mr. Sidney Wessels, Merritton, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion for twenty years, during which time I tried different doctors, but did not get the desired results.

"I have been compelled for weeks at a time to give up work, being completely prostrated. I had to confine myself to a milk diet, as nothing would remain on my stomach.

"I had about given up, thinking my case incurable, when I heard of Peruna and decided to try it.

"One bottle made a great change and after using another bottle of this wonderful medicine, I had complete freedom from pain, my appetite had returned and I could again enjoy my meals.

"I believe Peruna is the grandest medicine under the sun.

"To-day I weigh over two hundred and twenty-five pounds. Is it any wonder that I praise Peruna?"

Catarrh of Stomach.

Rev. J. T. Peeler, Hendersonville, South Carolina, writes:

"I desire to make known for the benefit of suffering humanity my experience with Peruna.

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the stomach, and though I tried several remedies and applied to several doctors, it was all in vain.

"Had it not been for Peruna I believe I would have been in my grave today.

"I have every reason to believe that Peruna is the greatest remedy for catarrh known to the world. Therefore I have been, and shall continue to recommend it to those who are unwell."

Remedy for Colds.

Mr. F. Nauschuetz, 221 Shafer St., San Antonio, Texas, writes: "About a year ago I was troubled with catarrh and could hardly find help until I took Peruna, which soon brought me relief. It is the best remedy for colds I ever found."

Other Cases of Stomach Trouble.

MR. H. J. BENNEMAN, Oakland, Neb., writes:

"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago.

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat. So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good.

"I thank you for your kindness.

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

MR. H. W. NAGEL, 63 Church St., Meriden, Conn., writes:

"For several years I had been troubled with catarrh of the stomach.

"After trying about everything else, I was advised to try Peruna.

"I could not eat any solid food for some time; now I can eat most anything that comes along.

"I have taken several bottles of Peruna and Manalin and am entirely cured. I heartily recommend Peruna and Manalin to every sufferer of catarrh.

"I thank you for your kind advice."

MR. CALEB H. BORTELL, Police Officer, 212 N. Paca St., Baltimore, Md., writes: "For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of your Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me. I feel more like living and working, and am not bothered at all with my old troubles.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

PRINCE RUPERT

It was erroneously reported in a recent press despatch that the surveys made by H.M.S. "Egeria" last summer indicated that the Brown Passage between Digby and Stephen Islands, the most direct entrance to Prince Rupert Harbor, is so studded with rocks as to make safe navigation impossible. This is emphatically contradicted by Mr. W. P. Anderson, the Chief Engineer of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at Ottawa, who was on board the "Egeria" last month and saw the case the captain's plans of the survey of the passage. There are reefs on each side of the passage, but the passage itself is clear for a width of between two and three miles. Stenhouse Shoal and Planner Rocks mark the northern limit of clear water and the North Breaker, which shows well above the water, is the southern boundary of the clear passage. When these points have been marked by buoys or danger signals through the approach. A gas buoy has already been moored on Stenhouse shoal, just outside of the passage; with that aid alone and with the North Breaker showing, the largest sized vessels can now go through in perfect safety, day or night. It is the opinion of the Chief Engineer that Brown Passage presents as clear an approach as any vessel need desire.

Laymen's Missionary Banquet in George St. Church Tomorrow Night

To-morrow, Tuesday, Dec 8th, will mark the greatest revival among the laymen of the Protestant churches ever witnessed in this city. It is the occasion of the laymen's banquet which is being held for the purpose of getting under way the great movement in Peterborough. Already much interest has been created, and all the tickets for the banquet will have been disposed of before to-morrow.

Accommodation will be provided for 300 persons, and these will represent every Protestant congregation in the city. Caterer Thos. Cooper has been given charge of the menu and that is sufficient guarantee that that part will be well carried out.

The basement of the George Street Methodist Church has been secured for the occasion, as it is the largest and most convenient place in the city. At seven o'clock supper will be served and all those who have tickets are requested to be on hand not later than that hour.

After supper has been partaken of there will be a big mass meeting in the auditorium upstairs, to which all men and women interested in the movement are requested to be present. Prominent speakers from Toronto will deliver addresses upon subjects bearing on the movement and the aims and objects will be fully laid before the people.

Wild Statement is Corrected

A few months ago the Review made a statement concerning the financial standing of the city this year and last year, which was not only unfair but which was quite contrary to the facts. That journal stated that this year up to the 31st of November the overdraft was $12,000, while last year it was over $11,000. The overdraft for last year on the 31st of December was given at $109,000, while as a matter of fact there was a surplus of practically $5,500. The difference is accounted for by the paper's evident desire to make the work of last year's council appear as dark as possible. Every dollar of the overdraft carried over from last year was to be covered by debentures, and the debentures have since been sold with the exception of a comparatively small amount for street extension and for work on the water front. The people will be asked to pass a by-law in January to authorize the issue of debentures to pay off both of those sums.

On the year's business last year's council actually had a surplus of $5,500. See the auditor's report for 1907

Eight Protests were Entered in Ontario and will be Fought

The Usual Stereotyped Charges of Electoral Corruption and Wrong Doing Accompanied Each

Toronto, Dec. 5—There are some surprises in the list of election protests in Ontario.

Centre Toronto is not on the list, although at 11 o'clock Saturday morning it was stated positively that the petition had been sent to Osgoode Hall. It will be noted that Thunder Bay and Rainy River is also omitted. The question is naturally asked—Was Centre Toronto sawed off against Thunder Bay.

The Liberal leaders still maintain that they prefer to "wipe off the slate." They have all the seats they need from Ontario. It was evident Saturday afternoon that negotiations were still on between the two parties.

The six petitions filed Saturday may quietly drop out if the necessary $6,000 is not produced within four days to back them up. This would leave Messrs. Burnham and Chrysler free to follow up their protests if they are fit to do so in West Peterborough and South Ontario.

It is regarded as somewhat significant that the gentleman upon the sheriff committee from both parties managed well. No petitions were filed against Messrs. Aylesworth, Graham and Calvert while it is to be noted that Messrs. Parker, Blain and Reid faced equally well.

Centre York is unexpectedly protested. The time for the filing of the protests expired at 1 o'clock Saturday at Osgoode Hall, the cross-petitions may be entered within the next fifteen days, between noon and that hour six protests were filed. Peterborough and Ontario having been placed in jeopardy during the past week.

The usual, stereotyped charges of electoral corruption and wrong-doing accompanied each protest. The petitioners and counsel in each case Saturday are—

Nipissing—Petition by Jos. Martha, jr., Louis Carron and John Allard Noel, to unseat George Gordon. McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt, petitioners' solicitors.

North Lanark—Petition by James Roberts, to unseat William Thoburn. Petitioner's solicitor, John McDonald Mowat.

Ottawa—Petition by Marc Azarie Menara to unseat Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Petitioner's solicitor, James W. Baird K. C.

Centre York—Petition by Thomas P. Tunny, to unseat Thomas George Wallace. Petitioner's solicitor, Beaton and Shapley.

Wentworth—Petition by Samuel J. Quirk Speck to unseat William Manley German.

Norfolk—Petition by Harrison B. Conly to unseat Alex McCall. Petitioner's solicitors, Kelly and Porter.

The entering of a protest does not necessarily mean that it will go to trial.

Suffragettes in Chains Ply Whips Vigorously in Fighting Removal

Wild Scenes Witnessed in Great Albert Hall During Delivery of Address by Chancellor of Exchequer on Suffrage

London, Dec. 5.—The suffragists of London indulged in a fierce demonstration against David Lloyd-George chancellor of the exchequer this afternoon at Albert Hall.

The chancellor was addressing a suffrage meeting, but the women interrupted him with shrill cries from all parts of the hall, until finally the uproar was such that the stewards moved down the aisles to quiet the demonstrants.

They found them chained to their seats, and there were numberless fierce struggles, the women using whips vigorously to repel the attempts to eject them, before anything like a semblance of order could be restored.

Men and women struggled back and forth over the floor, the suffragists rallying to the support of their colleagues before it was possible for the chancellor to continue his speech.

A Lively Runaway Up Water Street

Quite a lively runaway occurred on Water street early Saturday evening. A farmer by the name of Crowly started away from the market for home, and the horses, evidently a little chilly, started off at a merry clip, with the result that they came in contact with several obstacles, and suddenly the sleigh collided with the the sidewalk at the Bank of Commerce. Here the horses broke loose from the sleigh and ran up to the Commercial Hotel, where they were caught, none the worse for their canter, although the sleigh was slightly damaged. Mr. Crowly lost his seat early in the game, and was dragged a considerable distance. He was not injured, however.

Lindsay Jail Breaker Has Committed Suicide

Lindsay, Dec 5.—William Brooks, the young man who escaped from the jail here last week and was captured on Sunday evening at Pefferlaw, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail this morning by hanging himself with a towel.

He appeared in his usual good spirits this morning and cleaned out his cell and ate a hearty breakfast. The deed was committed while the turnkey was away at breakfast. On returning he found Brooks dead, he having hanged himself in the main time by means of a towel tied to the grating in his cell door.

Letters to the Editor

Editor of the Times.

Dear Sir,—In one of Saturday evening's papers appeared a kick from a well known resident on the decision of the committee in recommending the purchase of the Lundy lot for the new public library. His letter is the stereotyped style of the kicker and cause little excitement amour the aldermen. But in case some of the ratepayers might get an erroneous idea an explanation might be made. There are, no doubt, several lots in the list the writer in the evening paper gave which would be improved, and the surrounding property enhanced in value by the erection of the new library on any of them. But first of all, it is not the duty of the aldermen to enhance the value of individual property, or to even consider such a thing when selecting a site for a public building.

Second, The committee in charge of the site looked over the whole city for a suitable site. Several lots were chosen in different sections and the new library on any of them when the owners were asked for a price they would not give it. Verbal prices were quoted, but not a line in writing. Therefore they could not be considered.

Third, The price paid for the Lundy lot, $5,000, would not begin to pay for some of the property mentioned and which are surrounded by tumbled down buildings.

Fourth, No better lot in the city could have been chosen. When the library is completed that cluster of public buildings, viz., the armouries, Collegiate Institute, George street church, public library and the Y. M. C. A., with Central Park in the centre, will be one of the greatest advertisements and one of the greatest attractions to visitors the city will have. Yours truly,

A CITIZEN

One for the Churches

Editor of the Times.

Dear Sirs—With your permission allow me to call attention to an important matter, not that I want to use your columns just for to SAY something, but for the simple reason that I have SOMETHING to say. In the days of the Apostle Paul the churches were cursed with the same thing that prevails largely today, viz., that of eating and drinking in the churches. The only eating and drinking that is scriptural or allowed in the church is partaking of the Lord's Supper.

In Paul's day they held their high teas in the Churches and big suppers etc., etc. Read 1 Cor. 11. 18, 34. Hear him, "First of all when ye come together in the church I hear that there be divisions among you——When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's Supper. What have ye not house to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God and shame them that have not. Shall I praise you in this? I praise you not. If any man hunger LET HIM EAT AT HOME that ye come not together unto condemnation." How many today despise the place set apart for divine worship and turn the sanctuary into an eating house, and place of amusement. Men professing to be able ministers of the New Testament and others promising and encouraging this most unscriptural thing and damaging to the spiritual welfare of the church ought to be heartily ashamed of themselves.

I am persuaded, Mr. Editor, that the great bulk of your readers will in their inmost soul, say I speak the words of truth and soberness. Yours truly JOHN CARLISLE.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Judge Mulock's Plan

Becoming Famous as Settler of Family Quarrels

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 4.—Chief Justice Mulock is building up quite a reputation as a settler of family quarrels. His Lordship makes it a point whenever a family dispute comes before him for trial to urge the parties to settle at all costs, and sometimes he takes a hand in the proceedings himself. He did this in an interesting case at the Welland assizes.

Back in 1891 Curlus Lambert, a Gainsboro' farmer, deeded his farm to his son, Samuel. In October last Samuel Lambert deeded the farm to his mother. It seems Curlus Lambert and his wife had not been living very amicably together, for as soon as Mrs. Lambert got possession of the farm she ordered her husband to get out.

Curlus did as he was bidden, but in going he took most of the furniture the house contained, claiming it was his.

Mrs. Lambert brought action to recover the furniture. Curlus took the stand and related that his son Samuel had never paid him a cent for the farm when he deeded it to him in 1891.

Council for the plaintiff asked some pointed questions in cross-examination. He asked Curlus if he had not deeded his farm to his son in order to save the property being taken from him for debt. The witness admitted this.

"Have you ever paid that debt?" pursued the lawyer.

"No, but I intend to if I live," was the reply.

The interesting fact then developed that if Lambert was successful in proving ownership of the chattels the creditors could step in and seize.

At this point Justice Mulock told the parties in the suit to come with him into his private room. His Lordship very quickly patched up the quarrel, and it was agreed that the deed of the farm should remain with Mrs. Lambert, and that Curlus would go back and live with his wife, taking the furniture back with him.

Arkansas Tower Sliding Into River

Pine Bluff, Ark., December 4.—Following an all-night's struggle against the encroachments of the Arkansas River, citizens of Pine Bluff renewed the apparently hopeless struggle today. The fate of property aggregating probably $5,000,000 is in the balance.

All teams that can be pressed into service are hurrying willow and pine branches to the river, where hundreds of men are working hard weaving mats and pushing these into the river, hoping to form a temporary barrier against the flood. Unless this checks the river, nearly the entire business section of Pine Bluff will probably be destroyed and a section of land north of the Court House walls, 10 feet wide by 100 feet wide, is moving slowly toward the river.

The kitchen of the residence of C. C. Brockway slid into the river late last night. Several warehouses along the bank, which have been partly undermined, are tottering.

The entire river front is cracked and unsafe even for pedestrians. Secretary of War Wright has been appealed to by the citizens of Pine Bluff, asking permission to change the course of the river.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing, tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Wedding Bells

WALMSLEY—OVERHOLT

The marriage was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Francis H. Parry, at the Jarvis Street Baptist Church parsonage, Toronto, of Miss Evelyn Overholt, niece of Mr. George Collins, to Dr. Asa Gordon, Walmsley, osteopathic physician, Peterborough. The bride was prettily attired in a dress of cream muslin and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was unattended. Dr. Walmsley has been practising osteopathy in Peterborough for more than a year, and is well and favorably known here. Dr. and Mrs. Walmsley will remain in Toronto on Sunday and Monday, coming to Peterborough this evening and will reside at 162 Smith street. They will be at home to their friends after the new year.

Missionary from China will Deliver an Address

The annual meeting of the W. F. M. S. of St. Paul's Church will be held on Friday afternoon next when an address will be delivered by Mrs. Goforth, a missionary who has been working for years in China. This lady is a most interesting speaker and those who accept the privilege of hearing her will be made acquainted with some things about the conditions prevailing in that country of darkness. St. Paul's Society has issued invitations to all the W. F. M. societies in the city, and it is expected that the ladies from all the churches will make a special effort to attend. China at the present time is very much before the world and to get information at first hand of what is really transpiring there will be very valuable.

William Rutherford Dropped Dead on Saturday Morning

William Rutherford, one of the best known men in South Monaghan, dropped dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alex. Hunter, of Cavan, on Saturday morning. The deceased lived for many years on his farm in South Monaghan, and made a success of his chosen work. Of late he had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, in Cavan. He was not ill and had been feeling remarkably well. Saturday morning he got up early and was about the house feeling as well as usual, when he was suddenly stricken with paralysis and died almost immediately. His wife predeceased him about two years ago, having been stricken in the same way. The late Mr. Rutherford was one of the most prominent men in South Monaghan. He served as a councillor and as reeve, and did good work. He was also an enthusiastic agriculturist and a staunch supporter of everything that was for the advancement of the farmer. He was a Presbyterian and a Reformer. He had many friends who will greatly regret his sudden departure from life. deceased leaves one son, William, on the homestead, and one brother, James, of North Dakota, to mourn his loss. Mr. T. F. Matthews, of the city, is a nephew. The funeral will be held this afternoon, and interment will take place in the South Monaghan cemetery.

Parkdale Won the Junior Championship--Defeated Lindsay by Big Score

Toronto, Dec. 6.—The junior rugby championship was played off at Diamond Park Saturday before a small crowd. The field was covered with snow and was frozen hard. The teams lined up—

Parkdale—Back, Warwick; halves, Wagner, Killay, Cromar; quarter, Dissette; scrimmage, Addison, Leonard, Duncan; wings, F. Dissette, Rankin, Dickenson, Meghen, McKellar and Thomson.

Lindsay—Back, Bylwater; halves, F. Green, Cotton, G. B. Green; quarter, Kellen; scrimmage, McQuarrie, Duggan, Newton; wings, Murdie, McHugh, Key, Mackenzie, Conway and McGregor.

Referee—Harry Griffin. Umpire—Whit Lalley.

The only feature of the first quarter was a fifty-yard run by B. Green, Lindsay's right half, he securing the ball behind the goal line on attempt by Killaly to drop a goal from quarter mark, and covering half the length of the field before being tackled. The whistle blew with the half-time score still 5 to ROLLING UP A SCORE.

Parkdale started to rush matters at the opening of the third quarter. An exchange of punts carried the oval to Lindsay's line, but Green relieved by a fine 25-yard run. Lindsay lost the ball on downs and Parkdale's halves combined in a run, which brought to play ten yards out. On the third down McKellar was shoved over for a try. Dissette again failed to convert. Score 10 to 0.

Parkdale appeared to outclass their opponents at this stage. Killaly and Cromar worked in some nice passing runs and the ball was again brought to the ten-yard line, and in a rush play the ball was carried over again. Dissette converted. Score 16 to 0 This ended the quarter.

RUBBING IT IN.

Parkdale simply slaughtered Lindsay in the final quarter, ripping up line at will and having the ball in constant possession. The visitors seemed completely demoralized. Green's muff of a punt gave Parkdale the ball almost on Lindsay's line and Frank Dissette was shoved over. The try was not converted. Score 21 to 0.

Parkdale continued to play rings around their opponents, rushing the play to the line with ease. Frank Dissette again went over. The try was with play at centre.

The referee stated after the game that the second try would be disallowed on a foul, making the score 22 to 0.

The Christmas Spirit

Saturday was one of the best days the Peterborough merchants have had this year. The few inches of snow made pretty fair sleighing, and the keen frosty air put a Christmas shopping spirit into everyone. As a result the city was crowded with farmers and visitors from outside points all day and until late in the evening. They all came for the same purpose too, viz., to purchase supplies for the Christmas festivities and to purchase gifts for friends at home and abroad. The stores were crowded and the clerks were kept on the jump. An immense amount of money was expended and it looks as if this year would be a pleasant surprise to all. The hard times has had a very depressing effect upon business generally, but evidently the majority have been saving a little for the Christmas season. That they have is a good thing, for, while Christmas is really a child's day, all are children, and in our older years one looks forward with quite as keen an interest to the gift-giving and re-union season as do the boys and girls of tender years.

It might also be mentioned that while the majority have plenty there are many who will come short. It therefore behooves those who have all they want and to spare to remember the less fortunate and thus make Christmas of 1908 a day of general rejoicing and thanksgiving. Is there anyone who can sit down to a big dinner on the most sacred holiday of the year and enjoy themselves when they know that not far from them a family of children who have nothing but the bare necessities of life? Live and let live is the motto of true Canadians. Enjoy yourself but do so by giving joy to others.

Missionary from Old Palestine at St. John's

Rev. Dr. Gould, a missionary on furlough from Palestine, preached an exceedingly instructive and interesting sermon at St. John's Anglican Church yesterday morning. The distinguished visitor has accomplished splendid work during the past eleven years in the Holy Land, where he succeeded in establishing an Anglican hospital in Gilead, with several medical stations throughout Palestine. Each of these stations, he explained, is doing good work among all classes, Jews, Mahomedans and Christians alike, some 200 patients in a single day having been known to apply for treatment at one station. Religious instruction, as well as attention to physical ailments, is given by the attendant missionaries. In dealing with conditions prevailing in Palestine under Turkish domination, Dr. Gould said, "I should not care to utter in this place what I know of the incredible cruelty inflicted upon Mahomedan mothers, women and girls in the Holy Land." As to his opinion on the popular contention that the Jews are fast returning to the home of their ancestors, he offered that 85 or 90 per cent. of property sold in Jerusalem to-day is purchased by Jews. Eleven years ago but one-third of Jerusalem's 75,000 inhabitants were Jews, whereas there are now 50,000 of the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in that city. And this increase has materialized under a system of oppression and injustice by the Sultan's officials disgraceful to any civilized nation.

The whole tenor of the reverend doctor's remarks went to show the show the splendid work accomplished by the spread of Christianity in Palestine, the natural resources of which are neglected under Mahomedan rule. The land is still one of great promise and possibilities, but its development is retarded by conditions that would not exist were it ruled by a Christian Government, or were its possession to revert to its original owners.

At the conclusion of the evening service Mr. Chandler, a faithful, highly esteemed and valued member of the choir, and who leaves on a trip to England to-day, was presented with a handsome silk umbrella by his colleagues, as a slight memento of very happy associations.

British Cities Could be Easily Bombarded

London, Dec 5—Sir Hiram Maxim took the British nation to task for its small interest in aerial machines in a lecture before the Society of Arts. He reproached England for being behind other first-class European countries in progress toward a solution of this kind of locomotion.

"Does anyone doubt for a moment," said he, "that in case we find ourselves at war with a continental power, flying machines will be used for bombarding English towns both on the coast and inland? The city of London, within a year's time, can be attacked without our enemy needing to fear the boasted British fleet.

"A French engineer, of international renown tells me that by this time next year there will be plenty of machines on the market capable of crossing and recrossing the channel several times at night and in darkness without stopping," he continued.

"There is only one way of combatting this danger and that is by constructing machines ourselves. Our achievements in this line thus far are insignificant because we lack the imagination of the French and the Americans. They begin by believing we by doubting."

Sir Hiram went on to say that he thought the Wright aeroplane a rough and imperfect piece of mechanism, but if equipped with a trustworthy motor it could be made much more serviceable.

Other speakers seconded Sir Hiram's warning that it is full time for England to wake up unless she wants to find herself at the mercy of the continental military fliers.

Hope to Retain Local Option in Owen Sound

Owen Sound, Dec. 5.—The citizens of Owen Sound will decide on January 4th whether or not they want local option repealed. The hotels have been without licenses for three years. As the change was made before the introduction of the three-fifths clause a simple majority vote decides. The liquor men have formed a strong organization, of which Geo. Marron, who is figuring as a witness in the present cases now being tried before Magistrate Craig, is the secretary and H. E. Logan the treasurer. The advocates for license renewal point triumphantly to the municipal elections of last year, when Matthew Kennedy, the nominee of the liquor interests, McQuaker, who represented local option. Also eleven out of twelve councillors elected were the nominees of the liquor interests. None of the three local newspapers will publish the literature of the license renewal people. It is rumored the latter will start a temporary newspaper in order that their side of the controversy may be distributed among the electors. On the other hand, the local option forces are confident of repealing the victory gained three years ago, and have formed a strong organization.

Inthon Bible Class

The Inthona gathered as usual yesterday afternoon. Mr. F. C. Moore, the George Street Church parlor assistant teacher, took Rev. Mr Pearson's place, and gave a very good description of the lesson.

The fine afternoon was too great an enticement for some of the Inthons, so the class was not as large as last Sunday. However, it is to be hoped that the boys will soon get tired of roaming around on these fine Sundays and will come in where it is nice and warm, where they will learn more about the One who gives us the fine days.

Mr. Deprose, chairman of the visiting committee, has been able to distribute a few welcome visits among the sick Inthons. Yesterday afternoon one of his visits took him to see Mr. Will Metherall, the lad who met with a painful accident and miraculous escape from death in Port Colborne last week. The many friends of Will will be glad to hear that he is much better and will be able to get up in a few days.

Death or Insanity

NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS WORN OUT.

Expected to Die or go Crazy With Nervousness.

"I could not sleep—I could not rest—was ready to cry on the least occasion—yet I was plump and fat. Can you imagine a more distressing condition than weakness of body and mind?" writes Mrs. Wensley, of Halifax. "I lost myself in a sort of self pity because health seemed so shattered, and with the mental distress that grew with my bodily weakness, I was a burden to myself and a greater burden to my family.

"Though I sought and really needed pity, I got very little, for I did not look so very sick. It was only my nerves that were sick, and anyone who has sick nerves knows too well how awful a sickness it is.

"From the first Ferrozone strengthened my nerves, and it seemed to help them for I became stronger, more composed, slept more and grew more hopeful. When I had taken Ferrozone for about two months I lost that miserable sense of dread. I never could tell what I was afraid of, but expected something dreadful was going to happen me. Ferrozone gave me the strength to throw aside all these fancies and made me well again."

Go at once to any druggist, get a few boxes of Ferrozone—start right on the road to health and vigor. Ferrozone will keep you there—will show you what it means to be healthy, vigorous, full of nerve energy. Once you're braced up and energized with Ferrozone you'll never again be content with ill-health.

All dealers sell Ferrozone, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50.

Preparing Clothes for Deserving Poor.

The Dorcas Society met again on Tuesday at the home of Mrs Rankin, Gilmour street. Although working very industriously, time passed away pleasantly, and all agreed to meet again on Tuesday next, to finish the clothes on hand. After Christmas the good work will be continued. Three worthy families have been very materially assisted. The society would like more children's clothes and underclothing.—Com.

To stop any pain in 20 minutes, take one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. See formula on the box. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about this formula. It can't be bettered. We mean pains, head pains, any pain gets instant relief. Box of twenty Pink Pain Tablets, 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Parliament to Meet Jan. 13th

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—In official circles it is said that the proclamation calling the two Houses to meet for the despatch of business on Jan. 13 will be issued at an early date. The election of the new Speaker would take place on that date and the formal opening on the 14th. The experiment of holding the vice-regal drawing-room on the Friday, which was inaugurated last year, may be repeated this coming session.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

DEMOCRATS DISCONTENTED

The Democratic Party in the United States appears to be very discontented over the results of the recent Presidential elections. This is scarcely to be wondered at, when we recall the confidence which Mr. Bryan and other leaders of the party professed to have regarding the outcome of the appeal to the electorate. But both the candidate and his friends seem to be anxious to fix the blame for the party's defeat on some section within it, instead of recognizing the superior advantages that the Republicans had in regard to some details in the programme which they placed before the people. Mr. Bryan has apparently decided that the great Tammany organization in New York is mainly responsible for his defeat, and in his organ, 'The Commoner', he propounds certain questions—an answer to which he apparently considers will support his contention. But even supposing that he is right in that view, the results of the voting throughout the country show that a Democratic victory in New York State would not have landed him in the White House. Although there is no unwillingness to recognize Mr. Bryan's claims to be the Presidential candidate on three, or even four, occasions, we are inclined to think the Democrats will consider it advisable to fight the next contest under a leader who has not to his account the unique record of having been defeated three times.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Inquest at Burketon Had Some Features

Burketon, Jan. —, being a strictly local option town, is not the most desirable place in Ontario to hold an inquest, as the hotel accommodation of the village is extremely limited, there being only one. When the Toronto train, carrying the lawyers, newspaper men and witnesses, whom duty compelled to be present at the week inquest at that place, pulled into the station the village presented a very deserted appearance. The hydro-electric power continues a success, but not as it promised for Burketon, and the only business men in little, weary place of [illegible] Eastern [illegible] citizen seeking employment, moved eastward or left the district with [illegible]

The [illegible] sharpened the appetites of these men, and naturally the first question asked was the direction to the nearest hotel. A sturdy trainman, standing over by the round stove, volunteered the soothing information that there was a hostelry, but that it was closed up tight, he proprietor being away in town that day. He mournfully deposed he had been in the burg 36 hours and all he could get to eat was some hard cheese over at "the store."

However, hunger kept talking in no uncertain tone, and it became imperative that something had to be done. Here real home-grown, country hospitality came to the rescue, and a man carrying a lantern hinted that he would direct the starving professionals to a house where he though there would be enough to eat. The housewife had just commenced to clear away the dishes when the "hungry nine" lined up at the door. Though taken completely by surprise, she rose equal to the occasion. She had "baked" that day, and so the larder was well filled. Little Johnny of the house was set to work washing dishes, the table was loaded again, and soon a satisfied look took the place of that appearance of hopeless yearning which had been there a while before.

The inquest was held in the village schoolhouse, which, by the way, is used as a polling booth and as a place for public meetings, as well as teaching the young idea how to shoot. The twelve sturdy jurymen were seated along benches at the side, while the lawyers and newspaper reporters occupied the little, low, old-fashioned desks, worn with age, where many a country chap has obtained the first grounding in his reading, [illegible] and arithmetic.

Being somewhat an "occasion" in the village, the enquiry proceedings drew the entire adult population of the village, consisting of about forty men. Presiding over all was constable Henderson, a typical product of the country, whose hoary hair and age made it impossible that he be treated with all due consideration, and it must be said that that gathering was a most orderly one, though once in a while the 'baccy smoke interfered with the vision across the room, which was "well" lighted by a couple of borrowed lamps and lanterns.

During the proceedings it became necessary that H. Douglas, the station agent, be called to give evidence. W. F. Kerr of Cobourg, the prosecuting lawyer, suggested that some one of the audience go and get him as per subpoena was too old to make the journey on such a dark night.

"Gosh, no," exclaimed the official, "I'm not too old. I'll get him for ye." And he did.

When the inquest was concluded and the jury were locked up in charge of the constable, to arrive at their verdict, the lawyers hurried down to the station and caught the 11.40 C.P.R. flyer and went on to Peterborough to sleep. The hotelkeeper had come back in the meantime, and his chair, over which he handed hard cider, just on the turn," and black cherry wine, was opened. He managed by dint of much hunting about with a lantern, to bring to light a few apple pie and a plate full of cakes, and these were soon disposed of. He had not expected such a crowd.

Larger Garrison Should be Maintained in Africa

The request of the Boers that a large British garrison should be maintained in South Africa is an interesting incident. There is no reason to doubt the sincerity of the request. It is easy to see that the presence of a considerable British force there would be of financial benefit to the country, since it would cause the disbursement of a considerable sum of money in the pay and maintenance of the troops. But without regard to the rather selfish view there are other reasons why such an arrangement might be desirable. The color question is one that South African statesmen have always with them, and the Ethiopian doctrine, so assiduously preached by American and native missions is among the blacks might have results that the presence of a military force would usefully check. Apart from all local considerations, there are some Imperial interests that may be regarded as in favor of the maintenance of a force in South Africa. It is the half-way station to India, and a convenient point from which to despatch troops to the East in case of need. We see the request from the Boers has given occasion for the suggestion that the Imperial Government might meet it by raising a few regiments from among the younger Boers. This would be only following the course adopted in other parts of the Empire with satisfactory results, and there is no reason to believe that under discipline and the leadership of British officers such a force would not be as loyal to their colors and as efficient as the troops raised in other parts of the Empire. The Empire has been largely built up by the utilization of [illegible] different parts of [illegible] and there is excellent raw material to be found among the Boers

FOOLED BOTH WAYS.

The Experience of a Visitor in a Lunatic Asylum.

"I was staying," says a writer in the Liverpool Mercury, "with an uncle who was on very friendly terms with a doctor who kept a private asylum and who occasionally gave a dance for the patients, while also inviting some of his friends.

"During my visit we received an invitation, and on the appointed evening we arrived to find the room crowded with people all in evening dress.

"My first partner was a man whom I thought looked decidedly queer, such a restless, hunted expression in his eyes, and occasionally during the dance he stopped and glanced searchingly around. Dear me, how glad I was when the dance was over, and, making some excuse, I hurried away, only to run up against my hostess and to be introduced to my second partner.

"Ah, me, what a handsome man, and, girl-like, I fell head over ears in love. I put out my most bewitching ways and hoped I looked my best and took care that I helped him find a cozy corner for the sit-out.

"It was delightful, and I was just lamenting that it was about time for the next dance when, horrors, clutching hold of my hand and frantically waving his other hand, he started roaring out texts, when suddenly, to my relief and astonishment, who should come up, followed by two men, but my first partner, whom I found to be a doctor, while my handsome partner was a religious maniac!"

AUSTRALIAN RAIN.

When It Does Fall It Pours Down In a Perfect Flood.

How different things are in the old world from what they are in the far-away tropics!

"They had no rain here for a fortnight, and they called it a drought!" wrote an Australian from Scotland in a scornfully superior tone calculated to induce the belief that it never rains in Australia and that droughts last a hundred years. Not so. Australia is the land of contrasts. A drought has lasted for seven years. But what is there even in Scotland to compare with the persistency of Australian rain when it does see fit to fall?

For eleven weeks without stopping did the rain continue to moisten the dry places of Sydney some years ago, washing out most cruelly the brief, bright season of winter, when the Australian looks for living instead of existence and peace instead of pressure. And what rain! It shot from the clouds like arrows, and the whole world was a battlefield during that July. As the arrows darted into the earth the earth rose and dashed into the air, and rain and mud met and grappled with each other day after day, night after night, week after week. And the battle was neither to the rain nor to the mud. A strange and horrid situation arrived. Sydney ran clean out of galoches.

For two weeks not a galoche was to be had in the rain drenched city for love or money. Then a fresh shipload arrived from somewhere or other. And then—the rain stopped!—London Mail.

One Trouble After Another.

"I have just found out about the woman opposite me after two years of mystery and anxiety," said the flat dweller. "She is a pretty, fat, rolly poly woman with a white complexion who sits at her window half of her time doing nothing. She has a boy of about ten. Her life seemed so simple and still I didn't see how she lived. Evidently she didn't support a husband, but who supported her? The thing worried me, but last night I found how it was. Her husband is a violin player who plays all night long at some concert hall and sleeps the livelong day. I'd rather work for my living than keep the house quiet for a husband who has to sleep all day, then gets up just at the time you want to go out for a little rollicking and plays the violin somewhere."

Woman's Curiosity.

"Woman's curiosity," said Mr. Fletcher, "is a quality of mind beyond human understanding."

"Yes," said Mrs. Fletcher. "What made you think of that?"

"The fool actions of a woman that I saw downtown today. She followed a man ten blocks just to get to read a placard that was fastened to his back. She spotted him at Thirty-fourth street. That was really the end of her trip—I made that out from something she said to another woman who was too fat to join in the chase—but when she caught sight of that flaming red poster tied to the man's back her curiosity got the better of her and she set out after him. She was not quite a chase across town and downtown and back again, but she never weakened. She tagged faithfully along in his wake, and finally she got close enough to read that notice."

Mrs. Fletcher reflected a moment.

"What did it say?" she asked.

"It advised her to get her teeth pulled somewhere on Sixth avenue."

Mrs. Fletcher thought again.

"Where were you all the time she was trying to find that out?"

"Me?" said Fletcher. "Oh, I was following the woman. I wanted to see if she finally caught up with the man."—New York Times.

The Porcelain Secret.

The porcelain industry of Germany is comparatively young, says the Berlin Morgen Post, and its development was rapid. Although it is generally believed that the Chinese kept their processes of manufacture secret, Julian's translations of their voluminous encyclopedia show that this is not true. All who could have read the work might have known also the porcelain secret. But evidently no German fathomed the mechanical mystery until the apothecary's apprentice Boettgar, 200 years ago, made the first German porcelain at Dresden. Some years before he had attracted attention by proclaiming the discovery of a method of changing base metal into gold. King Frederick I. gave him orders for the precious metal, which the sixteen-year-old inventor could not execute, and in fear he fled to Dresden and became a subject of King August the Strong. While endeavoring to make gold he discovered the porcelain secret and inscribed his door thus: "Into a potter was changed by Almighty God a man who thought he could make gold."

A Puzzle in Figures.

Take any number of three different figures, as 471, under it place the same figures in reverse order, subtract the lesser number and you will find that the middle figure of the result is invariably 9. Why it is so is something that only the most learned mathematical scholars can explain. Here is our case worked out:

Taking any number, say	471
Reversing figures	174
Subtracting, we have	297

Further still, we can now reverse this number 297 in the same way and add the two numbers and the result will always come 1089. Thus:

Taking	297
Reversing	792
Adding—we have	1089

Why [illegible] and the same? Here's something for you to work [illegible]

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinately. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

Society People.

A society woman—and a man for that matter—do a great many things imprudent for their health. Take the matter of dress, for instance, or rather the lack of dress, right over the most vital organ of the body—the lungs. A little cold results. The throat and bronchial tubes become congested and inflamed, and then the bacilli of consumption can start right away. Pneumonia or consumption results and that is another story if you don't take Powley's Liquified Ozone.

If society people would only take a good hot dose of Powley's Liquified Ozone before retiring they would have no cold. If they have pneumonia or consumption, they should take this preparation, because its antiseptic properties will almost invariably cure those diseases. Then the condensed oxygen builds up the system. Can you afford to be without Powley's Liquified Ozone?

The Plow Woman

By ELEANOR GATES,
Author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl."

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

sleep, Marylyn moved in the night. Dallas aroused on the instant and hovered beside her.

At last, thoroughly alarmed, the elder girl determined to follow out the idea that had occurred to her in midwinter. What did it matter how hard and hateful the duty would be? What did her own hidden feelings matter? She would appeal to Lounsbury in her sister's behalf.

But time passed without bringing her the opportunity, and it was borne in upon her finally that Lounsbury meant to remain away, perhaps until he was bidden to come. Undaunted, she made plans to waylay him on the coulee road. Resting the Sharps across her arm, she set out, morning or afternoon, on a long jaunt.

But Lounsbury was not met. On one such ramble, however, an incident occurred that was far reaching if not fatal in its results. She was going homeward slowly when she saw approaching an ambulance from Brannon drawn by a four mule team. She started timidly aside, then paused. The vehicle was filled with ladies. A half dozen who were talking and laughing merrily occupied the lengthwise seats of the carriage. One sat beside the driver. Dallas put herself in their path and waited.

How often she had watched these same ladies canter out of post on their horseback rides, officers attending them, or seen them make a rollicking walking party to the bluff top. And she had pictured how some day they would be ferried to the bend. They could not have heard how her father talked. If they had, they would not blame her. If they passed her, they would smile and bow, maybe stop to speak.

She was all aglow now. The ambulance rolled near. It was closed on its sides, and the women within could not see her. The woman on the seat, pretty, slender, daintily clad, did. Dallas leaned forward eagerly, face flushed, eyes shining.

The woman also leaned forward and looked Dallas up and down searchingly, coldly. Her lips were set in a sneer. Her eyes frowned. Then the ambulance bowled smartly along, the driver catching at a leader with his whip.

"Who's that, Mrs. Cummings?" The women in the rear of the vehicle were peering out.

Mrs. Cummings answered over her shoulder, "Why, it's the Plow Woman."

There were "Ohs" and "Ahs" and laughter.

The girl by the roadside heard. Slighted, rebuffed, wounded to the quick, she stumbled homeward, her sight blinded by tears.

She did not wait for Lounsbury again. Once she thought of writing him, of summoning him through a note given Squaw Charley; but, recalling her father's treatment of the storekeeper, she questioned if the latter would heed her message. She felt herself isolated, but no hint of her bitterness was allowed to reach Marylyn. The younger girl knew only bright words and unceasing, unselfish care.

For one thing Dallas was deeply thankful—Matthews did not trouble the shack. David Bond had told her that when the troops left for the summer campaign the interpreter would ride with them, the evangelist being retained at the fort to fill the other's place. The latter declared that, by the pilot's report, Lounsbury's name made Matthews "lay back his ears," but that he no longer stormed about losing the claim.

And now came the warm days—days in swift, sweet contrast to those just gone. Sun and shower banded the sky with triple arcs of promise. The robins arrived, a plump and saucy crew. Bent bill curlews stalked about, uttering wild and mellow calls. The dwellers of the ground threw up fresh dirt around their burrows. The marsh violets opened pale lilac cups, and the very logs of the shack put forth ambitious sprigs, so that from the frost the grotesque head displayed a bristle of green whisker. The prairie was awake, blood and soil and sap.

Ben and Betty showed their high spirits with comical sporting. The mules frolicked together, pitching hind quarters, rearing to box and nipping at Simon. Fully as gay was he, though his shaggy flanks were gaunt. He played at goring them or frisked in ungainly circles. Occasionally, however, he gave signs of ill humor, lowered his broad horns threateningly even at Dallas, pawed up the new grown grass and charged to and fro on the bend, his voice lifted in hoarse challenge.

On the little family the light, the warmth and added duties wrought a good effect. Lancaster's grumbling lessened, and he helped to plant some boxes with cabbage and tomato seed that the sutler supplied. Marylyn coaxed out for an hour or two daily, rewarded Dallas with smiles. Her appetite grew (rather to her chagrin), and when she held the looking glass before her she saw a faint color in her cheeks.

To Dallas the spring brought renewed courage and a vague longing. With the first mild evenings she took to venturing out, wrapped in her long cloak for a lonely walk. In her love of the gloaming she was like a wild thing. From birth the twilights of the moor had proved [illegible]. When she was a child they [illegible] her little trouble[illegible]

The hair light, the soft air and the lack of sound were balm to her spirit.

Nightly she strayed up the coulee, eastward, south or toward the river, until, early in May, a second incident occurred and interrupted her rambles. She had walked as far as the swale that was part way to the Missouri. There she was startled into a sudden halt. From a point ahead of her and to the left sounded a gunshot.

She sank down cautiously and stayed close to the ground, her fingers steadying her, her breath suspended. There was no moon, and the stars were obscured by clouds. The cottonwoods were a black, shapeless mass. She watched them.

No answering shot rang out; but, after a long wait, a reply came from the grove. It was a laugh, loud and taunting.

She stayed crouching and presently saw a small black object leave the big blackness of the trees and advance. Frightened, she arose and retraced her steps, glancing behind her as she went. At the shack, having found the latchstring, she backed into the room.

Her father and sister were asleep. Next morning, on a plea of not wishing to alarm them, she refrained from telling of the shot. It may have been a hunter, she reasoned, or a drunken trooper or one of the Shanty Town gang. But the laugh—it rang in her ears.

Several twilights passed; then she ventured out again. A lip of moon was dropping down an unclouded sky; the stars hung low and white. And when she neared the swale she saw, a good distance before her, that small black object separate itself from the grove again and move forward.

She stopped. She was not frightened now. She knew who it was. And when she saw his arms come up and caught the glint of metal she called out to him: "Don't! Don't! It's me!"

There was a muttered exclamation, and the arms fell. "Miss Dallas!" he cried and sprang forward.

"I—I was sure it was you," she admitted tremulously. "And you've been guarding here all the time!"

Lounsbury was panting. "Suppose I'd fired?" he said. "I had a mind to. Crimini!"

MULE BREEDING

Animals of Heavy Type in Great Demand For City Use.

By Professor GEORGE M. ROMNELL.

In breeding mules the first point is to see that the mule's sire is a large jack, recorded in the American Jack Stock Studbook. He should stand 15.2 hands or even 16 and should weigh up to 1,100 or 1,200 pounds. He should have a large, strong body and heavy bone. Weight and bone are cardinal points in a jack.

If mares sired by light stallions—standard breds, coachers, etc.—are bred to such a jack, mules of good quality and fair weight may be expected. If the mares are by good standard bred, saddle or thoroughbred stallions, the mules will be very active and will possess much quality and finish.

If these mares have good weight, say 1,100 or 1,200 pounds, this mating will produce the finest sugar mules. If somewhat smaller, good cotton mules will result. If draft bred mares are used, the mules will of course be heavier. Such mules are the draft mules of the market and are in strong demand for city use. They have more weight than sugar mules, but not quite so much quality.

For small, indifferent 800 pound mares without breeding nothing better can be expected than the production of inferior cotton mules or pet and pack mules. It is useless to try to breed good mules from poor mares, and this is one reason why so much attention has been given to the discussion of the importance of horse breeding in the south. There will probably always be more demand in the south for mules than for work horses, but it is necessary first to have a supply of good, useful farm brood mares. It is doubtful if any jack is good enough to sire a good mule from a small, coarse plug mare.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label. If poisons are in your Cough Mixture." (Lord! Very good!) Heroic for this very poison mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

"ALL DEALERS"

THE FRESH COW.

Following Calving She Must Have Good Care and Feed.

The fresh cow has a right to good care. If she does not get it her owner will suffer. The fresh cow, especially if young, is nervous and excitable. For this very reason she acts in such a way as to annoy her owner or keeper, but the owner or keeper is not wise who is weak enough to give vent to his annoyance in abuse of the cow. The cow is not to blame for her nervous condition. Harshness will actually lessen materially the supply of milk. The man who cannot control his temper would better let dairying alone. He cannot make it pay.

The fresh cow also requires care and judgment in feeding on account of her feverish condition. She is not only feverish, but weak. She will crave water, but only a little food. The water will be better if it is slightly warmed. Professor Smith of the University of Nebraska suggests the following as a method of feeding for the first few days following calving:

"Whatever is given her should be of a light character, such as well cured clover or alfalfa and a little bran, preferably made into a mash by the use of warm water. A few pounds of bran will have a cooling and laxative effect, which is always beneficial just after calving. The following day four or five pounds of a mixture of equal parts of corn, oats and bran would prove satisfactory.

"Without oats it would be well to feed equal parts by weight of corn and bran, gradually increasing the corn to three-fourths of the grain ration, at the same time making the daily feed gradually larger until at the end of three weeks she is receiving a full ration of ten or twelve pounds of grain per day, the exact amount depending upon the size of the cow. In the meantime the cow should be given all the clover or alfalfa hay she will consume."

Cows In Hot Weather.

Spray the cows before they are turned out to pasture in the morning with a mixture of equal parts of coal oil and fish oil. One gill, applied with a spray syringe, will cover the neck, shoulders and legs of one cow. The following mixture is recommended by the Wisconsin experiment station: Resin, one and one-half pounds; common soap, two cakes; fish oil, one-half pint, and water, three gallons. Dissolve the resin by boiling in one gallon of water and the soap cut fine. When dissolved add the fish oil and the remainder of the water. Stir thoroughly before using. Apply with syringe or brush. This is an excellent fly repellent, cheap and effective.

A Veterinarian's Advice.

When the hog seems to be losing the use of its limbs, feed less corn and more bran and oats chop. If the trouble is very bad, give eight or ten drops of nux vomica in the feed twice a day. An abundance of green feed should also be given.

Value of an Automaton Face.

"When I first came to New York," confessed a girl art student, "I thought all the women had regular putty faces. It seemed to me I never saw such blank walls of expressionless faces. I would get into a street car and look about me and could not detect any sign that any one else knew I existed. Women looked right through me as if I were a pane of window glass. I soon found out, however, that an expressionless face is a woman's protection. It is not that New York women cannot look bright and interested; it is because they dare not show any friendliness in public. When I first came, being from a smaller city where every one knows every one else, I would get on a car in a lively manner, look about me, smile and study the people, just as I would do at home. I soon saw men returning my friendly looks with disagreeable stares. They naturally thought I was trying to start a flirtation. Several times I was followed as a penalty for my too interested manner, and I began to adopt the New York way. Now I go in many parts of the city acting as near like an automaton as I can, seeing no one, never expressing any interest or emotion in my face, and have learned the secret of going about this big city unmolested."—New York Times.

Poverty and Luxury.

Poverty and luxury—these are the diseases of our industrial regime, to the cure of which the Socialists offer their ineffectual remedy—ineffectual since the population of the United States is made up of 80,000,000 individuals, some of whom will be forever on the verge of bankruptcy, however great their income, and some frugal and always carrying their account on the right side of the balance sheet, however small their annual allotment of wealth.

Poverty and luxury are twin diseases sapping the life of society, the one destroying ambition by withholding sufficient nourishment to the body, the other rendering men worthless to society by a superabundance of the good things of life. Poverty is a disease not indigenous to our American soil. It is a plague brought in by immigrant ships from wornout Europe, and the patients are cured here by the thousands. So long as there remains an uncultivated acre of land anywhere in the Union there is no real cause for poverty nor any excuse for luxury while a foot of land is undeveloped.—J. T. Lincoln in Atlantic.

Former Resident Wedded In Exeter

Mr. T. J. Wilson Enters on Married Life

An Exeter paper give the following: Mr. T. J. Wilson, formerly a resident, particulars regarding the marriage of of this county:—

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lawson, west of the village, was the scene of a very pretty event last Wednesday when their daughter, Lillie, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Mr. Thomas J. Wilson, a prominent merchant of Exeter. The knot was tied at high noon by Rev. R. Hicks, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was beautifully attired in white point-de-esprit over white silk and wore a white veil embroidered in white daisies. She entered the drawing room while the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March were played by Mrs. Jos. Woodall. Miss Sadie Willis acted as bridesmaid, while Wilson Lawson, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. Little Miss Lena Reeder, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl and looked very pretty carrying a basket of roses. The wedding ceremony took place under an arch of evergreens, trimmed med with white carnations, and the room was tastefully decorated in white. After the ceremony had taken place, the wedding breakfast was served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left on the evening train for Niagara Falls and other points east on their honeymoon, after which they will take up their residence in Exeter. The bride's travelling gown was of black silk. The presents were numerous and costly and were a splendid token of the popularity of both the bride and groom. We extend our best wishes to the happy couple and wish them every success and happiness in their married life.

"There's a Reason"

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

Paulton's Prisoner.

By W. F. Bryan.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Absurd as it may seem, Edith Mortimer had run away from happiness.

Realizing that Guy Paulton was determined to marry her, she had looked into the commanding eyes and surveyed the determined chin and had fled in a panic to the mountains after artfully announcing that she was bound for the shore.

This was not because she did not want to marry Paulton. To the contrary, the prospect thrilled her with tender delight, but what she did want was another social season without ties of any sort. She did not want to retire to the ranks of engaged girls and wallflowers after only one year's triumph as the belle of the season.

Guy, on the contrary, seemed determined to be married at once, and as a last resort she had fled to escape his proposal. From babyhood Guy had had a masterful way, and Edith knew that if she stopped to argue she was lost.

Her old chum, Belle Manton, who was going to Beach Haven, forwarded Edith's mail and otherwise helped to maintain the polite but obvious fiction.

Loyally she strove to protect her friend's secret, and, though Paulton alternately begged and threatened, he could gain no hint of Edith's whereabouts. Edith smiled at the desperate letters he wrote, but she carefully saved them in her little rosewood traveling desk, and could Paulton have seen the tender light in her eyes as she reread them in the quiet of the summer nights he would have been content. The trouble was that Paulton could not see, and he was putting in a most uncomfortable summer.

Oddly enough, Edith was really enjoying her runaway vacation. She had stumbled on a quaint village far from the haunts of fashion. In simple gowns and with her hair in braids she rejoiced at the freedom from dress and social routine that had been her portion all winter. In her gingham sunbonnet she might have passed for the daughter of a farmer, and for the moment Guy Paulton took her to be such when he came upon her in the little woodland where Edith spent most of her time. Her back was turned to him as he parted the bushes and trampled down the ferns.

"ALL'S FAIR"—

Edith started at the sound of his voice, but promptly drew the all concealing bonnet down in front and managed to stammer an answer to his question if she had seen any soldiers about.

For the first time she noticed that he was in uniform, and she immediately realized that the rough service dress was most becoming. Paulton was built in heroic mold, and, though he looked well in the conventional dress of a man of fashion, the heavy blue shirt, open to display his fine throat, and tight fitting riding trousers emphasized the good lines of his powerfully muscled figure.

Edith shook her head.

"You are certain that there have been no soldiers about," he asked again, "no chaps in brown uniform?"

"Haven't seen any," denied Edith in nasal tones. "You're the first soldier I've seen since the county fair. Is it a parade?"

"It's a game of war," explained Paulton. "They divided the militia into two armies. The browns must beat the blues to win, and of course we blues are anxious to see that they don't, I am supposed to be scouting."

"Like real soldiers?" she asked innocently.

"Of course," was the impatient reply. "That is the whole idea, to train us like the regulars."

Edith giggled in a very good imitation of Dolly Spence, the village flirt.

"I didn't know that real soldiers stopped to talk to girls when there was a war on," she suggested as she raised her hand to the bonnet the better to adjust its shade.

The movement was fatal to concealment. Paulton noticed that her hand was unusually white for a girl who worked about the farm, and the next instant he recognized the slight filigree band that circled one of the slender fingers. It had been his mother's, and how often he had suggested to Edith to wear it!

"We are like regular soldiers also because we are not above a pleasant little flirtation," declared Paulton smilingly. "I believe that a regular soldier would kiss such a pretty face as yours!"

"How do you know that it is pretty?" demanded Edith from the security of the sunbonnet's shade. It hurt her to think that Guy would flirt with any girl he met, but she was determined to carry the game as far as she dared.

"I'll take the face on trust," announced Paulton calmly. "All's fair in love and war, they say, so your face must be fair, since this is mimic war."

"Maybe it's only make believe fair, since this is make believe war," suggested Edith coquettishly.

"To the contrary, this is very real war," declared Paulton, "and I am obliged to place you under arrest."

"What for?" demanded Edith, not without some alarm. "You cannot draw country folks into your games."

"You are wrong," retorted Paulton. "It is the soldier's duty to take into custody those enemies of his country whose sentiments threaten the success of a campaign."

"But I am not your enemy," protested Edith. "I won't be taken prisoner."

"Perhaps," assented Paulton, "but a stern duty confronts me. I must take you a prisoner and hale you before a court martial unless"—

He paused tantalizingly.

"Unless?" She told herself that if he demanded a kiss as the price of her freedom she would never believe in men again.

"There is but one way out of it," continued Paulton. "Prove your loyalty to your country by marrying one of its protectors. There is a parson just beyond here. I passed a church not very long ago. We will slip over there and get married, and then I shall be certain that you are not an enemy to the country."

"And if I refuse?" asked Edith loftily, in her anger dropping her vocal disguise.

"In that case," answered Paulton, "I am afraid that you will be thrown into the guardhouse until you change your mind."

"I shall report you to the colonel," cried Edith angrily. "He will not tolerate such conduct."

"I am quite certain that the colonel will approve my conduct," said Guy placidly. "Coming up on the train he told me that I ought to marry, and I assured him that, through no fault of mine, bachelorhood was my lot. I am sure that he will be pleased at the promptness with which I have acted upon his suggestion when I bring my bride into camp."

"I won't be your bride!" stormed Edith. "You are rude and ungentlemanly to take unfair advantage of a woman."

"All's fair in love and war," reminded Paulton, "and this is both love and war. I am doing the loving and you have been doing the warring. Do you think it was fair to run away as you did and never give me a hint of your address?"

"You know me?" gasped Edith.

"Most assuredly," declared Paulton. "I was not positive until I saw that you were wearing the little ring I gave you and which you never would wear in town. Then I knew that perhaps there was a chance. Will you marry me, Edith?"

"Not now," protested Edith in sudden panic. "Guy, don't make me marry you right away. You have your scouting to do, and—I never did like the minister of that little church," she added inconsequentially. "Dr. Miron is much nicer."

"May I come back when this cruel war is over—next week?" asked Guy tenderly. "Then I'll ask Dr. Miron to marry us, and we'll have our friends up to see the prisoner of war marry her captor, just as they do in historical novels."

"I think that I'll just have to marry you," assented Edith. "You are such a persistent torment."

"All's fair"— Paulton began his favorite quotation, but the rest was lost in the pasteboard tunnel of the sunbonnet as he claimed a kiss.

The Ice Makers are Hard at Work

Skating and curling will be in full swing in a few days. From the first drop of the mercury on Friday night the ice makers got busy. At the curling rink the windows were all thrown open to allow the frost to penetrate into the floor, and now Mr. McIntosh is making ice. All the open air rinks and Brock street rink are in shape, and the work is going merrily on. A few days of zero weather will put things in great shape.

Aldermen Say Farewell to Civic Business for Another Year

By-Laws Prepared for Submitting to the People — Reports of Committees Received and Adopted

Many Communications Received

The last meeting of the city council for 1908 was held last night and passed off very harmoniously. There was no particular new business that had not been taken up in committee. The several by-laws to be submitted to the ratepayers were read a first and second time, and other by-laws were passed.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and received.

Those present were Mayor Rush. Ald. Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Neill, Gillespie, Bradburn, Duller. Morgan, Elliott, Tovey and Johnston.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read and dealt with—

From Wm. Logan, in reply to the committee's action in deciding not to consider his claim for damages. He stated he was inclined to test his claim in court. He figured his loss at $90, but offered to take $60 in settlement, or would even leave the amount to the council's judgment. But he did not intend that his claim should be ignored. The matter was referred to the City Engineer.

From Roger Bennett & Goodwill, on behalf of John C. Higgins re a claim for damages to his property by the city's excavations.—Referred to a special committee.

From the Davis-Thompson Co., insurance agents, asking to be given the privilege of issuing the accident policies on the firemen.—Referred to Fire and Water Committee.

From R. C. Small, Secretary of Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, drawing the attention of the city to the requirements of the Municipal act in reference to submitting by-laws to the board for approval.—Received.

From John Green, on behalf of Catharine Meehan, a widow, claiming damages for an accident to his client on Nov. 23rd, who fell into a grating along side of No. 180 George street.—Legal Committee.

From the Board of Railway Commissioners giving notice of the Grand Trunk's application to construct spur lines on Bethune street and across Bethune street to Lot No. 9, north of Wolfe street.—Received.

From F. J. Bell, Clerk of Smith township, stating that the township would pay one-third the cost of an arc lamp at the corner of Smith and Fairbairn streets, for a period of five years.—Fire, Water and Light.

From A. McCarthy, re a claim of $4 damages for interference by the city with his men in moving a building on one of the city streets.—Legal Committee.

From City Treasurer Adams submitting a statement of receipts and payments from Jan. 1st to Nov. 31st, 1908.—Received.

From F. M. Elliott, on behalf of ratepayers interested in the Aberdeen and Manning avenue sewers, asking that where they cannot be built this year that they be not overlooked.—Board of Works.

Form Katharine E. Walls re the proposed monument to the late Mrs. Nicholls.—Received.

From the Montreal Standard, asking the council to consider the propositen of using the Standard for the purpose of advertising the city. They ask $250 per page, which also includes 250 copys of that issue.—Received.

BY-LAWS.

The following by-laws were read and adopted.

By-law No. 1412 was a by-law to amend by-law No. 612.

By-law No. 1413 was a by-law to authorize the agreement with the Peterborough Hardware Company to supply Portland cement for 1909.

By-law No. 1414 was a by-law to provide for the execution of contracts for snowplowing for 1909.

The following by-laws were given a first and second reading—

By-law providing for the borrowing of $30,000 for exhibition and park purposes.

By-law providing for the borrowing of $21,000 to pay for street extension and work on the water front.

By-law providing for the borrowing of $49,000 to build a new bridge over the river to Smith street.

By-laws given three readings and passed—

By-law No. 1425 providing for the extension of time to pay for the arrears of taxes.

Moved by Ald. Morrow and McIntyre that the by-laws to be submitted to the ratepayers be published in the Times.—Carried.

By-law No. 1426, authorizing the city trust commissioners to lease certain lands to Mr. Rehill, north of Townsend street.

No Return to Ward System

His Worship in the Committee of the Whole referred to the petition brought in and signed by 251 ratepayers, asking that the city go back to the ward system of electing the aldermen.

The council needed not submit the by-law unless the petition is received by Nov. 15th and signed by 20 per cent. of the ratepayers.

Moved by Ald. Morgan and Buller that the by-law be submitted in January.

The motion was lost on a vote of 4 to 6.

The matter will be left over for further consideration.

The petition was in part as follows—

A petition, signed by 251 ratepayers, asking that such steps as are necessary may be taken at once to introduce and adopt a by-law to repeal the present system of electing representatives of the people to the City Council, and that the present honorable body will see fit to give the ratepayers the privilege of adopting the former ward system of electing members of the City Council; also that the ratepayers will have the privilege of voting on the adoption of such a by-law at the coming election.—Received.

When the above petition was read in council in the regular way Ald. Morgan opened it up again and asked for another vote. There was another vote taken, but it remained as before, 6 against the petition and 4 in favor of it.

Pool Room Men Apply for a Reduction in the Pool Table Licenses

A committee of the whole council was held before the council meeting for the purpose of discussing the purchase of the fair grounds, which was recommended at a previous meeting. Some of the aldermen considered that this matter might be left over until later in the year, as there were a couple of other money by-laws to be voted on.

Other members were strongly in favor of submitting that by-law for $30,000 for the fair grounds. It was claimed all the by-laws would carry.

Moved by Ald. Morrow and Ald Bradburn that the by-law be held over for the time being.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Buller and Ald. Tovey, that the fair grounds by-law be submitted in January.

The vote resulted in the amendment carrying by 6 to 5

The by-law will therefore be submitted to the people in January.

MR. LOGAN'S CLAIM

Ald. Neill brought up Mr. William Logan's claim again, and stated that while there may not be any legal claim against the city, there was certainly a moral claim, as he had been greatly inconvenienced while the Brock street bridge was being built.

He asked that the matter be taken up again and that he be given something in consideration thereof.

Ald. Bradburn suggested that the matter be referred to the city engineer to report on, and that the engineer get declarations from the men working there as to the amount of damage suffered.

Ald. Bradburn made this a motion and it was seconded by Ald Johnston, and it carried.

REDUCE THE LICENSE

Messrs. D. O'Connal, Smyth and Pappas were present. Mr. O'Connal stated that he had been requested to make an application for a reduction in the licenses for their pool tables. In Hamilton, Toronto and other cities only $25 is charged for the first table and $10 for each subsequent table. Here the rate is $10 per table and his has thirteen tables now running and intends to instal six more. This with his business taxes makes a total of $1,100 per year. Mr. Smyth also has several pool tables and a bowling alley, which costs him $350 per year. This is a case that deserves the very careful consideration of the council, and especially as there is no objection to this form of amusement. He asked the council to consider the matter at once.

His Worship promised to consider it at once.

Ald. Johnston moved that the matter be referred to the finance committee. This was seconded by Ald. Neill, and it carried.

HICKEY'S DRAIN

Mr. Hickey was once more before the council asking for the opening of his street. He stated that everything was now ready and only had to be passed. It was moved by Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Elliott that the drain be opened out this year. This drain is on Bethune street, north of Smith street.

Ald. Morrow moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the matter be referred back to the Board of Works.

The motion was lost and the chairman of the board of works will take the matter up.

Made Award for Bravery to Mr. Jesse Airress

Mr. Jesse Airress, a young man well known in the city, was last night presented with the parchment of the Royal Canadian Humane Society, which is donated for deed of valor. When the council met in the chambers in the presence of a few friends, His Worship Mayor Rush made the presentation.

His Worship stated that he had a very pleasant duty to perform. Last August James Butler was about to be drowned in the Otonabee river, when Jesse Airriess jumped into the water and at the risk of his own life saved the boy.

Mr. Airriess came forward and accepted it. His Worship congratulated the young man and hoped that his action would be an example to others, and he also wished him every success in future. His Worship understood that the young man wished to secure a permanent position in the city, and he felt sure there were residents here who would give him employment, and if he secured such employment, the Mayor hoped he would meet with every success.

In reply the hero of the hour stated that he would in future do his utmost to warrant the Mayor's kind words.

Mr. W. O'Brien will be the New Principal

Mr. W. O'Brien, principal of the Mattawa Separate school, has been appointed to fill the position of principal of the St. Peter's Separate school. Mr. Sayer, the present principal, having handed in his resignation.

Mr. O'Brien is a son of Mr. Michael O'Brien, Gilmour street, Inspector of Separate schools for Ontario.

He is to be congratulated on his appointment and comes here from Mattawa with splendid credentials. He will commence his new duties after the Christmas holidays and his resignation in Mattawa will take effect on the 18th of December.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through sometime generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glycerin compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

R. V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Explosion Killed 11 Soldiers

Calcutta, Dec. 7.—An explosion in the magazine at the military station here to-day resulted in the killing of eleven men and the wounding of twenty-six others. Most of the injured will die. The casualties were all among native soldiers and non-commissioned officers. At the time of the explosion the men were engaged in converting ball cartridges into blank cartridges. It was at first reported that the accident was the work of agitators, but this rumor was quickly disproved.

Vote of Thanks to The Mayor

A very pleasing feature of last night's council meeting was the vote of thanks tendered by the aldermen to His Worship Mayor Rush for the manner in which he had handled the meetings and the affairs of the city during the past year.

Ald. Phelan stated that it afforded him a great deal of pleasure to move a vote of thanks to the Mayor for the able manner in which he has presided over this council, and for the able manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the city during the past year.

Ald. Morrow seconded the motion, and stated that, aside from it being a pleasure to attend council meeting, the council this year had never had to have the time extended, which was a record.

His Worship made a very pleasing reply in which he thanked the aldermen for their courteous treatment of him and their assistance to him during the year. He said that it was the first time he had ever known a vote of thanks being passed to a Mayor in this city, and he felt very much honored.

The motion was carried by a standing vote and enthusiastic applause.

Romaine St. Sewer to be Reconstructed

The Romaine street sewer, the hoodoo of the last two councils, is once more to the fore and without any blush the aldermen back up and hesitate before authorizing any further expenditure. A great deal of money has already been sunk in that sewer and it is of no use. But last night a report from the city engineer was presented which recommended that the sewer be taken up and relaid with a 12-inch pipe, and laid on planks. He stated that this would make it work satisfactorily.

Moved by Ald. Neill and Ald. McIntyre, that the Board of Works be authorized to take such action as was necessary to commence the reconstruction of the Romaine street sewer at once, with a 12-inch pipe.—Carried. The Board of Works was also authorized to appoint an engineer to take the levels of the southern section of the city for sewer purposes.

The Hindoos in British Columbia Had a Trap for Dominion Officials

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 7.—The following exciting adventure with Tejah Singah and his Hindoo followers took place yesterday afternoon. As a result J. B. Harkin, the Federal Government's commissioner to arrange for the sending of one thousand Hindoos to Honduras, has decided that his task is impossible and that the Hindoo would not move from British Columbia.

Harkin and the Dominion Government immigration officials in Vancouver had a decidedly lively afternoon, being once threatened with bodily attack by a band of stalwart Sikhs, who are now amongst those who refuse to be moved from their homes in the Province.

REPAIRED TO THE TEMPLE

Having returned from Honduras yesterday was set by Harkin for his explanation of the immigration scheme in detail, in company with Dr Alex. Monroe and J. H. MacGill, of the Immigration Department, and several interpreters, as well as by Rev. J. Knox Wright, formerly a missionary to India. Mr. Harkin repaired to the Hindoo Temple in Fairview.

There he was informed that the service at which five hundred Hindoos were in attendance was proceeding in the holy of holies of the temple, an upper room. The Government party was told that all its members must remove their shoes before entering the upper room. Dr. Monroe declined to take off his shoes, and insisted that Tejah Singh and the other leaders should come to the basement room for conference.

SAID IT WAS A TRAP.

Rev. Mr. Wright and other interpreters strongly advised in favor of this course. They declared that the invitation to the inner temple was a trap laid for the Government commissioner, that if he agreed to it the Hindoos should immediately cable home to India the news that their temple had been desecrated and that the story, with exaggerated details, and the declaration that the Canadian Government was trying to force the Hindoos into submission, would ring from one end of India to the other.

PRAYED FOR AN HOUR.

After he had prayed an hour, Tejah Singh finally appeared in the basement, but declared at once that the Hindoos would never go to Honduras. He declined, too, to hear any official report. He interrupted Mr. Harkin when the latter attempted to explain. Dr Munro stepped forward at this moment and insisted that the Government's representative should not be treated rudely.

"Stop, stop," he shouted angrily, at the same time pressing his hand towards Tejah Singh's face.

Instantly there was a rush of the dozen Sikhs present. They crowded around Dr. Monroe with upraised hands and cried excitedly, "We have no fear; we are not afraid."

No blow was struck, but the situation was very tense. The incident broke up the meeting.

Mr. Frederick Nicholls of the Bright Outlook in Western Canada

Toronto, Dec. 7—Mr. Frederick Nicholls, of the Canadian General Electric Company, who has just returned from an extended business trip throughout the western part of Canada, in an interview with a reporter this morning, spoke very warmly of the stable condition of business in that section of the country.

"I have just returned from a tour of inspection through the west," he said, "through Vancouver, Rossland and Winnipeg, and was gratified to find that business conditions had so rapidly improved. British Columbia in particular has held its own remarkably well during the recent financial depression, and now that the future prospects have improved, a great many enterprises are being developed that have been held in abeyance during the past year.

"The development of the fruit-growing industry in British Columbia has assumed very large proportions indeed, and land for this purpose is demanding a large price, in some instances as high as $350 per acre having been paid for unimproved land, which, when orked upon, would bring not less than $5000 per acre. One small fruit farm that I heard of on the Crow's Nest line, near Creston, the rancher had made several thousands of dollars on a crop of strawberries alone. In Manitoba and the Territories the feeling is entirely optimistic, as the proceeds of the excellent crop are commencing to have effect. While the recent excellent crop has saved the situation and has resulted in improved conditions, the more conservative people are of the opinion that another good crop will be necessary to place Manitoba and the Northwest in the independent position that it should assume."

Her Skin was Blotchy

Scaley like pimples covered her face and ruined complexion.

A SPEEDY CURE.

"When my skin had always been so clear and ruddy, I found it very mortifying to see pasty and pimply patches coming over my face," writes Mrs. S. T. Ungerer, a well-known resident of Wheeling. "Great red blotches came on my chin, grew dry and scaled off. I think my stomach was at fault. Certainly my blood was poor because my lips were white and I had unpleasant fulness and ringing in the ears.

"Noticing in the papers such strong recommendations for Ferrozone as a blood and strengthening medicine, I decided to use. From the first tablet I took there was an improvement. I felt better and had such a good appetite, improved in color and the old rosy flush slowly returned to my cheeks. Finally the blotches began to leave and the skin grew soft and smooth. I have gained some in weight, look the picture of health and feel as if I had never been ill."

There is no nourishing tonic so sure to build up and strengthen as Ferrozone. It contains concentrated vegetable extracts that supply every weakened system with the element it lacks. Health, vigor, happiness—these are the direct results of using Ferrozone regularly.

Sold by all dealers, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Get Ferrozone today.

Exthusiasm and Fat

These two, like oil and water, mix poorly. This does not imply fat men and women never get enthusiastic. They do down deep inside. But what does it amount to? Their fat does not get excited. They can't transmute their enthusiasm into energetic action, so they might as well keep calm.

Thus it is that fat people generate much steam for life's work, only to find the load too much for the horse power, and as a result thousands of both sexes get just so far and no further. "Much they care," says the unmitigated slim one. But they do care. They care keenly for financial mental, social, business, fall hunting, straight front and comfort reasons, and that is why Marmola Prescription Tablets have been so heartily welcomed by the overweigh classes. The reason is not far to seek Marmola Prescription Tablets take off about a pound a day, in most cases, without interfering in any way with the taker's table tendency or his love of ease. To some, possibly, their absolute economy appeals. Thus one large case costing 75 cents at any drug store, or of the makers, The Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., direct, is said in itself alone to contain enough tablets to make a decided change in anyone.

But these are merely surface reasons. Marmola checks the formation of fat by curing the fat-forming tendency. The fat just slips away as it were, without the sign of a wrinkle. Thus the work these tablets do is not injurious. It is natural. This is the real reason these tablets are so much appreciated. They are safe.

The Peterborough Camera Club

The Peterborough Camera Club exhibit promises to be an unusually interesting one. The Tate-Taylor Optical Co. has donated a fine pair of apothecary scales, valued at $6; the Eastman Kodak Co., Toronto, a 1A folding pocket kodak, value $12; the club gives a year's file of the Camera Craft, value $1.25, and Mr. Louis Mendel, a photo by one of the world's most celebrated artists. These prizes can only be competed for by members of the club. Besides this the Y. W. C. A. gives four prize ribbons which can be competed for by any amateur in the city. The committee has decided to accept entries up to and including Monday, Dec. 14th. Entries may be made to the General Secretary, Miss McCalla, at the Y. W. C. A., or to the Secretary, Mr. Moore, 191 King street, city. The club meets this Tuesday evening at the Tate-Taylor Optical Co's. parlors at 8 p.m. sharp, when an analytical demonstration of the composition of sodium salts, by Mr. F. Russell, and a paper on the "Art of Negative Making," by Miss Allan McCarthy, will be part of the programme.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it?. Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

ARBITRATION NOT ALWAYS SUFFICIENT

It would seem that the time is yet very distant when international disputes will be settled by arbitration alone and the safety and security of a country be assured without the need of armaments to ensure it. There was not a little of political sagacity in President Roosevelt's suggestion that although the United States had no designs of aggression, or of using force against its neighbors, its pacific intentions and its desire to see justice done to the smallest and most insignificant nation, would receive little consideration unless it had the means and ability to enforce those views in case of need.

In his recent speech at the London Guildhall, Premier Asquith incidentally enunciated similar views, when referring to some violations by one of the great powers of the international agreement embodied in the Berlin Treaty, he declared that international treaties could not be altered except by the consent of all the parties to them. But there are times when the action of a ruler or some national expression of popular sentiment violates the rights guaranteed by treaty, and the weaker party has no available protection against the aggressor.

The discussion which the statements made by the German Emperor in the interview attributed to him have provoked in Europe, has shown how different views may be held in regard to the proper interpretation of an international agreement, and how easily some unexpected action may provoke a great war. Few were aware of the communications that were proceeding betwen Germany, France and Russia in regard to a joint intervention to put an end to the war in South Africa at a moment when one disaster after another was happening to the British forces. Had united action by those three powers been decided on paper treaties or international agreements would have availed little to protect Great Britain in that extremity. The existence of a powerful British navy was the most potent argument against any attempts at intervention.

Similarily the mutually defensive treaty between Great Britain and Japan, which undoubtedly was a most important factor in confining the contest in the Far East to Russia and Japan, would almost certainly have availed little had there not been behind it such superior naval strength as would have made the participation of any other power in the war a matter of great risk to it. Even in the history of Canada there have been occasions when the Dominion might have suffered severely and been forced to make unwilling concessions to a stronger country had not the naval force of the Mother Country been available when the last word was said. No country has probably suffered more than China from the practical application of the maxim that "might is right" in Russia's dealings with her, and recent European incidents have shown very clearly that the millenium has not yet been reached when a conference at The Hague is the recognized method for the adjustment of international disputes.

MOUNTAIN SLIDING.

Hawaiian Small Boys Simply "Drop Down the Edge of the Scenery."

Water sports are by no means the only vigorous athletics indulged in by the boys of Hawaii. Mountain climbing is a favorite pastime, for there are peaks 4,000 feet high within easy walking distance of any part of Honolulu, and on the island of Hawaii there are two mountains fully 14,000 feet in height. Not infrequently the Honolulu schools give picnics on the mountain sides that the pupils may gather land shells. It is on these excursions in search of land shells that the Hawaiian schoolboys revel in the once national sport, mountain sliding.

A very steep mountain side is selected, where the grass is long and sloping downward. Every one gathers his own ti leaves. The ti leaf is something like the banana leaf, but not nearly so long. With a bunch of ti leaves in his hand the first boy steps to the edge of the side, grasps the leaves by the stems in both hands, places the leafy part under him and sits down, gives himself a start and drops down the edge of the scenery like a flash. I was assured that it was an easy matter to regulate the speed of descent by merely grasping the ti stems firmly and lifting them upward, this acting as a brake. I longed for the thrill of dropping down over the edge of a mountain and upon my brief sled of ti leaves began the descent. I went like the wind. It seemed as though my breath would be taken away from me or that I would plunge head over heels, to be dashed to pieces among the trees below. I thought of my brake and drew up on the ti leaves with all my might and came up with a jerk that jarred every bone in my body. There I sat, looking downward almost perpendicularly, held in position only by a few leaves resting on the smooth, slippery grass, but the sliding grass is nearly a foot long, and it is only after it has been repeatedly slidden over and beaten down that it approaches perfection in the eyes of the Hawaiian small boy and sometimes leads to accidents. When, for instance, the thin layer of ti leaves wears out beneath the slide a gentle tug at the stalks parts the sled and sends the slider whizzing downward in a most uncomfortable and ungraceful manner, all arms and legs. Lucky is the victim of such an accident if he is not stopped in his downward career by the trunk of a tree.—St. Nicholas.

SCARED THE ROBBERS.

Odd Incident in England in the Eighteenth Century.

For a time during the eighteenth century in England there was a lull in the robbery industry owing to an odd incident. Shortly after the execution of an English burglar named Elliston a curious communication purporting to have been written by him was put into circulation. "Now, as I am a dying man," it ran, "I have done something which may be of good use to the public. I have left with an honest man—the only honest man I was ever acquainted with—the names of all my wicked brethren, the places of their abode, with a short account of the chief crimes they have committed, in many of which I have been the accomplice and heard the rest from their own mouths. I have likewise set down the names of those we call our setters, of the houses we frequent and all of those who receive and buy our stolen goods. I have solemnly charged this honest man and have received his promise upon oath that whenever he hears of any rogue to be tried for robbery or housebreaking he will look into his list and if he finds there the name of the thief concerned to send the whole paper to the government. Of this I here give my companions fair and public warning and hope they will take it."

A New Landlord for the Rossin House

The negotiations for the transfer of the lease of the Rossin House to Mr. Samuel H. Thompson, manager of the Queen's Hotel, were brought to a successful conclusion a few days ago. So far as the Chewett Estate, owners of the property, are concerned the new lessee will take possession of the hotel not later than the first day of May next, when the present lease expires. The parties to the negotiations declined to make public the terms on which the arrangement was consummated, but it is understood that the lease will run for the usual period of 21 years. Negotiations are still pending between Messrs. Nelson Brothers and the new lessee in regard to the sale of the furnishings of the house, and it is possible that an agreement may be effected when possession will be surrendered by the present occupants at the end of the current year.

The Rossin House is one of the most widely known hostelries in the country. When first established by the Rossin brothers it was supposed to lie upon the western outskirts of the city. It was for years the leading commercial and theatrical hotel of Toronto, and in later years was the headquarters for Liberal politicians, just as was the Queen's a rallying centre for the Conservative party. Its present management began twenty years ago, and a little over a year ago the entire ground floor was reconstructed and fitted up in modern fashion. Mr. Sam H. Thompson, the new lessee, who will have sole control, has been with the owners of the Queen's Hotel for almost thirty years, having entered their employment at Queen's Hotel while still a boy. He is probably as well known to the travelling public as any hotelman in Canada, and the extent of his popularity is only measured by the limits of his acquaintance. He will sever his connection with the Queen's and take over the active management of the Rossin House as soon as he secure possession of the property.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realise something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realise anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

Arkansas Tower Sliding Into River

Pine Bluff, Ark., December 6.—Following an all-night's struggle against the encroachments of the Arkansas River, citizens of Pine Bluff renewed the apparently hope less struggle today. The fate of property aggregating probably $5,000,000 is in the balance.

All teams that can be pressed into service are hurrying willow and pine branches to the river, where hundreds of men are working hard weaving mats and pushing these into the river, hoping to form a temporary barrier

"You'd 'a' missed likely."

"Maybe not. You see, I thought, well—that Matthews or that precious brother of his, they might get to bothering you folks. Anyway, ain't it dangerous for you to be out here late like this?"

"It is for you. You get shot at—keeping guard on us."

He thumped the ewale impatiently, with the butt of his gun.

"Oh, it was you," she persisted, gravely enough. "That is why I came tonight."

"Ah! You mean that I can help you, Miss Dallas. Tell me—tell me, what can I do?"

"Don't let Matthews kill you."

Lounsbury laid down his gun. When he straightened he stepped to her side. "Me?" he said. "Well, I'm a match for him. You ain't. But what else?"

She moved aside, averting her face. "There is something, Miss Dallas?"

"I-o-o-a."

He saw she was disconcerted and strove to put her at ease. "Do you know," he said, "you're so tall in that coat you almost look like a 'heap big chief.'"

She did not hear him. She was not listening. The wished for opportunity was come. She was trying desperately to rally a speech. "You—you ain't been round of late," she began at last. "I hope"— But she could not finish.

"No," he said slowly. He rammed his hands into his trousers pockets. "I haven't been around lately, but I didn't think you'd notice it." He darted a glance at her.

"Was it dad?" she asked. "Did you think"—

"Yes, it was your father. I thought he went out of his way to be—well, kinda short, you know. I was only trying t' be decent."

"Dad's funny," she said reflectively. "Whenever we get to a chuck hole, where all of us ought to pull t'gether, he goes slack on the tugs. He's like Ben that way. So I have t' go up t' him, stroke his mane, fix his curb and let some cool air under his collar. After while he gives a haw-hee-haw and goes on."

Lounsbury did not laugh. "He balked when it came to me," he said soberly, "and it hurt. Afterward I kinda got it into my head that none of you wanted me."

She looked straight at him. "But one did—one did," she whispered, choking.

He pulled his hands free of his pockets. "One—one," he said huskily. "Who?"

And now everything was clear to her. She knew just what to say. She had no feelings of self. The duty was not hateful or embarrassing. "Who?" she repeated. "Don't you know, Mr. Lounsbury? Why, Marylyn."

"Marylyn," he echoed as if in a puzzle; "Marylyn! You're joking!"

She caught a shade of reproach in that and misunderstood it. "I reckon you won't like her so well now," she said.

"Like her so well? I don't know what you mean."

"She—she likes you," stammered Dallas.

Still he was puzzled. "I supposed she didn't hate me."

"But now you know."

There was no mistaking her. Utterly dumfounded, he could not trust an immediate answer. "I see, I see," he said finally.

"And you'll like her just the same?"

He drew a deep breath. His eyes were on her face, trying to read it in the dimness. Then, "I am not a cub boy, Miss Dallas."

"You won't stay away," she persisted. "You'll come."

"If I'm judging right, I mustn't. I'm—I'm sorry."

"Sorry—just sorry?"

He strode back and forth a few times. "Why—why, Miss Dallas, you must understand that a man can't—when a girl— Well, it 'd be low for me to talk about it, that's all—out and out low."

Something stirred her powerfully, then—something she combated and concealed from him by a touch of appeasant anger. "There's nothing low about it," she said. "A man ought to be proud. Oh," as he was about to reply, "you don't know how she's felt! She's been sick over it, white and sad, and at night she'd cry."

He winced.

"And you're just sorry?"

"When did you find this out?"

"That day you drove Matthews away. She told me."

He walked about again. "I can't see why she does," he mused pathetically. "I can't remember doing anything."

"But you've been so good to us—even after the way dad acted—guarded out here and sent that land office man down from Bismarck"—

He made a protesting gesture. "Pshaw!"

"Oh, yes, you did. And why? Why? If you don't care"—

A long silence followed. During it she watched him, her very attitude imploring, while he continued to pace.

All at once he stopped determinedly. "There's a reason," he said, "why I can't do what you ask—come to see Marylyn and—and all that."

"Dad? Ah, he's got to think like me."

"No, not your father."

"Maybe"—the bitterness of Mrs. Cummings' slight impelled it—"maybe you don't think she's good enough."

"Dallas, no, no!" He put out a hand to her.

She retreated.

"[illegible]" He let his arm fall. "And it is fair and square. I'm proud of it, too, and you must hear it." His tone was significant, tender.

No hint of his meaning suggested itself to her. "Then I want to know it," she said.

"I didn't intend to tell you," he began, "at least for awhile. When I was at the shack last I made up my mind it wouldn't do any good. I said to myself, 'You keep quiet.' But"—he plucked off his hat and sent it whirling to the gun—"I guess you'll have to know now. Dallas, the reason—is you."

"Me?" The question was a cry.

Lounsbury waited, standing very still before her. Then, reaching out again, he touched her hand. "You," he said quietly.

Again she retreated.

"Please don't go," he begged. "I want to tell you more, and I want you to say you believe me. You must believe me."

There was another long silence. Presently he went back and picked up his hat and gun. "I know just where it puts you," he said, "but, just the same, I love you."

He was certain now that he had earned her displeasure. When he spoke again it was as one who accepts a sad finality. "I love you, and I want you. I hoped you might think a little of me some day, for I believe I could make you happy, so it was disappointing to find out that you hadn't thought of me that way; that you were figuring on seeing me take Marylyn."

"I never had much idea of marrying, but when I saw you that first time—when you came in through the door, you remember—why, then, I began to think. Couldn't help it." He put on his hat and lifted the gun to his shoulder. "I even wrote mother about you," he said.

He was unprepared for the answer she gave him, for it was an answer. Without speaking, she buried her face in the curve of her arm and, as if seized with an ague, began to tremble.

"Dallas!" he whispered tenderly. "Oh, my dear girl! I'm so glad! So glad! You will—you do?"

But he found himself pleading into space.

Story of Silver Discovery in Eastern Canada

by Quaint Indian Legend

There are few Indian legends that reveal a stronger sense of romance and simple poetry than the following, which is told by The World's special commissioner in the North Country, in his own entertaining way. Mr. Crate heard the story from the Indian woman herself and it is a contribution to our Canadian history and literature which should be preserved.—Editor.

There is a quaint Indian legend that tells the story of the first discovery of silver in the Montreal River Country.

The legend comes down to us through Mrs. Roundeyes who lives to-day with her Indian husband and brood of children up the river and just where they can see the lights of the new mining camp twinkle when darkness blankets the landscape.

The white man has been long in coming, but he has arrived in force so irresistable that the Indian woman knows the land is no longer her own or that of her children.

I speak of Mrs. Roundeyes, because it is she and not her husband who is descended from the great chief Mattawahbiki, he whose bullets glistened in the sunlight as they sped from his musket to the heart of his enemy of the Laurentides

CHIEF AMONG THE OBJIBWAYS.

Mattawahbiki was the chief of chiefs among the Objibway tribes of the northland. Unmerciful in war, he conquered the vagrant tribes which pressed from time to time up the Ottawa, the Mattawa, and even to the hunting grounds of the Objibway. It was at first a war of offense, but as victory after victory was added to his laurels and his following became greater, Mattawahbiki yearned to spread his empire over the Temiskaming, across the mountains and down to the great water across which no chief could see, and no warrior could paddle. Among the braves who formed a sort of bodyguard to Mattawahbiki was Eagle Feather, who could run like the wind, shoot like the rays of the sun in straightness and dance the war dance of the Objibway like the great demon.

STRAIGHT AS THE ARROW.

Eagle Feather was straight as the arrows which were sheathed at his side, ready to be placed and drawn for the death sting. Tall, and lithe, with clear-cut profile, Eagle Feather was a beautiful specimen of savage soldiery. As he swung past the tepees of the village, Indian maidens peered after him in admiration and desired him for their own. The great chief liked Eagle Feather for had he not killed many of the enemy and had he not once, twice, thrice saved the life of Mattawahbiki when about to be cut down by the tomahawks of the enemy? With the strength of a madman he had hurled himself in front of his chief and upon his enemies at the battle of Swift Water (now Mattawahbiki Falls), and single-handed had he driven them back, battered and bleeding until they had turned and fled into the depths of the forest.

ADVISER TO THE LEADER.

Eagle Feather had indeed won his place as adviser to the leader of his people—the great Mattawahbiki. Other braves had with the strength of fanatics, struck terror to the enemy and had made the name of Mattawahbiki known far into the hunting grounds of other people, but Eagle Feather alone he trusted, and Eagle Feather alone it was who knew this great secret.

The muskets from the trading-post were made to belch forth balls which glistened as when hurled through space the trajectory snatched song from the atmosphere. Other tribes had to use dull leaden bullets, why not Mattawahbiki? The arrows, too, which sped on wings of death, were tipped with the gleam of some wonderful metal. Where did the people of Mattawahbiki get it? Where?

But not even the loyal braves, their wives, nor their children knew whence came the glistening bullets, or the tips for the arrows. Mattawahbiki alone held the secret. Every time when the moon was full these two would launch their canoes on the great river, and as the braves, the squaws and children gazed in curiosity and wonderment, would glide up the river in silence, and no one dared follow. Back in two suns they would come, laden with the white pellets, the terror of the Laurentides.

GATHER TO WAR DRUMS BEAT.

One night the metallic beat of the war drums crashed through the village. The warriors, garbed in feathers and war paint, issued forth from the tepees. The canoes were filled quickly with men armed to the teeth. The squaws and some of the old men gathered on the river bank to witness the departure and in silence boat after boat dropped into the current and silently faded from sight. Mattawahbiki sat in the bow of the leading canoe. At the first portage other warriors met the chieftain and prostrated themselves at his feet. When the shores of Temiskaming were reached, the army had been swollen to 2000 fighting men. Mattawahbiki had set his heart upon the downfall of the tribes of the hunting grounds down by the great river.

One evening, as the moon cast its picture in the little lakes that dot the landscape, Eagle Feather, the trusted counsellor his chief and sole sharer in his secret, set out alone to find a short portage of which he had been told by a renegade, once of the tribe of Mohawks. He had walked some distance with eyes half downcast, when he suddenly found himself confronted by an Indian maiden of dazzling beauty. Startled, he swung his bow into place and reached for a silver-tipped arrow.

"Oh," she said, in a tongue that was not that of Eagle Feather's people, "why is Mattawahbiki bent upon our destruction? My brothers can fight you, but we cannot fight the great spirit. He has given your people balls that glisten like the eye of a fox to still the hearts of our fighters. Your arrows, with eyes that shine like the stars leave the sting of death upon our people. O, can you not spare my father?"

"Your father?" asked Eagle Feather dazed by the vision of beauty before him.

"Yes; he is the chief of our tribe and must meet you when the fight begins."

Eagle Feather looked at the ground as if in meditation. When he looked up she was walking away from him and straight into the forest.

LOVE LEADS TO TREACHERY.

It was here that the treachery of the chief counsellor of Mattawahbiki began. Eagle Feather could see nothing, think of nothing but the maiden who had risen before him as a vision and had vanished in the mist that in the early mornings overhangs the river, then dissipates itself in the shimming of the rising sun.

Eagle Feather planned first to ask his leader to spare the tribe upon which they were descending, but he was ashamed of his weakness and feared that it would be charged against him that his courage had been broken by the heart of a maiden.

For two days Eagle Feather misled his chieftain. The scouts had come in to report a feasible water route southeastward, but the young Indian withheld the information. He wanted only delay; wanted to think. For two nights he tossed about, gazing at the stars and thinking. When he awoke there was further dissimulation.

Mattawahbiki alone was without suspicion. The braves were restless and impatient to be on the move.

Then Eagle Feather vanished from their midst.

* * * *

ONLY THE ASHES REMAINED.

When the forces of the Mattawahbiki entered the hunting grounds of his enemy he found the tepees gone. Nothing but the ashes of the campfires. He did not suspect Eagle Feather, who, he believed had fallen by the arrow of some vagrant warrior. He would probably never return.

But Eagle Feather had gone straight to the council house of the enemy. He had sworn by the sun and stars that he would not fight his own people, but that he would lead the terrorized people to safety. He would do it for love of the maiden whom he had met on the trail in the forest.

At first the stranger was regarded with suspicion, but this gave place to confidence when, in the simple ritual of the people he took for his bride one of themselves—the daughter of the chieftain.

His talent for leadership was such that he became the undisputed leader of his people. They looked to him to save them from extinction at the hands of the invincible Mattawahbiki.

EAGLE FEATHER GIVES COURAGE.

One morning, just as the grey of dawn illuminated the eastern sky, Eagle Feather left the new village to which he had guided his adopted people. He returned in a fortnight, his canoes laden with glistening bullets and white tips for the arrows. The braves marvelled, and their breasts filled with a new courage.

The history of the years that follow tell of the downfall of Mattawahbiki and the subjection of many vagrant bands of the northland. The story of the shining bullets and the arrowtips had reached the ears of Mattawahbiki. Broken in spirit, he left his shattered people, filled with rage and sorrow, for he knew now that Eagle Feather had been disloyal, though he may have held his secret. He vanished up the river and was never seen by human eye again.

PROSPECTOR FINDS SKULL AND SILVER.

Four years ago a lone prospector was groping his way among the rocks on the shores of the Montreal River in James Township. He stumbled upon a vein of rich silver and there were signs that it had once been worked. In the ruins of an old cabin he found two skeletons. Their skulls were cleft and by their sides lay two rust-covered hatchets. He found also crude crucibles and moulds and a buckskin sack, falling apart with age, half filled with silver bullets.

Mattawahbiki and Eagle Feather had met. In the deadly combat, each had slain the other, and their common secret was sealed until over a century later, when the one lone prospector found again the wealth which the earth had hidden and which had taken its part in the history of the northern aboriginies.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and so in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

HANDS COVERED WITH ECZEMA

AMPUTATION FEARED, BUT ZAM-BUK SAVED.

"For three long months I was not able to attend to my own needs; and for three weeks the eczema on my hands was so bad that I was unable to feed myself. I had to be fed as one feeds a baby, because I could not hold knife, fork, spoon or cup." So says Miss Violet McSorley, of 75, Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie, in telling how Zam-Buk cured her of eczema. She adds: "Hands, wrists and arms up to the elbows were covered with eczema. The itching and the soreness were nigh unbearable. As the disease developed, the skin actually peeled off leaving raw sores. The palms, fingers, backs of my hands and wrists were all in this shocking state, and I was forced to sit in agony all the while."

"The raw sores were soon in a foul condition, and my finger nails, all except two, fell off. During the different stages of my trouble, I sought the advice of three different doctors and received treatment, but although getting slight relief at first there was no cure. Amputation was at one time thought necessary but the timely introduction of Zam-Buk prevented this fearful ending."

"Zam-buk was recommended by a friend and we bought a supply. The first few applications gave me a little ease, but it was not until I had continued with it for some time that I felt a decided improvement. After that my cure went on quickly. Zam-Buk did what everything else had failed to do. Now my hands and arms are quite freed from the terrible eczema."

Are you suffering from skin disease? If so, take Miss McSorley's advice and try Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk cures eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, festering sores, cuts, bruises, burns, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, pimples, face and lip sores, bad sores, diseased ankles, and all itching, irritation, and inflammation. Obituary

J. B. FOSTER.

Warsaw, Dec. 7.—With the somewhat sudden death early Sunday morning of Mr. Joseph Bell Foster at his residence, there has passed away an interesting figure, prominent for many years in Methodism in Warsaw. The deceased, who was about 75 years of age, was born in England, but has lived the majority of his years in Canada. He is very well known throughout the county on account of his connection with the Methodist Church. He has on several occasions occupied pulpits in various churches of this denomination. He has spoken at the Salvation Army barracks in Peterborough and is represented as one of the first men to assist General Booth when the latter began his evangelistic career in Mile End Square, London, Eng.

A week ago Mr. Foster went to Bethel Church, about three miles north of this village to assist in the services. He became ill there but his illness was not thought to be of a serious character, making his death yesterday morning a surprise. He rose early as usual and requested something to eat. But in the course of his wife's preparations of the morning meal he suddenly became dizzy while walking across the floor. Mr. Aaron McGuire, of Peterborough, a brother of Mrs. Foster, who was present, steadied him to a chair, where he died a few moments later.

Mr. Joseph Foster, of Peterborough, is a cousin of the deceased.

Stormy Weather for All This Week

A regular storm period extends from the 7th to the 11th, having its centre on the 8th. The Venus period is central on the 10th, with moon at extreme north delineation on the 9th and full moon on the 7th. The December storm diagram shows that this period is at the beginning of the winter solstice as well as in the closing stage of the Mercury period. We calculate that very general and severe winter storms will visit most parts of the country between the 7th and 11th. These storms, as we have indicated above, may come over from the preceding period in a spell of prolonged threatening weather; they will take on renewed and very decided force not far from the 7th, and during the 8th, 9th and 10th they will move like vast storm trains across the country, bringing general blizzards of sleet and snow to all central and northern sections. Many wild and menacing storms and gales will be encountered on the North Atlantic Ocean and along the coasts. The great lake region will be swept with boreal northwesterly gales and blizzards. Behind the storms the barometer will rise to phenomenally high reading, and a full grown December cold wave will push southward and eastward

Grave Crisis in India Ignored by Britons, Europeans in Peril

Upheaval against Alien Rule is Now Native Aspiration and Hope —England's Strength Forgotten

Race Hatred Has Reached Danger Point

Calcutta, Dec. 9.— The gravity of India's situation is not realized in Great Britain. The public may perhaps have supposed the danger cannot be imminent as long as the viceroy can go shooting in Bikaneer. Now that he has announced his determination to cut several days of his holiday and to proceed to Calcutta before the end of the month they may begin to realize that there is dager in the air.

The truth is that every European in India feels that he is living on the edge of a volcano that may at any ment become active. We have had warning enough in all conscience When civilians go armed in India and European women are not safe without an escort we hardly need to be told that race hatred has reached the high-water mark of danger.

There are, of course, people who, having eyes, cannot see—like the Governor of a province whose letters to his friends announcing improved relations were read in this country simultaneously with the cabled accounts of a second attempt on his own life.

AVERAGE OFFICIAL BLIND.

But the average official is not blind to the signs of the times. An official of great experience, whose name — could I give it—would be accepted unhesitatingly as a guarantee of courage and calm discretion —mounting almost to indifference, is about to return to his post in a native state far to the north.

Some years ago the guard of Indian soldiers was withdrawn at the suggestion of the military authorities, though it was agreed that it should be replaced when needed. In the opinion of this officer, that time has come, yet his request has been refused. Six thousand Europeans, scattered over a wide province, are thus left without protection, save by soldiers of the native state, who, in the event of trouble, could not be expected to take the part of the Europeans.

That the native states are affected cannot be doubted. The Rajputs, we hope and believe, are loyal to the British raj; but there are other states in which the leaven of treason has long been working. Their chiefs look on with wonder at every manifestation of our weakness. The conviction that we have lost our grip on the country has either induced or compelled them to subscribe to the funds of treason and to shed the light of their countenance on the disturbers of the peace.

MAHARATHAS A MENACE.

The Maharathas are an imminent menace; their activity is almost as manifest as their hatred, and Poona is a hotbed of treason.

Carelessness has deprived us of the usual weapons of defence. We put informers side by side with their victims, and were astonished when the informers were shot. Money would once buy an informer, but he now realizes that the price of his information is death.

It is time the viceroy bestirred himself. He and he alone sets the tone of the civilian in India. Let him give proof of a clear perception and of earnest determination, and the situation must improve. He has great power, and if he wants more let him ask for it. Lord Morley is not the man to refuse; he at any rate knows the truth; yet how can he give what Lord Minto does not ask?

There is still time to avoid catastrophe. If certain classes in India have been affected by treason the mass of the millions are practically untouched, and may yet be saved.

ENGLAND'S STRENGHT FORGOTTEN.

The people of India have forgotten our strength. Lord Kitchener's new concentration of troops has withdrawn the soldier from the eye of the native. In Lord Roberts' time both British and native troops marched through the country when changing stations. It is 25 years since the British regiment marched, and 15 years since a native regiment was seen marching through Bengal. This may seem a simple expedient; yet it would serve as a reminder that we have not—as many natives believe—abandoned India to the treasonmonger.

Are Druggists Prey to Drug Habit?

A note of warning against the alleged growth of the drug and alcohol habit among druggists throughout the province, was struck by President George E. Gibbard in his address before the Council of the Ontario College of Pharmacy yesterday. This habit, declared Mr. Gibbard, has gotten a strong hold on some members of the pharmach profession, endangering the public safety, and he urged that a plan be formulated to discipline these unfortunates, so as to deprive them of the power to injure the public by fatal errors arising from incompetency.

Laymen's Missionary Banquet Proved a Decided Success

300 Men Gathered Round the Tables—Splendid Menu Provided—Able Addresses by Messrs. J. A. Patterson, K. C., and N. F. Davidson, and Others—Local Men Pledge Themselves to Give $6.00 per Year, per Head, to Mission Work.

THE RESULT

The addresses at the laymen's banquet were of an exceedingly convincing nature, and pointed to the conclusion that Peterborough Christians fall far short in contributing their share toward the evangelization of the heathen world.

Mr. Wilson, the energetic secretary of Peterborough's Laymen's Movement gave statistics gathered from Peterborough Protestant churches, showing the amount contributed for general church purposes in this city to be $47,082.72, as against $11,840 29 for foreign and home missions, a total of $58,923 01. This represents per Christian head—there being 4,284 Protestant church members in Peterborough — $10 99 per year for general church purposes, and the not very flattering sum of but $2.76 per year for missions, as against $8 per head for the latter purpose in Toronto, and $5 in much smaller places than this city.

The above showing, combined with the excellent eloquent appeals of the distinguished visiting laymen resulted in a motion by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, to the effect that the men present pledge themselves to support and advocate a general movement amongst the several Protestant churches to raise $6.00 per head each year for missions.

The Laymen's Missionary Banquet is now a matter of history. It took place in the George street Methodist church last night and was participated in by one of the most representative crowds of men which ever sat down to any banquet. Fully three hundred gathered around the long tables and for an hour partook of the good things which were provided.

The banquet was one of the most successful ever held in the city and it proved that the laymen of this city are thoroughly awake to the missionary movement which has taken such a hold upon the men of the Dominion. For several weeks this banquet has been the topic of general conversation in all the protestant churches, and it was looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure. The only drawback was that a hall sufficiently large to hold all that would have been pleased to attend was not available. The George street church basement was the largest that was suitable and it accommodated 300

The object of the banquet was not for monetary purposes. The price of the tickets was placed at the lowest possible figure to barely cover the expenses. The object was simply to get the men of the city together for the purpose of discussing and listening to addresses on the missionary movement, and it was decided that the best way to accomplish the end was by the way adopted, and it is proposed to have a series of these banquets during the coming winter.

The addresses by Mr. J. A. Patterson, K.C., and Mr. N. F. Davidson, K. C., a brother of Rev. Canon Davidson were most interesting and instructive and were listened to with the closest attention by all. It was the first time that the great movement was placed clearly before Peterborough people and that it has taken a deep hold upon the men was plainly evidenced by the hearty applause and the great interest taken in it.

The hour was set for seven o'clock but it was half an hour later before supper was announced. In the meantime the guests were shown upstairs to the auditorium where they left their wraps and waited for the supper bell.

Caterers Coleman Bros. had charge of the banquet and they left nothing undone which would add anything to the pleasure of the diners. They furnished a first-class menu, and it was greatly enjoyed. The tables were waited upon by young ladies from the various churches who performed their duties admirably.

During the supper hour the orchestra of the George street Methodist church rendered several choice selections which enlivened the proceedings.

Mr. D. W. Dumble occupied the chair and looked after the immense audience in a most acceptable manner.

At about 8:30 the first part of the evening's programme was concluded and the second part was commenced with the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Following is the programme:

Hymn—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Chairman's Address—D. W. Dumble.

Solo—G. W Mulligan.

Address—J. A Patterson, K. C.

Solo—G. W Mulligan.

Address—N. F. Davidson, K. C.

Hymn.—"Onward Christian Soldiers."

D. W. DUMBLE.

Mr. D W. Dumble, of George St. Methodist church, made an exceedingly capable chairman of the proceedings and in the course of an appropriate address, urged his audience to deliberate as to how they could as consecrated Christians, do their share in bringing the knowledge of God to all peoples of the earth. He pointed out that it was their duty, as professing Christians not no leave the building without a full recognition of their responsibility in this respect.

J. A. PATTERSON, K.C.

of Toronto, followed Mr. Dumble and his address was a masterly effort, powerful in its effect upon the gathering and convincing as to the need of a progressive laymen's movement in Peterborough, whereby it would be possible to raise the status of our co-operation in evangelizing the world.

The few men who gathered together in St. James' School House, Toronto, one Saturday afternoon a year ago had succeeded in raising $400,000 in Toronto, for this purpose, and what could be done in Toronto, by offered, could also be accomplished here on a proportionate scale. He thanked God for what the noble women of

Sues Owner of Newspaper--Asked to Recognize Claim of Alleged Daughter

New York, Dec 8—In the French courts, J. G. Bennett, the Herald proprietor, is being sued for recognition of an alleged daughter, now grown to maturity. Mme Clairmont is the mother. Some years ago Mr Bennett paid several thousand pounds for the possession of certain letters but the mother wrote a

STORY OF BENNETT'S LIFE

A few years ago Mme. Clairmont wrote the story of Mr. Bennett's life as she knew it during the years in Paris. The title was "Memoirs of Fan-fan Benoiton," that being the name of the role she played as a child in Sardou's play. The book was published by Berckman of Brussels. Mr. Bennett bought up the entire edition and suppressed it. Only one copy now in the hands of Mme. Clairmont, escaped destruction.

DAUGHTER LIVES IN CANADA

Earning an honorable living as a governess of a family of several little children on the Kerfoot Ranch, far back among the foothills of Alberta, Miss Juliette Jacqueline Shettler, the alleged child of James Gordon Bennetts lives.

When called upon by a press representative Miss Shettler was greatly surprised and disappointed. How did you find out I was here, she asked, apparently embarrassed. On being told how it had all come about, and that her side of the story was also to be answered, she said;

"I am very sorry that the papers have learned of the affair. No I simply will not tell you anything, so please don't ask. It is all a great misfortune, something I cannot help, and I am not going to make it worse by talking about it. It is surely bad enough already.

ASKED NO HELP

"I am sure I am hunting no one. I am earning my own living honestly, and have never received any assistance from any one. I have never figured in the affair personally, and never will. My part of it is being conducted for me by proxy."

Miss Shettler is a young woman apparently about 25 years of age, good-looking and well educated. She is tall and slight and has the manner of a person of education. The Kerfoots with whom Miss Shettler is staying, are among the best known and most highly respected of Alberta ranchers.

While attending the Dominion Exhibition last summer, the senior Kerfoot was killed by a fall from his horse, and the ranch is being conducted by two sons, mere boys, who know nothing of the incident in which Miss Shettler is concerned. Mrs Kerfoot, the widow, is at present in Vancouver and the household affairs are entirely in the hands of Miss Shettler. The Kerfoots have no neighbors, but it was learned from the nearest post-office that Miss Shettler went to live at the Kerfoot ranch last summer.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Woman's Suffrage

Ottawa, Dec. 8—The Central Committee of the local branch of the W.C.T.U. asked the members for Ottawa their views on the question of the female suffrage. The reply of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the subject has been received. The Premier is, of course, non-committal in expressing his personal views as to the suffrage, but he tenders some practical advice as to the way it should be obtained, stating that application should be made to the Provincial Government before the matter was broached in the Federal House.

The Poultry Association Confident of Success

An enthusiastic meeting of the Poultry Association was held in the Bank of Montreal chambers last evening when a large number were present. The meeting was for the purpose of dealing with the details in connection with the show to be held in the market hall on January 5th 6th and 7th. The question of coops and other matters necessary for the care and protection of the birds were taken up and settled.

The prospects for the success of the first winter exhibition of fancy poultry and pet stock are the very brightest. Since the prize lists were printed there have been applications from all parts of the province. That there will be a big exhibit of birds is assured and that many of the best specimens in Ontario will be here is equally assured and the citizens of Peterborough will have the privilege of seeing one of the finest displays of feathers and poultry ever seen in this district. Keep the date in mind—Jan. 5, 6 and 7.

HON. SIR WILFRED LAURIER, Premier of Canada

Great Water Famine in Eastern Townships

Sherbrooke, Que., December 8.— The water situation at Sherbrooke, as in nearly all parts of the Eastern Townships, is becoming more serious every day. Lake Memphremagog, from which Sherbrooke gets her supply for light and power purposes, is very low, and despite rains during the past few weeks shows no improvement. The light company are still able to supply the whole city with lights, but of very poor quality. Should the drought continue the power situation will also become serious, as several large industrial concerns are dependent on the Magog river water supply for power.

The heavy frosts of the past few days have been unfortunate in their bearing on the water situation. St. Francis river rose something over a foot this week as the result of rains.

The Brompton Pulp and Paper Company floated nearly all their pulp wood between Angus and Sherbrooke to their mill at Bromptonville. The reports from nearly all the surrounding towns and villages tell of shortage of water. In some instances manufactories have been closed, or are running short time through lack of water for power purposes. Farmers are perhaps the worst sufferers, nearly all springs being dried up, necessitating hauling water for both stock and household purposes in some instances several miles.

Lumbermen report great difficulty in securing water to supply camps. Reports all along the district tell of shortage of water. The Chaudiere river is at the lowest in its history, and owing to the lateness of the season very little relief in the way of rain is expected. Farmers in that section are experiencing great difficulty, many having to haul the water supply some miles. Unless relief comes in the way of heavy snow and thaws, one of the hardest winters in the history of the Township will be experienced.

Junior Age Limit in O.R.F.U.

Albert Sanagan, of the Eureka Rugby Club, has forwarded to the secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union a notice of motion to place an age limit in the junior series. His motion reads;

"That no player shall be elegible to compete in a cup match in the junior series who has passed his 21st birthday prior to Sept 1, and it shall be the duty of each club secretary to forward declarations, forms of which may be had on application to the secretary-treasurer of the union, of the exact age of each player. These declarations must be signed by the secretary of the Union, and filed by him for future reference.

"He shall indicate the age limit of each member of a club on duplicate registration list and return same duly certified to the club secretary for presentation to the officiating referee. Such declarations shall be valid from year to year."

Inquest Into the Death of the Late Roland Ayotte

Young's Point, Dec. 8.—Nothing of a startling nature figured in the evidence of the inquest into the death of Roland Ayotte, who died a few weeks ago from a bullet wound at Oregon, Harvey township. The enquiry was resumed this morning in the annex of the Lakeview House. Coroner Dr. Gray presiding. Dr. Young who with Dr. Boucher held the post mortem examination was the first to testify. The only evidence bearing directly on the case was that the charge entered young Ayotte's body in a straight line.

Mrs. Ayotte, the dead boy's mother and Mr. Baptiste Ayotte, his father, also gave their testimony. The latter that he had heard a story once about Tommy Gordon getting a young lad to stand on a stump for a target while he shot at him. The story went that the boy fell off too soon and the charge entered the stump.

Thos. Weaver and Laura Gordon testified to finding the body. Tommy Gordon, who was with young Ayotte, said that while the two boys were walking along together his garter became unfastened. He gave the gun to the other boy to carry until he fixed it. A second time the garter worked itself loose and while he, Gordon, was tying it, his companion exclaimed "Watch me shoot that crow." He heard the discharge, of course, and on looking up, saw Roland Ayotte fall over to the ground.

The inquest was here adjourned until 1.45 this afternoon. The coroner's jury is composed of; Andrew Allan, foreman; Jos. Walsh, W. J. Bullock, W. F. Young, Josiah Bullock, Wm. Lane, Robt. Freeburn, Ambrose Davis, Geo. Davis, Peter Bullock, Jas. H. Kearney, Fred Young, Edward Young, Matthew Young.

Young's Point, Nov. 8.—The jury after an absence of only a few minutes, returned a verdict of accidental death by shooting in the inquest into the death of Roland Ayotte. Several witnesses were called, but no evidence could be produced which justified in any way the stories that were current in reference to the lad's death.

In the afternoon the inquest was resumed by Coroner Dr. Gray and Chas. Bickell, the undertakker who conducted the burial of the deceased was the first witness called. He merely testified that he took charge of the body and buried it.

Jos. Johnston and Edward Moore, two men who were working in a coda near where the accident occurred were put in the box. They knew nothing of the accident. They were told about it and went to the place and saw the body.

That concluded the evidence and the jury retired and shortly afterward brought in the above verdict.

Heat Penetrated the Stone Foundation

When Mr. Angus McIntosh, the popular caretaker of the curling rink, started making ice, he discovered that the heat from the furnace in the basement was penetrating the stone foundation and would not permit the frost to enter the ground at the south end of the rink. He therefore got a man busy digging a trench in which he placed an air chamber and in this way the difficulty will be overcome. Mr. McIntosh has succeeded in getting the ice on the surface and in a few days he will have the curlers throwing the stones up and down the ice.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

"Until three years ago I was the picture of health—then I became what people call Neurasthenic. I grew sleepless, worried, lacked will power, felt great physical fatigue, experienced fears and felt always in danger of something unknown. All the time I grew thinner and weaker, felt so nervous that I felt the end must be near. No medicine helped, each one seemed a new disappointment. Then my doctor suggested "Ferrosone"—It was a fortunate choice because I improved at once. I gained weight, enjoyed my meals, got a better color, forgot my nervous fears. The way Ferrosone built me up is surprising—it made a new man of me and now I look good for twenty years to come."

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it?. Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

ARMY RESERVISTS IN CANADA

It is rather surprising to be told by the British Secretary of State for War that no fewer than 3,153 army reservists have received permission to reside in Canada. Of these 1,527 are infantry of the line, 501 are of the Royal Artillery, 226 cavalry of the line, 340 Foot Guards, 200 Royal Engineers, and 157 Army Service Corps. It is also interesting to note that Canada possesses the greatest attraction for these reservists, 3,153 having come here, while the total given permission to reside in all the colonies is only 5,907.

Mr. Haldane has been asked whether he would consider the question of commuting the pensions of ex-soldiers who desire to leave England to settle in one of the over-sea countries under the flag, and it is pointed out, says the Ottawa Free Press, that such commuted pensions would give a substantial nest egg with which to begin life in the new country. For instance, the man whose pension is one shilling a day would receive £20, while in the case of a non-commissioned officer the lump payment would reach as much as £900.

While Canada would be delighted to receive any and all the ex-soldiers of the King who might wish to come here, great care should be taken that the suitability of the man and his family to the climate and surroundings of Canada was ascertained before the pension was commuted. Otherwise, it is quite possible to imagine cases in which the former soldier would sign away his claim to a pension, and, either through lack of adaptability to Canada or for some other reason, find himself in the winter of life without support. Then his condition would be worse than before and Canada would be blamed for the catastrophe, though Canada would in no sense be responsible.

Bank to Collect Taxes

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—Ald. Davis has an idea that the collection of city taxes could be accomplished with much less inconvenience to the public if it could be arranged to have the banks help collect them. He has therefore tabled notice of motion that next year's board of control consider the question of the collection of taxes in May and November and arrange with the Bank of Ottawa and its branches or other banks so that the amounts may be paid in by ratepayers without the great inconvenience.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

AN OLD INDIAN MYTH

It Tells a Curious Story About the Creation.

MOUNT TAHOMA MADE FIRST.

Then Came the Trees, the Birds, the Fishes and All the Animals, With the Grizzly Bear the Last and the Greatest of All—The Origin of Man.

The Indians say that the Great Spirit made Mount Tahoma the first of all. Boring a hole in the sky, using a large stone as an auger, he pushed down snow and ice until they reached the desired height, then stepped from cloud to cloud down to the great icy pile and from it to the earth, where he planted the first trees by merely putting his finger into the soil here and there. The sun began to melt the snow, the snow produced water, the water ran down the side of the mountain, refreshed the trees and made rivers. The Great Spirit gathered the leaves that fell from the trees, blew upon them, and they became birds. He took a stick and broke it into pieces. Of the small end he made fishes, and of the middle of the stick he made animals, the grizzly bear excepted, which he formed from the big end of the stick, appointing him to be master over all the others.

Indeed, this animal grew so large, strong and cunning that the Creator somewhat feared him and so hollowed out Mount Tahoma as a wigwam for himself where he might reside while on earth in the most perfect security and comfort. So the smoke was soon to be seen curling up from the mountain where the Great Spirit and his family lived and still live, though their hearth fire is alight no longer, now that the white man is in the land. This was thousands of snows ago.

After this came a late and severe springtime, in which a memorable storm blew up from the sea, shaking the huge lodge to its base. The Great Spirit commanded his daughter, then little more than an infant, to go up and bid the wind to be still, cautioning her at the same time not to put her head out into the blast, but only to thrust out her little arm and make a sign before she delivered her message.

The eager child hastened up to the hole in the roof, did as she was told and then turned to descend, but her curiosity impelled her to look at the forbidden world outside and the rivers and trees, at the far ocean and the great waves that the storm had made as hoary as the forest when the snow is on the firs. So she stopped and put out her head to look. Instantly the storm took her by the long hair and blew her down to the earth, down the mountain side, over the smooth ice and soft snow, down to the land of the grizzly bears.

Now, the grizzly bears were then somewhat different from what they are at the present time. In appearance, it is true, they were much the same, but they walked then on their hind legs like men and talked and carried clubs, using the fore limbs as men use their arms. At the foot of the mountain, at the place where the child was blown to, lived a family of grizzlies. The father grizzly was returning from the hunt with his club on his shoulder and a young elk in his hand when he saw the shivering little waif lying on the snow with her hair all tangled about her.

The old grizzly, pitying and wondering at the strange, forlorn creature, lifted it up and carried it in to his wife to see what should be done. She, too, was pitiful and fed it from her own breast, bringing it up as one of their family. So the daughter of the Great Spirit grew up, and the eldest son of the old grizzly married her, and their offspring was neither grizzly nor Great Spirit, but man.—Forest and Stream.

He Might Have Married.

Fitz-Greene Halleck never married, yet, as Mr. Howe reminds us in his American Bookman, he could not have been without attractions, for a certain superior lady is reported to have declared:

"If I were on my way to church to be married, yes, even if I were walking up the aisle, and Halleck were to offer himself, I'd leave the man I had promised to marry and take him."

To this perhaps should be joined his epigram, written for a young lady who had asked for his autograph:

There wanted but this drop to fill
The witsless poet's cup of fame.
Hurrah! There lives a lady still
Willing to take his name.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerve. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for brushing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and pull for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MEDICINE mountain was a volcano. Out of its rocky summit and into the quiet air of the May morning was rising a straight blue column of smoke.

A flag wigwagged from the southern lookout station to herald the phenomenon, and in a moment the post was agog. Keen sighted scouts hurried to points of vantage, where they studied the mounting plume. Far reaching glasses were trained, amid lively surmise from the galleries fronting the parade, while at barracks, blocking the windows and through the porch, the eager troopers gossiped and craned.

But in the stockade interest reached its highest pitch. Braves, squaws and children were strung along the upper end of the inclosure breathlessly watching the vapor thread. Each swarthy face had dropped the mask of listlessness. Each figure was rooted. Not an eye forsook a straight line to the belching mountain top.

For full three minutes the distant fire sent up a steady pillar. Then fort and stockade saw that pillar suddenly wabble, as if caught in the vagaries of a fitful breeze—saw it wabble, thicken, break and disappear, when the butte again stood, a jagged tooth, against the sky. Above it, innocently white, floated a band's breadth of cloud.

And now the trumpet rang. Obeying it, two detachments mounted. One spurred away down river, keeping close in the lee of the bluffs; the other boarded the ferry and was landed at the cut north of Shanty Town, from where it made toward the Norwegian's. Behind an envious but feverishly happy garrison set about putting an extra polish on its arms. The grass was too short for a war pony. Active duty had not been expected within the month, yet the time of dreary waiting was up at last, for here within striking distance were the hostile reds.

The warriors in the stockade knew better. Like so many whipped dogs, they were scattered to cover, there to hide their bitter chagrin. No war party was come to harry Brannon, to lure the troopers into battle, to free the captive village. A lone Indian—the looked for messenger—had fanned that signal fire on the mountain, and by a wave of his blanket he had told them evil news.

To Colonel Cummings the seeming early boldness of the enemy gave an inkling of what might be expected later on—in the summer, when there would be good grazing and a smaller force at the post. Already he feared for the safety of the settlers living within sight of the garrison flag. The detachment landed at the cut was ordered to warn two of them. The third was Evan Lancaster. To him the commanding officer sent David Bond.

But it was Dallas whom the evangelist sought. He found her at work upon the plowed strip, cross dragging it in preparation for the planting of the corn. As she drove up and down she walked hatless in the sun. Her hair was down and hung forward in two braids. She wore the snug jersey that had been her mother's. Her skirt was tucked up, back and front, to be out of the way. It disclosed no red flannel petticoat, however.

Not far away was Simeon, a starling riding him to gobble the greenheads as they bit. The bull was revolving sullenly on his picket rope and shedding his long winter coat upon the new grass. In deference to his inborn dislike Dallas was wearing an underskirt of blue.

Though the evangelist had never seen her trudging behind the mules, he had often spoken of it pityingly. Yet as he came toward her now he felt only an unbounded pride in her unselfishness and in her brave efforts to wrest a living from the soil.

"A splendid Ruth," he murmured, advancing; "a splendid Ruth toiling in the fields!"

Seeing him, she gave a swift, troubled glance at the shack. Then, avoiding his eyes and without speaking, she pulled up Ben and Betty and held out a hand.

When he took it the pride of a moment before changed to compassion. He remembered that he must tell her what would alarm, for in her face he saw traces of many a sleepless night and of a sapping [illegible]

The distant fire sent up a steady pillar.

"Daughter, you are ill!" he declared and kept a tight hold on her fingers.

"No; there ain't anything the matter with me, only"—still avoiding his eyes, she turned to survey the harrowed land—"only I'm some put out. This sod"—

"Never mind the sod," he said gravely. "I want to ask—did you see the mountain?" He loosed her fingers and pointed an arm to the south.

She laughed, following his pointing. "Yes, I did. Looks as if claims are getting scarce, don't it? When a nester has to go up there!"

Midway between shack and butte was an ox team that had been traveling to and fro across a quarter section since dawn. The team was now at a stand, and their driver was slouching against his plow. Beyond him were several galloping dots.

"And you saw the cavalry?" said David Bond.

She assented.

"One word will tell you what it means, Dallas. It's Indians!"

She showed no sign of disquiet. Presently, when she had thought over the announcement, she turned round to him, frankly meeting his gaze for the first time. "That's funny," she said. "Why, last year all the way up from Texas there wasn't an Indian bothered us!"

"Last summer before you came the soldiers at Brannon did not dare go more than a mile outside the lines to hunt. It will be the same this summer. There is that stockade full of prisoners, and four of them are condemned to be hanged. Before long the Indians will be circling the post."

She looked away at the ox team. They were being taken from the plow and put to a wagon.

Then again she turned squarely. "What about Shanty Town?" she said, with meaning.

BUILDING PICKS UP.

Reports From Trade In Canadian Cities Show Prosperity.

To determine with a fair accuracy the exact building conditions that exist throughout the country generally, "Construction" has secured statistics from eleven representative cities of the Dominion, showing the aggregate cost of buildings for which permits were issued for the first eight months of 1908, as compared with 1907.

In eleven cities reported, the cost of buildings for the first eight months of 1908 was $24,124,915, as compared with $33,850,589 for the same period of 1907, thus showing a decrease of 28.84 per cent.

In nine cities for which figures were secured for the month of August, the aggregate cost of buildings for August, 1908, was $3,854,864, as compared with $3,194,535 for the corresponding month of 1907, thus showing an increase of 20.67 per cent.

From this it can be seen that Canada's principal centres have turned a decrease of 28.84 per cent. for the eight months of 1908 into an increase of 20.67 per cent. for the month of August, 1908, as compared with the same periods of 1907.

It will be noted that Regina shows the largest increase (289.13) per cent.), Toronto the smallest increase (8.05 per cent.), Vancouver the largest decrease (33.96 per cent.), and St. John, N.B., the smallest decrease (19.86 per cent.) for the month of August.

Fort William has the largest increase (90.15 per cent.), Edmonton the smallest increase (8.5 per cent.), Montreal the largest decrease (50.35 per cent.), and Winnipeg the smallest decrease (27.3 per cent.), for the first eight months of the year.

In view of the general opinion that Winnipeg suffered most from the money stringency, it is worthy of note that the decrease in her building was much lower than that of any of our larger eastern cities.

Only three of the cities reported, show a decrease for August, viz.: Vancouver, Calgary and St. John, N.B., while only three show an increase for the eight months of the year, viz.: Vancouver, Edmonton and Fort William.

Reports as to prospects for the remainder of the year were generally bright and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that the year will finish well. There seems to be a large amount of building, that was contemplated early in the year, and for financial reasons had to be postponed, that is being proceeded with this fall.

Sir John's Battle Cry.

It was in his address to the electors issued at the opening of the campaign of 1878 that Sir John A. Macdonald used that oft-quoted and stirring sentence—"A British subject I was born—a British subject I will die." The wish therein expressed was shortly afterwards, when Sir John passed away at Ottawa. Mourned by the entire Canadian people his remains were borne back to Kingston to which, seventy-one years before, he had come from Scotland, a poor lad, to make his way in a new land.

Sir John's expression of determination to remain a Briton, and which struck a responsive chord in the heart of the Canadian electorate, was used almost word for word some years earlier by that great Nova Scotian, Joseph Howe. When addressing a gathering of electors during a time of considerable unrest, and when mutterings of disloyalty were heard in certain parts of the province, Howe, in the course of his speech, said: "I will live and die a British subject." He died not only a British subject and a citizen of Nova Scotia, but an officer of the Government of the Dominion of Canada, whose creation in the form it took in 1867 he strenuously opposed.

CLEAN UP INSIDE

Blood and System Cleansing in the Spring Makes Good Health all Summer.

In spite of all your careful baths is safe to say that in the spring you feel poorly—have a throbbing sensation in the head—skin is pale or yellow, with dark rings under the eyes. If not absolutely bilious the system is so full of bile that you feel heavy and tired all day long.

Clean up, work off the winter's accumulation of waste, purify your blood. Do this and you'll feel fresh as a prize-fighter. "For ten years, says W. B. Sangster, of Concord, "I suffered greatly from impure blood, which made me feel debilitated and unfit for work. I had no appetite suffered from indigestion and gas, had some pains in the back, caused by poor kidney action. Spring was the hardest time of all, and many a time I felt dependent and hanguld enough to throw up the sponge. I was impressed by the marvellous work done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills and tried them. They suited me exactly. In one week I felt like new. I was braced up, got rid of blood weakness, gained in flesh, got back my old time appearance and spirits. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will clean all the sickness out of a man in short order and I urge young and old to use this grand home medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a perfect spring medicine; they destroy germs and poisons of every description and strength whereby the system rallies and the patient quickly enjoys the blessings of Perfect Health. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills—to-day—25c at all dealers.

Obituary

LAUCHLIN McINTOSH.

A striking evidence of the esteem and respect with which the late Lauchlin McIntosh was held by his hosts of friends a shown by the number of messages of sympathy which have been received by his sorrowing wife from all parts of the district. His many noble qualities of heart and hand endeared him to all who had the pleasure of his acquantance, and the news of his demise was received with genuine regret.

The late Lauchlin McIntosh was a son of the late John McIntosh, of North Monaghan, and was born in that township fifty-four years ago. In the year 1885 he was married to Elizabeth Clinkscale, daughter of the late William Clinkscale, of Haliburton, who spent the greater part of her life in Peterborough with her aunt, the late Mrs. Andrew Jackson. His brothers and sisters are John, of North Monaghan; Alex, and Angus, of Peterborough; William, of Winnipeg; James, of Milwaukee; Mrs. C. Davidson, of Peterborough, and Miss Tena, of Winnipeg.

The late Mr. McIntosh was an active worker in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, being a member of the board of managers. At the morning service on Sunday the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wallace, made a touching reference to the demise of the late Mr. McIntosh and to the many noble characteristics he possessed.

The many beautiful floral tributes placed upon the casket of the deceased was a tangible evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. They comprised an anchor from Guiding Star Encampment No. 22, I. O. O. F., triple link, Peterborough lodge 111, I.O.O.F., Triple Link, Lindsay Lodge, No. 199, I.O.O.F.; sheath bouquets from Mr. J. D. Flavelle and Mr. and Mrs. A. McIntyre; wreath from Sons of Scotland; floral tributes from brothers, wreath from curling club, wreath from Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, floral designs from Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, wreath from Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, triple link from Rebekah Lodge, I. O.O.F., sheath from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

As stated above, this was the twenty-fifth anniversary of Lansdowne Lodge, and in order to celebrate it in a proper manner a committee was formed to consider the question of holding a banquet in the near future. It is very likely that this will be the result as the general opinion seemed to be in favor of it Monday night.

The Placards Must Not be Removed

The question of the Medical Health Officer exercising his authority in regard to the removal of placards from houses in which scarlet fever patients are located, was brought up at the regular meeting of the Board of Health yesterday morning. There were present Dr. Burnham, Dr. McNulty, Mayor Rush, Jas. Murty, Dr. Bingham, Chief Reed, Jas. Edgar, and A. Parker. A letter was received from a local physician relating to a family in the city in which one of the members had scarlet fever and the house was quarantined by being placarded on Nov. 11th. The card was taken down, so it was stated, before the specified time and the doctor had it placed on again. The next day he was informed that his services were no longer required. A certificate was then procured from two other doctors, stating that here was no longer any danger of contagion. The card then came down to stay. The report stated that the card was on the house just 16 days, whereas it should have remained there six weeks.

There was considerable discussion on this case and it was remarked that the medical health officer should see that the cards are not taken down until danger is past. Both the Chief and Dr. Bingham stated that they had not given any authority in this case to take the card off the house. From the sentiment expressed by the members of the Board there will be no longer any laxity in dealing with contagious cases and especially the length of the quarantine period will be kept up to that required by law.

Laymen's Banquet

this century had done for missions; but still this is a man's work, he urged, and Canadine should take hold of it like men. This is the reason he likes the word "men" in the term "laymen's missionary movement." The word, missionary" means doing for others what God did for us in sending his son Jesus Christ to seek and to save that which was lost. "Movement" means progress which is man's distinctive part alone; push in cutting away from old things and progressing towards those that are new — new energy in realizing our pent-up enthusiasm and going forward in all things for ourselves and for God. Those who do not believe in foreign missions should remember that foreign missionaries brought the Gospel to Britain centuries ago; from Asia it came to our forefathers, and we owe its dissemination back to Asia if is, he argued a common question of honesty with us; a debt of honor, and are we as Christians, not going to be as honorable as gamblers and pay our debts of honor. The evangelization of the world is also a commandment to us for our Bible teaches us to "go to all the world and preach te Gospel."

In conclusion, Mr. Patterson point Protestants should raise $4,00,000 a year as their proportionate share of evangelizing all heathen people in one generation. This represents $5 per head each year. Toronto has raised their per capita for this purpose from $2 to $8.83 per year. Few places he said could work up such a splendid meeting as this on behalf of the laymen's missionary movement, and he had every confidence in Peterborough's assuming its fair share of missionary work abroad as a result of this banquet and deliberation."

S. F. DAVIDSON, K. C., of Toronto, brother of Rev. Canon Davidson, gave a splendid address. All his utterances had solid weight and were enthusiastically received. He likes the Laymen's Missionary Movement, he said, because it brings about a unification of all Christian forces for the evangelization of the world in this century. A few laymen in New York figured out in a business-like way that one missionary could evangelize 25,000 heathen in a working life of 25 years. There are now 13,000 missionaries in the field and treble this number and treble the contributions for this work, and the Protestant forces of this world would evangelize every single heathen in the present century — in our own life time and not in any prospective era. Canada's just share in this work, taking into consideration her foreign population, would be in proportion to that of Great Britain, would be contributing $4,00,000 annually as against $1,500,000 at present. Why, he contended Protestant people in Canada spend $6,500,000 a year in tobacco alone, and surely it should not be a big thing to raise the necessary $4,500,000 for so grand a work as converting the heathen populations.

Continuing, the eloquent speaker hanked God for sending the financial epression which would make the people of this North American continent fall back upon themselves as it were, and save us from the awful materialism threatening this country as all other nations. In St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, as a result of this Laymen's Missionary Movement contributions for missionary purposes had throbbled, because it had recommended itself as a business proposition, and he felt sure that Peterborough's donations of $2 a head would, as a result of the enthusiasm displayed at this function, likewise increase three-fold, that is from $11, $10.29 a year to the fair proportion of $25,000. In conclusion of a masterly and effective address, Mr. Davidson urged his hearers "to let Jesus Christ finish his good work if evangelizing the world in your lifetime and prayed.

The usual votes of thanks to the committee in charge of the banquet, specially mentioning the name of Mr. Harry Long, the young ladies, who so charmingly assisted, the chairman and speakers, were unanimously adopted.

Did the Work

Grew Strong on Right Food

You can't grow strong by merely exercising. You must have food and that food must be the kind that you can digest and assimilate.

No matter how much food you eat unless it is digested it adds to the burden the digestive organs have naturally to carry. This often means a nervous breakdown.

"About a year ago," writes a Mass. lady, "I had quite a serious nervous breakdown caused, as I believed, by overwork and worry. I also suffered untold misery from dyspepsia.

"First I gave up my position, then I tried to find a remedy for my troubles, something that would make me well and strong, something to rest my tired stomach and build up my worn-out nerves and brain.

"I tried one kind of medicine after another, but nothing seemed to help me. As a last resort I tried different foods but they all failed me.

"Finally a friend recommended Grape-Nuts and with little or no faith in it, I tried a package. That was eight months ago and I have never been without it since.

"Grape-Nuts did its work. It helped me grow strong and well. Grape-Nuts put new life into me, built up my whole system and made another woman of me!" "There's a reason."

CROUP

THERE IS NOTHING that strikes terror to the hearts of parents more than to be awakened in the night by the ringing cough which accompanies an attack of croup. The child may retire with nothing but a slight cold and a few hours later the family be aroused by the ominous symptoms. Every home where there are small children should be prepared for these sudden attacks, as prompt treatment is necessary. Do not experiment with remedies of doubtful value, but get that has been in use for nearly forty years and never known to fail.

Mr. Homer Krohn, of Lisbon, Iowa, in a letter to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praises this medicine for what it has done for his children. He says: "It has not only saved them once but many a time. Only two weeks ago my boy had the croup so bad in the night that had it not been for having a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house he would have choked before a doctor could have gotten to the house. It is a medicine that no one should be without at any time." It is pleasant to take and many children like it.

"We guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says W. M. Parish, Palmerston, Ontario. "Out of the many bottles sold last winter not one was returned. We recommend it especially for children with croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its prompt cures of coughs, colds and croup. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse an attack of croup may be averted. This medicine is entirely free from narcotics or injurious substances of any kind and may be given to the little ones with absolute safety.

Attacks of croup are most likely to occur during the early winter months, and every family with young children should be prepared for it. Keep a bottle of CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY in your home. It only costs a quarter, large size 50 cents. Your druggist sells it.

"I Don't Want to Kill, I Want to Do Good," He Said

"Adam" Sharp, the Fanatics' Message to Canadians—Kept His Rifle Handy—A Cowardly Act

Winnipeg, Dec 9—While in Manitoba in July last, and expecting trouble from the police, "Adam" Sharp who was killed in a fight with police in Kansas yesterday, issued the following manifesto;

"To save bloodshed use sound judgment. If you are determined to take me dead or alive I would rather you would shoot me from ambush and not shoot any of my followers, and then you would not be taking chances on getting shot.

"I will never give up alive. If I have got to continue living among sinful men, I would rather die. None can say Jesus is the Christ, only by the Holy Ghost. The spirit comes to me in the shape of a lion among the Gentiles, according to the Scriptures.

"'I don't want to kill, I want to do good.

"When the Doukhobors receive me, God will prove me, and then your eyes can come open."

The Doukhobors did not receive him, and the fanatics then kept their promise to leave the country. The people here are now glad the Canadian police did not stand on dignity, but let themselves be defied by the fanatics. The shooting yesterday in Kansas City is blamed on the over-zealousness of the police probationer, who sought to take the fanatics' children away from them.

The conduct of the police there in firing volleys at a woman and a girl fleeing away on the river in a rowboat, during which the girl was killed is much condemned here.

The Adamites were first heard from as being in Canada on July 4th, the news coming from Pierson, Manitoba. They said they had crossed from Missouri, and had been prosecuted by the American authorities. When Mounted Constable Macfarlane of the Manitoba Police hailed them and demanded where they were going they turned their rifles on him, and declared that if he advanced another step he would be shot. A harangue followed, during which lusty amens greeted their leader's declarations, and the constable rode off, baffled.

A few days later Inspector Tucker of the Mounted Police, had an interview with "Adam" Sharp. The old fanatic, an illiterate, but kindly-faced old man of 65, evidently suspected a trap. He saw Constable Turner going off in the direction of one of his followers, and suddenly leaving his weapon at the inspector, kept Tucker under the muzzle of his rifle until his follower turned up safely. He challenged his enemies to attack him and get the struggle over. However, thanks to tactfulness, it never came.

Sharp's son, a man of about 30, was quite an orator. He, with the rest of the party was very familiar with the Scriptures and would quote them on the slightest provocation. Even the children carried weapons, and the "Virgin Mary" displayed a dangerous looking six-shooter in her belt.

"Adam" From Canada Shot Down Five Policemen

THE DEAD.

A. D. Dalbow, policeman.
Lola Pratt, a girl 14 years old.

FATALLY WOUNDED.

Patrick Clark, police lieutenant.
John Sharp, a street preacher, known as "Adam God."
Michael Mullane, policeman.

WOUNDED

Policeman Steger, shot through the arm.
Lieut. Clark, shot in the eye.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec 10.—In the shadow of the city hall a riot, in which the band of religious fanatics headed by Jno Sharp, which last year invaded Saskatchewan had threatened to shoot members of the Mounted Police force, resulted yesterday afternoon in the death of two persons, fatal injury of three others, and severe injury to two persons.

The trouble occurred while the streets were crowded with people.

While the fight was in progress the participants traversed an entire block.

Probation Officer Holt, of the Juvenile Court, yesterday went to 5th and main streets to investigate a case of alleged abduction. Near the corner he met Sharp, who was exhorting a crowd. With Sharp were a woman named Selzer and five children, ranging in age from three to fourteen years. Holt didn't like the manner in which the woman attempted to get money contributions from the crowd, and he decided that she and her male companions were not proper persons to have the custody of children.

The woman announced that she and "Adam God" would conduct services at Boorman's Mission in the evening, whereupon she and her companions started toward the mission. Officer Holt then enquired as to the identity of the children. The woman replied that the officer had better attend to his own business. The officer persevered in his enquiries and "Adam God," who wears a long white beard and hair, struck him a heavy blow behind the ear, inflicting an ugly wound. Holt who was unarmed, then started for the police station for assistance. As Holt moved away the preacher tried to shoot him, but the cartridges failed to explode.

At the police station Policemen Dalbow and Steger were ordered to arrest Sharp and his followers.

Sharp and his companions were within 50 yards of the police station street. The Sharpites, with profane abuse, served notice on all that they when the officers stepped into the would preach right under the eyes of the police station and the police cannot prevent us."

The officers did not, however, expect serious trouble, and were not prepared for the volley of bullets which met them almost immediately after they appeared.

Dalbow was killed instantly and a bullet passed through Steger's arm. Other officers hearing the firing rushed into the street and a general fight ensued. The officers refrained from shooting for fear of endangering the lives of innocent persons. Lieut. Clark, who had come into the street unarmed, was shot in the eye and Patrolman Mullane was shot in the back as he hurried into the station for reinforcements.

In the meantime a riot call brought policemen from all directions. Thoroughly aroused, the officers closed in on Sharp and his followers, firing as they went. When the firing ceased "Adam God lay fatally wounded.

The woman and the children fled to a houseboat in which they lived on the Missouri river. Fifty police followed them and found that the woman had barricaded herself in the houseboat. Standing on the boat with a shotgun she shouted to the officers "Come on, you fiends." The boat was only a few feet from the bank of the river and several officers dashed toward it. The woman dropped her weapon and, seeing two of the children, she sprang into a rowboat and began to row into the middle of the river. She was ordered to stop but she only plied the oars more vigorously. The police fired a volley at the boat. One shot struck Lola Pratt, tearing away the greater part of the child's face. She died last night. The woman then surrendered.

At the police station she said she was Mrs. Pratt, wife of one of the companions of "Adam God" and mother of the wounded child.

Louis Pratt, who was with the preacher when the fire shooting took place, was arrested uninjured.

War with Germany Within Two Years

City of Mexico, Dec. 9.—The following statement was made yesterday by F. F. C. Rhodes, cousin of Cecil Rhodes, who is in this city in the interests of large mine owners. He has just returned from a trip to England.

"In my opinion and in the opinion of some of the best versed men in Great Britain, war between England and Germany must come, and it will come within the next 2 years. While in England I talked to some of the best versed men in navy and military affairs, and I found the opinion unanimous that war with Germany was inevitable" continued Mr. Rhodes. "I was in conversation one day with a high official of English forces in China several years ago, and he stated positively that war with Germany is inevitable."

"'And,' continued this high naval official, 'I am for the immediate declaration of war. The matter can't be put off. It must come, and the sooner it comes, the better it will be for England.' This is but one of many similar expressions I heard during my visit in England."

Score of Persons Injured By Throwing of Bomb

New York, Dec 9—More than a score of persons were injured, five seriously, early today when a bomb was hurled into the airshaft of the tenement house at 330 East 63rd St.

The house was badly wrecked.

Failure of occupants of the house to comply with demands for money made upon them by Black Hand confidence men is believed by the police to have been the cause of the outrage.

The house was occupied exclusively by Italians and it developed that threatening letters had been received by many of them during the past few months.

Practically all of those injured were asleep in the bedrooms on the south side. Plaster and bricks, mixed with jagged pieces of glass from the shattered windows were hurled into these rooms with frightful force.

Bonspiel on Jan. 18

Peterborough curlers will have a bonspiel on January 18th, 1909. It will be the biggest affair of its kind ever undertaken in this city. Peterborough's new curling rink will be well advertised the first season and a large number of clubs will be invited to attend.

This was the decision of the skips at their meeting last night in the rink. When the bonspiel was talked of at the first of the season some thought that the expense just after completing a new rink would be too great for this season. But a canvass of the members proved that the majority were in favor of the bonspiel and many were enthusiastic over it. The skips last night were exceptionally keen for the big meet, and they will start in at once to make it a success. Those who are behind the movement are workers and they will leave nothing undone. The visiting curlers will be given the best time they ever had and the local players will have an opportunity to go up against some of the best curlers in the province.

Keep the date in mind (Jan. 18th) and watch for a big bunch of Scotchmen coming to the city.

To Amend Coronation Oath in Defference to Catholics

London, Dec. 8.—The Earl of Crewe, Colonial Secretary, replying to-day to a question asked in the House of Lords, announced that the Government was contemplating eliminating from the coronation oaths the words by which the sovereign was compelled to declare that Catholicism was superstitious and idolatrous.

Lord Lanedowne, on behalf of the Opposition, welcomed the announcement.

The Duke of Norfolk thanked the Government on behalf of Catholics, he being the leading English layman of that faith, and commended it for its courage.

The Earl of Kinnaird warned the Government that the country would not quietly acquiesce in the change.

More Street Lights have Been Ordered

The Fire Water and Light Committee went for a drive around the city last night to see what could be done towards supplying better light at several points from whence complaints had come. They were out for about half an hour and came back and passed the following motion;

Moved by Ald. McIntyre and Ald Buller that the following lights be recommended; Place an incandescent lamp on Charles street; two incandescent lamps at the corner of George Smith streets; two incandescent lamps on Bonacord street, two incandescent lamps on Walnut street and to move the lamp on Park street opposite Elm street a little north and put it out on a long arm, the lamp to be placed as directed by the chairman of the committee.

The committee also took up a number of accounts and recommended them to be paid.

Several other small matters were also dealt with

Team of Horses Went through Tressel Work. G.T.R. Trains Blocked

A lot of excitement was caused around the corner of Stewart and Murray streets last night when it was discovered that one of R. Hicks & Co's teams had fallen down the G. T. R. trestle work over the creek at Murray street. The team had been delivering a load of coal and on the way back the driver stopped to collect a bill and while he was inside the team ran away. They ran up Aylmer to Murray and then turned down toward the barns but instead of turning in they proceeded along Murray to Stewart and then around by McDonnel to Reid, down Reid to the G. T. R. Lindsay line, where they turned towards the stables again and while attempting to cross the trestle work both horses went down and were unable to rise. This was about half past six and the animals struggled to get out until half past seven. As soon as the horses went down word was sent to the G. T. R. station and all trains were held up while a gang of men with planks worked to get the horses out. Neither of the animals had any bones broken and it is not expected that they will be much the worse for their exciting fun. The sleigh was left along the road in sections but was not seriously broken.

Chicago is Teeming with Corruption

Chicago, Ill., December 8.—Startling allegations were made in the report of the special grand jury, which, after several weeks of delving into the charges growing out of Chicago's first primaries, returned 31 indictments against twoscore or more of politicians and other persons. The investigation, owing to physical limitations, merely scratched the surface of the situation, according to the report, and doubt is expressed that there has been an honest city or general election in Chicago in years.

The report of the grand jury finds "that no confidence can be placed in the reported results in favor of or against any candidate for a party nomination at the primary election, and yet that election lost the taxpayers of Chicago fully $75,000."

A Big Decline in the Revenue

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The revenue of the Dominion for eight months of the current financial year to the end of November amounted to $55,115,227, the expenditure on ordinary account to $46,376,957, and the capital expenditure to $22,156,394. This represented a decline of $11,647,208 in the revenue from the corresponding months of last year, an increase of $3,832,561 in the ordinary expenditure and an increase of $5,501,907 in the capital expenditure. The decline in the receipts was due in the main to the reduction of the import trade and consequent reduction of customs duties. The only department whose revenue exceeds that of last year is the post office. On the other hand the very large outlay on capital account arises from the expenditures which the country is now making in the construction of the new Transcontinental railway. The expenditure on the Transcontinental alone for the eight months in question has totalled $19,568,321. In the month of November there was an increase in the public debt of $3,263,144.

5 Doctors Gave Her Up

Ulcers and sores Defied all Treatment

Zam-Buk has worked Complete Cure.

Miraculous indeed is the cure which Zam-Buk has worked in the case of Mrs. Jane Beers, of L'Orignal (Ont.) "I began to suffer," she says, "from ulcers and skinsores. These broke out on my legs and different parts of my body, and spread to an alarming extent, causing me great pain. They defied all remedies I applied to try and heal them, and remained suppurating open wounds.

One medical man after another gave my case up, until I had consulted five different doctors, and they were all baffled by my case. Then I went into hospital and was there five months, and came away very little better. The sores were so extensive and I was so weakened that I had to walk with a stick and a crutch. This was my condition when first I began to use Zam-Buk. I applied it to the sores, and in a few days I thought I saw an improvement. I persevered with the balm and, to cut a long story short, the wonderful balm did what all the doctors had failed to do—healed my ulcers. I have now put away my stick and crutch, the ulcers and sores are healed, and I take this opportunity of strongly advising all who suffer from sores, ulcers, or open wounds to give Zam-Buk a proper trial."

It is by affecting such impressive cures as this that Zam-Buk has established its worldwide reputation. In every country to which it has been introduced it has become the leading family balm and embrocation. This surely is proof of exceptional merit.

Purely herbal in nature it supplies the housewife with a handy and effective cure for the hundred-and-one injuries to which she or the children or the husband are liable.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for eczema, ringworm, scalp-sores, cold-sores, chapped hands, sores due to blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Beware of cheap and harmful imitations sometimes offered as "just as good."

Will Increase the Salary of Ministers

At meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery was held Tuesday morning at St. Paul's church when considerable business of importance was discussed. The attendance was fairly large and quite a representative. Rev. H. S. Agraham Port Hope, was moderator for the Presbytery.

A call from Rice Lake was extended to Rev. Jno. A. Black, B.A., of Massey, Ont., and conditional arrangements were made regarding his induction provided he accepts it. A call was also received from Omemee and associated congregations, and was moderated in by Rev. Mr. Pogue in favor of Rev. J. S. McFarlane, B. A. of Warkworth, but owing to the shortness of the time in which it had been prepared the proper number of certificates had not been secured. A final decision will probably be made in two weeks.

Rev. Dr. Marsh, convenor of the committee that had in charge the organization at the Stewart Settlement, reported that it had been accomplished in a satisfactory manner.

Rev. Mr. Buchanan of Dundalk, in the Presbytery of Orangeville, was asked to sit with the Presbytery and to correspond. He was present as the convener of the General Assemblies Committee to lay before the local Presbytery the claims for the home Missions.

Another important consideration was that regarding those congregations which are paying less than $9.00 a year and the manse to their ministers. It was decided to request them to make the necessary effort in order to raise the salaries to the amount required by the assembly.

Fire did $500 damage to Hugh McAulay's residence in Belleville.

Revolt Again Breaks Out

Cape Haitien, Hayti, Dec 9.—There has been a revolutionary outbreak in several of the northern towns of the Republic, and it is feared that the movement will spread.

The principal towns affected are Port de Paix, Hinche, and Jean Rabel. Other points of minor importance also report outbreaks.

Gen. Robiliard has left Plaisance for Gonaives for the purpose of suppressing the disorder.

It is as yet impossible to give the movement any definite object or aim or to determine in whose favor it is being organized.

Gen. Bellirard who was Minister of War under Pres. Hippolyte, has been made president of the committee sent out from Port au Prince to endeavor to persuade the people of Haitien to peacefully accept the new regime of Gen. Simon. Gen. Bellirard is unpopular here and his selection may bring about serious trouble.

An exciting game was played at the P. B. C. Alleys last night when the Lockworks and Hutch's Hams met. The first game was a tie, each team scoring 373. This was afterwards played off and the Lock Works won, taking two games out of the three and winning by 57 pins. The score was as follows,

New Cars Building for Canadian Roads

Montreal, Dec. 8.—That a decided improvement in railway conditions has occurred within the past few months is shown by the orders given of late by Canadian railways for new equipment.

Amongst other orders now under way are 2,400 box cars being built for the G.T.P. by the Canada Car Co. This is part of an order for 12,000 cars given four years ago, and 2,400 will be finished this year. In addition to this the Grand Trunk has placed an order for 1,000 steel hopper cars with the Pressed Steel Car Co., of New York.

The Canadian Pacific is also buying steel cars, and has just placed an order with the car works in Montreal for five hundred steel box cars, which will be the first of this kind to be built in Canada. Vice-President McNeill, of the C. P. R. says orders now on hand will keep the Angus shops going for the next six months, turning out about 20 freight cars a day, and the company will not stop then, but will continue building cars as long as business warrants it.

It is understood that the passenger car department at the Angus shops will also be kept busy with new equipment until the middle of next year. Work for the C.P.R. is going on continuously with the building of locomotives. Orders now filed with the Angus shops total over $600,000 for new engines.

New York, Dec. 10.—William R. Nedella, an Austrian steel expert, who six weeks ago eloped from Budapest with the Countess Stubchin and married her in London, arrived here yesterday, accompanied by his bride, on the Cunard liner Lucania. They will go to Los Angeles, because of the objections to the match by the parents of the countess.

Mr. Nedella said yesterday that he met his wife while on business four years ago in Southern Austria, and that they became secretly engaged. The family of the countess had planned to have her marry into the Hungarian nobility, but she remained steadfast in her love for Nedella. The announcement of their engagement aroused a storm of opposition, and they fled to London to be married. The bride learned that her parents had not forgiven her, and the couple decided not to return to Hungary.

Green Sickness

A DISEASE OF YOUNG GIRLS.

Interesting and Suggestive Advice that All Should Read.

Many mothers will echo the conclusion expressed in a very interesting and suggestive letter written by Mrs. Zaccheus Pollard, of Grand Bay.

"It is one of the illusions of motherhood that once the diseases of childhood have been successfully passed a smooth road is before their dear ones. Boys bruise themselves, or perhaps break a limb, but the physical history of the young girl, is subject to so many dangers, it is only when some great one has been successfully overcome that we realize how many dangers there are. My eldest child, a daughter, just as she had entered upon the sixteenth year, sudd nly developed weakness, her color faded, some unpleasant heart symptoms indicated a lowered vitality of that organ, but strange to say she appeared plump. The bodily functions were obstructed, and a waxy or pallid, or yellowish skin gave her a ghastly look. The doctor's tonic failed to improve the symptoms, we decided to try Ferrozone so highly recommended in the newspapers. It was probably three weeks before any manifest change was noticeable, but once that Ferrozone checked the running-down process the upward advance was rapid. I suppose if I had neglected to give her Ferrozone she would have fallen into permanent ill-health, as it is I am deeply thankful that Ferrozone has completely restored my daughter to vigorous robust health."

No tonic so nourishing, as strength-giving, as Ferrozone. It gives you a grand appetite, brings fine color, a healthy glow to the cheeks. If thin, you gain in weight. Think it over. Ferrozone is just what every person in poor health requires. Sold by all druggists, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Try Ferrozone today.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life,

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

THE LAND BILL

The British Government has set its hand again to the task of salving the wounds of Ireland. The Chief Secretary for Ireland, Mr. Birrell, in introducing his bill to facilitate the carrying out of existing land purchase legislation announced in the House of Commons the other night that the estimate of $500,000,000 by his predecessor, Mr. Wyndham, was inadequate and that the government had now decided to devote no less a sum than $900,000,000 to satisfy the land hunger of the Irish tenants. Completed transfers up to October 31 represent $125,000,000. Pending transactions represent $260,000,000. The government intends to raise the money to complete these transactions, leaving about $500,000,000 to be dealt with later. These are enormous figures. They will impose a heavy burden on the people of the United Kingdom, but the government seems to be convinced of the value of the plan of land purchase as a solution of the gravest concrete evils of which the people of Ireland complain and through Mr. Birrell, declares its determination to press this measure to an issue.

For the purpose of financing the project, Mr. Birrell proposes an increase of new three per cent. stock to carry out the pending deals. The government, he says, has no hesitation in asking the Commons to lay this great burden upon the Imperial exchequer, which he proposes shall assume liability for the entire loss occasioned by the issue of the stock below par. This loss will total $9,300,000 a year, which the government will lift from the shoulders of the Irish tenants.

Mr. Birrell's argument is that the policy of securing the Irish people in the tenure of their lands goes at the root of the Irish grievance, has indeed already worked marvels in the betterment of the condition of the Irish people. The money spent upon the extension of such a policy, therefore, must be money well spent. The government proposes moreover that its policy shall be rounded off by a provision that the government have power to acquire compulsorily the uncultivated grazing lands of the west of Ireland, as to which there has been much controversy, which also have been the theatre of much lawlessness of late years. About half of the agricultural land in Ireland has passed already or is in course of passing from landlord to tenant, and Mr. Birrell advances in support of his measure the thoroughly sound proposition that to arrest progress in this direction would be an economic and political blunder of the first magnitude.

The estimate of cost, of course, must startle the British taxpayer, but it is always to be remembered that the Irish taxpayer has to bear his proportionate share of such burdens. The plan aims at the removal of a gross economic fault in the government of Ireland. Carried to completion it would leave unredressed only the less material grievances of the Irish. And it would be inevitable that a contented Ireland, pursuing the ancient industries peaceably and profitably would be able, within a reasonably small term of years, to reimburse the moneys advanced by the United Kingdom to place the land of Ireland in the hands of the men whose heritage it is.

The government is to be congratulated in the production of a measure which is wise and broad and bold, and Mr. Birrell's attitude indicates that the measure will be pressed with all the strength the government has at its command.

Coughs that are tight, or tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngests babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

THE FRESH COW.

Following Calving She Must Have Good Care and Feed.

The fresh cow has a right to good care. If she does not get it her owner will suffer. The fresh cow, especially if young, is nervous and excitable. For this very reason she acts in such a way as to annoy her owner or keeper, but the owner or keeper is not wise who is weak enough to give vent to his annoyance in abuse of the cow. The cow is not to blame for her nervous condition. Harshness will actually lessen materially the supply of milk. The man who cannot control his temper would better let dairying alone. He cannot make it pay.

The fresh cow also requires care and judgment in feeding on account of her feverish condition. She is not only feverish, but weak. She will crave water, but only a little food. The water will be better if it is slightly warmed. Professor Smith of the University of Nebraska suggests the following as a method of feeding for the first few days following calving:

"Whatever is given her should be of a light character, such as well cured clover or alfalfa and a little bran, preferably made into a mash by the use of warm water. A few pounds of bran will have a cooling and laxative effect, which is always beneficial just after calving. The following day four or five pounds of a mixture of equal parts of corn, oats and bran would prove satisfactory.

"Without oats it would be well to feed equal parts by weight of corn and bran, gradually increasing the corn to three-fourths of the grain ration, at the same time making the daily feed gradually larger until at the end of three weeks she is receiving a full ration of ten or twelve pounds of grain per day, the exact amount depending upon the size of the cow. In the meantime the cow should be given all the clover or alfalfa hay she will consume."

Cows in Hot Weather.

Spray the cows before they are turned out to pasture in the morning with a mixture of equal parts of coal oil and fish oil. One gill, applied with a spray syringe, will cover the neck, shoulders and legs of one cow. The following mixture is recommended by the Wisconsin experiment station: Resin, one and one-half pounds; common soap, two cakes; fish oil, one-half pint, and water, three gallons. Dissolve the resin by boiling in one gallon of water and the soap cut fine. When dissolved add the fish oil and the remainder of the water. Stir thoroughly before using. Apply with syringe or brush. This is an excellent fly repellent, cheap and effective.

A Veterinarian's Advice.

When the hog seems to be losing the use of its limbs, feed less corn and more bran and oats chop. If the trouble is very bad, give eight or ten drops of nux vomica in the feed twice a day. An abundance of green feed should also be given.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to suppose and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Forces a Discharge.

"The Japanese servant has many curious traits," said the man who keeps one, "besides his constant habit of eating raw fish, but he is inordinately polite, as a rule. For instance, he never will give you notice that he wishes to leave you. Instead his work will grow steadily worse and worse till you can't stand it any longer, and so you fire him. It's always done purposely to avoid the necessity of telling you outright that he is tired of you and wants to quit."

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

...are understood. Shanly Town goes when the troops go, but"—hesitatingly—"Matthews does not. He will stay at Brannon to act as interpreter."

"He will!" she said and colored.

He colored, too, feeling himself reproved, but from under the wide battered felt that had supplanted the nabia his eyes shone with no resentment, only fatherly tenderness.

"You wonder why I do not remain," he began, "so that Matthews could be sent away. I shall tell you."

She let the reins fall to the drag. "That isn't it," she answered quickly. "We have no right to ask you to do anything after the way dad treated you. But the colonel sent you over to tell us to look out, didn't he? And he keeps a man over there—pays him to stay—and that man is a sight worse than an Indian!"

"I could have that man dismissed," he said slowly. "Please let me tell you why I don't. In the first place, the Indians are beginning to act badly—very badly. They are invading Crow territory and stealing from peaceful bands. They are molesting whites wherever they can find them and murdering. So we can judge that there well be hard fighting, for the troops will seek to pay them up.

"Oh, Dallas, how I pray to see trouble stop! I am going to the Indians. I know their leaders—have known them for ten years or more. I shall ask them to consider the good of their squaws and children and property and ask them to accept reservation life. If they won't, I shall beg a few of them to come in with me and at least talk treaty.

"That is the first reason for my going. The second is the Jamiesons. If I find those poor women and tell their captors that the four chiefs here are in danger, I know mother and daughter will be handed over to me"—

"You're right! You can save them!"

"God bless you for saying that! It won't be pleasant with Matthews here"—

"But you must go. Never mind about Matthews."

"I cannot go without being satisfied that you and Marylyn will be safe. The colonel said"—

"The colonel!" she interrupted. Then, half resentfully, "Did the women folk send any word?"

He was mildly surprised. "N-n-no," he answered, "they didn't, but"—

She laughed and picked up the reins. "Well, dad 'll never leave this quarter," she said decisively, "if that's what the colonel wants."

The evangelist shook his head. "'Thou dwellest in the midst of a rebellious house,'" he quoted sadly. "Now, if you come to the fort to live"—

"Matthews could move into the shack."

"Hardly that with the backing you have. The boys at the post would never see Matthews take your home. Believe me, as long as you and your father care to live here you can. Public opinion over there"—he pointed to Brannon—"is strong in your favor. And there is Lounsbury too. Why, that man is helpless."

She averted her face.

"So you will lose nothing by coming to the fort," he persisted, "while you may save a great deal—your lives!"

"Dad will never go to the fort. He hates 'em like poison."

"Yes—yes—he's foolish and stiff necked. For such is punishment meted out. See!" The ox team was traveling toward them, prodded by the driver.

They stood in silence for awhile.

"Then go to Bismarck," urged David Bond finally. "Stay there until the autumn."

"Live on what?" she asked.

From a hind pocket he very slowly brought forth a narrow buckskin pouch tied with a thong. He opened it and emptied a handful of coins upon a palm. "This is only a little," he said apologetically, "but it will help, and—you must think first of your safety."

"I can't take it," she said, her voice all gentleness. "Even if I did—what about next winter? I must stay and raise things. Don't you see?"

"At Bismarck you would have a double market, Dallas. There is Fort Lincoln and the town."

"I'd—I'd have to plow new ground," she went on, "and—we'd have to build again and dig another well"—

"There are men in Bismarck who"—

Suddenly she lowered her voice and stepped nearer. "That's just the reason dad wouldn't go there," she said. "We'd be close to town. We'd have to meet folks. Here he keeps away from the fort and you and Mr. Lounsbury—every one but Charley."

"Oh—oh—oh," breathed the evangelist helplessly.

"Now you know. It's no use. I don't complain, but he's fastened to the bend with a diamond hitch!"

"Now I know!" David Bond exclaimed.

A halloo sounded from the shack. Facing that way they saw the section boss. He was standing just outside the door balanced on one crutch. The other he was thrusting angrily at the ground.

"You see!" said Dallas. "You see! And he can't help it. Poor dad!"

The evangelist groaned and held out a hand. "Dear girl," he said, "it is goodby. God keep you all, and God help me! I see truly that you are tied; that I can do no good. The colonel will surely take care that you are protected. Lounsbury and Charles will watch. I must go with that comforting knowledge. My love to Marylyn. Goodby."

She steadied her voice to answer. "I watch," she said. "I don't sleep well, so it's easy. If they heard a gun at Brannon"—

He raised his hand to bless her, then, without speaking again, walked slowly away. She unhooked the tugs and headed the mules for home.

"Waal," called her father sarcastically as she approached, "what's thet ol' sniffer want? Is day aft' t'morrow th' en' o' th' world?"

She ignored his questions and told him of the warning.

Instantly his anger rose. Planting himself before her, he shook a finger close to her face. "So th' kunnel's tryin' t' skeer us, is he?" he demanded. "Tryin' t' git us t' come in an' leave th' ben'. Waal—ain't we right under his nose? Kain't he watch out for us? W'at's he here fer? W'at's he paid fer?"

Then, riding in on the tide of his wrath, came dark suspicion. "An' w'at's he so crazy t' git us away fer?" he queried. "Yah, yah! Ah'd like t' know—Ah do know! He's got thet low down card sharp of a Matthews fer his interpreter. He knows thet card sharp wants this lan'. Thet's his game! An' he kain't fool me!"

"Maybe, maybe," said Dallas, leaving him to stand beside Marylyn. "But, of course, dad, we mustn't forget that he's warned the other folks on this side too."

Her father glared at her. "You takin' his part, ain't y'?" he said. "M-m-m! How's thet? Are you so all fired anxious t' git t' Brannon?"

"No, dad, I'll never go to Brannon. Never, never! If I did, you, my father, oughtn't t' misunderstand it."

He quailed before her vehemence and hobbled shamefacedly toward the door. "Of course, if Dallas come"—

Some Costly Toys.

The presentation by President Fallieres of a costly toy railway to the Czarevitch reminds us that one of the first model railways, on anything like a large scale, was the most prized possession of the ill-fated Prince Imperial when a boy. It was constructed in the gardens of the Tuileries, and is said to have cost 50,000 francs. In the private grounds of Mr. T. H. Shriver, a wealthy resident of Denver, Colorado, is a still more remarkable miniature railway. On a circular track, 400 feet long, with a gauge of 8 3-4 inches, Mr. Shriver drives a train of eight Lilliputian carriages, carrying a dozen or more passengers. The Rev. H. L. Warneford of Windsor is the proud proprietor of "the Chicago and Jericho Railway," with its cuttings and tunnels, stations and signal-boxes; while a Manchester gentleman, Mr. P. H. S. Leigh, has (or had not long ago) in a specially-constructed room a similar railway, of 270 feet in length and 6 inch gauge, over which a £300 engine draws exquisite models of passenger and luggage trains.

Human Ostrich.

A remarkable case is under treatment at the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary. In June a young postman was sentenced to nine month's imprisonment for appropriating small postal orders, and after his removal to prison he began to swallow all manner of things. First, he swallowed a portion of a blanket, then 24 iron pins, each about two inches long, a considerable number of stones, pieces of iron, and bits of a water jug which he smashed. When he told the prison officials what he had done they disbelieved him, but on being taken to the infirmary the various articles were located by the X-rays. A consultation was held by the doctors, but it was deemed advisable not to perform an operation. The patient is still confined to bed, though apparently quite well and normal in every respect, notwithstanding his extraordinary experience. In the infirmary he is known as the human ostrich.

Say Shows Are Immoral.

Complaint has been made to the department of moral reform of the Methodist Church about the class of theatrical production allowed to enter the Dominion from the United States and do business throughout Canada.

It is charged that in certain theatres in Toronto, Hamilton, and Montreal plays of vicious and immoral tendency are given.

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone is foolish. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

HIS MISTAKE.

Why Lawyer Bunsen Ceased to Be a Kidder.

Bunsen was always a great kidder. He isn't any more.

Bunsen is a lawyer, although, of course, he is known by a different name. Don't ever get the idea, though, that this didn't really happen just because Bunsen's real name isn't mentioned.

Well, as we were saying, Bunsen used to be pretty much of a kidder. He would even kid his own patient little wife. Those who care to read on down a little farther will learn why he ceased to be a kidder.

One evening last week when Bunsen got home his wife had a new hat to show him. It was some hat. Anybody could have seen that it was the final phrase in female headgear.

But Bunsen started in to make fun of it. He said it looked as if it had been trimmed by a cross eyed milliner on an empty stomach. And he made a lot of other disparaging remarks that were extremely harassing to poor Mrs. Bunsen. "D'je buy it sight unseen?" he inquired. "Say, how much do they pay the girl that sold you that? She ought to have a raise. Any girl who could put that one over a customer must be something of a smooth saleslady, I'm here to remark."

Mrs. Bunsen was almost in tears. Bunsen had to go into the other room to have a quiet laugh at her expense. Oh, he was the great kidder, all right!

The next day, though, he had forgotten all about the hat.

The day after that he was reminded of his little jokefest. Mrs. Bunsen handed him a slip of paper when he came home to get his victuals that evening. It was a bill for retrimming that hat—$18.34 it came to.

Bunsen paid it without a murmur and said the revised edition of the hat was just exactly right. He isn't making fun of hats any more.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Minor Matter.

A young broker in Boston while visiting a certain household in the Hub not long ago encountered a number of young women graduates whose conversation suddenly turned to a discussion of the development of the English novel.

The dealer in stocks and bonds speedily found himself "out of it." Presently during a lull one young woman asked him:

"What do you think of Fielding, Mr. Brown?"

"Oh, fielding is important, of course," quickly responded the broker, "but it isn't worth much unless you've got good pitchers and men who can hit the ball."—Harper's Weekly.

His Trick Dog.

One day as a doctor was driving into a village he saw a man a little the worse for liquor amusing a crowd of spectators with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor watched him awhile and said:

"Sandy, how do you manage to train your dog? I can't teach mine to do anything."

Sandy, with the simple look in his eyes so common in some rustics, said:

"Well, you see, doc, you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothing."

Edison as Humorist.

The great American inventor, T. A. Edison, who is at work perfecting a motor powerful but small enough to bring the aeroplane within a manageable distance of success, is partly deaf in his right ear. In one way this an advantage, as it enables him to pursue his work undisturbed while surrounded by all the noise of a busy shop. When offered an infallible cure for his deafness, he once remarked, "Why should I try it? Think of the lot of stuff I'd have to listen to that I don't want to hear!" On another occasion a would-be wit said, in ordinary tones, "I guess he'd hear if I asked him to have a drink." The inventor looked the young man who spoke squarely in the eye. "Yes, perhaps I should," he said; "but not to-day, thank you!"

His Deep Concern.

The kind old lady noticed a small lad entering a cobbler's with a small package.

"What have you there, Sonny?" she asked kindly.

"Ma's slipper," replied the lad. "You see, there is a tack out of place in it, and I want to have it fixed before ma notices it."

"Ah, what a considerate little boy! I suppose you are afraid the tack might hurt your mother's foot?"

"Well, it isn't exactly that. You see, the tack is sticking out on the sole, and this is the slipper ma spanks me with."

Society People.

A society woman—and a man for that matter—do a great many things inprudent for their health. Take the matter of dress, for instance, or rather the lack of dress, right over the most vital organs of the body—the lungs. A little cold results. The throat and bronchial tubes become congested and inflamed, and then the bugbill of consumption can start right away. Pneumonia or consumption results and that is another story if you don't take Powley's Liquified Ozone.

If society people would only take a good full dose of Powley's Liquified Ozone before retiring they would have no cold. If they have pneumonia, or consumption, they should take this preparation, because its antiseptic properties will almost invariably cure these diseases. Then the condensed ozone builds up the system. Can you afford to be without Powley's Liquified Ozone?

Collided with Train

To escape literally within an inch of his life was the unpleasant experience yesterday morning of a young man exercising himself tobogganing on Barnardo avenue. He was occupied in this pleasure for some time during the morning and almost remained too late for his personal safety.

On one occasion when he was coming down the hill he did not notice an approaching train on the Lakefield track until it had reached the crossing. Quick as a flash he threw himself off the sled within a few feet of the wheels of the advancing train. The toboggan of course could not be stopped and was dashed headlong beneath the passing cars and ground into splinters.

The Kaiser is a Political Recluse

London, Dec. 9.—The Kaiser's self-effacement since the late crisis arising from his published interview has been so complete, so far as his public acts are concerned, as to cause rumors that he is sick. The Berlin correspondent of the Express remarks that his Majesty's absolute seclusion for four weeks, except when he was at the City Hall on Nov. 21, is unprecedented during the twenty years of his reign. The correspondent says that the rumors that he is suffering from throat and ear trouble and nervous depression resulting from the crisis are unfounded. He is in good health. The reason for his prolonged retirement from the public gaze is his earnest and sincere desire to carry out the solemn pledge he gave to Chancellor von Buelow on Nov. 17.

The truth is the Kaiser has turned over a new leaf, and is living the life of a political recluse. Those who know his great love of change, his delight in travelling and his strong dislike of the dull monotony of a commonplace existence, realize how great a personal sacrifice is involved in his self-effacement. He has cancelled a long list of public and private engagements to carry out his resolve to remain in the background. His automobile, which, when he was residing at Potsdam, was seen almost daily in Berlin, is no longer visible. Instead of hunting, travelling and indulging in other varied pursuits, he works steadily at Potsdam, where he receives the Ministers and studies official reports and other State papers.

Hoagland Wins Another Race

Through the kindness of Mr. W. A. Hoagland, in sending a paper, the following account of a race between him and R. H. Hubbell, is published from the Erie, Pa., Daily Times;

R. H. Hubbell, of this city, failed to wrest the world's championship title from Willard Hoagland in the heel-and-toe contest at Casino Rink, last night. The match was witnessed by a big crowd of enthusiasts who were pleased with Hubbell's fine showing but convinced that the champion is a wonder. The match was a clean cut affair and there was no lagging in the excitement until the last lap had been completed. The race was a ten-mile walk and was won by Hoagland in 1 hour, 24 minutes and 15 seconds. Hubbell's time was 1 hour, 24 minutes and 45 seconds.

The Auburn contestant got away from the line ahead of his opponent, jumping to a lead of five yards on the first lap. This advantage he gradually strengthened, sprinting all the way and displaying the stride which has won for him over 300 races.

When the first mile had been covered, Hoagland seemed to gain even more speed and after the two men had raced abreast over the final lap of the third mile, Hoagland lurched ahead as they crossed the line and maintained the lead of one lap to the finish.

After Hoagland had taken the measure of his opponent there were many of the spectators who looked for a recurrence of the feat every mile or so. But as the mile cards went up and still Hoagland had not gained an additional inch, the crowd realized that a tough contest was on tap and even if Hubbell could not cut down his opponent's lead, he was determined to keep the breach from growing wider.

Both men agreed to the rules laid down by the referee before the match, and neither man made the slightest attempt to violate. The admonition of the referee was that two warnings would be given for infractions of the agreement forfeiture for the third offence. The first warning was not given. This fact speaks well for both contestants, as well as their managers, W. G. DeMonde, of Auburn, and Mr. Benning, of Erie.

Good music served to keep the enthusiasm among the spectators at a high pitch. Tony Loeslein challenged the winner to a race, and Edward Yunker challenged Loeslein to a 15-mile run for the championship of Erie.

Vermont Clergyman says Advertising Pays

Barre, Vt., Dec. 10.—"Does advertising pay? Well, I should say it did, particularly in religion," said the Rev. Francis A. H. Poole, pastor of the First Congregational Church here, today.

Mr. Poole took charge of the church three years ago, when it was a moribund organization. He placed advertisements in the Sunday morning papers—big ones—half a page when he had the money—and he told the people what was going on in the church each Sunday.

"As a result," said Mr. Poole today, "the congregation has doubled in three years. And at to-day's meeting of the trustees we decided to enlarge the church building to just twice its present size."

Rube Carnival at the Roller Rink

The Rube's Carnival at the roller rink last night proved to be the success that was anticipated. A large number of costumed skaters gathered on the floor and took part in the carnival. Of course most of the characters were rubes but quite a number were in fancy dress and presented a very pleasing spectacle which was greatly enjoyed by the spectators. The band was in attendance as usual, and rendered a good programme.

The prize winners were:

Miss Hazel Edger, as a western girl.

Miss Alta Cavanagh in fancy costume.

Mr. Godfrey, as Biddy McGee.

Mr. Mitchell as a clown.

Mr. Reilly as a rube.

A feature of the evening was the rescues of a life size teddy bear.

A Cure For Despondency.

A large, fleshy man with whiskers told me of a sovereign cure for despondency the other day. He had a number of girls in his employ, among them one that he knew was in struggling circumstances and supporting a sick mother on a none too healthy salary. She had come into the store and laid her purse and somber widow hat on the counter while she did something about the place. The large fleshy man got between her and the purse, and when she was not looking he slipped a five dollar bill into it and moved us unconsciously about his business. In the afternoon he noticed that she had a red spot in each cheek, and she was heard asking other girls if they believed in fairies. She never solved the mystery—it was two years ago—and never will unless she reads this. But the five dollar bill was very useful in its little way, and the large despondent man felt so good for two whole days that he hip-hopped on the sidewalk on his way home.—Minneapolis Journal.

Living on Next to Nothing.

Most people do not need the evidence of recently published statistics to prove to them that it costs more to live in London than it once did. But it is doubtful if any Londoner now living was ever able to do it on £30 a year, as Boswell's poor Irish painter did. "He allowed £10 for clothes and linen. He said a man might live in a garret at 18 pence a week. Few people would inquire where he lived, and if they did it was easy to say, 'Sir, I am to be found at such a place.' By spending threepence at a coffee house he might be for some hours a day in very good company. He might dine for sixpence, breakfast on bread and milk for a penny and do without supper." Of course exigencies can always be reduced to a minimum by doing without things. The question is, Which of our various expenses is unessential? Boswell's Irishman hinted at one. "On clean shirt days he went abroad and paid visits," says his ingenious chronicler.—London Chronicle.

Royal Chickens of Japan.

"The most beautiful and extraordinary chickens in the world are those bred by the royal family of Japan, the privilege of raising them not being accorded to any of the mikado's subjects," said Mr. L. J. De Courcey of Yokohama. "These chickens are celebrated for the wonderful growth of their tailfeathers, a full grown rooster's tail often reaching a length of twenty feet. The tail is of a lovely deep blue shade, while the body is buff, and about the neck is a white ring. A pair of these chickens has been known to sell to a wealthy Englishman for $1,000 on condition that he would take them out of the country.

"I believe that ere long the species will entirely disappear, as I heard before leaving Japan that it was the intention of his majesty to cease their breeding."—Baltimore American.

Reforming the Head Hunters.

A curious development is in steady progress in the Solomon Islands, the group in the south Pacific which lies to the west of New Guinea, whose people have earned such unenviable notoriety as head hunters. The young men of the tribes in these fertile and beautiful islands are abandoning the historic pursuit which has made them dreaded for centuries in the south seas and are taking to the copra industry. Copra, which is the dried interior of the cocoanut, is valued commercially for the oil which can be pressed from it, and some of the young Solomon Islanders are accumulating considerable wealth by extracting it, though the older generation, to whom head hunting is still the only profession for a gentleman, are said to look down upon them as being "in trade."—London Standard.

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined. We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand: the sallow, pimpled face dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, tearful, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and lead to blight his existence. News Items from Keene

Keene, Dec. 9th, 1908.—The L. O. L. Argyle No. 494 will hold their annual assembly on January 15th, 1909. Further particulars will be given in a future issue.

Mrs. Jas. J. Dickson and her daughter, Miss Irene, are spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Warner, of Asphodel.

We regret to report that Mr. Thos. Wedlock is confined to his room with fonsulitis. We hope he will soon be seen in his accustomed place at his forge.

The palatial new residence which Mr. L. Burley is erecting on his premises is nearing completion, and adds greatly to the appearance of the village.

Mr. R. H. Campbell (General Merchant) is handling a large quantity of fowl for Flavelle Bros., Lindsay, and by the appearance of his premises you would imagine that the Lindsay headquarters had been removed to our village.

The Indian River is frozen over and the juveniles are tempting fate by sliding on the thin layer that Dame Nature has spread over the stream.

Mr. Jas. Ashburn, of Oak Lodge while taking feed from a stack for his stock, noticed a hound trying to penetrate the hay. On going up to investigate the affair he was surprised to find a fine large fox burrowed into the stack. He immediately dispatched the animal with a fork. It was a fine large specimen of the fox tribe and the owner of Oak Lodge is amply repaid for removing some of the hay.

Mrs. Scholes' Case Like that of Thousands Cured by the Celebrated Tonic Ferrozone.

This is but one example of the sickness, the dull aching weariness that afflicts so many homes today.

Hundreds of women, single and married, will recognize in Mrs. Scholes' statement symptoms from which they suffer continually.

Almost instant in its wonderful results, better than any other tonic in the world is Ferrozone. All other medical discoveries seem as rough compared with the vital healing health Ferrozone so surely brings.

PROOF OF CURE.

"People in ordinary circumstances find sickness the greatest burden of all," writes Mrs. W. S. Scholes, the wife of a well-known citizen in Russell. But the mother with young children must keep going whether sick or well. This was my plight just before my third child was weaned. I became weak and pale, and at night I was so weary that I ached all over. I slept poorly, suffered with indigestion and headache that almost blinded me.

"At last, when thin, wrinkled and hollow-cheeked, I was urged to use Ferrozone. For the first time in years I enjoyed freedom from headaches, my appetite picked up, I grew stronger, felt better and slept soundly. You can't imagine my joy in feeling my strength, color and spirits returning. Week by week I improved, gained eleven pounds and have been as robust ever since."

Because Ferrozone invigorates—braces—builds up—because it will make you feel the exulant thrill of vitalizing blood and strong nerves—because it will give you comfort energy, sound lasting health, these are a few of the reasons why you should use Ferrozone. Sold by all dealers, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Try Ferrozone. Do it today.

Hangman Radcliffe to Send Three to Eternity at Once

Ottawa, Dec. 10—Official Hangman Radcliffe is on his way to New Westminster, B. C., to officiate at a triple hanging on Dec. 18th. The doomed men are John Portella, Wm. Jenkins and Lee Clung. The first two are negroes and the last a Chinaman. Radcliffe has not as yet officiated at a triple hanging, but ten years ago he hung two men together at St. Thomas, Ont. This time he has the task of sending all three to eternity at once, and as he has always been successful in his tasks, he will likely succeed in making a new record on the calendar of Canadian criminal history.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from the family residence, lot 4, con. 10, Ennismore, to St. Martin's church and thence to St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough.

Letter to The Editor

To the Editor of the Times.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to say a few words on the cool reception a petition signed by some 250 ratepayers requesting for a by-law to adopt the former ward system.

I claim that every ratepayer has a right to express his opinion regarding the actions of any members of our city council who are elected by the people, yet at the same time I am willing that an alderman exercise his own judgment in civic matters. But we as citizens now live in a time in which the will of the people becomes law.

The petition asking for the introduction of a by-law to be voted upon at the coming election of aldermen for the purpose of adopting the former ward system was simply evaded by a majority of the members not willing to ask for the will of the people. The petition asking for a vote of the people on the by-law was not presented to only a few crosns, but being so unanimously signed it was thought not necessary to ask any more. But it was easily seen that certain members cared not to ask advice from the people. Again I notice one of our members of the city council speak in a mincing manner saying somewhat like this, that the council had applied for legislation to give a two years' office for each alderman one-half alternating each year. I say away with a council that would assume such authority to pass a by-law of this kind, also without asking the will of the people. When any by-law is introduced that concerns the rights of the people it should be submitted to the people. I have written this letter with a good feeling to all our aldermen. But I will assert my rights for free citizenship and one common wealth to all classes.

Peterborough Wants More Power Should Develop Their Own Supply

Board of Trade Favor City Purchasing a Water Power and Developing Power at Once—Recommend Establishing a Publicity Department Meet Again a Week from Monday

There was a small attendance at the Board of Trade last night, although the discussion was none the less spirited. The subject was the revival of industry in Peterborough and the princial points dealt with were the necessity of cheaper power, more power and a publicity department and an industrial commission.

Secretary—T. L. Quarterman read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed.

CHAIRMAN OPENS.

The meeting was opened by the chairman, Dr. Morrison, who stated that the object of the meeting was to consider the best ways and means of reviving the former good times. It is now certain that we have passed the comemrcial depression, and we are now about to receive in Canada many new industries from England and the United States. Other towns and cities are getting after these, and it is up to us to get busy and go after our share of them. Business in Canada is picking up wonderfully. The banks have so much money they do not know what to do with it. New industries must be started and the old ones must be enlarged.

What can the Board of Trade do to get new industries. We are a manufacturing centre, and are centrally located and have great advantages over other cities. We have transportation by water and rail, and we have cheap power. In the past we have been conservative, and it is wise to be so, but we do not want to go back or stand still. Other towns are spending large sums of money in advertising for new industries and are getting them. We should get busy and be ready for the revival of trade.

The meeting was then thrown open.

J. H. LARMONT.

Mr. J. H. Larmont, manager of the Peterborough L. & P. Co. stated that there was a good deal to be said in favor of the question. He said that any factory should be located here. There are many good sites in the city, and he thought the council's manufacturing committee should tabulate a list of those sites with full information concerning them. These should be published and everyone made thoroughly acquainted with them. We have to get out after factories, and a man should be appointed by the city to look out for factories and nothing else. Let him keep in touch with all foreign firms who are making inquiries as to the Canadian trade. By following up these inquiries many new industries could be secured. He suggested that this board pass a resolution recommending the council to appoint such an official.

American firms are looking for opportunities to settle in Canada, and this new official could post them as to Peterborough advantages. There are many sites here beside both railways and canal. Then there are many sites for small factories and the speaker strongly recommended that these be encouraged.

ALD. BRADBURN.

Ald. Bradburn said he was present mostly to listen. He believed, however, that it would be better to take this business out of the hands of the manufacturers committee of the council and put it in the hands of one man. He felt it was no use whatever, of corresponding with manufacturing concerns. It took too much time, while a factory getter could get on the train and go to see that firm, and lace the information directly before them. He gave his experience with one factory they went after the past year. He strongly recommended the appointment of a good man. In taking up the advertising question he said it was hard to say what was best to do. He asked Mr. Larmonth how much power his firm had for sale. Mr. Larmonth stated that they had 1,000 horse power for sale. Ald. Bradburn said that he would like to see the city own its own power, as that was a very important matter. He suggested that the board of trade appoint a committee to consult with the council on the appointment of an official.

ALD. JOHNSTON

Ald. Johnston expressed himself as strongly in favor of an industrial commission and stated that he had always advocated it in the council, but without success. He also favored a publicity department.

ALD. GILLESPIE.

Ald. G. A. Gillespie expressed the opinion that power was the main question here, and as soon as we got lots of power to furnish factories at reasonable rates we would soon get factories.

R. F. McWilliams.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams stated that there were two things important in getting factories. One was power and the other transportation. He strongly favored the city making every effort to secure a water power, and that was the greatest guarantee we could have that the price would be kept down. He stated this was the critical time of Peterborough as a manufacturing place, and we cannot be too energetic along this line. The best place to get factories for Peterborough was in the Old Country, and there was no doubt that good factories can be secured from there. He suggested that a very effective thing to do was to get literature of the city into the hands of every person who had any idea of coming to Canada, and this should be done every year.

Mr. Morris expressed his very strong opinion that the city should establish a publicity department.

Moved by Wm. Langford and Mr. C. E. Doane that this city secure and develop and have on hand power to offer new manufacturing concerns.—Carried.

On motion the meeting adjourned until Monday, Dec. 23rd, to discuss the by-laws to be submitted to the people in January.

A Convention in June Says Hon. A. G. Mackay

Owen Sound, Dec. 10—A Provincial Liberal convention in Toronto next June. That is how Hon. A. G. MacKay, leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition, reads the stars. "I shall insist on a convention being called of representatives from the whole Province, and you can put the date down as next June," said Mr. MacKay to the News last evening. "There was no chance to hold one after last June owing to the Dominion elections. We want representatives from the far northeast and west, a thoroughly representative gathering, and the summer is the best and only time to hold it.

Was the First to Drive Over Chemong Lake

Once again has Mr. Dan Whetung been the first to drive a team of horses across Chemong Lake. This morning the lake had a substantial coating of ice, and no danger was possible. Mr. Whetung crossed early yesterday morning and succeeded, of course, in getting to Peterborough with considerable less labor than is generally expended. The thermometer out at the Chemong reserve during the night hovereed around the 20 degree below zero mark, and "Dan" was seen on the streets today wrapped up in mid-winter furs.

Grand Jury Recommend a Building for the City's Poor

The Grand Jury of the winter sessions of the High Court made their presentment yesterday afternoon to His Honor Judge Weller.

It is as follows—

To His Honor Judge Weller—

We, the grand jury at the general sessions of the county court of the County of Peterborough, beg leave to report as follows—

We have visited the county jail and were much pleased with the satisfactory conditions prevailing there and particularly with the cleanliness throughout, for which every credit is due the officials in charge. We found fifteen inmates, all male, in the building, of which number nine were vagrants and the remaining six committed for various offences.

The former were mostly elderly men, whose only offence is poverty, and in this connection your jury would respectfully recommend that some arrangement should be made between the city and the county whereby these aged people might be better taken care of in the county house of refuge, or, if that is not possible that a separate building be erected on the jail property for the accommodation and comfort of these aged persons.

We have also visited the Collegiate institute in the Central Park, as well as the Normal School in the north end of the city. These schools are a credit to the city, nicely situated, and thoroughly equipped for the purpose for which they are built.

Your jury also inspected the hospitals, and have to report that these under capable and painstaking management, are institutions which we may well feel proud. In them the surroundings are made bright and pleasant for any who find it necessary on account of illness to take advantage of the comforts therein provided.

Wishing you the compliments of the season, and that you may be spared to hold for many years the exalted position you now occupy. It is a matter of congratulation that the duties of your honor, as well as that of the grand jury are so light at this season. Yours respectfully.

JOS. MADILL,
Foreman.

Lad Burned to Death in Omemee Barn Fire

Lindsay, Dec. 10.—Fire broke out on the premises of Mr. T. B. Laidley, about two miles west of Omemee this morning, and resulted in heavy loss to that gentleman.

It seems that about six o'clock the hired man was doing the chores by the light of a lantern, while Miss Laidley was milking, and in the discharge of his duties the man went up to put down some hay, and while there he struck a match.

Almost immediately the hay took fire. An alarm was given and strenuous efforts were put forth to quench the flames, but without avail. The stable, barn and the entire season's crop and some of the stock were destroyed.

The hired man, who is said to be a Barnardo importation, has disappeared, and cannot be found. It is rumored, but the report has not been confirmed, that the fire was a deliberate act and the fulfilment of a threat which was made as the result of a chiding the man received from his employer for some inattention in his work.

General sympathy is felt for Mr. Laidley in the neighborhood in his heavy loss.

Later intelligence from Omemee is to the effect that it is believed the lad was burned to death, and that his bones will be found when debris has cooled down.

Big Meeting of Board of Trade on December 21

There will be a lively discussion at the next board of trade meeting to be held a week from Monday night. The subject to be taken up will be the several by-laws being presented to the ratepayers at the municipal elections in January next. There are some citizens who are opposed to the city borrowing so much money for expenditures, which are not going to be revenue producers. The $49,000 Smith street bridge will come in for considerable criticism, as it is claimed a much cheaper bridge will answer every purpose required by the people travelling that way. All the money that can be secured now should be put into power development and other things which will produce a revenue and lighten the burden upon the people. All those interested in the Smith street bridge, permanent exhibition grounds, etc., will do well to be present, as we know from Monday night. The Isolation Hospital may also be a subject for discussion.

A Big Hockey Meeting Tonight

The attention of all those interested in hockey is called to the big meeting which will be held this evening for the purpose of organizing the O.H.A. teams for the season. A cordial invitation is extended to all hockey enthusiasts to be present to do what they can to boom the movement. The meeting will be held in the Oriental hotel at 8 o'clock sharp and a big crowd of fans is expected. It is hoped that the people of this city will appreciate the movement by turning out in large numbers to the organization meeting. An invitation has been sent to the officers of the Chieftain Hockey Club to be present and to discuss the new scheme.

The First Euchre Tournament At Conservative Club

The first euchre tournament this season in the Conservative Club rooms was held on Wednesday night, and it proved a decided success. There was a very large attendance and thirty players participated in the contest. The prizes were two handsome Dresden china cups and saucers, which were presented by the president, Mr. J. H. Burnham. They were won by Mr. Arthur Fuller, who defeated E. Jobe in the play off to break the tie. Other euchre tournaments will be held at intervals during the winter months, at which appropriate prizes will be donated.

Has Lived Seventy-Five Years in Smith

One of the oldest residents of the township of Smith is Mr. William Graham, who is known throughout the entire county as one of its pioneers. He was brought to this country by his parents when only 18 months old. He is now in his 78th year, and the three-quarters of a century which he has spent within the confines of his township have worn well on him, for he is enjoying good health, is hale and hearty, and the land in which he placed his dependence, to provide him with the necessaries of life did not disappoint him.

To a newspaper man he said that his parents had made a clearance when they first settled here, and each year it was gradually broadened. Logging bees were held when all the neighbors would gather to assist one another. By this co-operation the township gradually was brought under cultivation. Mr. Graham states that he well remembers when the farmers used to shoulder a sack of grain and walk to Port Hope to have it ground, and the tramp to Peterborough for necessities was quite commonplace. Among other interesting recollections of those early times he stated that when a boy he saw the soldiers entraining in Peterborough at the time of the Mackenzie rebellion, when the whole country side was aroused by anticipated strife.

One of Mr. Graham's sons, Thomas Henry, is the deputy reeve of Smith.

Miss Lily Bell, professional nurse returned to the city Saturday after nursing in St. Regis Falls, New York, for the past eight months for one of the local physicians.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

A NEW WHEAT

It is not given to many of us to grasp the full significance of the work done by the men who are spending their lives in the service of the experimental farms of Canada, says the Ottawa Journal. It has been said of the late Dr. Fletcher, Dominion Entomologist, that when he first visited the west he was looked upon by the settlers as a harmless collector of insects. Not very many years passed before they had got into the habit of calling in his services whenever they saw any unusual insect invasion of their farm. His knowledge of insect habits saved the crops and made money for the western farmer and for the eastern financier and for every one else in the country.

Now we learn on the authority of Dr. C. E. Saunders, of the Dominion Experimental Farm staff, that there has been in progress a series of experiments in the production of wheat which shall mature well before the season of frost, and still have all the milling qualities of the best hard wheat grown to-day. The best hard wheat known to-day is grown in the Canadian West. But this wheat does not harden until late autumn, when frost in that country may be expected at any moment. Rumors of frost only sometimes alarmed the farming community and upset the plans of investors, disquieted the whole community. The ripening of the hard wheat and the coming of the frost are never far apart. When they come together there is disaster.

Dr. Saunders informed his audience in Toronto the other night that the experimentalists of the department have been working for some years on a plan to widen the distance between the wheat ripening and the frost coming. They have inter-bred the different varieties of wheat, some varieties possessing the quality of early ripening, others the desirable milling quality of extreme hardness at maturity. And they think that they have at last hit upon a plan for the growing of wheat which will mature before the frost season and will possess all the qualities of the best hard wheat of to-day.

It is plain that if this result has been achieved the Dominion experimental farms have been instrumental in conferring a priceless advantage upon their fellow Canadians. But this series of experiments is in degree rather than in manner out of the ordinary in the work of the Dominion experimental farms in several parts of the country. In Ontario the work is ably supplemented by that of the Provincial Agricultural College at Guelph. The safety and value of output is everywhere increased as a result of the labors of the men in these institutions. The realization of the most scientific methods practicable under local conditions becomes more widespread; agriculture emerges from the state of a haphazard grubbing in the ground to that of an almost exact science. This experimental work, therefore, may be fairly ranked as among those public services which are of the highest value to Canadians at large.

OCEAN AN ENORMOUS POOL.

Winds and Currents Keep It Moving Round and Round.

The discoveries of modern science have revealed monsters of the deep as terrific as any that ancient fancy created and have shown that oceans are not mere wastes of water, but the homes of an astounding variety of living things. More than this, it has been discovered that the seas themselves have each a sort of law of existence which they obey. The hydrographic office at Washington has for years been trying to learn something of the characteristics of the Atlantic ocean as a great moving body of water by means of bottles containing papers, which have been dropped overboard from vessels in many places to drift at the mercy of the winds and waves.

Many of these bottles have been found and picked up again either in the open sea or on shores where they had stranded.

Knowing from its records where the bottles had been thrown overboard, the bureau has been able to trace in a general way the path they must have followed in order to reach the places where they were found.

Being partially filled with air and then securely corked, the bottles float on the surface of the water and go wherever the winds and the currents of the sea carry them. Each bottle contains a record of the place and date of its starting. Some of those found have floated for many months on the bosom of the Atlantic and traveled thousands of miles.

It has been ascertained that bottles dropped overboard between the shores of the United States and England or France generally travel toward the northeast, following the course of that great river in the ocean called the gulf stream. Bottles started off the coasts of Spain or Africa travel westward until they arrive among the West India islands. Along the European side of the ocean the bottles take a southerly course and along the American side a northerly course.

Thus as a result of winds and currents the whole Atlantic is shown to be slowly circulating around and around, like an enormous pool. This accounts for the stories that were current in Europe hundreds of years ago of strange objects of human manufacture having floated from the new to the old world, thus giving a clew to the existence of undiscovered lands across the sea.

A Rare Nobleman.

The American father of the heiress greeted the count who was a suitor for her hand with dignified frigidity.

"Sare," said the count, "your daughter has done me ze honnaire of consenting to be my wife. I am called to complete ze negotiations."

"All right," wearily said the father. "How much of a cash settlement do you expect?"

"Nossing, sare."

"What! How much will I have to pay for your racecourse debts?"

"Nossing, sare; I do not gamble."

"How much will I have to put up to settle breach of promise cases brought by chorus-girls?"

"Nossing, sare; I do not flirt."

"How much will I have to pay to rebuild your castle?"

"Nossing, sare; it is in fine repair."

"But there must be some expense for me. Out with it."

"No, sare, nossing; I simply love your daughter and she loves me, and we wish to be married. Is not zat enough? Is it not enough to ask you to give me your daughter wizout your expecting to—"

"Come to my arms!" exclaimed the American father, and tried to fall upon the neck of the delightful count.

But he awoke on the floor, having tumbled from the bed as a finish to his amazing dream.

Ice and Mice.

For horses suffering from inflammation of the lungs an old prescription was a mixture of shot and powder in milk. This has even been applied to human beings. In "Idlehurst" mention is made of sparrow shot, five or six to the dose, to be taken twice a day, as a remedy for "brown kilters," which is believed by the English farm laborers to be caused by the "lights" (their term for lungs) rising up the windpipe. The shot is supposed to weight them

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Sheop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Sheop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Sheop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Sheop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

"OXOL"

The word "Oxol" does not mean one food, or one preparation No; "Oxol" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. & T. C. Windsor of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of down in their rightful place. Sussex, England, is the scene of "Idlehurst." It was a Sussex woman who was ordered by the doctor to put some ice in a bag and bind it on the temples of her sick boy. Inquiring after his patient the next day, the physician received the reply, "Oh, Tommy's better, but the mice are dead!"

Then He Got His.

A young Lancashire lad joined the army and soon after his arrival at headquarters got into trouble. Accordingly he had to face his commanding officer next morning.

The usual preliminaries were gone through, when, contrary to orderly room etiquette, the recruit commenced to defend himself.

"Silence!" roared the adjutant.

"Thou shut up," said the prisoner. "I'm not speaking to thee. I'm talking to the old chap in the chair."—London Scraps.

Too Much For Him.

"How true that old saying is about a child asking questions that a man cannot answer," remarked Popleigh.

"What's the trouble now?" queried his friend Singleton.

"This morning," replied Popleigh, "my little boy asked me why men were sent to congress, and I couldn't tell him."—Chicago News.

"Well, I knew a man once who claimed that he did."

"And did he?"

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash value in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

"They won't." She drew Marylyn to her. "And if they do a shot 'll bring help."

He was in the doorway now. "Wy," he cried, "here's thet fool Norwegian goin' t' th' landin'! Waal, he is pritty shy on sand!"

"We'll be killed if the Indians come, Dallas." It was Marylyn, whispering up fearfully to her sister.

"We'll be careful, honey. Keep away from the coulee after this. Walk toward Brannon always."

Dallas spent the afternoon out of doors, where everything spoke of peace. Not even a hand's breadth of cloud floated upon the sky. The air was warm and fragrant with the new growth. Magpies chattered by. The bobolinks sent up their hearty song.

When she left off work she saw the settler from the "little bend" drive by with his wife and children. Going home, she found her father cleaning and caressing the Sharps. But in her ability to sense danger, as in her love of the gloaming, Dallas was like a wild thing, and she felt not the slightest disquiet.

CHAPTER XIX.

MIDWAY of the even, broad expanse between shack and gap stood an A tent, very new, very white and very generous in dimensions. Like a giant mushroom, it had cropped forth during the night. About it stretched the untouched prairie, all purpling over with morning glories.

The tent opened toward the river and was flanked on one side by a pile of short pickets. Their tops dipped the color of the canvas, their bases nicely sharpened for the plotting out of ground. Near by, thrown flat, was a wide board sign, which read in staring blue letters, "Al Braden, Real Estate."

It was well on toward noon before the tent showed life; then there emerged from it a bulky man of middle age who dusted at his high boots as he came, stretched, drawing his long coat snug and settled an elaborate vest. He completed his costume by donning a black hat that was of wool and floppy. Then, thumbs tucked in armholes, he strolled away toward the Lancasters.

The section boss and his daughters were lined up on the warm side of the lean-to, shading their faces from the sun. When the comer was so near that they could see he was strange to them Lancaster gave a peremptory wag of the head, and the two girls disappeared around a corner. Their father stayed on watch, his jaws working nervously with the ever present chew.

The burly man advanced upon the lean-to. "Mornin', mornin'," was his greeting. He made several swinging bows at Lancaster and took him in shrewdly from eyes that were round and close set.

The section boss grunted.

"Lovely day," observed the other, with a bland smile. He changed his tack a little, as if he were going by.

Lancaster bobbled along with him. "Y-a-a-s," he drawled. "Right good. Some cool."

The stranger agreed by another series of swinging bows. "You got a nice place here—nice place," he continued affably. He loosened one thumb with a jerk.

"Nice 'nough."

The man halted in front of the shack and looked it over. "You're a southern gentleman," said he, "by your talk."

"Ah am." Lancaster spoke with unfriendly rising inflection.

"Well, well." A hand was extended—fat hand, where sparkled a diamond. "Say, now, this is lovely, lovely. I'm a southerner myself, sir. Put it there!"

The section boss hesitated. So far Dakota had offered him no compatriot. He could scarce believe that one stood before him now. A second, then he gave a pleased grin. "Howdy," he said. "Hope y' goin' t' settle hereabout."

They shook heartily.

"Settle due east of you, sir," was the answer. "My name's Braden—Al Braden. I'm from Sioux Falls."

"Won't y' come in?"

"Tickled t' death!"

They entered the shack, Lancaster leading. Dallas and Marylyn glanced up in surprise from the fireplace and arose hastily.

"M' gals," said the section boss, motioning their visitor to a bench.

Braden took it, with more swinging bows and a sweep of his floppy headgear. "Glad t' meet you," he smiled. "Miss-a-a-a- Miss"—

"Lancaster 's they name," prompted the section boss, all in good nature.

"Lancaster. Glad t' meet you both."

Dallas nodded and drew her sister away to the wagon seat in the corner.

"Jes' fr'm th' Falls. Ah think y' said," began their father, hunting his tobacco plug along the mantel.

"Yep."

"Um. Any—any news fr'm down thet way 'bout this part o' th' country?"

Braden fell to admiring his ring. "No, sir, no. Didn't hear nothin' particular."

The section boss fidgeted. "S'pose y' know they 's some talk 'bout a railroad comin' this way," he said carelessly.

"Don't go much on that talk. Ten years, twenty years—maybe. Too early yet."

Lancaster's face lengthened. He blinked in dismay.

"My idea," went on Braden, "is cows. Goin' t' be a lot of money in 'em, sure as you're alive. Hear Clark's made a good thing of his'n."

"Cows!" said Lancaster in disgust. "Cows don' help a country—don' raise th' price o' lan'."

"Cows or no cows, your place here's worth a nice little sum," protested the other condescendingly—"hundered anyway."

Lancaster stared. "Hundered!" he cried. "You got th' grass staggers. Five hundered!"

Braden pursed his lips, his thumbs in his armholes again. "Three hundered and fifty, say," he compromised. "I'd be willin' t' give you that."

A moment since the section boss had been downcast. Now, he guffawed. "Would y'?" he asked; "would y'?" There was a sage gleam in his eye.

"I would."

Lancaster sucked his teeth importantly. "Y' couldn't hev it a cent short o' seven hundered an' fifty," he declared.

"You'll never git it, sir, never! Five hundered 's a spankin' figger."

"Bah!"

"Telling you what's what. There's thousands of acres around here just as good as your'n any day in the week. But you got this end of the ford. That makes a little difference."

"Makes 'bout fifteen hundered dollars' diff'rence."

It was Braden's turn to laugh. "My friend, you'll hist to two thousand pretty soon," he warned, and arose. "Better take five hundered and fifty when it's offered." He flung out his hands as if he were feeding hens.

Lancaster got up with him, right [illegible] angry. "Say you ain't no south'ner!" he cried. "Jes' a Yank. Ah 'm see through you like white paint!"

VULTURES IN LONDON.

Birds Escaped From Cage Defy Efforts to Capture Them.

With a strangely slow motion of their powerful wings and a see-saw movement of their ugly, featherless heads, six young vultures flew in wide circles over Wellclose Square, London, E., a few nights ago. Gazing up at this strange spectacle was an eager, excited crowd.

Originally eight in number, the vultures had been at liberty for some time as a result of a cage door in a menagerie belonging to a Mr. Hamlyn having been accidentally left open. It was a cruel jester who spread abroad a story that the birds were fierce and had been known to swoop down upon small children and bear them away in their claws. In consequence of this rumor many mothers in Wellclose Square kept their children within doors for days. It was also a lamentable lack of knowledge of the habits of vultures which led a German resident of the square to shoot one of the birds. The vulture in question, attracted by some pieces of meat in a back yard, suddenly swooped down toward them, when the German, greatly perturbed, fired at it with a gun at close range and shot it dead.

Two of Mr. Hamlyn's assistants accounted for another of the birds. Passing through a dimly lit warehouse loft they emerged upon a flat roof, and discreetly approached the vulture, which was perched—with its back toward them — upon a narrow coping. The bird appeared either to be dozing or to be lost in reflection. Then there was a sudden rush, the rapid flinging of a net and a frenzied flapping of wings. The watching crowd cheered as the vulture was borne away.

But the remaining six birds triumphantly evaded capture. Time after time the hunters scaled strategic points, only to see their quarry fly lazily off to an even more inaccessible and dizzy perch. After the hunt had been abandoned for the night one of the birds was seen perched, perfectly motionless, upon the roof of a church. Another one, by eccentric movements of its wings, was balancing itself upon the rim of a chimney pot.

A Valuable Cab.

From the White City, London, there rolls down every day to the banks of the West-end and the city a four-wheeler worth thousands of dollars. In about a hundred bags placed inside the vehicle is the gold, silver, and bronze money taken at the Exhibition on the previous evening. The amount dealt with naturally varies considerably, according to the weather and other conditions, but on an average day the cab carries bags containing $500 worth of pennies and halfpennies, about $7,500 worth of silver, and $25,000 to $30,000 worth of gold. On an ordinary day the lead

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy entirely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. Weary, Worn Out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly this Spring this Article is worth Considering.

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys fail to work properly, health surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proven in the case of James Burton, of Lewistown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned off the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly.

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure helpful for old and young.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

PICKPOCKETS OF EUROPE.

Make a Great Deal of Trouble For Unsuspecting Travelers.

"The American who travels in Europe and does not keep the closest watch on his valuables is almost sure to be relieved of his personal belongings by pickpockets," said a man who has just finished a two year tour of the world.

"The light fingered gentry are active everywhere from London to Cairo, but I will give the palm for boldness and dexterity to the professionals of Italy, where the plunder of pockets has been reduced to a fine art. I am a careful man and did not need to read the constant warnings against pickpockets, and yet in the great plaza of Venice I was robbed of my letter of credit for $10,000. There was an enormous crowd that had turned out to hear the band play, the day being Sunday, and I was jostled two or three times by a huge fellow with a big black mustache. Finally, seeing that he was doing it purposely, I lost my temper and addressed a hot remark to him, at which he exclaimed, 'Pardon, monsieur,' dropped his umbrella at my feet and in stooping to get it managed in some way to get my letter of credit, although it was in an inside pocket. It caused me a lot of trouble, the sending of many cablegrams and some money, but I managed to have the payment stopped, and the thief profited nothing.

"In Rome on last Christmas day I went out for a ride in the suburbs to see some rare paintings in an old church. Wishing to see the country, I took a street car that was densely packed. The air was pretty crisp, and I wore an overcoat closely buttoned. How on earth the rascal managed to get to my watch and make away with it will puzzle me to my life's end, but he did the trick, as I found on getting off the car.

"Had it been only an ordinary timepiece I would never have said a word of the loss, but it was an unusually fine one, and I valued it much more than the $300 it cost me."

THE BEETLE HUNTER.

He Gets the Cockroaches Drunk and Then Carries Them Off.

The trade of the rat-catcher is sometimes a lucrative one, but that of the cockroach-catcher or "beetler," as he styles himself, is said to be still more lucrative, if somewhat limited.

For the modest sum of half a crown the beetler will undertake to clear the most infested kitchen of cockroaches in an hour or two. All he requires is that the kitchen be given up to him entirely for a couple of hours after dark, and when he leaves he guarantees that not a beetle shall remain.

His method is a simple one. He mixes a certain potent drug dear to the palate of the cockroach, and adds a pint of rum to the mixture; then he pours the decoction into shallow basins and deposits them in the dark corners of the room. He retires and waits for ten minutes, and when he revisits the basins he invariably finds them full of struggling beetles in an advanced state of intoxication. The strong smell of the rum, combined with their favorite drug, penetrates to the uttermost corners of the flooring and entices the erring vermin to their undoing. They feast on the drugged spirits till they are unable to walk straight, and at intervals of ten minutes the catchers clears the drunkards away and waits for the next batch. Not a cockroach will remain at the end of an hour.

The catcher takes the beetles away in a sack, and when they have slept off the effects of their debauch he sells them at a penny a hundred to bird-shops, where the songsters thrive on beetles as long as they last.

A Versatile Old Lady.

The attention of the class in history seemed to be anywhere but on the subject in hand, and the young teacher was getting impatient.

"Children," she said, "you must pay better attention to what you are doing. You cannot possibly do two things at the same time. No one can do two things at once."

At this point a small boy raised his hand and waved it frantically in the air.

"Well, Willie, what is it?" she inquired.

"Please, teacher," said Willie, "my granny kin do two things ter one't. I seen her."

"No, Willie. I think you must be mistaken, but suppose you tell us what these two things are."

"Please, ma'am, she kin read an' soak her feet all ter one't."

Curious School Customs.

Mexican schoolmasters show their appreciation of a pupil's efforts in a curious manner. The diligent student is allowed to smoke a cigar during the lesson. When the whole class has given satisfaction, permission is given for a general smoke, and even the little Mexicans are allowed to light a cigarette for the occasion. Needless to say, the schoolmaster himself smokes a cigar of a size and quality proportionate to his superior position. But the scholars are not allowed to drink, this privilege being accorded to the master only. On his desk he always keeps a bottle of liquor, which, when empty, occasions much dispute among the parents of his scholars, as it is considered an honor to be able to fill the schoolmaster's bottle.

The Carnivorous Ants.

The subject of vegetarianism had occupied a great deal of attention in the family. One day the five-year-old was out walking with his elder sister, and he meddled an ant [illegible] too [illegible] with the anguish of a large colony of ants. He deserted them rather suddenly and came back to his sister's side, rubbing his bare legs vigorously.

"What's the matter?" asked sister.

"Oh, nothing, only them ants ain't vegetarians," was the sententious reply of the youngster.

Lady Channel-Swimmers.

Among the swimmers who will probably attempt to cross the Channel before the end of the year are two ladies, both of whom have placed some remarkable swimming feats to their credit. One of them is Miss Martha Robert, a girl of twenty, who holds all the Swiss records for long and short distances; the other is Miss Lily Smith, the 18-year-old captain of the Tottenham Ladies' Swimming Club, who has just performed the remarkable feat of covering twenty miles in the sea in seven hours. Three years ago Miss Annette Kellerman, in an attempt to cross the Channel, covered more than twelve miles in six hours. Such performances as these are very remarkable; but it is doubtful whether any woman will ever develop the strength and stamina to perform a feat which only one man has yet accomplished.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

ADMIRAL OF THE FLEET

SOME STORIES OF SIR JOHN OTHERWISE "JACKY" FISHER.

"Silence" and "Deeds, Not Words," Are His Two Mottoes—To Clear Out Portsmouth Dockyard Was His First Important Feat—Can Be Polite to Other Nations Despite His British Bull-Dog Tenacity.

"We have the biggest navy, we have the swiftest ships, we have the heaviest guns; what we want is more men of the stamp of Jacky Fisher," declared a well-known politician the other day at a meeting of naval experts, and they one and all endorsed his words. This trust in the British Admiral of the Fleet can, perhaps be explained by a little story which Sir John Fisher tells himself. It concerns his first ship, a small two-decker, in the "stick-and-string" days.

"When I first went on board," he says, "I saw engraved in great big gold letters the word 'Silence,' and underneath was another good motto, 'Deeds, not words.' I have tried to put that motto into every ship I have commanded since."

Jacky Fisher was appointed superintendent of Portsmouth dockyard, in the days of the sarcastic Punch joke. "Bill don't do no work now; 'e's got a job at the dockyard." It was in those days that Jacky, in taking one of his prowls round the yard, came upon two men standing about with their hands in their pockets, doing nothing. He pounced on them at once, and they explained that they had been sent on ahead to clear the road for some of their mates, who were carrying an oar across the yard. Jacky accepted the explanation for what it was worth and went on with his prowling. Soon he came on half-a-dozen men, also happily engaged in doing nothing. They explained that they were carrying an oar.

"But I see no oar," said the wrathful superintendent.

The men scratched their heads and looked at one another in amazement. Then up and spoke the foreman of the gang.

"I'm hanged if we ain't forgot the oar, sir," said he.

"A sense of conscious efficiency," is what Sir John Fisher wishes to see in every mind, the mind of every man in the navy, and no one knows better than he how widespread in the senior service this sense is. When he was commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean he went to inspect a small torpedo-boat of only some two hundred and fifty tons. The young lieutenant in command—he had so much swagger, he might have been in charge of a line-o'-battle ship—showed his superior round.

The little craft was in excellent order, but when Jacky reached the wheel he saw on it some most unofficial carving. It was an inscription, and it read, "Ut Veniant Omnes."

"Hullo," said the commander, "what the deuce is this?"

"'Let 'em all come,' sir" answered the "Lootenant," saluting.

Jacky Fisher is a staunch patriot, of course, and he would not dip a British flag or bend a British back to ship or man of any nation if he could help it. But occasionally courtesy demands these things, and then he is politeness itself.

For all that, there is a story told of years ago when relations between France and ourselves were not so friendly as they are now, which recalls the fact that Sir John might perhaps be "difficult" if the situation demanded it.

The French fleet were to visit a British port, and Jacky was talking to his Queen, her late Majesty, about it.

"We hope you will be very nice to Admiral Gervice," said the Queen, who knew how her bluff old sea-dog disliked being civil to those whom he then regarded as enemies.

"Madam," said Jacky, hiding a wry smile; "Madam, I will kiss him, if he wishes it."

An effort will be made to have this city grouped with Cobourg, Belleville and Lindsay in the intermediate series. The O. H. A. will meet next Tuesday night in Toronto to select the groups.

Police Arrest Alleged Chinese Smugglers Implicated in Trip Resulting in Death of Six Celestials

Baltz and Riley, Two Former Chinese Inspectors, Arrested in a Barn at Fort Erie, Were Arraigned on Charges of Manslaughter

Survivor Identifies Pictures of One Accused Man

Welland, Ont., Dec. 11.—Edward Baltz and William Riley, arrested in Fotr Erie by Chief of Police Mains ,were arraigned here to-day before JJustice Wells on charges of man daughter growing out of the recent attempt to smuggle a boatload of Chinese into the United States. The warrant upon which Baltz and Riley were placed under arrest is sworn to by United States Immigration inspectors. A hearing looking to the extradition of Baltz and Riley will be had to-morrow.

Edward Baltz and William Riley, two former Chinese Inspectors, were arrested this morning by the Canadian police authorities after a search which led to an old barn at Fort Erie, where it is said they have been in hiding since the catastrophe which resulted in the death of six Chinamen on the Government breakwall in November.

The Canadian officials are still hunting for a third man named Haney who it is believed is connected with the recent smuggling catastrophe.

Baltz and Riley are held at the Fort Erie police station on a charge of vagrancy. An effort will then be made to extradite them on a charge of manslaughter. Immigration Inspector Pierce and local detectives went to Fort Erie about 11 o'clock and are awaiting developments.

IDENTIFIES PICTURES.

Baltz, who was arrested about 9 o'clock this morning, was identified by a picture by the Celestials as one of the men who attempted to land them on this side.

The two men who were arrested late this morning aroused the suspicion of the Canadian authorities in that they were always frequent visitors of various places in Fort Erie, since the attempted smuggling of the Chinamen recently, which ended fatally to six of the Celestials, the men in question have not been seen about the village. It was thought rather queer by the Canadian officials who agreed to co-operate with the local Federal authorities in securing the men, who, it is believed, are responsible for the tragedy.

After the arrest of Blatz a search was begun for the other men. Riley was found about 11 o'clock this morning and immediately placed under arrest on a charge of vagrancy.

Edward Baltz, who was an inspector in the Government employ about five years ago, it is said, left the service after he had been suspected of being actively engaged in the Chinese smuggling business. Riley was also an inspector about two years ago.

William Riley was arrested about three months ago by the immigration officers on suspicion of having some connection with the case of Thomas Roach and Charles Roth, who are now serving sentences for smuggling Chinamen. No evidence could be produced sufficient to incriminate him, so he was discharged by Commissioner Keating.

The question now confronting the Federal authorities is whether a substantial charge of manslaughter can be placed against the men. This is the only way in which extradition can be obtained. In order to prove such a charge against the prisoners it must be established that there was criminal negligence on the part of the men.

Baltz and Riley were taken to Welland by the Fort Erie officials this afternoon. It was thought they would be ordered across the border at once, but a rumor to that effect on this side later proved to be unfounded.

George Haney, who is believed to be the third white man connected with the case, ran a saloon in Water street up to about three years ago. Haney's son is employed by the Lake Erie Dredging and Construction Co. The police say it was Haney's boat which the three white men used to effect an escape after the craft containing the Celestials was dashed against the breakwall.

Fancy Dress Ball Given by Miss Lundy

One of the first dances this season and decidedly the most enjoyable was that given by Miss Lundy's dancing class in the Conservatory of Music hall last night for the "not-outs." It was a fancy dress affair, and about fifty couple were present and many beautiful costumes were worn. Splendid music was furnished and the floor was in ideal condition. The affair was most successful in every way. The patronesses were Mrs. A. Stevenson Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. W. H Hall, Mrs. George Hatton, Mrs. R. Gliddon and Mrs A. H. Stratton.

"Progress of Chinese," Subject of Mrs. Goforth's Lecture in St. Paul's

The Sunday school room of St. Paul's Church was well filled last night to hear the lecture on Honan, China, by Mrs. Goforth, a returned missionary. She was here under the auspices of the St. Paul's W. F. M. S., who also invited all the other missionary societies in the city to attend, and a very large number accepted. Mrs. Goforth has been in China for many years, and has seen a great many changes take place in the manners, customs and habits of the Chinese. She was home in Canada some seven years ago and addressed many meetings. She is a very interesting speaker, and those who were present greatly enjoyed themselves. The lecture was illustrated by limelight views, which assisted wonderfully in impressing upon the gathering the importance of Chinese missionary work.

Mrs. Goforth dwelt particularly upon the old customs of the Chinese, which are now being rapidly done away with. Among these are the modes of travel, which are being superceded by railways; the old-fashioned dress and many other peculiar fads characteristic of the Chinese. The custom of binding the young girls' feet is now only practised by the lower classes.

Western civilization is making rapid progress in China, and the natives are awakening to the advantages derived therefrom. The opium traffic, which has always been the curse of that nation, is now being curtailed to a great extent and it is only a matter of time when it will be practically out of use. In speaking of opium, Mrs. Goforth related an experience she had had when travelling with a party. They went along all right until a certain hour of the day, when the Chinaman, who was pulling her cart, stopped and entered a small building. There he sat down and smoked his opium pipe and the party had to wait for two hours and a half until he had finished his smoke, and the sleep afterward.

The Chinese possess great strength and can endure fatigue which would seem almost impossible for a human being. They also possess great intelligence once they are awakened, and drop their demoralizing and physique wrecking habits.

There never was a time when it was so important for the Christian Church to work the Chinese fields, and if neglected now the opportunity will be lost. In future the Church will have more than double the work and expense to bring the natives back if they are permitted to get the bad side of western life first.

In Honan the mission has met with great success. There are over one hundred adult members and several hundred young lady members, and all the various missions are growing equally as rapidly.

Historical Society will Also Take Up Scientific Subjects During Winter

The adjourned annual meeting of the Peterborough Historical Society was held in the Collegiate Institute last night, although there was not a very large turnout. The many other attractions affected the attendance considerably. However, the new officers were elected and a lot of time was profitably spent in discussing ways and means of making the society more beneficial to the members and of bringing it more prominently before the people. It was decided to broaden the scope of the society so that scientific subjects may be taken up as well as historical. A committee was appointed to map out a programme of subjects (historical and scientific), upon which papers will be prepared and read to the society during the winter months.

It is also proposed to hold meetings at least once a month, and probably every two weeks. The papers will be prepared by local people for the greater part, although several outside speakers will be brought in.

In a few days the programme for the winter will be ready and will appear in the local press.

The officers for the year are—

Hon. President—Col. H. C. Rogers.
President—T. A. S. Hay.
Sec.-Treas.—W. J. Dunlop.

Bazaar in All Saints' Church a Great Success

A large share of success was achieved by the Girls' Guild of All Saints' Church last night. They have been working for a long time preparing for the bazaar, and their efforts were not without avail. There was a large attendance, and the many dainty as well as useful articles were soon picked up. As a result the girls will have a snug little sum to add to the building fund of the church. Those in charge of the tables were—

Apron Table—Miss Lacheur and Mrs. Cosens.
Candy Table—Miss Buller and Miss Bloin.
Fancy Table—Miss Cairns, Miss Cotton and Miss Melville.

Cyclone Burns Only Got One Fall on Gene Last Night

Special to the Times.

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Cyclone Burns found Gene Hurtubise too hard a man to dispose of in the time required when the two met in an interesting bout at Riverdale rink last night. After 28 minutes of hard wrestling Burns got the first and only fall of the match. As he was to throw Hurtubise three times in an hour he lost the bout. The Peterborough heavyweight put up a remarkably good argument and the fans noticed that he had improved considerably both in science and development since he was handing the amateur laurels and since his first professional battle here with Frank Kennedy, of New York.

Burns is one of the speediest and most scientific grapplers seen here in a long time, and gave a pretty exposition of the game.

Maple Leafs Won from the Tigers

A most interesting basket ball game was played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night, when the Maple Leafs and Tigers met. The contest was a hard fought one and the teams weree pretty evenly matched, as the score will indicate. The line-up was as follows—

Maple Leafs—18.
Roy Best, S. Lang, J. D. Sutherland, F. Lees and G. Martin.
Tigers—13.
Harry Staunton, P. Wallis, Charles Roy, D. Loomis and F. Hall.

Brock Street Rink Opened Last Night

In spite of the mild weather all day yesterday and last evening there was a good sheet of ice at the Brock street rink for the opening night. Of course it was not what would be expected later on in the season. The centre was rough and was not fit for skating, but around the regular course the ice was very good. There was a large crowd present, which goes to show tat the old ice skating is still a popular sport and pastime among the young people. It was a treat for them to get out on the steel runners again. The band was present and rendered a splendid programme, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The cutting the ice got last night will be of assistance to Jack Thirnbeck in building up the sheet and keeping it level for future use. It all depends upon the weather whether thbe skating will continue.

Once you use the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic, Ferrozone — once you feel its magic powers, working through your weakened system —then you'll know for sure that health at last awaits you.

So much quicker and surer is Ferrozone to rebuild and restore that thousands use no other medicine.

"Because I am now well," writes Miss I. F. Sinclaire, from Sault Ste. Marie, "I feel it my duty to tell every young woman what benefit I got from Ferrozone. I grew very thin, and at twenty-five years old my face was hollow and wrinkled—my color was bad and I looked ten years beyond my age. I was nervous and hysterical, couldn't sleep, had no appetite, burst into tears at the least provocation. Then I worried, feared would go into decline, and was so depressed every morning that life was no longer happy.

"I was astonished at the quick and thorough action of Ferrozone. It gave me permanent strength and vitality, nervous fears disappeared, indigestion and stomach weakness were cured. Sound sleep returned. I looked better and younger, had clear color. I gained in weight, felt happy vigorous, strong.— It is a year since I first took Ferrozone. It has restored me to health I never knew before and I will continue to recommend it as the grandest tonic and strengthener on earth."

Frenzied Father Cuts Throats of Children

London, Dec. 12.—A seafaring man named George Nadin cut the throats of his five children and afterwards his own in a house in Bethell avenue, Hermit Road, Canning Town, early on Saturday morning, apparently in a fit of frenzy brought on by influenza.

Three of the children were killed outright and the two others are lying in a critical condition in St. Mary's Hospital, Plaistow. Nadin, himself, also dangerously injured, is in the Popular Hospital, and his wife is suffering from several cuts received during a desperate struggle for the razor with which he committed the crime.

Nadin left the breakfast table in the morning as usual and went, as his wife thought, to kiss the children good-bye before going out. A few moments afterward Mrs. Nadin heard a scream, and opening the door of the room in which she was sitting, she saw her son Angus in the grasp of her husband, who held a razor with which he had cut the child's throat.

She rushed at her husband and tried to wrench the razor away. She did not succeed, but the boy was able to slip from his father's grasp and run down stairs into the street, where he fell dying in the gutter.

Mrs. McCombie, who lives in another flat in the same house, rushed to the spot on hearing the boy's scream, and joined Mrs. Nadin in the struggle. Once she got the razor in her hand, but Nadin wrested it away. Finally the two women managed to force him into the front room and locked him in.

Then they went to the other rooms. In one, the two oldest children, George, aged eleven, and Margaret, aged eight, lay with their throats cut, but still living. In another, the two youngest children, Johanna, aged six, and Freddie, aged four, lay dead. Their throats had been cut, apparently as they lay sleeping.

More neighbors and the police arrived, and the door of the room in which the frenzied husband had been locked, was opened. Nadin lay with his throat also cut and apparently dying.

The two living children and their father were all reported to be making as good progress as could be expected last night, although they are by no means out of danger. Mrs. Nadin was discharged from the hospital after her wounds had been dressed.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

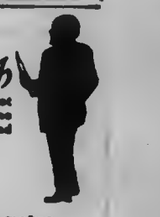
Reception to Young People in the Y. M. C. A. Parlors

Over a hundred young people from the various city churches accepted the invitation from the social club of the Y. M. C. A. to attend a reception in the Y. parlors last night.

The young people were given a hearty welcome by the Secretary and members of the club, and after they were showed around the building they went into the handsome parlors, where an informal programme was run off. Afterwards refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening brought to a close.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach



A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

THE VALUE OF THE CROP

A competent authority puts the value of the grain crop of the three prairie provinces at $125,000,000. This is a very large amount to be divided among a comparatively small population, and will add greatly to the general wealth of the community. When the immense areas yet to be brought under cultivation in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are considered, it is difficult to estimate what the potential resources of Western Canada may yield in the course of ten or twenty years. A contemporary compares this value of the crop with what might be the result to a country in which the production of the mines was of equal amount in gold and concludes that it would cause a great "boom". As a matter of fact the production of gold in the Transvaal for the past year has been about that sum. While, however, the value of the mines is being gradually depleted with every ounce of gold that is extracted, the value of Canada's prairie farms should steadily increase as improved agricultural methods are followed and the country is brought more and more under cultivation. The extension of mixed husbandry is also likely to raise the average value per acre of the products obtained from it.

BANK OF OTTAWA STATEMENT

The Bank of Ottawa statement submitted at the annual meeting, indicates that the management had to face in the same way as the other banks the peculiar conditions that prevailed during the past twelve months, and strengthened its immediately available assets in view of possible contingencies. The earnings of $439,879 provided for the 10 per cent. dividend on the capital of $3,000,000 and left a balance of $139,879. There was applied to the redemption of bank premises account $46,730, and $5,000 was voted to the officers' pension fund. The bank now has assets of $33,524,891, shown by the statement to be conservatively held, so that it is in position to profit by the improvement in trade all are looking for.

SEEING AND LISTENING.

Nearsighted Man Wears Glasses in Talking, but Not in Reading.

"Here's a sort of queer thing," said a nearsighted man. "I am very nearsighted. Strong glasses are indispensable to me for ordinary, general seeing in my goings about, but when I sit down to read I take off my glasses and bring the print up to within the natural focus of the eye. It seems to me that reading with the natural eye I read with a more intimate and a clearer understanding.

"So much for my reading without spectacles, and now here is the thing that is queer to me. If when I am reading thus, with my glasses off, somebody comes along to speak to me, why, then, to get a clear understanding of the question I must have on my spectacles.

"So I say, or I would say if this happened at home where I know the people, 'Wait a minute till I get on my spectacles,' and I would put them on and then say, 'Now go ahead,' and really, with my spectacles on, with my power of seeing at its best, with the sharpest definition of things in general to the eye, I get the clearest apprehension of things said to me.

"So in reading I do best with my glasses off, but in understanding things said to me, in listening, I do best with my glasses on. There is one modification to this—where there is no light, as in a dark room, where I can't see, I can understand equally well with or without glasses."

QUEER TITLES.

Bestowed on His Favorites by an Emperor of Haiti.

Among the whimsical titles which appear on the pages of national history few are more apparently frivolous than the Duke of Marmalade, the Count of Lemonade and the Earl of Brandy. They are or were, however, real titles bestowed by a genuine monarch on three of his favorites, and that, too, during the last century.

In 1811 a revolution occurred in Haiti, and Christophe, a negro, declared himself emperor. Through conspiracy and plot, his life often attempted, he retained power till 1820, preserving to the last the pageantry of a royal court and creating a numerous nobility. Among them were the three already mentioned, and the oddity of the titles has suggested to many writers the frivolousness of the African character.

In fact, however, all three names were those of places, the first two being originally plantations, but latterly towns of some importance. This not being generally known, a misapprehension has arisen with regard to the titles themselves, which, however absurd, were scarcely more so than some which were bestowed in France and Germany during the middle ages.—Pearson's Weekly.

Liberty.

The spirit of liberty is indeed a bold and fearless spirit, but it is also a sharp sighted spirit. It is a cautious, sagacious, discriminating, farseeing intelligence. It is jealous of encroachment, jealous of power, jealous of man. It demands checks, it seeks for guards, it insists on securities, it intrenches itself behind strong defenses and fortifies itself with all possible care against the assaults of ambition and passion. It does not trust the amiable weaknesses of human nature, and therefore it will not permit power to overstep its prescribed limits, though benevolence, good intent and patriotic purpose come along with it. Neither does it satisfy itself with flashy and temporary resistance to illegal authority. Far otherwise. It seeks for duration and permanence. It looks before and after, and, building on the experience of ages which are past, it labors diligently for the benefit of ages to come.—Daniel Webster.

BUILDING PICKS UP.

Reports From Trade In Canadian Cities Show Prosperity.

To determine with a fair accuracy the exact building conditions that exist throughout the country generally, "Construction" has secured statistics from eleven representative cities of the Dominion, showing the aggregate cost of buildings for which permits were issued for the first eight months of 1908, as compared with 1907.

In eleven cities reported, the cost of buildings for the first eight months of 1908 was $34,124,915, as compared with $38,960,989 for the same period of 1907, thus showing a decrease of 26.84 per cent.

In nine cities for which figures were secured for the month of August, the aggregate cost of buildings for August, 1908, was $3,884,884, as compared with $3,196,535 for the corresponding month of 1907, thus showing an increase of 20.67 per cent.

From this it can be seen that Canada's principal centres have turned a decrease of 26.84 per cent. for the eight months of 1908 into an increase of 20.67 per cent. for the month of August, 1908, as compared with the same periods of 1907.

It will be noted that Regina shows the largest increase (269.13) per cent.), Toronto the smallest increase (6.08 per cent.), Vancouver the largest decrease (23.98 per cent.), and St. John, N.B., the smallest decrease (19.96 per cent.) for the month of August.

Fort William has the largest increase (90.15 per cent.), Edmonton the smallest increase (8.5 per cent.) Montreal the largest decrease (50.32 per cent.), and Winnipeg the smallest decrease (27.3 per cent.), for the first eight months of the year.

In view of the general opinion that Winnipeg suffered most from the money stringency, it is worthy of note that the decrease in her building was much lower than that of any of our larger eastern cities.

Only three of the cities reported show a decrease for August, viz., Vancouver, Calgary and St. John, N.B., while only three show an increase for the eight months of the year, viz.: Vancouver, Edmonton and Fort William.

Reports as to prospects for the remainder of the year were generally bright and it seems to be the concensus of opinion that the year will finish well. There seems to be a large amount of building, that was contemplated early in the year, and for financial reasons had to be postponed that is being proceeded with this fall

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinately. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

wise," he confided. "Farmin' out here with cows around means fences. But hang on if you want to. It's your land." He ended this with a jovial slap and made for the door. From it he could see the girls. He gave them a magnificent bow. "Mornin', mornin'," he said and walked out.

Lancaster went back to the hearth, fairly weak with delight. Dallas and Marylyn joined him. "W'at d' y' think?" gurgled their father. "Say, he ain't got th' sense he ought 'a' been born with!"

"Don't like him," Dallas declared.

"Pig eyes," suggested Marylyn.

At that the section boss calmed. "Waal," he said, "he's as good anyhow as slopover soldiers."

Meanwhile Braden was on his way to the Trooper's Delight, his face glum, his step quick, his arms cutting the air like propellers. When he lumbered into it he creaked up to the plank bar and helped himself to a finger of whisky. Then he propped himself on an elbow and stood scowling into the rear of the room.

From the gaming table sounded the raillery of a dozen men. Matthews was there, heels up, hat tipped back, a cigar set between his little teeth.

"What y' givin' us?" cried one of his companions. "You're drunk, Nick—plumb drunk."

Braden listened, turning away. An advertisement of brandy hung from a shelf on the far side of the bar. He toyed with his goblet, his eyes fixed on the gaudy, fly specked picture.

"I ain't drunk," Matthews declared. "I never been drunk. My stomick ain't big 'nough to hold the reequisit amount."

There was more laughter. The interpreter, well pleased with himself, surveyed his audience, pointing the cigar, now up, now down, so that its glowing end threatened to burn his shirt collar or, tilting skyward, all but singed what there was of a tow eyebrow.

"And that ain't the best part of the story," he went on. "As I was sayin',

"My friend, you'll bet $5 two thousand pretty soon."

not a darned pound of ice was left in Boston. Well, what d' y' think my old man does? He rents the fastest coast steamer he can find. Then he goes way up north in the Atlantic and lays to with his weather eye open. Day or two long comes a' iceberg big as a house, and, by ——, he hitches to it, and Boston gits ice!"

And now, like a ponderous bobcat descending upon its prey, Braden stole soft footed across the room. "Nick!" he said. His jaws came together with the click of a steel trap.

Matthews lowered his heels. "Jumpin' buffalo!" he cried in amazement. "Al Braden! Where 'd you come from?" He took the other's hand, at the same time pulling him slowly toward the door. Away from the crowd, they brought up.

"—well, you're a nice one!" was Braden's answer. "You're a nice one! "Lettin' that bend slip through your fingers!"

All the interpreter's cocksureness was gone. He threw the cigar into the sand box under the stove and looked on the verge of following it.

"Say, you talk of fleecin'!" taunted Braden. "Why, you been skinned clean 's a whistle! And by a' old fool duffer from Texas!"

"I was at Dodge when he come," snarled Matthews, finding his voice.

"What you go streakin' off to Dodge for after the tip I give?"

"Well, no one here was talkin' railroad, so I—well, I"—

Braden addressed the ceiling, his fat hands outspread. "No one here was talkin' railroad; no one here was talkin' railroad," he mimicked.

—"so I didn't put much stock in your letter."

"You didn't, eh?" Braden searched a coat pocket, found a newspaper clipping and thrust it under Matthews' nose. "Well, read that!"

"Read it yourself," said Matthews. "You know blamed well"—

Braden interrupted him by beginning. He lowered his voice and intoned, giving the interpreter a glance designed to wilt him with the words that called for stress:

"The proposed line will open up a country of rich grasses and ground and of unexcelled hunting. The Indians, while still troublesome beyond the Missouri, are rapidly being brought to see the advisability of remaining on the reservations, and little more annoyance on their part may be apprehended. Fort Brannon, he declares, is in the hands of several hundred brave fighting men and may be looked upon as a place of certain refuge in case of an outbreak. The soldiers are proving to be such a menace to those Indians who will not agree to reservation life that whole bands of the more savage redskins are leaving for the bad lands and the rougher country farther west. No Indian war parties have been seen east of the big river for some time. Already there is an increasing interest in land along the survey, and it is believed that when the last ties of the new line are laid there will be few unclaimed quarter sections between the Big Sioux and the Missouri."

"There!" Braden wound up. "And gradin' begun already at the Mississippi!"

For horses suffering from inflammation of the lungs an old prescription was a mixture of shot and powder in milk. This has even been applied to human beings. In "Idlehurst" mention is made of sparrow shot, five or six to the dose, to be taken twice a day, as a remedy for "brown kilters," which is believed by the English farm laborers to be caused by the "lights" (their term for lungs) rising up the windpipe. The shot is supposed to weight them

Following Calving She Must Have Good Care and Feed.

The fresh cow has a right to good care. If she does not get it her owner will suffer. The fresh cow, especially if young, is nervous and excitable. For this very reason she acts in such a way as to annoy her owner or keeper, but the owner or keeper is not wise who is weak enough to give vent to his annoyance in abuse of the cow. The cow is not to blame for her nervous condition. Harshness will actually lessen materially the supply of milk. The man who cannot control his temper would better let dairying alone. He cannot make it pay.

The fresh cow also requires care and judgment in feeding on account of her feverish condition. She is not only feverish, but weak. She will crave water, but only a little food. The water will be better if it is slightly warmed. Professor Smith of the University of Nebraska suggests the following as a method of feeding for the first few days following calving:

"Whatever is given her should be of a light character, such as well cured clover or alfalfa and a little bran, preferably made into a mash by the use of warm water. A few pounds of bran will have a cooling and laxative effect, which is always beneficial just after calving. The following day four or five pounds of a mixture of equal parts of corn, oats and bran would prove satisfactory.

"Without oats it would be well to feed equal parts by weight of corn and bran, gradually increasing the corn to three-fourths of the grain ration, at the same time making the daily feed gradually larger until at the end of three weeks she is receiving a full ration of ten or twelve pounds of grain per day, the exact amount depending upon the size of the cow. In the meantime the cow should be given all the clover or alfalfa hay she will consume."

Cows in Hot Weather.

Spray the cows before they are turned out to pasture in the morning with a mixture of equal parts of coal oil and fish oil. One gill, applied with a spray syringe, will cover the neck, shoulders and legs of one cow. The following mixture is recommended by the Wisconsin experiment station: Resin, one and one-half pounds; common soap, two cakes; fish oil, one-half pint, and water, three gallons. Dissolve the resin by boiling in one gallon of water and the soap cut fine. When dissolved add the fish oil and the remainder of the water. Stir thoroughly before using. Apply with syringe or brush. This is an excellent fly repellent, cheap and effective.

A Veterinarian's Advice.

When the hog seems to be losing the use of its limbs, feed less corn and more bran and oats chop. If it is feasible to do so, give eight or ten grains of nux vomica in the feed twice a day. An abundance of green feed should also be given.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is so directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

"ALL DEALERS"

THE ROAD TO WEALTH.

It is the First Thousand Dollars That Counts.

"The thing that counts," said a man of independently large means, accumulated by hard work, saving and wise investments, "is the first thousand dollars. When you've got that amount together you are beginning to get somewhere, and with that start you will want to keep entering red ink interest entries that you see put down in your savings bank book twice a year will strike you very pleasantly indeed. As interest on your thousand dollars you'll get $30 or $40 in a year. Your money has begun earning money for you.

"You've got an income now, and you'll want to add to it. You will leave that interest in the bank, to be added to your principal, and now your interest will begin to draw interest, and, to be sure, you will keep right on adding to your principal, too, and every six months you'll see those red figures growing bigger and bigger, pretty figures to contemplate, and you'll keep right along saving. But the thing that really counts is the first thousand dollars. Get that and you're all right, and you'll always be glad you saved it.

"For there really is nothing like financial independence or like having at least some money laid by. Then if you want money you've got it. You don't have to go to friends to borrow and take the risk of being refused, the risk of being compelled to go without what you need. If you've got money in the bank you can go there and get it. There might come a time when you would need money for your family or for yourself very much. It's a grand thing to have it where you can get it.

"There's nothing mean about being saving and accumulating money. On the contrary, it is every man's duty to make himself financially independent. I don't mean at all that a man wants to set out to accumulate great wealth. There is no great fun in that. But what he does want to do is to get together enough to live on modestly."

DODGES OF COAL MINERS.

They Have Many Ways of Adding Extra Pennies to Their Wages.

In coal mining, as in other trades, there are many tricks played. Seams below three feet are paid extra tonnage, generally a penny per ton extra for each inch in the reduction of the thickness of the seam. Certain days are set apart for the purpose of measuring, and many schemes are resorted to by the miner to make the measurement as low as possible. Thus, according to the inequalities or irregularity of the floor and roof, a place may measure 3 feet one day and the next only 2 feet 9 inches. The miner takes advantage of this fact by letting his place stand for a whole shift, and sometimes a day, when he comes to a reduction in the thickness of the coal seam, and it pays him, too.

In other cases stone bands run in the seam of coal, and they vary in thickness also, but the miner is paid extra tonnage for the increase in the thickness of the band. Thus, you see that it means a considerable addition to his income to obtain an increased measurement.

A popular trick among mine managers is to work the near and most accessible coal in the mine, with no regard to system so long as they succeed in obtaining a large output of coal. Having worked all the best districts, they look out for another situation, and you will understand the position of the next manager and the enormous difficulties and expense to work the mine.

Honor.

"What they call 'honor' is a mighty curious thing," observed Uncle Jerry Peebles. "I know a man who would cheerfully starve himself to pay a gamblin' debt, and he still owes the preacher that married him twenty-seven years ago."

Art in the Soup.

The artist's wife leaned over and looked at her husband's soup after she had handed it to him.

"Oh," she cried, "look at the scroll the fat has made in your soup. Isn't it artistic? Don't eat it. It is so beautiful."

Forced Economy.

"Poor Tom, it cost him a terrible lot to give up his sweetheart."

"Then why did he?"

"Because it would have cost him a great deal more if he hadn't."—London Tatler.

"Parceling Out de People."

Fishing, two boys strung their big catch on the same string. Passing a graveyard they entered the gate to divide the catch, dropping two fish just as they went inside the cemetery.

Passing, an aged negro heard the two boys: "I'll take this one, you that one; I this one, you that one;" etc.

The negro listened in dismay and ran away as rapidly as his old legs could carry him. He met his negro minister, who called:

"Deacon, why you run in such terror?"

"Declare, parson, I been down yonder by de graveyard and over de fence heard de devil and de Lord parceling out de people atween 'em."

The parson laughed at t' old man's fright and made him go back with him to the graveyard to convince him of his error.

The boys were still dividing—"You take that, I take this," etc. Finally one boy asked, "What you going to do with them two at the gate?"

This was more than parson or deacon could stand, and both ran pellmell, neither wishing to take any further chances, no matter what was going on just over the fence.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Mr. Geo Hay having announced his desire to retire from the presidency, a resolution was unanimously passed thanking him for his long and faithful services as Director, Vice-President and President. The former Directors were re-elected, and at a meeting of the new Board, Mr. David Maclaren was elected President, and the Hon. George Bryson, Vice-President for the ensuing year.

Society People.

A society woman—and a man for that matter—do a great many things imprudent for their health. Take the matter of dress, for instance, or rather the lack of dress, right over the most vital organs of the body—the lungs. A little cold results. The throat and bronchial tubes become congested and inflamed, and then the bacilli of consumption can start right away. Pneumonia or consumption results and that is another story if you don't take Powley's Liquified Ozone.

If society people would only take a good hot dose of Powley's Liquified Ozone before retiring they would have no cold. If they have pneumonia or consumption, they should take this preparation, because its antiseptic properties will almost invariably cure those diseases. Then the condensed oxygen builds up the system. Can you afford to be without Powley's Liquified Ozone?

$1.00 and 50c a bottle, at all druggists. Write the Ozone Co. of Toronto, Limited, 45 Colborne street, Toronto.

HOW TO TELL

If the Kidneys and Liver are Not Acting Well.

Thousands die every year from aggravated kidney disease that could have been saved if they only knew.

Your back may ache, you think it's tiredness or physical weakness.

You grow irritable and nervous—it's put down to loss of sleep.

Joints ache, muscles get sore,—that's all put down to bad weather.

Then digestion gets poor, appetite fades away, color bleaches, spirit drops.

Don't you see it's all from your over-worked kidneys, which can't keep the body clear of poisons that are now surging through the whole system.

Clean your kidneys with Dr. Hamilton's pills.

"When I had a bad attack of [illegible] I was [illegible] and [illegible] Dr. Hamilton's Pills [illegible] Dr. Hamilton's Pills changed the spell of pain, gave me back [illegible] al appetite and [illegible] I am a new man of me, I can [illegible] day Dr. a good spring medicine to clear and enrich the blood Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal."

The housewife whose aching back makes every fittleduty a burden, the working man who is tired all day and can't rest at night, whose back aches, and whose feet swell—these people have kidney trouble. Women whose kidneys are sick, suffer continually from blind and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, bearing down pains, sharps twinges when stooping, distressing urinary troubles, aching muscles and joints, lack of appetite and loss of sleep. Reach the cause, Cure the kidneys. Use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills, which have cured thousands 25c at all dealers.

Fleet Tonight

A meeting of the committee that was in charge of the laymen's banquet will meet in the Y.M.C.A. tonight at 8 o'clock for the purpose of settling up accounts and for considering the advancement of the movement and what steps are to be taken by the Peterborough laymen.

Wheat Cars Derailed

Seven cars of wheat for the Quaker Oats Co. jumped the track on the new G.T.R. siding into the factory this morning. The cause of them being derailed is attributed to the fact that the rails had spread. The accident occurred near the bridge over the dam, and had it taken place just a little farther on the cars would have all gone into the river.

New Store at Springville

Springville is to have a new store. Mr. Andrew Reynolds, of Peterborough, has moved out to the North Monaghan village, and is opening an opening an up-to-date store in the stand formerly occupied by Mr. F. Wilson. He is putting in a complete stock of general merchandise and should do a large business.

Date Changed

The curlers have decided to change the date of their bonspiel from Jan. 18th to Jan. 12th. At a meeting of the curling club on Wednesday night the former date when decided upon, but it has been changed, as the Kingston Curling Club is holding a bonspiel on the 18th of January and the local curlers do not want to clash with the arrangement made by the Limestone City men.

Pay Your License

There are a number of milk vendors in the city who have not yet taken out their licenses and Chief Rossel said yesterday that they must do so at once or they would be summoned to the police court, where in addition to their license they might have to pay a fine. They will be given until the 15th to pay up.

Feared Being Grabbed

Woman's Nervousness from Coffee Drinking

The brain acts through the nerves. When the nerves are irritated by tea or coffee drinking the mind often imagines things which have no real existence—such as approaching danger, unfriendly criticism, etc.

A Mich. woman suffered in this way but found how to overcome it. She writes:—

"For twenty years I drank coffee thinking it would give me strength when tired and nervous.

"The more coffee I drank, the more tired and nervous I became until I broke down entirely. Then I changed my work from sewing to housework. This gave me more exercise and was beneficial, but I kept on drinking coffee—thought I could not do without it.

"I was so nervous at times that if left alone I would not go from one room to another for fear someone would grab me, and my little children had to go around on tiptoe and speak in whispers.

"Finally an attack of the grip weakened me so my nerves rebelled and the smell even of coffee was nauseating. Then my husband prepared some Postum for me, believing the long use of coffee had caused my break down, so that my head and hands shook like the palsy.

"At first I did not like Postum but 'I kept on drinking it and as we learned how to make it right according to directions on pkg., I liked it as well as coffee.

"Occasionally we make coffee when we have guests and give it to the children too, but as soon as they taste it they return their cups for Postum. Now I go anywhere in the house day or night and never think of anyone grabbing me and the children can romp as healthy children should—my nerves are all right." "There's a Reason."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Cheap Power Question Again

Toronto Despatch—It is expected that Peterborough will shortly approach the Hydro-Electric Power Commission with regard to power. It is proposed to obtain this, if possible, from sources about 20 miles north of the city, and have practically the same plan worked out as at Ottawa. Failing in this, however, the commission may be asked to bring Niagara power to the city. It is thought that perhaps 8,000 h. p. may be used annually.

George St. Congregation Assist St. Jame's to Erect Their New Church

The first time, probably, in the history of any church, the George street Methodist church yesterday devoted all the contributions received during the day to the building fund of the new St. James Methodist church in the south ward. Yesterday was anniversary Sunday, and of course the collections would be large. While it was impossible for the officials to state clearly last night what the total amount for the day was, it was stated that several hundred dollars were received or promised. This together with the $250 already subscribed, by a few members of the congregation will make a very handsome total from the George street Methodists.

The St. James church was started with a subscription list of nearly one thousand dollars, but of course that would not nearly pay for it. The George street and Charlotte street congregations are behind the enterprise and they will see it successfully carried through. The Methodists of the city are very strong and are increasing in numbers and in wealth and they realized the necessity of another place of worship, and they intend to see the new congregation started off with as light a burden as possible.

The precedent established by the George street congregation in devoting the anniversary collections to aid another congregation is a noble one. It is showing the true Christian spirit which unfortunately is so often found lacking in the churches of today. If more real christianity was practised in the church and by the members the work of the church would be accomplished much more easily. The George street Methodists have set a good example and it is to be hoped that other congregations will adopt the same spirit, for it is only by assisting one another and the strong bearing the burdens of the weak that the world will be brought into the fold of the Great Shepherd.

Edward O'Brien Died While on His Way Home

Without a moment's warning Edward O'Brien, about 55 years of age, and a resident of Douro, died on the road home Saturday evening. The deceased came into the city Saturday morning in company with two other farmers and spent the day here. O'Brien traded one of the horses that was driven in and the one he got in exchange played out after going about three miles from the city. It fell in the road and the men could not get it up, so O'Brien was left with the sleigh while the other two went to get assistance. When they came back he was dead. He was taken to Mr. Corkery's farm until yesterday morning when Messrs. Lane & Kano were notified and they brought him into their undertaking establishment. The deceased was a former resident of Peterborough, and is well known here. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Letters to The Editor

Financial Statement

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—In the Review of the 3rd. instant, there appeared a prominent news item comparing an overdraft in the city finances on November 30th. of this year of $12,000 with an overdraft of $109,000 on the same date a year ago and drawing the moral therefrom that the ratepayers evidently made no mistake in electing Mr. Rush as mayor. The article was so unfair and misleading that though seasoned to newspaper criticism I thought it necessary to have the facts set right. I have been waiting since since for the city treasurer to complete his monthly return to the council but in the mean time the editor has been good enough to withdraw any criticism of last year's mayor and council; which might be involved. Truth, however, is always slow to catch up and therefore I would ask you to publish the following summary of this year's finances compared with last year.

In the last mayoralty election the chief charge made against me as mayor for 1907 was that I was extravagant and incapable in the management of the finances of the city and the ratepayers were therefore urged to elect Mr. Rush who was said to be a man capable of managing the finances. It is therefore doubly fair to examine the mayor's record on the financial side. I invite the ratepayers to enquire into the facts and I hope the newspapers will examine them fully and publish the results. Here are one or two for a beginning.

When Mayor Rush took office he found an overdraft of $138,423.45 made up as follows:

Sewers of 1905-6, allotted to City Trust Com'rs $23,000 00
School buildings 49,984 93
Permanent improvements built or completed in 1907 65,413 07
Current account 24 56

The mayor of 1907, supported by the whole council had decided to sell very few of the debentures because of the poor rates obtainable. The new mayor adopted the plan, one could not call it a policy of selling everything at any old price and did sell $190,520 70 worth of debentures at the interest rate of 4 3-4 per cent. What does that mean? It means an increase of 3-4 of one per cent on the rate at which nearly all our debentures have been sold for several years. What does that amount to? It amounts to an addition to each year's taxes for the next thirty years of $1,475 or a total of over $40,000, added to the taxes of the people of this city by the financial wisdom of the present mayor. It may be said that rate will not come down again to 4 per cent. It is down now to 4 1-4 per cent., and if this city had those debentures today they could be sold at a rate which would save $28,000 to the taxpayers compared with the rate at which they were sold in the early part of this year. I invite the mayor to justify such financing over his own signature.

Now as to the current account,—the expenditure of this year's taxes on the year's business. The figures above quoted show that the overdraft about which there was such a howl a year ago amounted on Dec. 31st, to less than $25. But it wasn't even that. After the close of each year there are many adjustments, arrears and accounts to be settled, and the result of the auditors' examination was to show a surplus in the current accounts of 1907 amounting to $6,545.50 So that fearfully extravagant mayor left behind him the largest surplus in the last ten years.

How does the record of the present mayor compare. The statement published a day or two ago after being presented to the council shows a surplus in the current account of $21,140 70. Against this balance there have to be paid in December, firstly, the balances due the School Boards and the City Trust amounting to $21,258.45. and secondly, the usual expenses for the month which last year without paying anything abnormal amounted to $15,053 19. That means that the expenditures directed by the present mayor will exceed the largest tax bill in the history of this city by over $15,000 That means that there will have to be next year a special levy of two mills over and above the present rate to pay the deficit created by one year of Mayor Rush's management. I again invite the mayor over his own signature to justify such financing.

In conclusion Mr. Editor I want to say that I am prepared to discuss the management of the city finances at any public meeting.

Yours sincerely,
R. F. McWILLIAMS.

Mayor Rush Defends Himself

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I notice in the Review of Friday night a letter signed by R. F. McWilliams, which demands some attention on my part, in order to correct its misleading statements, and to give a correct idea of conditions which he misrepresents.

Much is made of the alleged loss sustained by the sale of debentures. There are two points in this connection. First, those debentures could have been sold early in 1907. and should have been sold by the mayor and council of that year. They could have been disposed of at that time at a lower rate of interest and a decided saving effected. If Mr. McWilliams holds me responsible for my connection with the sale of debentures, he must take the responsibility of the neglect which resulted in loss.

Secondly, we had to sell the debentures. If the bank overdraft was so large that the bank insisted that it must be reduced. The debentures had to be sold and were sold on the best possible terms at the time, and by the Finance Committee, not by the mayor. I might say that the bank overdraft at the end of 1907 would not have been nearly as large had less work been done in the line of building sewers on streets where there were no water mains, when material was at its very highest, and labor hard to procure, work being so plentiful that year.

In regard to Mr. McWilliams' alleged deficit at the close of the present year, it is to be said that this amount is very greatly exaggerated. If there should be any deficit it will be due largely to justifiable reasons. It will be accounted for by the fact that the expenditures on streets and bridges was abnormally large.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

AUSTRIA'S ARMY MOVING TO WAR---OUTLOOK IS SERIOUS

U. S. Plans a New Army

Washington, Dec. 12.—The initial movement to carry out a recommendation of the president, was taken today, when Representative Hull, chairman of the committee on military affairs, introduced the bill suggested by the president and prepared under the direction of Mr. Taft, to provide for a volunteer army in time of emergency.

The bill would revise the present law to provide for the raising of a volunteer army which has been described by the president as having been placed on the statute books piecemeal and hurriedly. It is claimed for the bill that it is elastic, and under its provisions a force of 2,000,000 men could be raised as well as one of 50,000.

Seven Years in the Pen. for Hamilton Sleuth

Hamilton, Dec. 12.—William Huckle, superintendent of a private detective agency in this city, was this morning sentenced to seven years in Kingston Penitentiary. He was declared guilty by a jury last night of having attempted to extort money from George Ireland, under pain of threatened prosecution for alleged assault. The jury had recommended mercy.

Judge Snider, in addressing the prisoner, was most emphatic in his condemnation of his conduct.

Huckle has been prominent in an unenviable way for some time. While on a coroner's jury he acted in a queer way and wound up by bringing serious charges against the police, which were not substantiated.

It is also said that he was mixed up in an abduction case in Toronto several years ago, for which the Toronto police still hold a warrant.

For perjury in connection with evidence given concerning a raid on a "crap game," O'Reilly and Burkholder were sentenced to ten months, and Tilden, Baird and Conell to two months each.

Date for Meeting of Parliament Fixed for Jan. 20

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—At today's Cabinet Council it was decided that the first session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada shall open on Wednesday, January 20. It has been thought possible to have an earlier opening of the session, but owing to the unfinished condition of the new wing of the main building it was finally found impossible to have the opening any sooner than the twentieth of next month. It will be the first January opening since 1905, the session following the last general election, when the House assembled on January 11

While Parliament will officially open on January 20, with the election of the Speaker and the swearing-in of the members, the formal ceremonies by his Excellency the Governor-General will, of course, not take place until the day following, Thursday, January 21

It is now conceded that the Speakership will go to Mr. Chas. Marcil, Mr. Hugh Guthrie, of South Wellington, and Mr. McIntyre, of South Perth, are mentioned for the Deputy speakership.

Body Beheaded, Undiscovered for Two Weeks

New York, Dec. 12.—With only the bloody finger prints of the murderer to assist them, the police today are scouring the city for some trace of the man who committed what now appears to be one of the most baffling crimes in the city's criminal history.

His victim, the young woman whose body was found in a padlocked and barricaded apratment at 337 East Eleventh street last night, has not yet been identified, and a most thorough search of the rooms had revealed nothing which will aid the police in their task.

Every distinguishing mark had been removed from the woman's clothing, and pictures had been cut from their frames and burned, together with several pieces of paper which may have borne addresses. On every hand there was to be found evidence of the crafty care used by the murderer to baffle pursuit.

The discovery of the crime came about through the anxiety of the janitress of the flat to collect rent for the apartment, which was nearly two weeks due. Last night the janitress decided to enter the apartment removed their trunks without her knowledge, and the police were called to assist her in opening the padlocked door. When an entrance was forced the woman's body with the head almost severed, was lying on the blood-soaked bed.

The condition of the body indicated that she had been dead about two weeks.

Temperance in Crystal Theatre

The Gospel temperance services in the Crystal Theatre were resumed last night and a large number were present. Dr. D. W. Scott occupied the chair and he expressed his warm sympathy with everything which pertained to the betterment of humanity. Rev. J. G. Potter delivered a splendid temperance address taking his text from Gal. 5; 22-23. He gave reasons for total abstinance and appealed to all who had not yet taken a stand against strong drink to do so now and he exhorted everyone to help the unfortunates who were addicted to the use of liquor.

During the evening Mr. Gordon Wright sang in excellent voice "The Pilot Song."

A Constant Stream of Northern Troops Into Dalmatia District

MASSING MOUNTAIN ARTILLERY

Serious Collision Took Place, Resulting in 80 Casualties

Ragusa, Dalmatia, Dec. 13. — The Ungaro-Croato Navigation Company of Fiume has been ordered to hold a sufficient number of ships in readiness to transport 8,100 troops to Cattaro. Ten big steamships of the Lloyd and Austro-America Navigation Companies have been retained by the Government for the transport of 60,000 troops to the same point.

The vessels are to leave and arrive at night. One left Trieste on Thursday night with 5,000 soldiers on board. The first mail ship of the Ungarovcroato line arrived here from Fiume last Thursday morning. She had 1,400 men on board, also bound for Cattaro.

The Hungarian Railway System to Bosnia has stopped all carrying trade for ten days in order to facilitate the movement of troops via the Brod Railway. The management at Gravosa has orders to keep sufficient wagons constantly in readiness for carrying men toward Herzegovina and Bocche di Cattaro. All station masters and agents of steamship have received authorization to open carefully and study all sealed instructions for the mobilization of troops.

MASSING ARTILLERY.

It is said that fifty pieces of mountain artillery arrived three days ago at Meetkovich, a point at the mouth of the River Uarcota, which commands all communications into Herzegovina.

Here in Dalmatia no orders for mobilization have been received as yet. There is even a very prevalent belief that in the event of war breaking out Dalmatian troops will not be utilized to any great extent at the front as the authorites have not sufficient confidence in these Serbo-Croatian forces to use them against the Serbo-Montenegrin armies. Hence the constant stream of northern troops into Dalmatia.

Dedication of the New Lakefield Methodist Church

The dedication of the new Methodist church at Lakefield will take place Friday afternoon at three o'clock when Rev. Mr. Bartlett will be the special preacher. He will be assisted by the local and also other outside ministers. The afternoon ceremony will be followed by a banquet and programme in the evening. Quite a number from this city will attend.

Chimney Fire

Just as church was being dismissed and the streets were crowded last night a fire alarm was sent in from box 23, and the fire brigade responded in quick time. The chimney at the rear of the American Hotel was on fire and was blazing very nicely. It was caused by the furnace expelling the soot. No damage was done however.

Cause and Effect

Many Thoughtful Enough to Study Themselves

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of Cause and Effect in their daily food. A N.Y. young woman writes her experience thus:—

"Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly, and as a last resort I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

"The Policy of Standing Still is the Popular One Today," Rev. Crossley

"The policy of standing still is the popular one today. There are There are more people standing still than going forward. What a multitude there are who are ready to fold their arms and sit down and take it easy." These are a few of the things Rev. Mr. Crossley of Whitby, told the people in the George street Methodist church last night.

Yesterday was anniversary Sunday in that church and Rev. Mr. Crossley occupied the pulpit both morning and evening and it was graced by a very large congregation at both services. In the evening he took as his text:—"Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Exodus 14;15

Forward and not backward should be the motto of every man and woman connected with the church. In nine cases out of ten in which difficulties have been overcome, great things achieved and victories won it has been by a forward movement. We must also take the forward step ourselves. We can do a great deal and should not ask or expect God to help us until we have done our best. He will do and we have every right to expect him to do what is necessary and what we cannot do alone.

Then the Reverend Mr. Crossley referred to the policy of standing still being the popular one today, and herein lies the greatest danger of the church. It is the duty of every christian to go forward and do their best to stamp out everything that is evil. The forward movement is just as necessary for our spiritual welfare as for our's material advancement.

A reference was made to the local option campaign being waged, and to the deaths of three men in Whitby in one week being due to liquor. In Peterborough, the reverend gentleman stated, was an ideal place to work for God and to do good. Here there are so many people who need help that no christian need be idle for a moment, and he urged all to go forward and help win all nations to christianity.

Lady was Carried off by Balloon while at a Fair

Kingston, N.Y., Dec. 13.—The interesting case of Mrs. Mary S. Roper, of Brooklyn, who, through becoming entangled in the guide rope, made an involuntary balloon ascension at the fair of the Ulster County Agricultural Society in the summer of 1906, was begun in the supreme court today. The complainant demands $25,000 damages, but the society, while admitting that the exhibition in which she figured was probably the most sensational that ever set the nerves of a holiday crowd on edge, nevertheless asserts that Mr. Roper really spoiled the show by eclipsing the art of the hired aeronaut.

The fair committee had engaged M. A Dailey, a professional, of Middletown, to make an ascension, and as the crowd that gathered about the inflating bag was Mrs. Roper. Suddenly the balloon shot upwards. The cheers that had greeted Miss Dailey's bye-bye of "up in a balloon, boys," died on the lips of the horrified thousands at the unannounced spectacle of Mrs. Roper, suspended by one ankle from a rope attached to the basket. As the bag was released, the trailing rope had taken a half twist about the complainant's ankle, and she found herself being pulled violently along the ground. In a desperate effort to free herself, a little finger was fortunately caught in a loop of the tightening rope.

Suspended from ankle and finger 30 feet below the basket, Mrs. Roper, it is alleged, rose 400 feet in the air and while other women fainted at the sight, sailed along for half a mile until the aeronaut, by skilful manoeuvring, brought the balloon and its burden safely to the ground.

Mrs. Roper will tell the jury of her accidental flight on Monday.

Obituary

MARGARET BUTLER.

The death occurred Friday night at her late residence, 282 Woodbine avenue, of Margaret Butler, wife of Mr. J. F. Dungman. The deceased had been suffering some time with a lingering disease. She was 46 years of age and was for many years a resident of Peterborough. Besides her husband one daughter is left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

JOHN FRANCIS.

Very suddenly and after only a few days illness John Francis, who resided at the corner of Thomas and Bolivar Sts., died Saturday evening at ten o'clock. He was taken ill a week ago Friday night but at first nothing serious was anticipated until during the week he became worse. He was in his 40th year, and leaves a wife and three small children to mourn his loss and to these is extended the sympathy of the community. The deceased came to Peterborough from Hastings about two years ago and engaged in the moulding shop of Green's foundry, where he proved to be a capable employe. He was a prominent member of the Hastings lodge of Oddfellows, and the Peterborough lodges will take charge of the funeral on Tuesday afternoon. Interment will take place at Little Lake cemetery.

Wedding Bells

The marriage of Miss Mabel Chapman, daughter of Mr. Thomas Chapman, city, to Mr. John W. Foster, of Smith township, son of Mr. Wm. H. Foster, of Smith, was quietly solemnized Thursday night at St. John's rectory. Rev. Canon Davidson officiated. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were in attendance. The bride was attended by Miss Ruby Foster, sister of the groom. Both the bride and groom are well known in the city and were employed for some time at the Canadian Cordage Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster will reside in Smith.

Press Club was Entertained by Mr. J. H. Burnham

On Saturday night the Press Club was entertained by Mr. J. H. Burnham, editor of the Review, in his apartments. The "pencil pushers" were out in force and had a thoroughly enjoyable evening and Mr. Burnham proved himself a model host.

It is so seldom that the hard worked and much abused scribes are entertained that they appreciate it and cannot refrain from expressing that appreciation.

If any other gentleman or gentlemen desire to give the newspaper men a pleasant evening and thus lighten their heavy burden of cares it might be mentioned that Saturday night is the most convenient as we are all faithful church goers and also followers of the old proverb of "early to bed and early to rise." What's that? I hearing like a bid for next Saturday night. What! Another one! Oh, hold on now; one at a time, please. There is only one Saturday night per week. However, we are glad that so many citizens of Peterborough appreciate the efforts of the humble few who strive to keep them informed of the world's doings. We delight in a good feed. It is something new to have a square meal and it is certainly a change from the usual crust of bread and cup of coffee.

Too Much Soda Water Caused Men to Quarrel, One Man was Stabbed

Too much "oh be joyful," is not the best thing for a person and to some it is very bad for the temper. Such proved to be the case of two men from near Bridgenorth, who spent Saturday in the city. They had partaken freely of "Christmas cheer," and were in the best of spirits when they started for home. But as they neared home and the soda water and lemon juice began to take effect the pair started to quarrel, which is quite a natural result of the mixture referred to. The wordy war soon developed into a more serious affair and one of the men drew a knife and cut his companion several times about the head and face. A local doctor was called and he found a bad cut on the cheek, one on the forehead and one or two other small cuts. He dressed the wounds and nothing serious will result. However it should be a very good temperance lecture to the two men.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

A WARNING TO DAIRYMEN

One of the Scottish Agricultural Commissioners who recently visited Canada has, since his return home, says the Toronto Weekly Sun, stated in a public address that the stables in which some of Ontario dairy cows are kept are not as clean as they ought to be. This statement was followed up by the suggestion that the British dairy farmers, who are met in the home market by cheese and butter sent from Canada, might be justified in urging the British Government to call upon the Canadian authorities to enforce a system of inspection in Canada as rigorous as that in force in connection with dairying in the Old Country.

The warning should not pass unheeded. Some Ontario dairymen are inclined to complain of the system of inspection already in force in this Province. They would have a good deal more reason for complaint if, as a result of lack of inspection, a stop was put to the sale of Canadian dairy products in Great Britain. Our dairy industry is absolutely dependent for its existence on the British market, and everything necessary must be done to prevent access to that market from being placed in jeopardy.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

A Rather Novel Complaint.

An English traveler once met a companion sitting in a state of the most woeful despair and apparently near the last agonies by the side of one of the mountain lakes of Switzerland. He inquired the cause of his sufferings. "Oh," said the latter, "I was very hot and thirsty and took a large draft of the clear water of the lake and then sat down on this stone to consult my guidebook. To my astonishment, I found that the water of this lake is very poisonous! Oh, I am a gone man; I feel it running all over me. I have only a few minutes to live! Remember me to"—

"Let me see the guidebook," said his friend. Turning to the passage, he found, "L'eau du lac est bien poissoneuse" (The water of this lake abounds in fish).

"Is that the meaning of it?"

"Certainly."

The dying man looked up with a radiant countenance. "What would have become of you," said his friend, "if I had not met you?"

"I should have died of imperfect knowledge of the French language."

BEAUTY'S BACKGROUND.

Lady Auckland Has a New Notion About House Furnishings.

Lady Auckland, who has opened an antique furniture shop in London, has a theory that a woman's beauty depends no more on her skin, hair, bearing or even dress than it does on her background, her surroundings. She must have her house furnished to match her complexion.

"The paintings of the old masters are the best guide to artistic furnishing," says Lady Auckland. "They never made the mistake of picturing a woman with a background that didn't suit her coloring. Most modern portrait painters are wise enough to consider the sitter's type when devising the background. In a portrait of a woman I know all the settings are of soft brown velvets and tawny furs, just lighted by the gleam of the gold chair she sits in and of a tall copper vase at her side. It brought out and yet harmonised with her eyes and hair. Yet that woman has the ill taste to have her drawing rooms furnished in blue. They don't exactly quarrel with her coloring, but they make her just commonplace. In the picture she is distinguished simply because of those tawny browns about her.

"The woman who has Titian red hair must have a Titianesque background of soft ruby and gold velvets. The pastel girl, with her pale golden hair and light blue eyes, would be extinguished in a room of warm colors. Settings of pastel blues, pinks or greens, on the contrary, bring her out and make her lovely and alluring. It is perfectly marvelous that women don't consider their coloring more in furnishing their homes. That's why they need beauty specialists to do it for them."

"But what are people to do," asked a listener, "when there are daughters who differ in their complexions? Shall papa furnish the drawing rooms to suit the pastel daughter or the Titian daughter? Shall he buy draperies to 'go with' the blond or the brunette?"

"That would be a problem," replied the beauty specialist.

DESIGN FOR DOOR PANEL.

Made of Lace Braid on Net in Marie Antoinette Effect.

Door panels or curtains of lace add much to the attractive appearance of entrance doors, and, though the initial cost of the lace panels may be somewhat more than silk curtains of similar size, the purchase is justified by the fact that the lace will long outwear the cheaper material and, with ordinary care, will look well to the end of its existence.

This large oblong panel is easily made by a woman fond of fancy work.

AN OBLONG PANEL.

It measures twenty-six inches in length and is just half a yard wide, but both length and width can be considerably increased by letting the net extend far from six to eight or even ten inches all around beyond the outside row of braid. The little lace roses and sprays of flowers and leaves may be made in the hand before being basted on the pattern, right side down. After all the braid is carefully basted in place the net is basted smoothly over the pattern and sewed down to the braid just as in the well known Marie Antoinette work.—Delineator

Leonardo's "Last Supper."

At the request of many artists A. L. Wolynski, the Russian art critic, has been made an honorary citizen of Milan in recognition of his work on Leonardo da Vinci. The letter in which the "unusual honor" is mentioned in Figaro speaks also of the process by which Professor Luigi Cavenaghi hopes to arrest the disintegration of Leonardo's "Last Supper." "The whole surface of the great fresco in Santa Maria della Gratia," says the writer, "is a series of flakes which represent the painting, and every flake that falls is so much of the masterpiece. Cavenaghi is using a transparent glue with which he hopes to fasten all the loose pieces to their original places, and when that laborious task is completed the cleaning of the picture may take place. Even when restored the fresco will be only a reminiscence of the artist and will not show whether he painted the central figure with or without a beard."

Richest Family in Europe.

It is not generally known that the imperial family of Russia is the richest royal family in Europe and derives its vast wealth from three sources—the state treasury, the imperial domains (formerly church lands) and the so called "cabinet properties." A writer in Harper's Weekly gives some interesting facts. The state treasury pays out $7,000,000 per annum for the needs of the imperial house, principally for the maintenance of the palaces and the officials and servants attached to them. The reigning empress, for example, has an allowance of $100,000 per year and the dowager empress the same. Every child born to the czar receives from birth to the age of twenty-one nearly $20,000 a year, while the heir to the throne receives annually, in addition to the maintenance of palaces [illegible] Daughters receive a dowry of [illegible] rubles when they marry.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash val es in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California M ther Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, a d which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery a installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine oppor unity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, ndustrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 y are more.

Matthews understood. "By ——, I done my best!" he cried. "Y' can't come any of that on me, Braden!"

"Keep on your shirt, Nick; keep on your shirt. I looked into this thing at Bismarck, and under the law you ain't got one right. Lancaster owns that bend, and if I pay him out of my own money why ain't it square?"

The interpreter hung his head.

"Of course," Braden went on, "I'd rather divvy. I can see he's one of them greedy old ducks that's hard to talk money with. Maybe you can think up how to get the land back."

Matthews leaned close. "I had a scheme"—he nodded south in the direction of Medicine mountain—"but the reds can't come. I had t' go slow. There's women in th' fambly. Nat'lly all the men up and down the Muddy want t' see Lancaster stay. There's been a dude fr'm Bismarck here off and on—tony cuss, sleeps between sheets, nice about his paws as a cat. He's been ready t' tattle or roll a gun."

Braden sniffed. "What trick 's be played?"

Matthews evaded the question. "I seen one of the Clark outfit," he continued, "and tried t' git him t' bother old limpy. Says I, 'They's stealin' your slow elk down there.' Wasn't any use. 'Thunderation!' says the cow punch. 'You mean that bull? He was a yearlin' when he come to 'em. That's maverick age.'"

Braden sneered. "Such a kid!" he murmured. "Why didn't you lay low and not go butting down their door? Why didn't you lose the old man and anub up one of the girls—marry her? Big one's a rip snortin' beauty; pert, by jingo, as a prairie dog!"

"She'd send me a-flyin'," urged Matthews. "But th' little one"—

"Sure! You're a good looker—handsome—if you'd fix yourself up some."

"If I could git rid of the old man! If I could! Aw, come t' think, what I got that lout of a brother for? Easy—with Indians to lay it on. Blaze the way for 'Babe'—he's a sapbead—but he knows enough to follow a spotted line."

"Go careful."

"I'll try to scare 'em off."

"Huh! Folks that ain't afraid to come this far in a schooner, Indians or no Indians, ain't likely to stampede at one white."

"You don't know how I mean."

"Go ahead. No use our brayin' like starved jackasses. Do somethin'. You was a fool to ever let 'em winter."

Matthews clinched his fists. "Well," he said, "they won't winter again!"

CHAPTER XX.

DAVID BOND was on his knees in the bed of his wagon beneath the high board cross. Before him he held an open Bible, but he was not reading. His head was uncovered. His beard was lifted. His eyes closed in prayer. Beside him knelt Squaw Charley, with hands pressed together, as if reverent, with shoulders bent lower than their wont, with shifting, downward look. North of the barracks on the road that led from the steamer landing the two had met in the early hours to say goodby.

Swift on the first hint of coming trouble the evangelist had made ready for his long journey to the west. Shadrach was shod, his master fitting the plates to the shaggy hoofs. The runners were taken from the green box and replaced by the red wheels. Canned food, salted meat, hard tack and forage were boxed or sacked at the sutler's. The harness was greased. A new nail was driven home through the base of the sagging cross.

During these preparations the post joined in an effort to damp the aged preacher's hopes and to check his going. He was needed at Brannon, they said, so that the regiment could be rid of Matthews. His belief that he could talk peace terms to the hostiles was ludicrous. As for the Jamieson women, they were dead or they would have been returned long since to save the four condemned from hanging. And his own life was to be uselessly endangered. Already out upon the prairie Indian scouts were keeping watch. He might be able, though alone and unarmed, to pass them and reach the coulees beyond, but he would only fall into the murderous clutches of the savages swarming there.

David Bond smiled when they argued. His faith was as firm as the bluffs that ramparted the fort, and his old heart was unafraid. With him against the rest ranged two men—Robert Fraser and young Jamieson. They believed, as he did, that, knowing the tongue and having friends among the Sioux, he would be in no peril; that by now the captive mother and daughter were on American ground again and would be given over to his care more readily than to another's; that the arrival of troops before the enemy's camp would be fraught with risk for the defenseless two and that an attempt to take them by force would be their death signal.

Colonel Cummings was harrowed by Jamieson's months of anguish and illness and angered by the indifference and dawdling of the captors in the face of his demand and threat. His heart was set upon punishment now, not treaty. He felt that he was being played with, and he longed to find the red Sioux and thrash them soundly. A word about the evangelist's trip put him out of patience. He regarded it as futile and rash. Yet he did not forbid it. He dared not, for there was Jamieson's old-young face and whitening head and a hidden spark of hope that would not die.

He owed it to his conscience and position, however, to discourage David Bond. "There will be sharp fighting this summer," he told him. "A hundred good men like you couldn't stop it. The cause lies too deep, and it is too well founded. In the matter of the women you will also fail. They did not come as the price of four chiefs. Will they come because you ask for them politely? They won't. And you will be slaughtered."

"Then I shall die in a noble cause," answered the preacher simply. "The Indians know me. I am their friend. I have spent my life with them, taught them, advised, converted. What is all my labor worth, colonel, if I cannot go among them in times of distress?"

"Worth this," said the colonel, "that you should know when to use your common sense. I tell you, you will meet with treachery. Friend or no friend, this year the Indians are hunting scalps."

"I put my trust in God," murmured David Bond.

"Don't put your trust in redskins," retorted Cummings crossly. Whereupon he tramped away.

"Waste of breath—nothing else," he declared to his wife. "I'm clean put out with the old fellow. He's daft on going. Now, why doesn't he stay here instead of sticking his throat to the knife? There's plenty to do; but, no, off he must rush on a wild goose chase. Well, he'll have one mark that! He's

THE ACT OF DYING.

Reasons For Believing That It Is an Easy Matter.

The mere ultimate process of dying may be a relatively easy matter. Any person who has been long ill probably suffers more on any given day of his life than he will suffer in the act of departing from his body. It is probable that a broken bone, a delirious fever, a disordered vital organ, may cause more anguish than the final struggle. I have my doubts whether the last pang is as bad as it seems, declares Elisabeth Stuart Phelps in Harper's Bazar. We are told by surgeons that chloroformed patients may give apparent evidence of acute agonies which they do not feel. Death itself is often an anaesthetic so merciful that what people call "living trouble" is obviously a worse matter.

I, for instance, who have never fainted and never been anaesthetized in my life, have twice become from serious causes unconscious for a short time, and I have often wished that I could make over to some recoiling soul whose name has been heard ringing upon the last roll call the unspeakable comfort which that brief experience has given me. There was no pang, no terror, no time, no chance, for either. One seemed to glide gently and swiftly down a warm abyss, flower scented, grass grown, safe and beneficent, into unutterable content. One melted into peace. One drifted into ecstasy beside which the deepest joys of consciousness are poor, pale things.

If one in truth should evade the body in such a moment, death would stand chosen as the supreme delight of living.

HIS THREE WIVES.

They Were All in One Picture, but Did Not Stay There.

Allan Cunningham in his "Lives of British Painters" tells a story of Copley, the father of Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst, which reveals what a portrait painter endures from the vanity and eccentricity of his sitters.

A certain man had himself, his wife and seven children painted by Copley in a family piece.

"It wants but one thing," said the man on seeing the finished picture, "and that is the portrait of my first wife. This one is my second."

"But," replied the artist, "she is dead. What can I do? She must come in as an angel."

"Oh, no; no angels for me. She must come in as a woman."

The portrait was added, but several months elapsed before the man again called at Copley's studio, and when he did a strange lady held on to his arm.

"I must have another sketch from your hand, Copley," said he. "An accident befell my second wife. This lady is my third, and she has come to have her likeness included in the family picture."

The painter introduced the likeness of wife No. 3, and the man expressed himself satisfied with the p

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, mean nary to excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure

"ALL DEALERS"

His three spouses. But the lady remonstrated. Never was such a thing heard of. Her predecessors must go. The artist painted them out. Then the man disputed the price. Copley sued him, and his son, the future Lord Lyndhurst, signalised his call to the bar by gaining his father's cause.

A Sad Dream.

It is not likely that any English speaking people understand so keen and punctilious a devotion to the niceties of language as that which characterises the French grammarians. We may help ourselves to understand it perhaps by reading a story told of M. Lamany.

One night he awoke and sprang out of bed with a wild cry. His wife came running. He was in alarm and de-

Saving Work.

In the home of one woman where single beds are in general use the spreads are made of honeycomb material bought by the yard and hemmed. They are easy to wash and require no ironing. In the same home cream white madras is used for bedroom window draperies because of its good wearing qualities. It comes out of the wash with dying colors. She trims them with ball fringe and does not have them wrung very dry and wrung by hand, of course, as the wringer would flatten the little balls. She uses small rugs all through her house save the dining room, because they can be taken outdoors every week by the one maid of the establishment. Another woman saves work by having her luncheon brought to her sitting room on a tray, and another, belonging to a family that seems doomed to perpetual mourning attire, supplies her maid with very light cotton dresses in white and black because there is already too much gloom in the house.

A Photography Hint.

With a fixed focus camera the endeavor should be to get the principal objects in a good light and at such a distance from the camera that they will be nicely rendered without the necessity of stopping down the lens. The distance will take care of itself, and the foreground, too, unless there be any very prominent feature in it, when the picture is likely to suffer by unsightly diffusion or a want of sharpness.

With ordinary good fortune as regards weather and subjects, the amateur photographer who proceeds with intelligence can bring back a collection of excellent pictures, even though she has never used a camera before, and the pleasure to be derived by looking from time to time to these reminiscences of some weeks at a delightful country or seaside resort will be such that she will not readily go away in the future without an instrument which so readily records the chief incidents of a holiday.

Salt in Cooking.

If one portion of a vegetable is cooked in pure water, the other half in salted water, a decided difference is perceptible in the tenderness of the two. Those boiled in pure water are vastly inferior and in many cases will be almost tasteless. Salt brings out the delicate flavor of cauliflower, cabbage, potatoes, peas, beans and practically all vegetables. Onions cooked in water without salt can be rendered almost tasteless. As salt increases the temperature of boiling water, its cooking advantage is at once apparent. Salt in cold water is used to drive insects from vegetables growing above ground.

Small Postoffices.

Perhaps the smallest postoffice in Scotland is that of Berriedale, Caithness. The postoffice proper is so small that it only gives room for the operator and the machine. Notwithstanding its smallness, it is one of the most important in the north, as it is the receiving and despatching office for all the telegraphic communications of his Grace the Duke of Portland, whose famous Langwell mansion is only 200 yards away. Another small postoffice is Hartwood, which is only capable of accommodating two persons.

Corporation's Bad Investment.

For some years the Glasgow Corporation has held 300,000 square yards of unused lands, suitable for building, in the hope that the value might increase. The movement of people to outlying suburbs has now increased to such an extent and the holding has become so great a burden that a committee decided recently to recommend the corporation to put the land on the market.

To stop any pain in 20 minutes, take one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. See formula on the box. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about this formula. It can't be bettered. Woman's pains, head pains, any pain gets instant relief. Box of twenty Pink Pain Tablets, 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Curious Church Vane.

One of the most curious vanes to be seen on a church is that at Great Gonerby, a parish adjoining Grantham. It is in the form of a fiddle and a bow, and is unusually large. Its history is a curious one. Many years ago a peasant resided in Great Gonerby, who eked out a modest livelihood by performing on an old violin, which was almost a part of his life. At last he decided to emigrate, and out in the Far West prospered and became a rich man. One day he sent to the clergyman at Great Gonerby a sum sufficient to build a church, and attached to the gift the curious condition that a metal replica of his old fiddle and bow should be on the summit of the edifice. The gift was accepted, and the vane may still be seen on the church.

A Narrow "Street."

The town of Great Yarmouth contains a street that well may be considered the narrowest built-up street in the world. The thoroughfare is known as "Kitty Witches" Row, and measurement gives its greatest width as 56 inches. The entrance would seriously inconvenience a stout person, as 29 inches is all that is spared from wall to wall. The town contains many such streets as "Kitty Witches."

CROUP

THERE IS NOTHING that strikes terror to the hearts of parents more than to be awakened in the night by the ringing cough which accompanies an attack of croup. The child may retire with nothing but a slight cold and a few hours later the family be aroused by the ominous symptoms. Every home where there are small children should be prepared for these sudden attacks, as prompt treatment is necessary. Do not experiment with remedies of doubtful value, but get that has been in use for nearly forty years and never known to fail.

Mr. Homer Krohn, of Lisbon, Iowa, in a letter to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praises this medicine for what it has done for his children. He says: "It has not only saved them once but many a time. Only two weeks ago my boy had the croup so bad in the night that had it not been for having a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house he would have choked before a doctor could have gotten to the house. It is a medicine that no one should be without at any time." It is pleasant to take and many children like it.

"We guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says W. M. Parish, Palmerston, Ontario. "Out of the many bottles sold last winter not one was returned. We recommend it especially for children with croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its prompt cures of coughs, colds and croup. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse an attack of croup may be averted. This medicine is entirely free from narcotics or injurious substances of any kind and may be given to the little ones with absolute safety.

Attacks of croup are most likely to occur during the early winter months, and every family with young children should be prepared for it. Keep a bottle of CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY in your home. It only costs a quarter, large size 50 cents. Your druggist sells it.

Appetite Gone---Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified in Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter merely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs Wilson of Waimore, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, billiousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me., and for the past eight months my health was once perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring, vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to bring renewed activity and strength to every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Defends Himself defensably large for two reasons—the people have the benefit in the improvements represented by the expenditure, and the ratepayers were given employment. During the season as many as fifteen unemployed persons visited my office in one day asking for work. Was it better to spend considerable sums of the people's money in charity, or to give citizens employment on work on the streets which would, at least represent value to the taxpayers? Then there were besides other considerable expenditures for which value was received, and which add to the total of the amount chargeable to this year's expenditure, and which will go to make a deficit at the end of the year, if there should prove to be one.

Of this fact there is a considerable doubt. The estimated deficit of $15,000 of ex-Mayor McWilliams, is liable to very great reduction. There will be to set against his estimate, $13,000 of uncollected taxes, of which between $11,000 and $12,000 may be available. Other incoming amounts will offset liabilities to a sufficient extent to remove any fear of a considerable deficit, which, if any, will be of comparatively small amount.

I do not wish to argue the question merely to state the facts as they exist. The facts seem to me to show that this year's council acted to the best of its ability in protecting the city's interests in the matter of the sale of debentures forced upon it by the urgency of the bank and the neglect of last year's council. Under the circumstances the overdraft on account of street expenditure was justified by the conditions. It was a case of either charity or work and myself and the council preferred the expenditure of money for value received.

In conclusion, I may emphasize two points: the council of 1908 disposed of, to the best advantage, debentures which could, and should, have been sold a year before by the council of 1907, on terms which have prevented the loss represented by the practically forced sale of this year. The large overdraft on the streets was caused by giving employment to labor which gave substantial returns, instead of paying out money in charity, which would have tended to pauperise honest and worthy citizens resting under the disadvantage of went of employment.

I might remark that last year's council arranged with the bank for current accommodation at a rate of six per cent. for 1908. This year's council has arranged with the bank for the accommodation of 1908 at five per cent.

Yours faithfully,
H. RUSH.

... The ... Coward

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

"I must give you back your freedom. I will not tell you why, because you would call my reasons absurd. In justice to you it must be so. Try to forgive me." So wrote Jack Brierson when he broke his engagement, and Miss Abernethy pressed her white lips together scornfully and sent back the betrothal ring by registered mail in a very practical manner.

Then because the long, enervating spring days had robbed her cheeks of their wonted bloom and the germs of a convenient "malaria" had dulled the brightness of her brown eyes Rose Abernethy's guardian aunt carried her bodily away into the bracing Adirondack region, where they lived the simple life of the woods and inhaled vigor and peace with the sweet air.

Gradually the cynical lines faded from Rose's face, and when the summer brought a greater influx of visitors to the large hotels she found herself back in that whirl of pleasure of which she had always necessarily been a part.

One afternoon she went to her favorite retreat on the brink of the Falling hill, where a huge bowlder under the pines afforded a comfortable seat.

Here she had come every day to witness the glorious pageantry of the sunset, and her joy in its recurring splendor was always tinged with dread of the sheer precipice that yawned at her feet.

Now she was reveling in the solitude of the spot when slow, hesitating steps broke the silence. She turned as a man came into view, parting the bushes with a familiar brown hand. It was Jack Brierson.

Apparently he did not see her, for he continued his faltering advance almost to the very edge of the hill. Then he stopped and looked away toward the west with level eyes and a face so stilled from all emotion that its very tenseness was eloquent of pain.

Rose Abernethy's face paled as she watched him curiously. It seemed very strange to be watching Jack at this remote distance with that empty feeling in her heart and brain. She didn't even hate him. Some girls might have done so after being jilted, but somehow she didn't care. She leaned forward breathlessly as he suddenly raised the light stick which he carried and made another step toward the brink of the precipice.

"LET GO!" HE SAID HOARSELY. "YOU ARE RISKING YOUR LIFE!"

"Don't!" she cried involuntarily, and she stepped around the pine and held out a protesting hand.

Brierson turned sharply, and his blank gaze met her own—unrecognizing, indifferent.

"I thought I was alone," he said courteously, removing his hat.

"I—I thought you did not see that you were so near the edge of the precipice," she said in a low tone and with burning cheeks.

He felt about with his stick in a clumsy, unseeing manner and dislodged a stone, which went hurtling down the steep incline with an alarming crackle of twigs and earth. He stood in a listening attitude until the echoes had died away, and then he extended one hand with a helpless gesture.

"I am sorry to trouble you, madam, but—I am blind. Will you kindly turn me about into the safe path?"

Something warm came into the girl's heart as he spoke, and her lips quivered painfully. She laid a small hand on his coat sleeve. As she did so the turf crumbled under his feet, and, with a startled cry, he sank away from her over the brink of the precipice.

Strengthening her grasp on his sleeve as his weight pulled her downward, she threw her strong young body on the ground and clutched with her free hand at the tough branches of a stunted cedar.

"Let go!" he said hoarsely. "You are risking your life!"

"I shall not let go," she replied decisively. "Except for your blindness you are a strong man?"

"Yes," he said impatiently, "but you must release me at once, madam! If I have been foolish enough to jeopardise my own life you must not sacrifice yours!"

"If you are strong you can pull yourself up by the aid of this cedar tree. I will bend it down—so—there! Now, draw yourself up, and I will help you on to firm ground."

Five minutes later he lay panting on the ground at her feet. "I am very grateful"— he began eagerly, when her crisp, cool voice stopped the words on his lips.

"I am more than repaid," she said, with cruel emphasis. "I never met a coward before!"

"A—coward!" he stammered, sitting up and turning his sightless eyes toward her.

"A coward!" she repeated firmly. "You see—I know—Rose Abernethy."

"Ah, you have the advantage of me, madam. Your flattering words indicate that you have some knowledge of my affairs."

His face was very red, and his black brows were drawn together in an angry frown.

"I know enough—to form an opinion," said Miss Abernethy coldly. "I will tell you why I believe you to be a coward if you wish."

He smiled grimly.

"You have been good enough to save a very worthless life. Go on."

"You are a coward because you are afraid to let Rose Abernethy know that you are blind. You denied her the right to share your affliction and to let her money make things easier for you She would gladly have shared her paltry dollars with you."

"You don't understand, whoever you are," he said shortly. "I am a poor man. I had just reached a point where my fortunes depended upon the keenness of every faculty, and this blindness came upon me like a stroke of lightning. I could not ask Rose—beautiful, bright Rose—to play nurse and Lady Bountiful to a miserable blind beggar." He dropped his face in his hands and, forgetful of her presence groaned bitterly.

"You have forgotten her. She had some rights. You could never have really loved her, Mr. Brierson."

He lifted a ghastly face.

"God knows I did, I do, I always shall, but I could not ask her to wait on indefinitely, and I know her unselfish nature, capable of any sacrifice. She would lose youth and everything that goes to make up her joy in life. I could not—I had not the courage to face her and tell her the truth. You are quite right. I am a coward."

There was a long silence after that, while the sun sank behind a distant range and long, cool shadows fell over the two sitting among the pine needles. The man sat with his hands clasped about his knees, while his countenance settled into that impassive calm with which he had first faced the sunset.

The girl watched him with pitying eyes and trembling lips. Twice she parted them to speak, and each time her voice died away in her pretty white throat.

"And the doctors said?" she asked at last.

"That the sight might return as suddenly as it went or a costly operation might effect a cure. Overstrain has paralyzed the optic nerves," he replied without moving.

Rose sprang to her feet, and for the first time that afternoon her voice rang out clear and sweet:

"It is growing late, Jack. Will you take me back to the camp?"

Brierson was beside her instantly with groping hands.

"Rose, Rose," he cried joyfully, "it is you! It has been you all the time?"

"Yes," she said, withdrawing from his touch with a confusion he could not perceive. "You must let me show you the way, and then"—

"And then"—he echoed breathlessly, "and then—you will not leave me—you will forgive my mental blindness and my cowardice?"

"You do not need me," she ventured wistfully.

"Ah, dear heart, I did not know how much I needed you!" he cried remorsefully. "You will forgive my brutality and show me the way to happiness once more?" He turned appealing, sightless eyes and beseeching hands toward her.

She placed her hand in his. "Come, Jack," she said.

Laughing Gas For Poets.

Sir Humphry Davy was the first to inhale nitrous oxide. His experiment was the result of a report published by a brother chemist that laughing gas, called by him oxide of septon, was the cause and basis of all contagion. Cautious experiments made with the diluted gas produced no ill effects, and Davy proceeded to inhale considerable quantities of the pure gas. Contrary to his expectations, the effects were highly pleasurable. Thrills of pleasure pervaded his body, and his mind was filled with ideas and emotions of the most exalted kind, which, however, were very indistinct when the effect of the gas passed off. It occurred to Sir Humphry Davy that the gas might be useful in promoting poetic inspiration, and he accordingly tried writing verse while under its influence, but the recorded result hardly shows a close connection between the divine afflatus and nitrous oxide. Davy's experiments had the effect of making the inhalation of laughing gas for a time highly fashionable, so that in 1802 a French writer alludes to it as having become a national vice in England.

Dutch Capture a Guard Ship

Willemstadt, Curacao, Dec. 14.—The Dutch cruiser Gelderland ventured under the guns of the forts at Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, Saturday, and captured the Venezuelan coasting guard ship Alix. The latter was brought into port this morning, manned by a prize crew of Dutch sailors. Not a gun was fired at the Gelderland from the forts and the crew of the Alix were sent ashore in their own boats, upon orders from the commander of the Dutch warship.

Reports reached here from Venezuela by the steamer Maracaibo today that revolutionists have taken advantage of the absence of President Castro, and brought about an uprising in the interior of the country.

The Governor of Curacao do s not regard the capture of the Alix as being tantamount to a declaration of war by Holland against Venezuela. He said this afternoon;

FIRST KILLED HER PARENTS

She is Now a Most Successful Teacher of the Blind in Philadelphia

It is a far cry from the darkest confines of Central Asia, where the brigands and nomads of the most remote plains of China roam today as their fathers have roamed from time immemorable, to a professorship in one of the most scientific institutions in the world, but that has been the rise of Miss Jessie Dought Gutzloff of Overbrook, Pa.

Miss Gutzloff is a Chinese woman. She was born something over half a century ago in the middle of the Chinese Empire. When she was a baby a wandering band of rob ers raided the little village that was her birthplace, put to pieces her parents, put out her eyes and left her to die.

Rescued by a missionary, the baby lived to become one of the most remarkable women that her nation has ever produced. Today she is an instructor of the blind and proofreader at the Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind at Overbrook, a suburb of Philadelphia, and the wonderful success of her education, as well as her usefulness, goes far to disprove the oft-repeated assertion that the mind of the Oriental is not susceptible to Western influence. Even the instructors who wrought the marvelous development of Helen Keller can hardly claim a greater success than has been achieved here.

Not only is Miss Gutzloff thoroughly educated and adept in the usual arts and sciences of the academic curriculum, but she is also a first-class type-writer, an expert telegrapher and an accomplished musician, but she is artistic to a high degree, her fancy needlework, with its perfect symmetry and remarkable harmony of coloring being the envy of experts in that line who are possessed of sight. In fact, to her wonderful versatility she owes the distinction of being the first Oriental woman to occupy a teacher's position in a public institution in the United States and probably in the English-speaking world.

Born in Central China of Chinese parents, Miss Gutzloff has a slight recollection of her childhood. Indistinctly she remembers that with several other children (there were seven others in fact), all of whom had been blinded by the bloodthirsty bandits who raided the village of Mu Cao, she was rescued and taken to the coast by missionaries. Later she was adopted and brought to the United States by the wife of the Rev. Dr. Charles Gutzloff, an English Episcopal missionary, the purpose being to have the educated Chinese girl return to her native land as Mrs. Gutzloff's co-worker among the blind of the Celestial Empire. After a year's study in the Institute for the Blind at Columbus, Ohio, however, death claimed the girl's benefactress, and she was commetted to the care of a wealthy gentleman named Chapin, who transferred his protege to an institution at Geneva, N.Y., where she remained for two years. Later she was sent to an institution for the higher education of the blind at New York city, where her proficiency in all branches of study attracted widespread attention and resulted in procuring for her, at the instance of a Mr. Douglas, whose name she bears, a trust fund sufficiently large to insure her a thorough education in the higher academic branches.

TEACHES AMERICAN PUPILS.

Nor was her education along industrial lines neglected. She attained such profeiency in the art of needle-

Jumps from Poverty to $36,000 Fortune

Toronto, Dec. 14.—There is one Englishman in Toronto, whose lot while here has not been among rose bushes, but for whom the present winter has suddenly lost all the terror of its predecessors. On Saturday he learned that his wife had just come into an inheritance of about $36,000, and he is now awaiting her arrival from the Old Country. His name is John Wyatt, of 431 Adelaide street west, and he is employed as an assistant in mailing a daily paper's Sunday edition. He has been in Toronto several years, and his experience, he says, leads him to believe that this country is not flowing over with milk and honey.

"It looks now though as if all my troubles were at an end," he said in discussing his fortune. "It's not a great a surprise as most of my friends suppose. My wife and I always knew of the estate's existence; it was held by her grandmother, Mrs. Oliver, and is scattered throughout England. But of course we didn't know how much of it was coming to us, seeing that we were only one of six beneficiaries.

"The will indicating the value of the estate at £45,000, has been filed and probated now, however, and each of the six receive an equal amount. They are Miss Reid, postmistress at Maddenham, Suffolk, England; Mr. Thomas Reid, tailor, Seeplecladon, Bucks; Mr. Fred Reid, farmer on the estate of Sir Fred Verney, Steeplecladon; Mrs. Francis, Maddenham; Mr. Wyatt's wife, who resides in Reading, England, and Mrs. Bathe, of Winslow, a cousin.

"'My information about the disposition of the estate did not come from my wife,' he intimated. 'This is the letter, and it's from a friend that went over to England recently. He investigated the matter at my request. My wife, I think, is planning a surprise on me, for I have reason to believe that she is coming out now, although she did not let me know of any such intention."

"What are you going to do with the money?" he was asked.

"That will depend a good deal on the wife. I am quite satisfied with the work I am doing now, but if she is willing I suppose we will both go west. There are, I think, better opportunities for investing a little money out there, than in Toronto. What pleases me more than anything else though, is the fact that I need no longer be afraid of dying from starvation."

Will Throw Hurtubise Twice in One Hour

A short time ago a letter was received from Charlie Kaiser, of Auburn. The letter was published, and the writer offered to take on Hurtubise in a best two out of three catch as catch can bout. The letter which appears below was received this morning and Hurtubise's manager, Mr. Chris. Graham, has taken up the American's terms on the conditions he offers. As Kaiser has expressed his willingness to wre tle here if the less grappler wants the match to be pulled off in Peterborough the bout will be held in this city.

The letter to hand yesterday reads as follows;

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 12.

Mr. W. C. Yokome, sporting editor.

Dear Sir,—My challenge to Mr. Hurtubise, who appeared in the Review, has not been accepted yet. If Mr. Hurtubise is afraid to wrestle me let him say so, if not, I will agree to throw him twice in one hour, providing he makes a side bet of at least $100. I will agree to weigh less than 180 lbs. and Mr. Hurtubise can weigh a ton if he likes. Hoping this will make him give me a decided answer.

I am your truly,

CHARLES KAISER,

25 Bridge St., Oswego, N.Y.

Judgment was Reserved in the Objections

The hearing of Mr. Stratton's preliminary objections against the form, etc., of the protest in the West Peterborough election was reached in the afternoon of yesterday. Argument was concluded before the court arose and judgment will be given later.

Flagman will be at the Aylmer St. C.P.R. Crossing

A safeguard has been placed on one of the most dangerous railway crossings in the city, viz., the C.P.R. crossing at Aylmer street. A flagman was put on there Monday morning by the C.P.R., and now citizens will be able to travel over that route This action on the part of the C.P.R. will be greatly appreciated, by the citizens generally,

Two Million Injured Among Workmen of U.S. in a Year

Washington, Dec. 14.—Between 30,000 and 35,000 deaths, and two million injured, is the accident record in the United States during the past year among workmen, according to a bulletin on accidents issued today by the Bureau of Labor.

Of those employed in factories and workshops it is stated that probably the most exposed class are the workers in iron and steel.

Fatal accidents among electricians and electric linemen and coal miners are declared to be excessive, while railway trainmen were killed in the proportion of 7.46 deaths per one thousand employes.

The bulletin declares that much that could be done for the protection of the workingman is neglected, though many and far-reaching improvements have been introduced in factory practice during the last decade.

Interesting Ten Pin Game at the P. B. C. Alleys

The B.A.C. and the Grays played a very close and interesting game in the P.B.C. tournament last night. All three games were close although the B.A.C. took two games out of the three. The difference in the total score was only 38. The score was as follows;—

Letters to The Editor

Fair Grounds' By-Law

(To the Editor of The Times)

Dear Sir,—As our municipal elections are soon on us, and as the Peterborough Industrial Fair directors are very anxious that the electors should understand why they are asked to vote on a bylaw to buy the exhibition grounds.

Now, Mr. Editor, we don't ask the city to purchase those grounds for exhibition purposes alone, what we ask is that the city purchase the grounds for recreation purposes and allow the fair directors a place to erect suitable buildings.

At the present time we have the fair grounds under a short lease, subject to three months' notice in case of sale.

We have now arrived at a time when the management of our fair must have good buildings to meet their requirements and worthy of the city of Peterborough and I ask all fair-minded citizens would the board be justified in spending any money on grounds which they don't own, and might never get using more than the present year.

We have had two successful years with our fair and have now a nice balance to our credit, and as a board we feel that if the city will purchase grounds where we will have a permanent place to erect on, that before our fair next fall, the directors will spend a large amount in suitable buildings to accommodate the stock and poultry also to allow our merchants a place to make exhibits, as they are very anxious to do.

Now, Mr. Editor, what we want the citizens of Peterborough to do is to carry this bylaw by their votes, to purchase the present grounds, as the investment is considered good. Mr. Morrow has already received an offer from a real estate dealer of twenty-six thousand dollars—$26,000.

By extending George street south across the property and holding the western portion—which is the cheapest part—for park purposes, and the eastern part, which is worth the most money to be sold in building lots, then there would be a large amount of the purchase money returned from their sale.

If there is any information the citizens would like to have I will be pleased to give them.

Yours, very truly,

R. H. LEARY,

President of Peterborough Industrial Fair.

Longboat Rounding Into Shape for Today's Race

New York, Dec. 14.—Flangan and Tom Longboat were not to be seen this morning, but those who know say the Onondaga is in fair shape for his race tomorrow. He has been behaving since his Philadelphia defeat and been working heavily.

He ran six miles across the country on icy roads yesterday, with the Mohawk Club runners, finishing in the lead shoulder to shoulder with Joe Malone, a good runner. The Indian and Malone alternated in the pace. Longboat did not try to beat Malone. They were a quarter of a mile ahead of the pack.

Dorando made a hit by defeating Hayes, and is favorite at two to one.

The Madison Square Garden has a flay and tanbark track. It is in preparation today. Ten laps make a mile and the track is a trifle wider than the Armories with easier turns. The Indian should be able to take the corners in fair style.

Obituary

REV. DR. GALBRAITH.

Rev. Dr. Galbraith, a retired Methodist minister, who is a brother of Mrs. Charles Crowe, East City, died in Toronto on Saturday. About four weeks ago Mr. Gailbraith was seized with an attack of paralysis, from which he partially recovered, but he suffered a relapse some two weeks ago and did not rally till the end came. Mr. Gailbraith entered the Methodist ministry as a young man in 1861, and was ordained in 1865. After supplying a number of country posts he was appointned, first to Hamilton, then to a church in Montreal, and then to Stanstead, subsequently to Montreal, and later to Kingston. Following this he went to Brockville, Orillia, Wesley Church (Toronto), Berkeley street church (Toronto) and later to Elm street (Toronto), from which charge he retired owing to ill-health. On recovering his strength Mr. Galbraith embarked in private business in Toronto and in Belleville and the good practical ability that he brought to bear did much to establish the success of the ventures with which he was identified. Deceased was twice married. By his first family he left two children. His second wife was Miss Bredin, of Kingston, who died some years ago, and two children survive. A son, Bredin Galbraith, is the well known runner who represented Canada in the Olympic games in London. The remains will be interred at Belleville.

Suffragette Calls Adam a Loafer

"The capture by warships of coast guard vessels or of warship is not to be considered an unfriendly act against the Venezuelans. It is merely a reprisal against Castro's Government, which has refused to give satisfaction for an insult to Holland."

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch of Evanston, the only woman justice of the peace in the United States, in a woman suffrage address yesterday denounced Adam as a loafer, painted Eve as the mother of all arts and sciences, and declared that the history of the human race showed that woman was the originator of most of the good things of the world for which men now take credit.

The Municipal Elections

The municipal pot is now beginning to boil a little. A few of those who have aspirations for the council and the mayor's chair are allowing their names to be mentioned; So far there are three new men mentioned, viz., Archie Moore, Thomas Rutherford and Joseph McCheral, all are for the council, and it is understood that more new men will be in the field before nomination day arrives, and also that a stiff fight will be put up.

There is once more talk of a mayorality candidate to oppose Mr. H. Rush. Who it is has not been made known, but it is stated on good authority that the mayor will not be given a second term by acclamation.

So far the temperance party has not shown its hand in the coming election, although it is generally expected that they will take some part. As a matter of fact it is rumored that the temperance people will bring out one of their supporters to contest the mayoralty, as they desire to have a favorable mayor and council next year so that no difficulty will be experienced when they present their petition next fall to submit a local option vote to the people.

So far as can be learned all the members of the present council will be in the field again. No one has stated that they will not run while the majority have signified their intention of seeking re-election. It is only right that they should be returned and given a chance to try the new system of sitting for two years without an appeal to the ratepayers.

For Xmas presents we think we have the best at the least price. Come and see what you think whether you buy or not. Times Bookstore.

A Devoted Lover Pays Life Penalty

Chicago, Dec. 14.—A devotion to his sweetheart that would not permit his leaving her bedside when she was all of typhoid fever, cost the life of Frank Griffith, 34 years old, a North-Western University athletic of the early '90's, just on the eve of his wedding.

Some months ago Griffith's fiancee, Miss Susan Paddock, fell ill with the fever, but was sustained in her fight with the ailment by the presence of Griffith at her side. She recovered, but he was stricken with the same malady and died yesterday.

Mrs. Thomas H. Darcy and Mrs. W. H. Darcy left yesterday morning for New York City to visit Mrs. Thomas H. Darcy's daughter, Mrs. Val Trainor (nee Miss Maud Darcy), who is playing at Pastor's Theatre this week. Upon their return they will visit relatives and friends in Rochester, N. Y. and Toronto.

Barnato's Wealth was Never Counted

London, Dec. 14.—It is doubtful if Harry Barnato, the South African millionaire, who died the other day, knew exactly how much he was worth, or, if he did, realized the prodigious power his wealth might have exerted. Probably he was the richest commoner in Great Britain. His income for the last two or three years was $5,000,000, and an estimate has been made that he was worth $50,000,000. For the last ten years Harry Barnato, who began life as a juggler, had saved on the average $2,500,000 a year. He had often shown incidentally, not boastfully, cheques for $400,000 received in payment of monthly dividends.

Had Harry Barnato been worth ten times as much he would not have changed. So far from being parsimonious, he was generous, but he was not extravagant, and he was anything but luxurious. Oside of his raiment he did not spend $25 a week on himself. He lived very quietly—indeed, not more than half the rooms in his great house on Upper Hamilton Terrace were in use; but, of course, it cost great sums to maintain that establishment. He passed most of his time between his home and the office of the diamond syndicate in Ely's place.

If Harry Barnato thought he was right he would dispute a shilling balance in a bargain, and gaining the shilling would toss it to the first beggar.

He owned and ran a few horses, but never bet more than $5 or $10 on one to win or for the place. Two ideas beset him; one that his dead brother, Barney Barnato, was the most sagacious, clear-headed man that ever lived; the other that the house of Barnato Bros., conducted by his nephews, Sol and J. H. Joel, is the most remarkable and successful business establishment in the world. But Harry Barnato very seldom went into the Joel's private office, where he had such vast interests. They preferred to conduct the business without consulting him, and he had great faith in his nephews, and did not want to interfere.

Mrs. Asker, of Berwelry Square, Harry Barnato's daughter, is to receive from his estate nearly $5,000,000. What disposition is to be made of the rest of the money and property left has not been made public.

The Charity Board is Getting Busy

The semi-monthly meeting of the Charity Board was held in the city clerk's office last night when Agent F. W. Miller made his report and referred to the big increase inn the number of applications for charity caused by the recent cold snap. There was a big demand for wood and there promises to be a continued heavy draw upon the city's wood yard until next spring. The Charity Board are up against a stiff proposition, and one which must be met. There is a lot of distress in the city and while much of it is due to misfortune and deserves every consideration, there is not a lot which is brought about by the man of the house refusing to work and his expensive and destructive habits. However, the Charity Board is fully alive to all the circumstances and assistance will be given where needed.

The New Siding Is Now Complete

The new siding into the Geo. Matthew Company's yards is now completed and greatly increases the loading and unloading facilities. This is the second siding and was found necessary because of the fact that frequently, when the manufactured products were being shipped there was no room left to unload hogs which were then left in the C.P.R. yard.

A new platform has been built between the two sidings in the company's yard. At the east end it is connected with the pens. To unload from the upper deck of some cars a movable affair has been provided down which the hogs can easily run. This arrangement now allowing loading and unloading at the same time.

Preventics, the new Candy Cold Cure Tablets, are sold by druggists to have four special specific advantages over all other remedies for a cold. First—They contain no Quinine, nothing harsh or sickening. Second—They give almost instant relief. Third—pleasant to the taste, like candy. Fourth—a large box—48 Preventics—at 25 cents. Also fine for feverish children. Sold by all dealers.

His Nerves Weak

POOR MEMORY. LACKED VIGOR. LOST EMPLOYMENT.

Another Case Proving You Quickly get Bracing Health from Ferrozone.

There's a real reason why Ferrozone cures.

It's a true nerve tonic—not a stimulant—it feeds the nerves with nourishment—gives them vital actual activity.

No other tonic in the world like Ferrozone, nothing else is so quick and lasting in its effects on a run-down, nervous system. "I used enough medicine to appreciate an honest one," writes J. B. Beattie, from his home in Newcastle. "From babyhood I was not overly strong and was always nervous. I smoked a good deal, but ans the whole my habits were good. My trouble first began with a shortening of the hours of sleep. I would awaken too early, my appetite was poor, and to whip it up I used highly spiced and sweet foods. First thing I knew I had palpitation on doing a little extra work, and then an awful tiredness came upon me, and a strange feeling of dread—almost of fear — made me think I was losing grip of myself. My power of memory weakened and I lost my position. Then I read about Ferrozone. Say, it's awfully good to get a medicine that helps you right off. I don't mind telling you I was badly scared, and every dose was almost like sunshine. At once I began to feel better, and permanently better I really was, for less than a dozen boxes made me a well man. Now I can do my work with any man and I am grateful to Ferrozone."

Ferrozone corrects all enfeebled conditions of the system, builds up and gives the body great resistive power against disease. To use Ferrozone assures lasting robust health. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers. Try Ferrozone, do it to-day.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it?. Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada has many things to be proud of. One of these is perhaps the best banking system in the world and one of the greatest banks in the world, the Bank of Montreal, which by virtue of its age, solidity, splendid record of achievement and the ramifications of its operations, is intimately associated with the financial fortunes of Canada and an object of interest to every class if not every individual of every community in the country.

The ninety-first annual meeting of the shareholders was held in Montreal on Monday, when the report of the directors for the year ending Oct. 31 last was submitted, which together along with the minutes of the proceedings will be found in another part of this issue of The Times, and as Sir Edward Clouston remarked in the course of his address, the financial statement discloses an exceptionally strong position, the percentage of immediately available assets having risen from 43 per cent. a year ago to 57 per cent. at present. The report shows that the profits for the year ending Oct. 31, 1908, after deducting charges of management and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, were $1,957,058.18, to which fell to be added $699,949.85, the balance at credit of profit and loss account at the corresponding date of 1907. The total profits available for disposal were thus $2,657,628.50. The dividend of 10 per cent. in the usual quarterly instalments absorbed $1,440,000, and after $1,000,000 had been credited to rest account, there remained a balance of $217,628.50 to be carried forward. The rest account now stands at $12,600,000, or only $2,400,000 less than the amount of capital stock. The two combined make a total of $26,460,000, a tangible evidence of the solidity of this great financial institution. Deposits bearing interest during the year reached $105,192,365.64 an increase of $17,000,000, as against current loans, other than call, of $94,702,020.73, a decrease of $10,000,000, a fact indicating that the depression in trade has restricted the employment of capital. That this depression has largely or will soon completely pass away is shown by the remarks of the President, Sir George Drummond, to the shareholders. He regarded the situation as much improved and expressed the belief that confidence had been largely restored, that credit is again good, that better times are at hand and that the outlook is extremely favorable. Sir Edward Clouston, at the meeting, after referring to the steadying effect of the late financial depression, said: "If our people will continue the conservative policy which is at present animating their conduct of business, we will emerge stronger and better in every way." When men like these, with their fingers continually on the pulse of finance, give such cheering assurances, the business world is well justified in taking courage.

We have had a little financial flurry, but it did not seem to affect the steady glacier-like advance of the Bank of Montreal, which stolidly persists in paying be it business rain or shine, its regular dividend of ten per cent. Its business at large has prospered and to this prosperity the local branch in charge of Mr. A. Montizambert, has contributed a liberal proportion.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see if improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

A ROVING ARMY

The authorities in the United States seem to have some difficulty in reaching a definite conclusion as to the significance of their migration statistics during the past two years. It is found that in the first ten months of 1907, 1,184,784 immigrants went to the United States and 349,295 left it. The gain in population was therefore 837,489. In the corresponding term this year there were 730,455 arrivals and 583,106 departures, a loss of 251,651 in the population. From the beginning of 1908 until the end of August departures exceeded arrivals by an average of more than 30,000 a month. September marked the turn of the tide. News of improving industrial conditions in the States had reached Europe and arrivals became more numerous. There was more work to be done so departures were fewer. Departures in September exceeded arrivals by only 1,684. In October the balance was on the other side, with arrivals exceeding departures.

The news as to the improvement of industrial conditions in the states is well founded. Mills that had been idle have started again. Mills that had been running on short time are now running on full time. Opportunity for hundreds of thousands of wage earners has been opened up. The danger in the situation is remarked by the New York Sun. All that, it says, is a signal for which a huge army of people in Europe is waiting. This army consists of three groups, namely: those who have planned to come next year and those who returned this year intending to come back as soon as times mended. It is impossible to say how large that army is, but The Sun sets its number in excess of 2,000,000. That such an army should be turned loose upon the United States or withdrawn according to the condition of the labor market is a proposition which United States economists can hardly regard with indifference.

No such danger appears to confront Canada; nor is there any good reason why it should do so for many years to come. The agricultural lands in the States have all been taken up and the immigrant horde must seek the industrial centres and greatly disturb the conditions of the labor market. It is permissible to Canadians to hope that they may be able to control their immigration, to submit only such people as shall be capable of developing the country and persuading the agriculturist lands, but leaving the cities free of the congestion of a foreign-born population. That is the surest ideal for the Canadian people to set up and it is not likely to fail in realization unless there be a reversal of form and we find ourselves in a frame of mind to induce population without regard for its quality.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got The New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

The President's Remarks

The president, in moving the adoption of the directors' report, said:

A year ago business in the United States was staggered under a sudden collapse of credit and acute money stringency, while in Canada the brakes had been applied and the slowing down process had begun. To-day the situation is much improved, confidence has been largely restored, credit is again good, the money markets of the world are abnormally easy, but the volume of trade has been considerably diminished. Measured by the value of imports, the shrinkage in Canada within a year has been approximately 20 per cent., namely, from $362,460,000 to $297,300,000, the figures being for the 12 months ending October 1, 1907 and 1908 respectively.

On the other hand, the value of domestic exports in the same period has been well maintained, being $231,500,000 as against $244,200,000 last year.

The daily business of the country, as gauged by bank note circulation, at no time showed a shrinkage exceeding 5 per cent.

In view of the great excess to which imports had grown over domestic exports, amounting to upwards of $100,000,000 in 1907, the subsequent contraction in imports must be regarded as a healthy condition. The gap between exports and imports may be still further contracted with advantage, and it is to be hoped that this process will be steadily continued. No doubt this reform was assisted by the repeated recommendations of economy emanating from all financial quarters, and is is gratifying to note that the liquidation process compelled by monetary conditions has been accomplished in Canada, with, upon the whole, little disturbance, and practically without any great disaster.

Commercial loans have been reduced by the banks sixty millions or upwards of 10 per cent., with a contraction of less than 5 per cent. in the volume of domestic trade as measured by note circulation.

Immigration has fallen off about 50 per cent., but the quality of late has been good, farmers and farm labourers predominating.

The great feature of the year has been the excellent crops secured by the Northwest provinces, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, variously estimated as in wheat 105,000,000 to 115,000,000 bushels; oats, 160,000,000 bushels; barley, 25,000,000 bushels; in addition crops of flax, potatoes, etc. The money value of the grain crops to these farmers will approximate 125,000,000 dollars earned by a territory practically deserted up to a comparatively recent date. We have further from the same territory the report that an unusually large percentage of fall ploughing has been done, that the land is in the very best condition, and a very considerable increase in acreage indicated for next season.

The export demand for our surplus farm products has been above the average, and a large proportion of these has already been marketed. In Ontario and Quebec, however, the brilliant prospects of spring were somewhat clouded over by a long continued midsummer drought. As regards the special business of this port, the exports of wheat and oats were in excess of last year, being respectively 27,485,031 and 1,-800,000 bushels. Most other grains were somewhat short.

Shipping—There is a widespread depression in shipping, the extent of which may be imagined from a report from the north of England that about a million tons of steamers were already laid up, and many more will require to go into the ranks of the unemployed during the winter. Notwithstanding this the trade of the St. Lawrence has fairly well held its own. Some voyages no doubt were unremunerative on account of vacant space, but both passengers and freight were upon the whole, profitable, which is another proof of the advantages which the St. Lawrence route possesses. The tendency in all new vessels is towards increased size and carrying capacity, demanding due provision in all harbour and channel work of the future.

The Lumber Trade—The exports of lumber and deals for the past year to both Europe and the United States have fallen below those of the year previous both in volume and value. Pine deals have declined $3 to $4 per 1000 feet, and spruce $2 per 1000 feet, from which decline there has already been a partial recovery. This is considered a favourable omen, and a sign that the depression, which has hung over the lumber trade for some time past, is about to be dispersed, and that a more active business in the future may be looked for.

The British market shows an improvement. Liverpool advices being of a more cheerful tone. Quebec pine and spruce deals are being enquired for, and as stocks are somewhat heavy, their realization would be a great help to the trade.

The opinion seems to prevail that the turning point has been reached, and that better times are near at hand.

Exports—As regards the exportable products, it may be said that cheese, ham, bacon and meats, butter and apples all showed a falling off, and wholesale grocery houses after having felt the depression in business in the past year, now speak of a decided improvement, with brightening prospects for the coming year.

Exports of Produce—The value of the principal exports of produce from this port during the past season of navigation are computed as follows:

Grain and flour	$22,940,000
Butter and cheese	19,157,000
Hams and bacon	2,101,000
Total...	$54,205,000

If to the above we add the exports of cattle, $4,716,700, we have a grand total of $58,922,700.

Dry goods—The effects of the panic of last October were not immediately felt by the dry goods trade. The general trade was so good in 1907 that the full effect did not appear until January, 1908. For six months previous to that a certain amount of taking in of extra canvas had been going on, as money had been very scarce. Arrangements had been made before October for a probable decrease in sales for spring, 1908, but the decrease in turn-over was a great deal more than anticipated, reaching as much as 20 to 30 per cent. from 1st January to 1st June. After that the improvement began, and for the last six months the loss of business was about half this amount, or 15 per cent.

Buying has been conducted everywhere on conservative lines for next spring season, 1909, which is just beginning. Orders taken in advance by the travellers are very fair.

The capacity of the Canadian cotton mills and calico printers is likely to be taxed in many lines to its full capacity, as they have received large orders which last year were placed in Manchester. Fine and coarse wools have advanced in England, and manufacturers of woollen dress goods in France have refused orders, except at an advance in price.

The good crops have helped collections very much, and the financial state of the retail trade is quite satisfactory. Comparatively few bad debts have been made by the wholesale trade during the year. (This is one of the features of this panic, as the Bank of Montreal returns show.) Generally the prospects seem distinctly improved, and the outlook decidedly hopeful.

Iron and hardware—While some of our large wholesale firms complain that business has fallen off in the past year, everything points to an increased trade in the future. Manufacturers of iron and steel report increasing orders for future delivery, and a heavy spring business is anticipated.

Leather.—Both business and profits have been curtailed in the past year, owing partly to the increased cost of hides, and the low price of leather, but prospects for the coming year are most encouraging. The allied trade of boots and shoes shows very similar results for the year.

Railway Construction.—The past year certainly was and the present holds out the prospects of being emphatically the era of railway construction. The Grand Trunk Pacific between Prince Rupert and Moncton is likely to occupy a considerable time, while it cannot be overlooked that most of the other railways in the country have been occupied with extensions, much greater than the public have any idea of. For example, the Canadian Pacific Railway at the end of June had over 700 miles under construction in different sections of the country, and the Canadian Northern was also engaged in increasing its mileage in Quebec and the western provinces.

The vast importance of the improvement of the agricultural products of the country must be an excuse for introducing a subject occupying a great deal of attention in other countries as well as here, and closely bound up with the prosperity of the country and, of course, of this and other banking institutions. When we reflect that the annual value of the products of the soil of Canada must exceed four hundred millions of dollars, any percentage of increase in quantity or improvement in quality of our crops becomes of enormous importance. For example, if by selection of the seed or by hybridizing, with the light thrown on this subject by Mendel's discovery, the wheat plant can be made to increase its yield or shorten the period of ripening, even by days, it might mean the difference in the northwest of saving or losing a large percentage of the crop.

In the magnificent installation of Sir Wm. Macdonald at St. Anne's, which, after all, is only the continuation and culmination of his work in the same direction all over the Dominion, this question of improvement in the grain plant and in the fertilising of the soil has been a subject of careful research and experiment, and no doubt will continue to be so.

Mr. Robertson is sanguine enough to state that within five years past an increase of more than 25 per cent. has been obtained over large areas in Canada, on the average yield per acre of wheat, barley and oats, by improvement in the quality of the seed sown. It is not too much to hope that this improvement will continue as fresh discoveries are made and their application extended, and that the research and experimental department of the Macdonald and other colleges will prove the most important institutions in the country.

I beg to move: "That the report of the directors now read be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders." If any shareholder has any question to ask, we shall be pleased to answer him.

The Vice-President

The Vice-President then spoke as follows:

Since I last had the pleasure of meeting you and giving an account of my stewardship, we have passed through a very momentous financial year. For several months our American neighbours were not, practically, on a specie basis, and though in Canada we considered that we were in a fairly sound condition, we were somewhat in the position of a man living in a fire-proof house with his neighbour's residence ablaze. He believes himself safe, but is naturally nervous as to the result. I said, in a fairly sound condition, for though our state was satisfactory enough for normal times, the country's great prosperity had brought about an abnormal demand for money. We were over-trading on inadequate capital; everyone from the government to the individual was spending too much and living too extravagantly. Canada's financial resources were strained to the utmost, and when in addition, there came a crisis in the United States, and extraordinary conditions elsewhere (witness a 7 per cent. Bank of England rate,) we certainly had grounds for uneasiness, and good reason for putting on the brakes, financially, in rather an emergent manner. Fortunately, some of us had begun to do so before the crisis arrived. The general result of all this disturbance has been beneficial, and what I said last year; that we would eventually reach a better and a sounder basis, is coming to pass, largely as the result of a harvest of exceptionally high quality, which is realizing excellent prices. Canada to-day is in a good commercial position and can look to the future with renewed hope and satisfaction. Not that we are in a condition to start a boom; but if our people will continue the conservative policy which is at present animating their conduct of business we will emerge stronger and better in every way.

Reference to the record of commercial failures which, during the past year, have increased from $10,000,000 the average of recent years, to $16,000,000 brings home the reality of the dangers which have threatened our industrial welfare. These are large figures, but considering the strain and stress of the times, the great expansion in business, and the heavy stocks carried last autum, we may reasonably consider the commercial community to have weathered the storm fairly well, and I think it may be claimed that the banks did their share in carrying them through a season of trouble.

During the year we have had three bank failures—The Sovereign Bank of Canada, La Banque de St. Jean, and the Banque de St. Hyacinthe. It is hardly necessary to state that in no case have the note-holders suffered, and it is worthy of notice that since the circulation came more directly under the supervision of the Canadian Bankers' Association, there has been no failure of a bank which has disclosed any tampering with its circulation, either by over-issue or otherwise.

Through the assistance of a number of the banks, the Sovereign Bank is being liquidated without loss to its depositors. This was a case of "modern" banking where unusual methods were adopted to attract deposits, and any bank which adopts extraordinary methods in the future they look askance at, deposition can hardly be blamed if by means of soliciting the savings of the people. They will certainly be justified in considering such devices signs of weakness on the part of the institution employing them.

The two other banks which I mentioned were small affairs, whose failures affected only the communities they served, but to the credit of those communities be it said that they behaved with admirable self-control, under trying circumstances. In each case the difficulty was too serious to warrant outside banking assistance. Whilst, however, the failure of the St. Jean institution was consequent upon mismanagement, the responsibility for which the criminal courts have been called upon to fix, that of the Banque de St. Hyacinthe shows how bad business, contracted originally by over-ambitious management, becomes an ever-increasing incubus, which must infallibly prove the downfall of a small and localized concern.

In July last, a brief Act of Parliament amended the Bank Act to the extent of enabling banks during the usual season of moving the crops (1st October to 31st January,) to issue additional notes to the amount of 15 per cent. of each bank's combined capital and reserve.

Although desirable as a precaution against any sudden shortage of currency, such as our neighbours sometimes suffer from, very little use has yet been made of the privilege by the banks. This season, at least, it was not a necessary facility, as shown by the fact that, at the close of October, the balance of notes of chartered banks available for circulation exceeded $19,000,000; this, too, notwithstanding an unusually heavy crop, which had to be moved in a limited period.

The explanation is, no doubt, that the increased number of branch banks in the country has become an important factor in assisting the crop movement, giving the farmer quick payment for his grain and aiding the prompt deposit of its proceeds. Thus circulation is returned to the banks with little delay, enabling them to re-issue notes and taking them out of the pockets of the farmers where, in former years, they became locked up.

The prominent feature of the present situation as contrasted with that of a year ago is the world-wide plethora of money. The contrast is rendered greater by the fact that the late stringency was intensified by senseless hoarding, not only by individuals, but, in some cases by banks. Such hoarding aggravated that want of confidence by which it was begotten, and rendered the crisis more acute. When, after the turn of the year, the normal financial loosening took place, the hoarded funds came out and swelled the supply of available cash. This soon became of unusual volume, owing to an enforced general liquidation and a desire to place business on a basis more commensurate with the capital employed.

When Europe untied the purse strings once more, she facilitated the liquidation of government and municipal advances at home by the flotation of loans in foreign countries. Thus it has come to pass that our deposits have increased $17,000,000, while our loans, other than call, have decreased $10,000,000, making our present percentage of immediately available assets 57 per cent., as against 43 per cent. a year ago. Containing such features, the financial statement laid before you shows an exceptionally strong position—stronger, indeed, than is necessary. Unfortunately, it is not a money-making position, as the rates ruling in the London and New York markets, where we are obliged to carry a large portion of our reserves, are unusually low, and I am afraid we cannot look forward to very good profits during the coming year. But, after all, lean years will come, and, as history repeats itself, it proves, in its application to banking at least, that conservative methods are the only ones which can safely be employed alike in times of prosperity and seasons, to build, in fair weather, a structure which will not be shaken by the inevitable storm.

The Vice-President, having seconded the motion, Mr. Roswell C. Fisher referred to the asset of $600,000 for bank premises at Montreal and branches. Last year we were told no reason was seen for altering the statement. I think there is one, as the shareholders do not know in the slightest degree the value of the premises, and therefore cannot criticize the expenditure. If we knew approximately how much was being spent in additions to bank premises all over this country, we should probably be in a position to criticise. We might also say if statements are not correct in one case, how are we to know that the others are not equally incorrect?"

The Vice-President: "The new board coming in will take the matter into consideration, and see if they will alter the formal statement. I think it is an error on the right side.

The motion for the adoption of the directors' report, was then put and was carried unanimously.

Mr. B. A. Boas remarked: "Before moving the resolution I hold in my hand, I have a few words to say, and I have no doubt all the shareholders will join with me in congratulating our Vice-President on the great honour which has been shown him by His Majesty the King. We all trust he will live for many years to enjoy the distinction and to be the guiding spirit of the bank. I now move:

"That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, the Vice-President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank."

This was unanimously concurred in, after which Mr. Charles R. Hosmer moved, "That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Assistant General Manager, the Inspectors, the Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year."

This was seconded by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and was unanimously agreed to.

The Vice-President, in returning thanks, said: "With reference to Mr. Boas' kind remarks, I do not look upon the honour given me by His Majesty as an honour to me personally, but because of the position I occupy.—I was chief executive officer of this Bank and also president of the Bankers' Association—it is an honour to the Bank of Montreal and to the Canadian Bankers' Association."

Mr. W. R. Miller moved, "That the ballot now open for the election of Directors be kept open until 2 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapsed without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time, and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued."

This was seconded by Mr. James Tasker, and was carried unanimously.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following Directors:

Says This Medicin Has Mystic Powers

It's in the spring that health gives out—that folks begin to feel draggy, weary, restless,—hate, to eat, look pale, feel discouraged

If you've reached this state read what J. W. Jervell, well known in Morristown, has to say about the medicine that cured him. "Last winter I caught a heavy cold that settled in my back. My kidneys and liver were affected and my health failed. By spring I was in bad shape—couldn't sleep like I used to—felt tired in the morning—ate very little—was terribly depressed, pale and anxious looking. Twinges of rheumatism, frequent neuralgia attacks over the temples, made matters worse. The doctor prescribed three times, but didn't help. Then I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.—They possess mystic powers surely, for I gained and improved day by day and now am in perfect health again. I will praise and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills till I die."

The ingredients in Dr. Hamilton's Pills are pure and wholesome—come right from the storehouse of Nature in the form of vegetable juices and extracts,—consequently this gentle invigorating laxative tonic and blood-purifier is safe for old and young alike. We assure you of enormous benefit from Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which revitalize delicate glands, search out the seat of hidden disease, flood the body with vigor and health that has caused thousands of broken-down, despairing men and women to join in a mighty song of praise for the beneficient aid that comes from this king of all tonics. work embroidery, crocheting, etc., that the product of her needle found a ready sale in the stores of New York, and led to her abduction from the institution by a woman who hoped to reap pecuniary benefit from her industry.

The hue and cry raised over her to assist her in opening the padings of the blind. In this connection perhaps her most noticeable achievement has been the translation into Chinese through the medium of the American Braille system of raised dots, of certain religious literature.

The Pennsylvania Institution is co-educational, and Miss Gutzloff's class consists of some thirty-five pupils, ranging in age from 15 to 20 years, 85 per cent., of whom have never seen the light of day. In addition to the ordinary studies, she instructs her pupils in the arts of typewriting, needlework, music, etc., and yet finds time to supervise the reading of the proofs of all text books used by the institution. Commenting upon the value of her work, the Rev. Mr. Poole, a well-known local Chinese missionary, said;

"And she teaches something else which perhaps is of more value to those unfortunates than anything contained in the curriculum—optimism. Indeed, she seems to impart to her pupils a spirit of cheerfulness that has entirely banished pessimism from the institution. If all Oriental minds could be affected by feeted by education and Christian teaching as has been that of Miss Gutzloff the phrase "the awakening of China," would possess a new and wonderful significance."

That Miss Jessie, as he l affectionately called by her pupils and associates is intensely religious l evidenced by the fact that for what she has accomplished, she takes not one iota of credit. Firmly fixed in her mind is the idea that success along any line of endeavor is dependent upon divine inspiration—that to Providence is due all credit.

More Rain for The Farmers

The weather man has lately been between the devil and the deep sea. The farmers have all been howling for rain and more rain, while the town and city merchants and citizens are asking for snow and cold weather until after Christmas anyway. The latter are looking for a bumper trade and business at this time of the year is always better if the weighing is good and the weather cold. His nibs, however, decided last night to harken to the farmers who want water for their live stock and for themselves. About half past nine last night the rain began to fall and the snow, started to melt and it looked like a clean sweep for the country people. The weather man may at any time change his mind and shut off the water and give a little more frost.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr Shoop's Headache Tablets—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently though subtly, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

French Canadian Members at North Bay May Sue Bishop Scollard

Allege that Bishop Scollard Virtually Incited a Boycott Againt Them Trouble Blamed on Racial Strife

North Bay, Dec. 15.—French-Canadian members of the Church of St. Mary-on-the-Lake at North Bay are very indignant over certain remarks made by Bishop Scollard in the course of his sermon Sunday morning, when he publicly rebuked several prominent French-Canadian members of the congregation and it is alleged, made statements which would have a tendency to injure the business of those affected.

A prominent French-Canadian merchant stated to a correspondent that a portion of his lordship's service was directed at him, and his business and its location were discussed in such a way that there could not be a shadow of a doubt as to who was meant, and the statements made from the pulpit were such as to insite a boycott on him in a business way. He stated that it was his intention to institute an action for damages against Bishop Scollard for $25,000, and that the sermon would probably result in other actions.

A physician and a contractor were among the others feeling aggrieved by the remarks of the bishop.

IS TRACED BACK.

Sunday's sermon is the outcome of trouble which occurred in the church during the summer, when the French-Canadian members of the congregation claimed to have been insulted by being denied the privilege of having the St. Jean Baptiste mass sung in the church.

The relations between the English and French-speaking members of the congregation has been strained for some time, and the latter demand that a church be instituted for their use where they can have the services in French.

A FRENCH ASSOCIATION.

Since the trouble in the summer over the St. Jean Baptiste mass an association has been formed by the French-Canadian people of the town with a membership of several hundred, and the outcome will no doubt be that a separate congregation will be formed.

DUTCH MAKE ANOTHER CAPTURE

Wilemstad, Dec. 15.—The Dutch battleship Jacob Von Heemskerk arrived in the harbor a eight o'clock this morning, owing as a prize the Venezuelan coast guard vessel "23 De Mayo."

Word of the capture had already been received here and great throng of people lined the quays to witness the entrance of the Dutch battleship conducting her capture within the harbor. The flag of the Netherlands had been hoisted to the peak of the captured Venezuelan coast guard ship and astern of the Dutch flag floated the Venezuelan colors. Although the Venezuelan flag was still shown, it was in minor contrast to the Dutch pennant flying from mainmast and foremast both of the warship and its prize.

The "23 De Mayo" was captured on Dec. 13, at a point a little north of Cuman, a city of 12,000 people on the gulf of Caracio. The battleship Jacob Von Heemskerk observed the "23 De Mayo" in the offing and promptly took possession of her. A prize crew made up of members of the crew of the Dutch warship was sent aboard the "23 De Mayo," assuming command and direction of the coast guard ship, and raising the Dutch flag at the foremast. At the same time, the Venezuelan crew, which had been in charge of the "23 De Mayo" was sent ashore in the small boats of the captured ship.

The battleship Jacob Von Heemskerkthen proceeded back to the port escorting her prize.

The Dutch cruiser Gelderland left here yesterday for the Venezuelan coast. She had on board a most experienced seaman thoroughly acquainted with the small bays and inlets along the Venezuelan shores.

Asylum Patient Thrust Four-Pronged Fork Into Farm Hand's Face

Mimico, Dec. 15.—As a result of a sudden insane impulse of a patient named Andrew Shannon, the head farmer of the Mimico Asylum, William Bolton, was struck down with a four-pronged fork yesterday, and today lies in a precarious condition with little hope for recovery. Mr. Bolton is eighty years of age, and, though he received instant medical care, the loss of blood and the nervous shock have had such an effect upon him that little hope is offered by the institution physicians.

It is one of the ordinary daily duties of Mr. Bolton to look after the work of the farms, on which many of the male patients work.

Yesterday morning Shannon went out with his comrades as usual, and was engaged in stable and other work when Mr. Bolton approached. Very few words had passed between them, when, with a sudden movement, Shannon swung his fork about his head and thrust it into the [illegible] face, inflicting a deep gash from the right ear to the chin. Dr. Godfrey, one of the physicians of the asylum, was called to the field and by a quick operation cut away a portion of the jaw-bone, and with other medical aid sought to close the wounds. Shannon showed no violent symptoms either before or after, but was at once placed under close supervision. There was no indication of the man's intentions which could have warned Mr. Bolton. Shannon had always been among the most docile of the patients.

"All employes in asylums must take such a risk as Bolton," explained one of the doctors at Mimico this morning to a press representative. "No precautions are possible against such an act as Shannon's for they are unpremeditated, and eccentric. There has been a number of such fatalities in Canadian asylums of late, and they are unpreventible. They desires to kill come into their brains in a flash, and are put into effect without a second's warning."

Under the circumstances no punishment can be meted out to the guilty man. Andrew Shannon, though [illegible] likely be given a [illegible] to work on. He resides [illegible] several daughters living at his home in Mimico.

Annual Meeting of St. Andrew's W. F. M. S.

The annual meeting of the W.F.M.S., of St. Andrew's church, was held yesterday afternoon, when a very large number of the ladies were present. The reports of the various organizations connected with the W.F.M.S. were presented, and showed all the societies to be in a most encouraging condition. The work the past year has been very satisfatory, and a good sum of money was raised for the mission work.

President, Mrs. J. G. Potter presided and the society's report was read by the secretary, Mrs. Grills. Mrs. Langford read the Young Ladies' Mission Band report, and Miss Ra. Porter presented the statement of the Willing Workers' Mission Band. All the reports were interesting and showed progress during the year.

Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's church, gave a very forceful and interesting address on "The Great Commission," showing the obligations resting upon every Christian to take and send the Gospel to every nation and he urged upon the members to take a greater interest in the work the coming year.

During the afternoon Mr. Gordon Wright rendered a very appropriate solo.

C.P.R. TO BUILD NEW SHOPS AT SMITH'S FALLS

Smith's Falls, Ont., Dec. 16—It is stated on excellent authority that the C. P. R. Co. intend to erect shops in Smith's Falls at an early date which will employ several hundred men. In a recent visit to town of General Superintendent Murphy, he spoke to the town council in a most encouraging tone of the project.

From its location and from the fact that it is already such an important C.P.R. point, Smith's Falls is the natural place for such shops, and it is almost certain they will be built here.

At a joint meeting of the railway committee and the board of trade the matter was thoroughly gone into and a deputation was appointed to go to Montreal to interview the officials with regard to the matter.

Certain concessions will no doubt be asked by the company and the town is prepared to meet them to a reasonable extent.

Time Extended for the Taking of Proceedings in Local Protest Case

Toronto, Dec. 15.—Mr. Justice Britton yesterday morning granted a stay of proceedings in the West Peterborough election petition finding the final decision on the preliminary objection. He also extended the time for the taking of proceedings by either party including the filing of a cross-petition if the present petition be maintained.

Toronto, Dec. 13.—The West Peterborough contested case came up Monday, at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, before Mr. Justice Britton, under the Summary Election Trials Act. Argument offered by Mr. Watson in behalf of Hon. Mr. Stratton showed that there had been no reasonable effort to serve notice upon Mr. Stratton within the time allowed by law, during which time he might easily and readily have been served. For some purpose of their own the pusuers failed to avail themselves of the opportunity for personal service and then had recourse to the substitutional process under an order of the court. This service, which was made upon the respondent's business manager, Roland M. Glover, was made within the ten days of limitation during which it was possible to reach the respondent himself, and was contrary to the express provision and intention of the statute, and hence illegal and of no effect, and the petition became consequently null and void.

Mr. Watson, K.C., desired to put Hon. Mr. Stratton in the witness box, but the petitioner's attorney objected.

The Toronto World gives the following relation of the proceedings;

G. H. Watson, K.C., and J. Grayson Smith appeared for Mr. Stratton, who was also present.

Mr. Watson stated that while he had filed ten preliminary objections to the protest, he proposed to take up the eighth, which argued that no service in accordance with the act had been made. The order made on Dec. 2 by the court, authorizing the service on a substitute, was void, as the proper procedure in case there was legal difficulty in reaching Mr. Stratton, was to have applied for an extension of time for service. If reasonable efforts to reach the respondent then failed, an application for an order of substitution would have been regular. He had filed an affidavit by Mr. Stratton, which showed that no reasonable effort at personal service had been made.

Mr. Stratton had been at Toronto and Peterborough a great part of the time, and in Toronto at least half a dozen days, on which service could have been made. Under such circumstances the service must be personal or the writ becomes of no effect. The error was definite, clear cut and final. This was established in the Montmagny judgment by the supreme court.

Counsel set forth that this was the time to raise the legality of the alleged service. He asked that he be allowed to put Mr. Stratton in the witness-box, when E. Jones, counsel for the petitioner, Mr. J. H. Burnham, could cross-examine him.

Mr. Jones objected that such a proceeding was irregular and was not a proper suggestion from a

"The Crystal"

To the Public of Peterborough City and County

The management of "The Crystal," which, after a year and a half of operation, has just undergone enlargement and improvement, desires to thank the public for its kind and constant patronage.

We promised at the outset that this entertainment would be maintained under conditions that would invite the confidence of the most refined and scrupulous, and we are greatly gratified to realize that it has come to be recognized as a place of innocent recreation, where ladies can attend or send their children, for a half hour's amusement, which they know beforehand will be of a clean and wholesome character.

The patronage of the families of Peterborough, which has been constant and growthing, as they have had experience of what "The Crystal" offers them, is a source of pride which we shall endeavor to deserve.

We have taken pains to secure the best results attainable in the movable picture art from the capitals of Europe, and the public of Peterborough may always and confidently rely upon the best that is procurable in this kind of entertainment, conducted, as is our chief aim, upon lines that will instruct and amuse, and yet not offend the most fastidious taste.

With the enlarged seating capacity that has just been provided, and new daily attractions, we desire to wish our patrons one and all, a "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year."

W. A. EDWARDS, Proprietor.

Electric Engine Now on Its Way to Destination

The electric engine, which was fitted with motors, etc., at the C.G.E. Works, has left the shop and is being taken in easy stages to its destination, Shawenegan Falls, Que. The first idea was to load it on a flat car and a skidway was built up to one, which had a capacity of fifty tons, but the engine weighs about fifty-six tons, and as soon as the front wheels rolled on to the car they cut through the boards and it was evident that the load was too heavy. This week the engine was run out on to one of the C.P.R. sidings, where it was run up and down by the yard engine to make sure that it was in good running order. The intention is to take behind a way freight, leaving it off at Havelock, Smith's Falls and other places at similar intervals, as an extra precaution to have all the parts in good order when delivered.

As stated before, it is the first electric engine constructed in Canada. It is learned that in Schenectady there are some fourteen hundred of them turned out in a year. It has two trolleys when in operation and there are four motors that provide the motive power. Two men are required to run it, and it is understood that its rate of speed, with thirty freight cars as a load, is about thirty miles an hour. There are two head lights, a bell and compressed air whistle, and many other intricate parts. Experts from Schenectady were brought here to do the wiring and assembling.

Does Your Heart Flutter?

Short Breath, Easily Fatigued, Rush of Blood.

IT'S IN THIS CONDITION THAT SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED COMES.

The heart is an unfailing index of strength. Bodily vigor and a strong heart go hand in hand.

A slight fluttering and shortness of breath is a sign of failing strength, arising from weakened digestive power, or from weakness of the nervous system.

The organic and dangerous affections of the heart seldom manifest themselves until the climax is reached, when death usually supervenes.

Even a small variation in strength renders the heart susceptible on the emotional side, and a little fright, anxiety or haste will set it going at a frightful rate.

You ought to know that when your heart flutters easily, when your breath comes in gasps, when you tire quickly upon exertion, and rest does not recuperate, you have allowed yourself to run down.

It is under these conditions that Ferrozone acts like magic in its strength-giving power. Tens of thousands of Canadians can testify to the marvelous curative power of Ferrozone.

When it's remembered that Ferrozone has the power of making rich, red blood, of giving tone to the system, of vitalizing all the functional powers of the body, it will be easily seen in cases such as yours, in which these fluttering sensations are present. Ferrozone will speedily restore you to health.

Ferrozone makes you strong because it enables you to digest your food, because it makes rich, red blood—because it tones, strengthens, reinforces the whole system.

"I was so overcome with heart flutterings and acute indigestion I could scarcely walk upstairs without panting and catching for my breath," writes E. K. Young, a well known merchant in Augusta. "After using one box of Ferrozone I improved, and after two months I was cured and am sound and healthy as ever to-day."

The best proof of Ferrozone's merit is the enormous good it will do you, in your own case; try it, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

TOMMY LONGBOAT DEFEATED DORANDO, THE ITALIAN RUNNER

Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, is today the greatest runner in the world. He won the title on his merits and deserves all that is coming to him. He defeated Dorando, the wonderful Italian distance runner, at the Madison Square Garden last night before one of the largest crowds that ever packed the immense stadium. Longboat covered the distance, 25 miles and 385 yards in two hours and 27 minutes. Dorando did not finish, having collapsed in the first lap of the 26th mile.

Tom Longboat to Dorando yesterday morning; —I'll run your head off tonight.

Dorando to Longboat;—I'll beat you good. I'll see how fast you can run right from the first.

The result was as the Indian predicted. He ran the head off the Italian. He made the man who defeated Yankee Hayes run so fast to maintain the lead that he dropped from pure exhaustion while the Indian cantered home victorious.

The race started at 9.15, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed all through the race. The Canadians resident in New York, filled one section of the stadium, and they had their own band with them. They cheered the Indian and the Indian responded.

Dorando met the pace practically the whole distance with Longboat just two yards behind. The Indian only tried a couple of times to pull away from the Italian, but the latter ke-t with him and Tom dropped back relying on his endurance. Dorando however, is a game runner. He put forth every ounce of strength and energy he possessed and he proved his worth by staying with the Indian until practically the finish. Longboat had no map. It forced him to extend himself as he never had done before. But he had the power behind the throne and he will now jump to the highest pinnacle in the esteem of Canadian sportsmen. He realized that he had to win that race and he did it, although the odds were 5 to 1 against him.

Great interest was taken in the race here and a big crowd waited at the Belmont Hotel to get the final results until midnight. Quite a number of small bets were made and all the Peterborough people were at with Longboat either.

The time made last night was two hours and 27 minutes, while Dorando's time over the same courage against Hayes was two hours 44 minutes and 20 seconds. Thus the Canadian lowered the record by nearly eight minutes.

LONGBOAT BEFORE THE RACE.

New York, Dec. 15.—Will Tommy Longboat beat Dorando?

That is a pretty tough question, and the answer is no nearer solution now that one is on the ground and the race is only hours away than it was when I was in Toronto and tonight's contest was a week away.

Tom Longboat is an enigma. No one, not even his friends, can size his abilities or condition.

MARSH IN CHARGE.

Last night at six o'clock he was turned over to Lou Marsh's care, and he will be with him until the race ends tonight. Marsh rubbed him down but learned little of his condition. His body still shows traces of recent boils, and his feet of the awful blisters that he claims were the cause of his defeat in Philadelphia. The blisters are nearly healed up, and he says his feet are all right, but the grind tonight may break them out afresh. He is a trifle fat, but his muscles are limber and in good condition. He looks in better condition than he was when he won either the Ward Marathon or at Montreal.

NEVER FELT BETTER.

"I never worked so hard or was so good before for a race," he said today, and his old-self confidence asserted itself when he added; "What kind of a reception will I get in Toronto when I come back the champion of the world?"

He has no fear of the Italian.

"How will you run Dorando?" he was asked.

HOW LONGBOAT WILL RUN.

"Well, I think I will take a mile or so to warm up, and let him set the pace," was the reply. "Then I'll fry him out, and try and get a lap lead before I get to the five mile post, and if I cannot get it, I'll lay back till the ten-mile mark, and try again, and then again on the fifteen. If I don't do it, then I will rely on my sprint, on end and let him carry the pace to the last mile. Then I'll go at him again, and run him until he can't hold me."

Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's

The regular meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church was held last night, and considerable time was spent in discussing the Church Hockey League and preparing for the winter's sport. The president, Mr. Earnest Read occupied the chair.

Mr. Mortimer Johnston was elected manager of St. Andrew's team, and he will make a good official. The committee is composed of Messrs. Thos. Donaldson, Norman Rae and George McDonald. President Read will represent the team at the league meetings.

During the evening Mr. Cornish gave a very interesting and instructive address on "Fishing," giving a graphic discription of his study in the scientific station at Canaox, N. S. He told of the various kinds of fishing, the catch of cod, mackerel, lobster and other kinds of fish. The members of the league were delighted with the talk, and Mr. Cornish has promised to give another evening to a discussion of the methods of deep-sea fishing.

Complimentary Banquet Tendered Colonel Miller

One of the best suppers ever served in the drill shed was the complimentary banquet tendered to Lt.-Col. Miller, who recently retired from active service in the regiment. The banquet was tendered by the officers of the 57th Regiment, with which military organization the colonel had been identified for 43 years and served in every capacity including a full term of five years as lieut.-colonel.

The officers' mess rooms were crowded and everyone enjoyed the spread furnished by Caterer Thomas Hooper. The chair was taken by Lt.-Col. Halliday, president of the mess, and the vice chair by Major Hayes. An interesting feature of the evening was the presentation by Colonel Stevenson of a handsome gold watch on the case of which was engraved the 57th Regimental coat of arms, to Colonel Miller. Another feature was the presence of Col. Greenwood, who has recently returned from South Africa.

The program was as follows;

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physicians. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured thousands of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Many apparently alike medicines dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

A POLITICIAN ON SAW-OFFS

A just and aptly expressed condemnation of the "saw-off" was uttered by Colonel Hugh Clark, M.L.A., before the Borden Club in Toronto the other day. Colonel Clark is a politician "practical" enough to win elections, and it is from this class in the community that such condemnations are needed. It is the "practical" politicians who engineer the "saw-offs" and the remedy must come through them or be applied to them.

Speaking as a party man to party men, Colonel Clark's speech had a refreshing ring of independence, says the Montreal Star. It is quite true that he might not "own up" so candidly to an audience of Liberals,— in fact, he suggested as much later on in his speech—but that was natural tactics in [illegible]

"After all," said Col. Clark, "I don't see how I can say much about corruption in the campaign as relating to the other side, when we see such an occurrence, as took place on Saturday, when a number of men from both parties got together here in Toronto to try and 'arrange' the matter of the protested elections for the whole province. They were fixing it so that there would be as many protests on one side, as on the other, four against four, or six against six, so that as much trouble as possible would be avoided."

When the non-political man condemns the "saw-off" iniquity, the men who "run" elections assume a lofty attitude and call him "impractical." But the most faithful ward captain cannot give this answer to Colonel Clark. He is quite well aware that "it costs an awful lot of money to fight a protest"—he has done it—but that does not alter his opinion that the "saw-off" is "radically wrong". As he points out, what is the use of making the election laws more severe, if they are not to be put into operation? A draconic law is no more deterrent than "a pious resolution." If it is to be made a dead letter.

These utterances by the Bruce Colonel are plain speaking. We cannot have too much of it along this line. Now that we have heard from a "practical politician" of the Conservative stripe, it is the "play" of some one from the Liberal ranks.

"ALL DEALERS"

CORRECT COURT DRESS

DRESS FOR ROYAL LEVEES RIGIDLY LAID DOWN.

Official Book on the Subject Has Been Issued to Secure Uniformity in Gorgeous Trappings of Those Who Surround His Majesty — Six Buttons Instead of Seven Is Now the Rule in Men's Coats.

Not the least important of the duties performed by the Lord Chamberlain's Department is that of instructing the ignorant as to the correct dress which should be worn by the different ranks and professions at the royal courts, levees, and state parties. So many different styles of dress are permissible, and such are the details to be attended to if one desires to be absolutely correct, that even the best court tailors are sometimes in doubt, and the result has been a want of uniformity which has often caused annoyance to His Majesty.

In consequence, an official book, entitled "Dress Worn at Court" has been published, which forms an authoritative guide for those attending His Majesty's court. From this book one learns, for instance, that there are two styles of court dress which may be worn by gentlemen who have no special uniform. In the coat of the new style one must be careful that it is of black silk velvet, single-breasted, and with stand collar. It must have plain gauntlet cuffs, with pocket flaps and three points on the waist seam. There must be two buttons at the waist behind and two buttons at the bottom of the tails, the body of the coat being lined with black silk, while the tails are lined with black.

There should be exactly six buttons and button-holes in the new style of coat, whereas the old style had seven. The latter also had three notched holes and buttons on the gauntlet cuffs, with six buttons behind instead of four, as in the new style. Often a civilian who has attended court has unconsciously worn a coat combining features of the two styles.

Special attention must also be paid to the waistcoat that should be worn with court dress. A white satin or velvet [illegible] is the most suitable, but often [illegible] white cloth or black silk [illegible] and white corded silk or white [illegible] cella, these last two materials being only permissible with the cloth court dress.

Then, again, mayors often make mistakes in regard to their chains of office. These should never be worn with a military uniform; but a mayor who is also a clergyman may attend court in full canonicals, wearing his mayoral chain over his gown. With court suits, by the way, plain gold or pearl studs should be in the shirt front, and watch chains should not be worn. The black silk fob with seals, if worn, should hang from the fob pocket on the right side.

The ladies must observe the following rules amongst others: "Feathers should be worn so that they can be clearly seen on approaching the presence, with white veils or lappets. Colored feathers are inadmissible, but in deep mourning black feathers may be worn. White gloves only are to be worn, excepting in case of mourning, when black or grey gloves are admissible.

"The King has been pleased to permit that a high court dress, according to the following description, may be worn in future at Their Majesties' courts, and on other state occasions, by ladies to whom, from illness, infirmity, or advancing age the present low court dress is inappropriate—viz., bodices in front, cut square or heart shape, which may be filled in with white only, either transparent or lined; at the back, high, or cut down three-quarter height. Sleeves to elbow, either thick or transparent. Trains, gloves, and feathers as usual. It is necessary for ladies who wish to appear in 'high court dress' to obtain permission through the Lord Chamberlain, unless they have already received it."

[illegible] Dr. Shoop's Restorative [illegible] the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

The President's Remarks

The president, in moving the adoption of the directors' report, said:

A year ago business in the United States was staggered under a sudden collapse of credit and acute money stringency, while in Canada the brakes had been applied and the slowing down process had begun. To-day the situation is much improved, confidence has been largely restored, credit is again good, the money markets of the world are abnormally easy, but the volume of trade has been considerably diminished. Measured by the value of imports, the shrinkage in Canada within a year has been approximately 20 per cent., namely from $362,460,000 to $297,200,000, the figures being for the 12 months ending October 1, 1907 and 1908 respectively.

On the other hand, the value of domestic exports in the same period has been well maintained, being $231,500,000 as against $244,206,800 last year.

The daily business of the country, as gauged by bank note circulation, at no time showed a shrinkage exceeding 5 per cent.

In view of the great excess by which imports had grown over domestic exports, amounting to upwards of $100,000,000 in 1907, the subsequent contraction in imports must be regarded as a healthy condition. The gap between exports and imports may be still further contracted with advantage, and it is to be hoped that this process will be steadily continued. No doubt this reform was assisted by the repeated recommendations of economy emanating from all financial quarters, and is gratifying to note that the liquidation process compelled by monetary conditions has been accomplished in Canada, with, upon the whole little disturbance, and peacefully without any great disaster.

Commercial loans have been extended by the bank sixty millions or upwards of 10 per cent., with a contraction of less than 5 per cent. in the volume of domestic trade as measured by bank circulation.

Immigration has fallen off about 50 per cent., but the quality of late has been good, farmers and farm labourers predominating.

The great feature of the year has been the excellent crops secured by the Northwest provinces, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, variously estimated as in wheat 185,000,000 to 210,000,000 bushels; oats, 180,000,000 bushels; barley, 25,000,000 bushels; in addition crops of flax, potatoes, etc. The money value of the grain crops of these farmers will approximate 124,000,000 dollars earned by a territory practically deserted up to a comparatively recent date. We have further from the same territory the report that an unusually large percentage of fall ploughing has been done, that the land is in the very best condition, and a very considerable increase in acreage indicated for next season.

The export demand for our surplus farm products has been above the average, and a large proportion of these has already been marketed. In Ontario and Quebec, however, the brilliant prospects of spring were somewhat clouded over by a long continued midsummer drought. As regards the special business of this port, the exports of wheat and oats were in excess of last year, being respectively 27,485,034 and 1,466,503 bushels. Most other grains went somewhat short.

Shipping.—There is a widespread depression in shipping, the extent of which may be imagined from a report from the north of England that about a million tons of steamers were already laid up, and many more will require to go into the ranks of the unemployed during the winter. Notwithstanding this the trade of the St. Lawrence has fairly well held its own. Some voyages no doubt were unremunerative on account of vacant space, but both passengers and freight were, upon the whole, profitable, which is another proof of the advantages which the St. Lawrence route possesses. The tendency is all new vessels is towards increased size and carrying capacity, demanding due provision in all harbour and channel work of the future.

The Lumber Trade.—The exports of lumber and deals for the past year to both Europe and the United States have fallen below those of the year previous, both in volume and value. Pine deals have declined $3 to $4 per 1000 feet, and spruce $2 per 1000 feet, from which decline there has already been a partial recovery. This is considered a favourable omen, and a sign that the depression, which has hung over the lumber trade for some time, past is about to be dispersed, and that a more active business in the future may be looked for.

The British market shows no improvement. Liverpool advices being of a more cheerful tone. Quebec pine and spruce deals are being enquired for, and as stocks are somewhat heavy, their realization would be a great help to the trade.

The opinion seems to prevail that the turning point has been reached, and that better times are near at hand.

Exports.—As regards the exportable products, it may be said that eggs, cheese, ham, bacon and meats, butter and apples all showed a falling off, and wholesale grocery houses after having felt the depression in business in the past year, now speak of a decided improvement, with brightening prospects for the coming year.

Exports of Produce.—The value of the principal exports of produce from this port during the past season of navigation are computed as follows:

Grain and flour	$32,400,000
Butter and cheese	19,157,000
Hams and bacon	2,101,000
Total	$54,806,000

It to the above we add the exports of cattle, $4,716,700, we have a grand total of $58,922,700.

Dry goods.—The effects of the panic of last October were not immediately felt by the dry goods trade. The general trade was so good in 1907 that the full effect did not appear until January, 1908. For six months previous to that a certain amount of taking in of extra canvas had been going on, as money had been very scarce. Arrangements have been made before October but a probable decrease in sales for spring, 1909, but the decrease in future over was a great deal more than anticipated, depending on much on the time per cent. from 1st January. As last mentioned that the improvement began, and for the last six months the loss of business was about half this amount, or 15 per cent.

Buying has been conducted everywhere on conservative lines for next spring season, 1909, which is just beginning. Orders taken in advance by the travellers are very fair.

The capacity of the Canadian cotton mills and calico printers is likely to be taxed in many lines to its full capacity, as they have received large orders which last year were placed in Manchester. Mills and dealers would have advanced in England, and manufacturers of woollens dress goods in France have refused orders, except at an advance in price.

The good crops have helped collections very much, and the financial state of the retail trade began to settle factory. Comparatively few bad debts have been made by the wholesale trade during the year. (This is one of the features of this table, as the Bank of Montreal returns show.) Generally the prospects seem distinctly improved, and the outlook decidedly hopeful.

Iron and hardware.—While some of our large wholesale firms complain that business has fallen off in the past year, everything points to an increased trade in the future. Manufacturers of iron and steel report increasing orders for future delivery, and a heavy spring business is anticipated.

Leather.—Both business and profits have been curtailed in the past year, owing partly to the increased cost of hides, and the low price of leather, but prospects for the coming year are most encouraging. The allied trade on boots and shoes shows very similar results for the year.

Railway Construction.—The past year certainly was and the present holds out the prospects of being emphatically the era of railway construction. The Grand Trunk Pacific between Prince Rupert and Moncton is likely to occupy a considerable time, while it cannot be overlooked that most of the other railways in the country have been occupied with extensions, much greater than the public have any idea of. For example, the Canadian Pacific Railway at the end of June had over 700 miles under construction in different sections of the country, and the Canadian Northern was also engaged in increasing its mileage in Quebec and the western provinces.

The vast importance of the improvement of the agricultural products of the country must be an excuse for introducing a subject occupying a great deal of attention in other countries as well as here, and closely bound up with the prosperity of the country and, of course, of this and other banking institutions. When we reflect that the annual value of the products of the soil of Canada must exceed four hundred millions of dollars, any permanent increase in quantity or improvement in quality of our crops becomes of enormous importance. For example, if by selection of the seed or by hybridizing, with the light thrown on this subject by Mendel's discovery, the wheat plant can be made to increase its yield or shorten the period of ripening, even by days, it might mean the difference in the northwest of saving or losing a large percentage of the crop.

In the magnificent installation of Sir Wm. Macdonald at St. Anne's, which after all, is only the continuation and culmination of his work in the same direction all over the Dominion, this question of improvement in the grain plant and in the fertilising of the soil has been a subject of careful research and experiment, and no doubt will continue to be so.

Dr. Robertson is sanguine enough to state that within five years past an increase of more than 20 per cent. has been obtained over large areas in Canada, on the average yield per acre of wheat, barley and oats, by improvement in the quality of the seed sown. It is not too much to hope that this improvement will continue as fresh discoveries are made and their application extended, and that the research and experimental department of the Macdonald and other colleges will prove the most important institutions in the country.

I beg to move: "That the report of the directors now read be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders." If any shareholder has any question to ask, we shall be pleased to answer him.

The Vice-President

The Vice-President then spoke as follows:

Since I last had the pleasure of meeting you and giving an account of my stewardship, we have passed through a very momentous financial year. For several months our American neighbours were not, practically, on a specie basis, and though in Canada we considered that we were in a fairly sound condition, we were somewhat in the position of a man living in a fire-proof house with his neighbour's residence ablaze. He believes himself safe, but is naturally nervous as to the result. I said, in a fairly sound condition, for though our state was satisfactory enough for normal times, the country's great prosperity had brought about an abnormal demand for money. We were over-trading on inadequate capital; everyone from the government to the individual was spending too much and living too extravagantly. Canada's financial resources were strained to the utmost, and when in addition, there came a crisis in the United States, and extraordinary conditions elsewhere, (witness a 7 per cent. Bank of England rate), we certainly had grounds for anxiousness, and good reason for putting on the brakes, financially, in rather an emergent manner. Fortunately for us we had begun to do so before the crisis arrived. The general result of all this disturbance has been beneficial, and what I said last year, that we would eventually reach a better and a sounder basis, is coming to pass, largely as the result of a harvest of exceptionally high quality, which is realizing excellent prices. Canada to-day is in a good commercial position and can look to the future with renewed hope and satisfaction. Not that we are in a condition to start on a boom; but if our people will continue the conservative policy which is at present animating their conduct of business we will emerge stronger and better in every way.

Reference to the record of commercial failures which, during the past year, have increased from $19,000,000 the average of recent years, to $34,000,000 brings home the reality of the dangers which have threatened our industrial welfare. These are large figures, but considering the strain and stress of the times, the great expansion in business, and the heavy stocks carried last autumn, we may reasonably consider the commercial community to have weathered the storm fairly well, and I think it may be claimed that the banks did their share in carrying them through a season of trouble.

During the year we have had three bank failures—The Sovereign Bank of Canada, La Banque de St. Jean, and the Banque de St. Hyacinthe. It is hardly necessary to state that in no case have the note-holders suffered, and it is worthy of notice that since the circulation came more directly under the supervision of the Canadian Bankers' Association, there has been no failure of a bank which has disclosed any tampering with its circulation, either by over-issue or otherwise.

Through the assistance of a number of the banks, the Sovereign Bank is being liquidated without loss to its depositors. This was a case of "modern" banking where unusual methods were adopted to attract deposits, and fraudulent [illegible] were [illegible] to [illegible] of banking [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] of [illegible] of

School Closed

On account of the continued prevalence of the scarlet fever in the northern part of the city, the Board of Education have deemed it advisable to close the Queen Alexandra school for the balance of the term. Through fear of contagion a large percentage of the pupils have been at home during the past few days, and, as the school is disorganized on this account, and as the term ends within a week, it was thought wise to be on the safe side and to close the school.
When school reopens in January, it is hoped that the epidemic will have disappeared since the fever is of a very mild type.

Twin Brothers Court and Wed Twin Sisters

Indianapolis, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Bridget Keenan owns a drug store on North Bismarck avenue, where an excellent quality of ice cream soda is dispensed, and into her establishment there happened at the same time one hot afternoon a year ago last August Cleo and Cleveland Logan, twins, and Emma and Gladys McGovney, twins. Said Mrs. Keenan; "Twin boys, those are the twin girls. Twin girls, those are the twin boys." The introduction was acknowledged.
It was the first time the four had ever met. Last week the twins were married at the home of the Misses McGovney.
It is now recalled by the neighbors that ever since that Sunday afternoon a year ago last August, the four had been seen together on many occasions. The twin boys called on the twin girls the same evenings. They went to the theatre together in summer they rode to the parks together—always the twin boys and the twin girls—four of them. The engagement was announced some time ago. The twin boys are 23 and the twin girls.

To Employers of Labor

In order to relieve the intense situation of the unemployed of this Province, who seem to gather in the larger centres during the early winter months, it has been decided by the Associated Charities to open a free employment bureau in Toronto. This appeal is being sent broadcast through the Province to the manufacturers, farmers and all people who employ labor to co-operate in this work; and it is earnestly hoped that anyone needing help of any kind, skilled or unskilled, will apply direct to the "Toronto Employment Bureau", 71 Victoria Street. The Bureau already has hundreds of capable men willing to undertake work of any kind that may be offered them, who prefer work rather than charity. The help of the people in this district will considerably lessen the necessity of appeals being made for large sums of money to be used for charity.

itigant who was attempting to nullify proceedings on the ground of irregularity. Moreover, the affidavit and the proposed examination of Mr. Stratton were without notice to the petitioner.
"Perhaps you will concede there was no personal service of suggested Justice Britton.
"I conceive it to be my duty to concede nothing," replied Mr. Jones "If he intends to rely on sheer technicalities he must be met by them."
Mr. Watson closed by moving for an order quashing the protest. By failing to serve Mr. Stratton personally, the petitioners "for reasons best known to themselves, have" Mr. Watson continued, "allowed the case to fail."
J. E. Jones, for petitioners, said the respondent had abandoned six or seven of his preliminary objections, and now sprang the plea of lack of personal service upon Mr. Stratton. This was insufficiently specified in their notice of objection. It was not covered by the mere mention of the term insufficiency of service. The specific nature of the insufficiency must be given. If they mean personal service it was necessary to say that, but they purposely refrain from stating that because they knew that Mr. Stratton would then have been personally served within 24 hours. Counsel for the respondent appeared before the court after serving them with a deceptive notice. Was the court going to encourage that sort of deception? It was dishonest with the court. It was an attempt to jolly from day to day.
The order granted for substitutional service on Dec. 2 was valid. Under this order service had been regularly made on Roland Glover. It had evidently reached Mr. Stratton as he was present to answer it.
Judge Britton said that Mr. Jones was entitled to an adjournment to examine the affidavit. The later declined to accept this on the ground that the affidavit could not be introduced under the notice of objections served upon them.
Justice Britton said: "I will look into the cases."
Mr. Watson made another application for permission to plate Mr. Stratton in the box but was not allowed to do so. He traced smilingly to Mr. Jones, and holding out his hand, said: "Perhaps you have the favor of Dec. 2 with you."
Mr. Jones grasped his hand heartily with the words; "I have nothing."
"My learned friend has nothing," said Mr. Watson.
The court then adjourned.

Values for Your Investments
Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?
And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?
I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.
Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.
My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.
The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.
Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.
I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

President Hays of Grand Trunk Pacific Says He Will Do It with His Low Grades—One Engine Over Rockies

(Special to The New York Times.)

Montreal, Nov. 28.—In an interview here, C. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is financed by Messrs. Rothschild in London and Speyer Brothers in New York, gives an account of his observations during a tour of inspection which took him to Prince Rupert, the western terminal of the new Canadian line.

In answer to questions Mr. Hays said:

"We are doing very well, indeed. The various contractors are in good spirits and well abreast of their duties. Indeed, the financial disaster in New York a year ago was for us a blessing in disguise. Large numbers of men have come north seeking work. Labor is abundant and is more productive, at lower wages. Already our trains are running regularly over the whole section 600 miles west of Winnipeg into Alberta. The newly arrived settlers have harvested a great wheat crop—great both in quantity and in quality, greater still for the price it is bringing. At our Pacific terminal, Prince Rupert, from which I returned this week, good progress is being made with the grading of the first hundred miles east, and I see no reason to doubt that by the autumn of 1911 our first train will break through to tidewater, passing from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

HIGH COST AND LOW GRADES.

Asked about alleged "generous expenditures" on the road, Mr. Hays replied:

"A number of amiable and glib gentlemen hunting seats in the Dominion Parliament have been talking about the matter on the stump. The Canadian voter has replied to them. The Dominion Government is, as you know, our partner in the enterprise, and to denounce Ministers for reckless extravagance is all right and proper from the viewpoint of an opposition. But our expenditures have not been excessive nor beyond the measure of our obligations to the Government and the community.

"Bear in mind, please, that railroads are not now built as the earlier

The Senior City Hockey League Did Business

There are now six teams in the Senior City League. Lakefield and the Belmonts have both entered, and the Y.M.C.A. team withdrew. The second meeting for the season was held last night when all the teams were represented, and several matters of business were put through.

Secretary B. T. Huston put in his resignation as he is leaving the city at the end of the year. He will be much missed in the city league as he has been a good official. His successor will be picked by the executive and introduced at the next meeting on Dec. 28th.

Secretary B. T. Huston read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted. President C. G. Graham presided.

Since the last meeting of the league Lakefield has applied for membership and have paid there $2.

The Belmonts also applied for admission and were taken in.

This makes a total of seven teams including the Y.M.C.A. if they remain in the league. The Y.M.C.A., however, will withdraw so that there will be only six teams.

An amendment was moved to allow all players who had not played intermediate hockey prior to the season of 1907-08 to play in the league this year.

This amendment caused a whole lot of discussion and a stiff opposition from the Lakefield bunch, who claimed that they were getting the worst of the deal.

After a half-hour rag chewing motion carried.

A proposition was made by the Junior City League as follows; — That the senior league give each of the junior teams twenty tickets to sell at 25c. each, and give half the money to the Rink Company, and half to the city league. Then the senior league engage the rink for the whole of the Thursday evening, instead of from 8 to 10 o'clock.

The proposition was accepted.

A motion was passed that the ex-president, Fred Clarke, be made a life member of the city league.—Carried.

On motion it was decided that all amendments to the constitution in future be brought up at the annual meeting and that at least ten days' notice must be given the secretary.

It was moved that in future in the event of a protest the representatives of the two clubs interested be not allowed to vote.—Carried.

The schedule will be drawn up the first Monday after Christmas Dec. 28th.

Forty Dollars for Stabbing a Companion

The aftermath of the fracas on Saturday night on the road in the long swamp this side of Bridgenorth, was a police court case yesterday morning, in which Magistrate Edmison imposed a fine of forty dollars and costs, which, was paid in court. The charge was laid by Mr. George Cochrane, who had been informed of the affair at a late hour Saturday night. The second party to the fight was present, bearing more than one memento of the fray through which he had passed. There was a cut under his right eye and the left was badly discolored. There was also a scratch under one of his ears. It is stated that the scene of the scuffle had many blood spots, which were seen in the snow on Sunday morning.

Only the evidence of the two young men was heard. The wrangle was the outcome of the upsetting of the cutter in which they were driving home. It was stated that there was no evidence to show that the defendant had used a knife.

STOMACH CATARRH

WATERY RISINGS, BELCHING GAS DIGESTIVE WEAKNESS.

Fred M. McKenzie Recommends a Scientific Treatment that Cured Him

New discoveries in the line of medical treatment have come before the profession of late years with almost alarming rapidity, but one that promises for assistance all others in the treatment of stomach and digestive troubles is Ferrozone, which is a scientific combination of vegetable extracts and juices that soothe the stomach and improve digestion in a truly wonderful way.

So many are interested in finding a really good stomach medicine, that Mr. McKenzie, one of the most prominent citizens in Cambridge, tells of remedy he proved to be a "cure."

"Although my appetite was good and I ate little, I always had the sensation of having eaten too much. I experienced weight and oppression an hour or two after eating. Often I had heartburn, risings of a bitter liquid, coated tongue and bad breath. There was a continual gnawing pain in my stomach, especially before meals.

SAD CASE CURED.

"No case of Catarrh of the stomach and digestive organs could be worse than mine. I suffered the limit of human endurance for two years I doctored but didn't find the real remedy until I got Ferrozone, what a blessing this preparation must be to all mankind. I took one Ferrozone tablet at the close of each meal and in one week improved. In a month, although not cured, the improvement was steady. I continued to use Ferrozone for three months and was restored to robust perfect health. I would urge every man to try Ferrozone—in many ways it will do good."

In all cases of Weak Stomach, Indigestion, Nervousness, Palpitation of the Heart, Insomnia, General Debility, Chronic Dyspepsia, and all wasting diseases use Ferrozone, no remedy will so surely and quickly restore you to the full vigor of health and strength.

When you take Ferrozone every thing you eat tastes good, and every bit of the nourishment that your food contains is assimilated and appropriated by the blood and tissues. Try Ferrozone, all dealers, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Get it today.

Directors are Preparing for the Annual Meeting

A meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors was held on Wednesday night when arrangements were made for the annual meeting to be held on the second Tuesday in January. Of the eighteen members of the board six retire each year. A committee was appointed to nominate the new directors. It is composed of Messrs. J. J. Howden, W. D. Campbell and Dr. Middleton.

Another committee composed of President Shook and Messrs. Howden and Simson, was appointed to prepare the annual report.

Messrs. E. M. Rogers and B. F. Ackerman were appointed a committee to prepare for the annual meeting and to arrange for any program or members' banquet which might be decided upon.

First Meeting of Debating Club

City life has greater advantages than the country life. The Debating Club of the Boys' department at the Y.M.C.A. last night argued the point for some time and such was there decision. This was the first debate of the season and it proved very interesting. Quite a number were present. The affirmative was taken by N. Laing and C. Miller, while Hunter and W. Hastie upheld the negative.

The officers for the year were elected as follows:—
President—N. Laing.
Secretary—B. Hunter.
Treasurer—W. Hastie.
Program Committee—C. Dean, H. Portmouth and C. Miller.

It was decided to meet every second Wednesday, and the next meeting will be on Dec. 30th, when the subject will be Resolved that it is better to wear a wig than to go bald-headed. The program committee will prepare other entertainment for the evening. All the boys are invited to attend.

Raised the Gates at the Railway Crossing

The danger of raising railway gates after they have been lowered by the gateman because a pedestrian may be in a hurry to continue on his way, was demonstrated on Simcoe street the other evening. A man was going down the street with two women and was stopped by the gates which were down while one train was going by. When they were not at once raised the man lifted them himself and passed over the tracks although another was following close behind. A horse and sleigh passed under the gates as soon as they were lifted and narrowly escaped the second engine. The gateman had to forcibly raise the gates as soon as the driver pass through. The gateman states that this is an offence which the law deals with and wishes it understood that any further actions of this kind will mean trouble for the parties that do them.

Insanity Grows Three Times as Fast as Population of U.S.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 16.—"Insanity grows three times as fast in proportion as the increase in population in the United States."

Dr. David Paulson, President of the Anti-Cigarette League, made this statement yesterday afternoon.

"China," he continued, "used twenty-six grains of opium last year for every man, woman, and child.

The United States used 56 grains. There are at least one million opium users in this country."

Found Longboat Sitting At Bedside of Dorando

Victor Signs Contract with Italian's Manager, Which Flanagan Turned Down—To go Full Distance Again

New York, Dec. 16.—Tom Longboat out in New York! That is what happened to the Indian. He fussed around with a few friends until daybreak, and then went to bed. At nine o'clock this morning he couldn't be found, and he was not located until noon today.

Where do you think he was found? Sitting at the bedside of the sick Pietri brothers.

In a big double bed at the Seville, the two brothers lay—Dorando and his brother, the runner ill with a strained heart and the brother broken-hearted and moaning in his distress.

Longboat had been there three hours when I found him.

"I'm going to give Dorando another chance," quoth the Indian. "He is a game runner."

"Yes, indeed," said Harry Pollock, his manager, as he exhibited a contract signed by the Onondaga, which Tom Flanagan refused to sign. The latter was holding out for a fifteen-mile go.

WHAT WILL FLANAGAN SAY?

What Flanagan will say when he sees the contract will be worth hearing. Can Pollock hold the Indian to it?

"He's game and I had to give him another chance," said Longboat, "as we came away, "but I'll beat him a mile the next time we meet. I was only half in shape last night. I'll be right when I run him again, and I'll beat him as far as I can. I only played with him last night."

Hammerstein's want Longboat to appear there for a week. Longboat wants a thousand for the stunt.

Longboat is wearing a magnificent five hundred dollar diamond medal, a present from the Italians of New York. Gathering Sunday he would win all along, they took up a subscription and bought the medal, and announced that it would be presented to the winner.

Longboat ran their idol into the sawdust. But they were game, and gave the victor the medal. The ceremony was funereal.

CANADIANS CELEBRATE.

The Canucks are raising cain in Gotham today. Staid business and professional men are parading Broadway, wearing the orange and green of the Irish-Canadians and waving Canadian flags. They hold a little reception every hour or so.

Longboat is followed by hundreds in the streets.

TOM DIDN'T EXPECT TO WIN.

As a matter of fact, Longboat never expected to win, that is, until after the race started.

I have said privately that Longboat was not game and have stated in the start that he was a front runner. I'll never say it again. Longboat today has a blister on his left foot two inches in diameter, and has nine other blisters on his feet. They commenced to bother him at ten miles. They are the aftermath of the Philadelphia race, which was run on boards.

STOOD THE BLISTERS.

It was the blisters that beat Longboat in Philadelphia. Last night he bore it like his stoical ancestors stood the tortures, and finished on feet that would have stopped nine out of ten runners. His feet are very bad, and he is limping today.

Flanagan was robbed of a diamond pin and Longboat of a watch in the crush last night.

A telegram received from Montreal this afternoon stated that a street rumor there whispered that Tom Longboat was dead. It is true the Indian was missing for a while this morning, but the above despatch indicates he is very much alive.

Track and Field Club will be Organized Tonight

The Track and Field Club which is to be formed in connection with the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., is just the organization that has been wanted for some time. From all indications the club will be a most successful one and should have a large membership from the start.

One meeting has been held at which a general discussion of matters relative to the welfare of the club was held and another one will take place this evening at 7.30. Every member of the association interested in athletics is asked to be present as the election of officers will take place the constitution will probably be drawn up.

The suggestions of the moment had a splendid object in view, when they thought of forming a Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club. The idea is not only to promote track and field athletics for meets to be carried out here, but also to have the club represented in the Dunlop Trophy competition held annually in Toronto.

Among the members of the Y.M.C.A. there are some excellent men in track and field athletics and a club could be formed that would do an incalculable amount of good for the promotion of these important branches of sport.

Another Section of Trent Valley Canal Under Contract

The Dominion Government's promise to push to completion the work on the Trent Canal is rapidly being fulfilled. During the past year tenders have been called for and contracts let for several sections, and the last to be let is Number 7, Ontario-Rice Lake Division. This section extends from Rice Lake to Healey Falls, a distance of about twenty miles. The contractor is Mr. Randolph MacDonald, Toronto, who also has the Rosedale section to the north.

Section No. 7 includes the construction of a dam and lock at Hastings, new guide piers at the G.T.R. bridge above Hastings, a swing bridge and guide piers at the Narrows (Trent Bridge), and the dredging of the Trent River from Hastings to Healey Falls to produce a 9-foot draught. The work will likely begin in the near future and will give employment to a considerable number of men.

With the letting of this contract there remain only two—Numbers 4 and 6—on the Ontario-Rice Lake Division, that have yet to be tendered upon. The surveys have, of course, been made on these and plans are under preparation by the engineers. No. 6 will be advertised in January, and it is expected that within the next six months the whole canal, from Rice Lake to Trenton, will be under contract.

Letters to the Editor

(To the Editor of The Times)

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly allow me a little space to reply to a letter in your daily of the 10th inst. re "Exhibition Grounds." Now sir, that letter (I hope it is not intentionally misleading, but from lack of knowledge of the proposition). The proposition is for the city to buy the Exhibition Grounds and Turf Club Grounds for a park for the South End of the city and allow the Industrial Fair Board to erect suitable buildings for fair purposes and only to be used by them for exhibition purposes one week in the year—for their accommodation, and if something like this is not done, it will be very difficult for the Fair Board to make their exhibition the success they and all our best citizens wish it to be. As at present our buildings through age are becoming old and dilapedated, and as the present grounds are only under a short lease, we do not feel justified in spending large amounts in repairing the old buildings or erecting new ones. Now sir, we have a precedent to show that it would be to advantage for the city to purchase the grounds. We will take the city of Toronto and their National Exhibition, acknowledged as be the greatest on the continent. The city owns the Exhibition Grounds and Buildings, erected at a very large expense, and in each and every year they are spending enormous sums on new and additional buildings as required, and Toronto people look on this as one of their best investments from a financial standpoint, as the city receives a large dividend every year from the profits of the exhibition directly, to say nothing of the immense business done by the business houses in all lines during the two weeks of the fair.

We hope the electors will take a broad and liberal view of the whole matter and by their votes for the bylaw instruct the City Council to purchase this desirable property for a park and place of recretion for the citizens; at once while it can be obtained, and surely the south end citizens should be given some consideration, as at present they have no park, while all other parts of the city have been provided with splendid parks. At the present time no part of the city is building up as rapidly as the South End.

Yours,
WM. COLLINS,
(A Fair Director.)

Chicago, Dec. 16.—A report of the police department shows that 156 persons were murdered in Chicago in the year 1908.

Of the murders 24 remain unsolved.

In the year 1905, 193 murders were committed, which is the highest number recorded.

Special Prosecutor White Declares Thornton Hains Wrote Bitter Letters

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 16.—Calmly and with imperturbable mien, Thornton J. Hains watched today in court the construction of the State's case designed to prove the charges that he was a principal with his brother, Capt. Peter Hains, jr., in the killing of William E. Annis, a publisher, at the Bayside Yacht Club last summer. The jury box was filled last night, and an adjournment taken until today.

The adduction of direct testimony of the State's witnesses is expected to take only a little time, but the cross-examination will likely delay the opening of the defence for three or four days. As had been outlined, Hain's counsel will endeavor to show, through its cross-examination of the State's witnesses, that the writer's act in drawing his revolver was one of defence and not of offence. The central figure in today's case was the appearance of the State's chief witness, Mrs. William E. Annis, who stood helplessly by at the Yacht Club float and saw her husband's life taken. The recital of her story on the witness stand is calculated by the prosecutors to be their strongest card in the States case.

Thornton Haine has seemingly no apprehension of the outcome of the trial. He said this morning that he had no doubt that the jury would acquit him, and declared that his story on the witness stand would not only free him, but would open the doors for his brother's release. General Peter Hains, now retired, sat with the defendant during the trial, and frequently during the case father and son conferred on some point in the evidence.

Justice Crane has made it clear to counsel that the taking of evidence must move with the same expedition as the examination of talesmen. The jury will not be locked up during the trial or at least until all evidence has been submitted. Reports that the prosecution has tampered with one of the witnesses for the defense have met with promptly denial by the State's attorneys.

MAY DISCHARGE REVOLVER.

Counsel for Hains said today that it might be necessary to discharge the automatic revolver with blank cartridges in the courtg room to demonstrate by the rapidity with which the shots are fired that it would be impossible for the eye-witnesses to have prevented Capt. Peter Hains from firing more than one shot. The witnesses allege that had not Thornton Hains interfered they would have probably saved Annis' life. Counsel states that the automatic revolver fires six shots at less than two seconds.

CANNOT SIT BESIDE SON.

Justice Crane excused all talesmen when court opened and excluded all witnesses of the tragedy from the court room. On a motion of District Attorney Darrin, Justice Crane said he would not permit Mrs. Hains, mother of the defendant, to sit beside her son during the trial. The order does not exclude Mrs. Hains from the court room. Mrs. Hains was not in court when the order was given.

Special Prosecutor White then began to outline the case for the State.

WROTE LETTER.

Special Prosecutor White, in his opening address, declared that seven months before the murder the publisher of the magazine Recreation had received letters from Thornton J. Hains, expressing deep-seated animosity towards employes of the magazine and towards Annis, who was in charge of its advertising department. Mr. White said also that Hains again wrote to the publisher of Recreation two months before the murder, expressing animus against Annis.

Coming down to the day of the tragedy last August, Mr. White described the location of the Bayside Yacht Club, and then told how Annis and a Mr. Harway on the afternoon in question went out for a sail preparatory to the boat races, in which Annis was to compete.

Alleged Financial Embarrassment of Kaiser William

Berlin, December 16.— —Emperor William and every member of the Imperial family must practice the most rigid economy from now on and indefinitely. William finds his revenues so exhausted by his extravagant ways that he is in desperate need of cash, this, although his annual income is estimated conservatively at $10,000,000.

The galling lack of money may account in part for the present almost melancholy state of the ruler who thinks that wealth is as much his by divine right as is sovereignity. Naturally the Emperor's need of money extends to every member of his family, who depend in the largest part on his purse to maintain the state which he demands of them.

This fact may explain rightly why the Crown Prince, mercifully wishing to help those widowed and orphaned by the recent mining disaster at Hamm, had to sell below its cost a diamond tiara worth $35,000.

Again and again the Socialist members of the Reichstag have deplored the Emperor's extravagance as frightful, but he recognizes extravagance only in others. The Emperors has been literally pouring out money on works of art, especially on pictures and sculptures in restoring old German castles and in rebuilding the Achilleion marble palace in Corfu. The Empress, one of the most luxurious women in Europe found the castle not to her cultured taste, Emperor William spent $1,000,000 in changing and "improving" the castle, and in laying out parks

Fire Chief's New Wagon is Ready

The new wagon or buggy for the use of the chief of the fire brigade Howard, has been completed by Mr. George Fitzgerald and delivered at the fire hall. The outfit is certainly a splashy one and the chief will have to be careful that he does not get too obesity when he goes out in it. It is built on the most modern lines and is in keeping with the hall and apparatus. The seat will accommodate two big men comfortably and three in a pinch. The back is fitted so that a chemical can be carried, and a small ladder may be placed underneath. This outfit is for the purpose of saving the other apparatus in case of small fires where only a chemical is needed. The color is a bright red with gold lettering. On the bottom of the front part is a gong which would scare the life out of a mule. When the chief gets out in his new outfit he will be the chief attraction on the streets and those who cannot see him coming will hear him. He is just waiting now for a nice bright day and a fire alarm when he will show the natives a "little style and speed at the ringside."

Peterboro Defeated Lindsay by 27 to 15

Longboat did the trick with Dorando last night, but on the same evening the local Y.M.C.A. intermediate basketball team was trimmed to the tune of 27—15 by the Y.M.C.A. senior team of Peterborough.

The locals were utterly outclassed in weight and height, the Porridge Town boys being young men, but nevertheless the local kids kept them bustling, and with a few more heavy practices with the pigskin will show the fast eastern town where they get off at.

The Peterborough team were a bunch of gentlemen, and of fine standing in the basketball circles, and certainly gave the locals a few pointers in the "com." question here that evening.

The game was, all the way through, quite exciting and enjoyable to the large gathering of townspeople, who almost filled the stand seats.

Mr. Eaddie refereed the game to the satisfaction of all, and to neither team was there any partiality shown by the local physical director.

The line-up of the teams was as follows;

Peterborough—O. Lees, G, Martin defence; P. Wallace, centre; M. Dobbin, H. Crossman, forward.

Lindsay—Wm. McMahon, O. Newton, defence; H. Newsome, centre; H. Higinbotham, I. Connell, forward; Mercer, spare.

Referee—Mr. Eaddie.

Repairing Old Niagara Forts

St. Catharines, Ont., December 16.—The Dominion Government, now has it has decided that Old Niagara shall be the permanent drilling place of the annual militia camp, seems to have set about to improve and preserve in every way possible the historic property. Following the acquirement of more lands for the camp and the construction of new rifle ranges, comes the report that the historic old Fort Missisagua is to be repaired and put in better shape. The Militia Department will take immediate steps to prevent the further ruin of the old fort. The plans are not yet completed, but they will include two concrete breakwaters to prevent the ramparts from the action of Lake Ontario. These breakwaters will be about twelve feet wide, and will extend diagonally out into the lake for about 150 feet, one running southerly from the east bastion of the fort and the other northerly from the north bastion. The idea in forming this huge V, with the fort in the apex, is to allow the action of the waves to pile up in the enclosure a wide sandy beach.

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus etc., will be sent you by return mail.

CHURCH UNION

The joint committee on church union, representing the Presbyterian, and Congregational churches closed a fifty conference the other day in Toronto with the adoption of a resolution to the effect that the organic union of the negotiating churches was practicable. No more important declaration in its bearing upon the religious life of the people of Canada could have been made. There have been movements before this for the co-operation of several communions in what might be called the common work of the church. In this way, the Laymen's Missionary movement, now in process of organization, embraces even more religious bodies than the new United Church of Canada, the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists would take in. But the obstacles to an organic union, a merging of these three general bodies have been admittedly formidable, and they appear to have been overcome only through the exercise of much wisdom and patience and as the conference acknowledge, through the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Having declared for the practicability of the organic union of the three churches the joint committee suggests consideration of the results of the conference by the courts and membership of the various churches. It remarks that the extension of the conference to other Christian communions has not yet been found practicable, but expresses the hope that in the event of the union of the three negotiating churches a still more comprehensive union may be realized.

But for the present it is of value to observe that the official representatives of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches in Canada have declared that there is no obstacle in the way of the organic union of the three bodies. And it is expected that the union will be projected officially in 1911 and the plan for a United Church of Canada accepted or rejected. The matters as to the administration of the funds and enterprises of the churhes, of the education of candidates for the ministry in the United Church and the reconciliation of points in doctrine are said to have been already adjusted.

The union of these three churches, all of spiritual and intellectual power, would doubtless be of great value to themselves, to the common country and the great cause in which they are still serving. It would eliminate the non-essential, cut away much wastage in effort and money, and concentrate the attention of a preponderating influence in the religious community of Canada upon the performance of a common task. Such things must be as good in religion as they are in ordinary business. The union of the churches would involve not only a great spiritual good but would follow moreover the lines of patriotism and of common sense. It is to be hoped that the union will be shortly an accomplished fact.

Two Games at the Bowling Alleys

Two games were pulled off at the P.B.C. alleys last night and as a result the Bankers are now in a good lead, having won eleven games and only lost one. The "money slingers" took all three games and won by 110 pins.

The first game between the Iroquois and Frontenacs was a very poor exhibition and the Iroquois took two out of the three.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain special Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making the offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 60 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

either ripe for an insane asylum or else a religious adventurer—and I'm hanged if I know which!"

It was the bluster that covers an aching wound; that is a vent for outraged helplessness. And David Bond understood.

When he asked leave to address the stockade the commanding officer willingly consented. The attitude of the hostages on that occasion startled and disturbed the whole post, for the evangelist might as well have harangued the cottonwood grove across the river. He asked the braves for messages to their brothers. By way of reply they got up one after the other from where he had found them grouped in the sun before the council tent and strolled insolently to their lodges. Soon he was discoursing to empty space and to a line of squaws who threw him malignant glances and jeered at him. He left, surprised, saddened, but unshaken.

Impudence, bold hatred and defiance—these were following the smoke from Medicine mountain. They formed a cue that pointed to one fact—the prisoners were disappointed. They had been expecting not peace and reservation life, but freedom and battle.

David Bond felt a double need for his quick departure and his services among the gathering war bands. He hastened his few remaining tasks and set the day for the start. Now the day was come. His farewells had been said at the shack and at headquarters. Breakfast over and Shadrach put to the shafts, he would take his way up the river. But first there must be laid upon Squaw Charley a final and solemn charge.

The prayer finished, he put out a hand and touched the Indian. Then he opened his tear blurred eyes and looked at him, his face softening and working. Squaw Charley did not budge. His pains were still pressed tight. He blinked at the wagon bed.

"Charles," said the evangelist earnestly, "you and I love the little family over yonder. They have been good and kind. I want you to watch over them while I am gone and be faithful to them. The father is crippled and weak, and he has no friends. Charles, you must be a friend to him and to the girls. No matter what happens, do not fail them. There will be another guarding. Guard with him. Something may call him away. Some one may kill him. Take his place. If danger comes tell of it at the fort. Do you promise, Charles? Do you promise?" He leaned forward, entreating.

The outcast moved from side to side uneasily.

"Promise, promise!" said David Bond. "You must give up anything for them, even your life. Remember that—even your life. I have told you often, and you have not forgot, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.'"

Again the Indian moved uneasily.

"'For his friends,'" repeated the evangelist. "Ah, they have been your friends!" He put his fingers beneath Squaw Charley's chin and lifted it. The two looked long into each other's eyes. Then they arose and parted.

Later when the last buckle of Shadrach's harness was fixed David Bond climbed to the seat and took up the reins. A score of troopers about the head of the white horse stepped aside and formed a little lane. Here and there a man reached up. Here and there, too, were awkward attempts at wit. "Hope y' 're made yer will, parson," called one. "Look out them locks o' yourn don't go t' trick out some big buck," admonished a second. "Good-by," cried a third, saluting with great formality. "Tell ol' St. Peter he'll git a bunch of us some time this summer."

To all the evangelist returned his blessing.

The interpreter shoved forward through the growing crowd and made a show of friendliness. "Gran'pa," he said, "you're pritty game, all right. Most old war horses like you'd be stayin' home and enjoyin' their pension."

David Bond threw up his head resentfully. "Pension," he said, and shot a sparkling look into Matthews' face. "I am not a man who sells his principles for money. What I give to my country I give free."

The crowd cheered him, swinging their caps.

Then there was a hush. A shrunken figure was hurrying up, stretching out thin hands to detain him. No one scoffed now, but one stout trooper put an arm about Jamieson to steady him while he talked.

"Mr. Bond, the colonel thinks I oughtn't to go with you. He wants me to wait for the ambulance. But he's fooling—he's fooling. He means me to stay behind, and I know it. So I've come to say that I look to you to find mother and Alice. Tell them to hurry, for I can't stand this—long." The gray head dropped to the trooper's shoulder.

"Jamieson," said the evangelist, "if God spares my life I shall meet your mother and sister. I shall cheer them and help them. I believe I shall save them. If they are given to me, I shall come straight back. Do not go with the command. Stay behind, Jamieson. I'll bring them to you."

"I'll stay, then. I believe"—

The preacher smiled down and to every side. Then he clucked to Shadrach. The taps straightened. The wagon rolled slowly out of the post.

The sunlight shone upon the green box and the red wheels and upon the stanch old driver, who never once looked back. Above, emblem of the sublime Martyr, sagged the high board cross

CHAPTER XXI.

UNDER the cottonwoods that shadowed the landing place the clematis trailed its tufts of fluffy gray; a cluster of windflowers nodded, winking their showy blue eyes; birds whisked about to fetch straws and scraps for their building, and the grass, bright green, but stubby, wore a changing spatter-work of sun and leaf.

Marylyn let drop her bonnet and the cow horn that hung by a thong to her wrist. Then, with folded hands, she looked up and around her, sniffing the warm air in delight. The Texas home had never offered such a lovely retreat. There the arid mesa had grown thorny mesquite, scraggled cypress or stunted live oak for a shade. Sand had whirled ceaselessly before a high, hot wind. No flowers had bloomed but the pale toadflax and the prickly pear, and beside the salt lakes of that almost waterless waste had nested only the vulture.

But this! It was like the blossom strewn plain that burst upon them as, desert wearied, they traveled into central Texas; like the glimpses of April woodland in the Upper and Lower Cross Timbers. It made generous return for the long, merciless winter. More—in one glance, in one breath, it swept away a whole winter of hateful memories.

She caught up bonnet and horn and chose a seat close to the river. Before her was a gap in the knotted grapevine heaps that clung along the brink of the bank. Through it, veiled only by some tendrils that swung wishfully across, lay a wedgelike vista of muddy water, bottom land, bluff and sky. The midmorning sun glinted upon the treacherous current, upon the wet grass of the bottom land, upon the green-brown bluff and the Gatling at its top, upon the far, curving azure of the sky. Against the dazzle, her blue eyes winked harder than the breeze tossed anemones. Stretching out upon her back, she rested them in the shifting canopy of foliage.

A startled kingbird flashed past her, coming from a tree by the cut. She got up and saw a man in uniform standing near. He was a young man, with a flushed face and wildly rumpled hair. In one hand he held a tasseled hat and in the other a rifle. He leaned forward from behind a bullberry bush, and his look was guiltily eager and admiring.

As startled as the kingbird, she grasped the cow horn and lifted it to her lips.

But she did not blow.

CANADA'S ELEVATORS.

Dominion Boasts the Largest One In the World To-day.

As a necessary complement to the building of a great fresh water marine Canadian shipping interests required grain elevators and within the past decade and a half, the most modern plants in the world have sprung into existence at lake ports north of the international boundary.

Canada is in the grain-growing business, and in the grain-moving business now with a vengeance. Since the impulse of national expansion thrilled the country and brought great enterprises into being, $22,000,000 has been invested by Canadians in great buildings for the lifting, forwarding and storage of grain.

The story reads romance into a prosaic subject, for no healthy Canadian can fail to feel the thrill of national spirit when he is told that this country has the largest grain elevator in the world. At the head of the great lakes are Canadian elevators which can spill fifty thousand bushels of wheat into a big lake steamer in less than an hour. At Georgian Bay are great modern steel tank receiving elevators, which can snatch 20,000 bushels of grain an hour from a vessel's hold and at the same moment be filling a train of cars on the other side for quick despatch to the seaboard.

Becoming retrospective, there are hundreds of young men who marveled at the elevators which stood at Owen Sound, Midland, Prescott, Kingston, Collingwood and a few other ports fifteen years ago.

One great modern Canadian elevator can hold more wheat than all those little buildings of a past decade combined. They are insignificant today in the light of a great nation's larger needs.

MACKENZIE'S LETTERS.

Interesting Correspondence Presented to Ontario Archives.

Through the kindness of Dr. A. B. Cook, Alexander Fraser, provincial archivist, has received a couple of interesting letters written by William Lyon Mackenzie to Col. Carroll of Norwich.

Dr. Cook obtained the letters for the archives from Miss Caroline Carroll, daughter of Col. Carroll, and now the sole survivor of the family. Col. Carroll was one of Mr. Mackenzie's most intimate friends and sympathisers. On the eve of the outbreak north of Toronto, Mr. Mackenzie went out to Col. Carroll's house, then in Toronto Township, and requested his active assistance. The colonel point blank refused, stating that while he was in full sympathy with the demand made for constitutional changes, he deprecated violent means; and that if he took part at all in the rising, it would be as an officer of militia and against his friend.

After Mackenzie's flight he was befriended and hidden for some days by Mr. Holcombe in Pelham Township on the Niagara frontier, until he was safely conducted across the river. Mr. Holcombe was an intimate friend of Dr. Cook's, and in after years gave him minute particulars of Mackenzie's escape, which was quoted in writing up into a statement for the archives of the province.

After Mr. Mackenzie was pardoned and entered into public life once again, his intimate relationship with Col. Carroll was resumed and the letters now presented to the archives deal with political matters in which Hincks and his supporters figure.

A Laurier Story.

During the royal tour of the heir apparent in 1901, Sir Wilfrid was obliged to turn down over-zealous admirers who sought to make his progress across Canada in the entourage of the Prince of Wales a sort of joint affair.

The royal train ran in two sections. The first, which ran half an hour ahead of the second, carried detectives, correspondents, Sir Wilfrid, and the Rideau Hall party. Going down through Northern Muskoka, en route to Toronto, the first section stopped for half an hour at one point to take in water and to have the wheels tapped. The local Liberal Association was promptly on hand with an address in honor of Sir Wilfrid, placing him in a very awkward situation. It would have been a gross breach of etiquette for him, as a subsidiary personage in the vast machinery of the British Empire, to accept an address on a tour in honor of the heir apparent. At the risk of offending the delegation which had planned this foolish political display, he sent them about their business, informing them that he was merely a private individual on this tour, and that honors were reserved for the prince.

WHIMS IN WILLS.

Curious Desires Have Actuated Many Testators.

The dryness of the law is sometimes alleviated by the freaks and whims that appear in wills.

Some persons have used their wills as means of paying off old scores. In 1770 Stephan Swain of the parish of St. Olaves, London, left "John Abbott and Mary, his wife, 6 shillings each for a halter for fear the sheriff should not be provided." In 1703 Philip Thickness willed that his right hand be cut off and sent to his son "in hopes that such a sight may remind him of his duty to God after having so long neglected the duty he owed to a father who once affectionately loved him."

Lieutenant Colonel Nash got even with his wife by leaving the bell ringers of Bath abbey £50 a year on condition that they muffle the bells of said abbey on the anniversary of his marriage and ring them with "doleful accentuation from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m." and on the anniversary of his death to ring a merry peal for the same space "in memory of his happy release from domestic tyranny and wretchedness."

Jasper Mayne, who died in 1620, must have been a person of humor. He left his servant an old valise, stating that it contained something that would enable him to drink. When the valise was opened it was found to contain only a red herring.

Occasionally a testator exhibits an original idea as to the disposition of his body. Sieur Benoit, whose will was probated in Paris in 1877, ordered that he be buried in his old trunk to save the expense of a coffin. He added that he was attached to the trunk, it having gone around the world with him three times.

FAKE PAINTINGS.

The tricks of the picture dealer?

They are not to be counted. Here is one that was played quite recently. A dealer ordered from an artist a tavern scene in the old Dutch style signed in the corner with a facsimile of Jan Steen's signature. When the smoky look of age had been given it the dealer eyed it with approval.

"Splendid!" he said to the needy artist. "It's a pity you shouldn't have the credit of it. Pray sign it with your own name. It may make your reputation."

The poor artist, delighted, painted over the signature of Jan Steen and set his own name there. Three weeks later the picture started for New York, consigned to a Fifth avenue merchant of paintings. But by the same boat went an anonymous letter to the custom house officials warning them that an attempt was being made to smuggle in a chef d'oeuvre of the Dutch school worth $40,000. The picture was seized. Experts were called in. They scraped off the signature of the artist and found underneath that of Jan Steen. The importer had to pay a fine of 50 per cent—that is, $20,000—and in addition $8,000 duty. Three days later, however, he sold his Jan Steen (guaranteed by the United States government) for the round sum of $60,000. Thus he made a fair profit, for the original cost of the picture was $14—70 francs paid to the poor devil of an artist.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, Lakefield, was in the city yesterday.

Inquiry was made at the local market yesterday as to the scarcity of eggs. While it was learned that the supply was limited, the egg famine that is being felt in some parts of Western Ontario has not threatened Peterborough as yet.

Last Saturday this extremely necessary household supply sold at from 27 to 30 cents per dozen. A well known farmer yesterday morning in conversation with The Times, prophesied that before long eggs would likely advance to 35 cents.

The only reason attributed for the scarcity is that the eggs are not in the country.

ZAM-BUK AS A CURE FOR PILES.

Impressive Cures of Women Sufferers. Our Readers Should Note these cases.

Wherever there is suffering from piles, Zam-Buk should be applied! There are lots of reasons for this, but one of the best is that in practically all cases of piles where the use of Zam-Buk is persevered with complete cure—not mere relief—is the result.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, of 253, Hochelaga Street, Hochelaga, Montreal, says:—"I suffered from blind, itching, and protruding piles for years. Sometimes they were so bad that I could hardly bear to move about. The inflammation, the burning, smarting pain, the throbbing, the aching, the overpowering feelings of dullness and dark despair which this ailment brings, the shooting spasms of agony — all were so terrible that only sufferers from this awful ailment can understand!"

Bad as this case was, Zam-Buk triumphed, and Mrs. Hughes suffers no longer. It needed a little perseverance with Zam-Buk certainly, but in the end it cured!

Mrs. E. Doxall, of Scott Street, St. Thomas, says:—"For months without cessation I endured great pain from bleeding piles. For as many months I tried everything which I thought would give me ease, but in the end, dispirited and suffering, I gave in."

Then it was she heard of Zam-Buk, and she adds:—"Although I feared Zam-Buk would be like the ordinary remedies—useless — I am glad it was not. It soon proved itself to be very different. It rapidly gave me relief, and after a time cured me completely. I would like to let all sufferers from piles know what a grand thing Zam-Buk is."

So one could go on quoting case after case, and it is by working such cures that Zam-Buk has earned for itself its great reputation.

Now if you suffer from this terribly painful ailment just be guided by the foregoing cases!

Use internal piles melt a little Zam-Buk and thoroughly soak a wad made of clean lint old linen. Then apply to the part. If the piles are external, application of Zam-Buk is still more simple. Do it upon retiring. Next morning you will be well satisfied!

Zam-Buk is a cure also for cold-sores, and chapped cracked hands, ulcers, festering sores, blood-poisoning, eczema, bad leg, ring-worm, scalp sores, burns, scalds, and all skin diseases, and injuries.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. a box, or may be obtained post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price; 3 boxes for $1.25. You are warned, however, against cheap and dangerous imitations sometimes offered as being "just as good."

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Most sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people look good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating tor, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery —the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescriptions — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak stomach or controlling nerves. It isn't an outlook, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or feeding nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must quickly follow. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to diagnose and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and note improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

May Divert Traffic

transcontinental roads were built, up hill, down dale, on an unballasted roadbed of mud. Such unconscionable methods were permissable when there were a mere handful of lumbermen and trappers to serve, and when the pre-emptors' objective was first of all to earn the land grant on which they issued their bonds. What we require to-day and what the travelling public means to have is a first-class roadbed with such low gradients and wide curvatures that our trains can be run at very high speeds with perfect safety.

"We carry our road from Winnipeg over the Rockies to Prince Rupert with a maximum gradient of 21 feet to the mile going west and 26 to the mile going east. The immense economy in hauling freights with gradients so remarkable, every railway man must recognize. We shall be able to put two thousand tons of freight into Prince Rupert from Winnipeg behind a single engine.

"Of the seven great railroad systems which to-day cross the Rockies and reach the Pacific, the Union Pacific with grades of 116 feet eastbound and 105 west-bound, comes nearest to us. I will tabulate for you the grades of our six competitors and the dynamics of an engine on each.

Railroad.	Tructive Resist- ance Grade.	Capacity in Per Ton.	Max. Pounds Engine in Tons.
Grand Trunk Pacific	26	14	30.1
Great Northern	116	50	572
Northern Pacific	116	50	572
Union Pacific	116	50	572
Santa Fe	185	76	276
Canadian Pacific	327	96	208

"In other words, the same engine could haul up the maximum grade of the Grand Trunk Pacific nearly four times more freight in a train than either the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, or Union Pacific, over five times more than on the Santa Fe, and about seven times more than can be hauled up grade on the Canadian Pacific. These are very remarkable figures, I am aware, and I accept the responsibility for putting them on record. You can read in these figures the reason for our so-called 'generous expenditures.' The interest on the cost of such a line will be returned to us ten times over in the economy of our operations and in the increased safety of our passengers.

"We expect that our easy gradients, which are due not only or chiefly to our 'generous expenditures,' but to our possession of the Yellow Head Pass through the Rockies, will in a few years twist around a great portion of the wheat export trade of the Northwest, and with the opening of the Panama Canal in 1914 send wheat to Europe (let alone to Asia) by way of the Pacific."

Mr. Haye proceeded:

DIVERT WHEAT TRAFFIC TO PACIFIC.

"At present the wheat crop is either hurried to the ports on the great lakes, Duluth, Port William, and Chicago, during the few weeks between threshing and the closing of lake navigation in November, or it is held up for six months in elevators at a considerable cost, or again, if it is carried through to the Eastern seaboard in winter, when the St. Lawrence route is closed by ice, the long haul through heavy snows makes the operation difficult, costly, and even disastrous both for the railway and to the farmer. West-bound from Saskatchewan and Alberta to Prince Rupert, the grades are easy; there is very little snow in winter, so that when the Panama Canal opens in six years I look to see Prince Rupert one of the very great grain ports of the world. I have more than once ventured the prediction that in my lifetime we shall haul to the Pacific as much grain as we shall haul to the Atlantic."

Mr. Haye declared that this diversion of traffic would not seriously diminish the earnings of the Eastern Division of the Grand Trunk.

"The volume of traffic," said he, "coming out of the new Northwest, if we may judge from the way settlers are already swarming in, will throw far more business upon our existing lines than they can possibly handle. The present cultivated area is but six million acres, a mere patch this on a farm of three hundred million acres. As yet we have but scratched the surface. We shall require very shortly to do what the Canadian Pacific is already doing in Manitoba, that is, double track our road to enable us to handle the traffic. Thus the diversion of a large portion of the far western wheat trade will advantage every section of our road; it will even enable us to give settlers much lower rates, because we shall even up our loads, sending full cars both east and west instead of only east. While we send cattle, grain, and minerals west to Prince Rupert, we shall haul back east the coal and the lumber which the settlers on that three hundred million-acre farm need.

"When Prince Rupert has been connected with Sydney across the Pacific by a good line of steamships — and that will come soon — the connection will have been completed of the two very finest harbors in the British Empire. So at least a friend of mine assures me, who has recently seen both. He even gives the palm to Prince Rupert. Our route cuts off to the Far East—say Yokohama — 1,000 miles from New York, compared with the San Francisco route, and 500 miles over the Vancouver route, and the saving of two or three days will often decide the choice. The climate of the place is neither hot in summer nor cold in winter; the mercury rarely, if ever, goes to zero. We shall sell the town site of Prince Rupert to the public next spring, probably in May. We own three-quarters and the Government of British Columbia one-quarter.

"Already there are a couple of very comfortable hotels, a weekly newspaper, The Empire, and some two thousand people. I believe that town will in its early and rapid growth outstrip anything thus far on the Pacific. It is a back door to a great continent. Vancouver to rock its cradle had some 50,000,000 of people, Prince Rupert has 100,000,000. To-day Canada's people instead of emigrating across the southern border are being recruited by daily additions from south of the line."

Edward O'Brien Came to His Death by Natural Causes, the Verdict

"The said Edward O'Brien came to his death by natural causes." Such was the verdict of the jury after a few minutes' consideration.

The inquest into the death of Edward O'Brien, who passed away last Saturday night, while driving home with two companions was concluded last night in the city council chambers before Coroner Dr. Gray and the verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death by natural causes.

The story of the circumstances surrounding the death was told by the two companions, John Smith and James O'Brien. It was that the three men had driven into town on Saturday morning with a load of hay which they sold. Then Smith and O'Brien traded one of their horses with John McCormick of Victoria avenue. The trade took place about half-past three in the afternoon and Smith received $6.50 and another horse from McCormick. The men felt much pleased with their bargain, and had a little celebration. They started for home about 6.30 o'clock. All three were sitting on a board across the hay rack with O'Brien in the middle driving. They were laughing all the way along until about three miles from the city when the new horse fell down. O'Brien remained in the sleigh while the other two got out and tried to get the horse up but were not successful. Then Smith rigged the sleigh up so the one horse could draw it. Guerin got in the sleigh, and found O'Brien had fallen forward and was lying on his face and hands. When the deceased was finally raised to the seat Guerin saw that he was dead. They drove along the road until they reached Mr. Collins' house. He is a brother-in-law of the deceased. He would not let the body be taken in there as his wife was ill, so the two men drove on to Mr. Corkery's. Here they took the body in and learned for certain that O'Brien was dead. Guerin remained there all night, while Smith went home on horseback. The deceased's brother was notified and he had the remains removed to Messrs. Lane & Eano's undertaking establishment.

Mr. McCormick corroborated the evidence of the horse trade, and Messrs. Collins and Corkery, of what transpired at their houses.

Dr. Young performed the post mortem, and reported death due to the bursting of a blood vessel at the base of the brain. He said that the vessel had been ruptured, and that in such a state a sudden rush of blood through it would cause it to burst and result in instant death. There was no sign of foul play as the only mark upon the body was on the eye and cheek, and those were only external injuries and would not cause death.

After the evidence was all in the council chamber was cleared, and the jury considered the evidence for a short time and brought in a verdict of death due to natural causes.

Annual Meeting Children's Aid Society will be Held in the Council Chamber

The great work of this society, the guardian of neglected and dependent children, of abandoned waifs, of deserted little ones and of all who can, by virtue of its wide-extending sympathy, be brought within the shelter of its arms, goes on increasing from year to year. Its organization while voluntary, is complete, but while it has earned subsidies from the city, the county and the government it would fall far short of its mission of mercy if the charitable public did not attend its meetings and minister to its wants. Over 100 cases of a more or less serious nature have been dealt with by the local society during the past year. The annual meeting takes place this afternoon in the council chamber at four o'clock. Let there be a record attendance. It is the one way in which people can show that they are interested in the work and ready and willing to support morally and financially this great undertaking and those who conduct it. A few cases will serve as examples of the work done. A family in the north country is broken up with illness and brutality. Three little ones are taken by the society, sheltered and provided for. Two young boys who had been convicted of burglary and thieving were taken care of and put in a way of what appears to be and what experience indicates will be successful reformation. Two criminals are thus transformed into good citizens. Always the same. It is record of distress relieved, poverty provided for, morality preserved, the young protected, criminality reduced. Be sure and attend.

Prince Bourdon to the Rescue

Paris, Dec. 15.—Without going to the trouble of hunting savages in the Rocky Mountains, a Bourbon prince has found an opportunity of chasing apaches in Paris. The eighth arrondissement, which includes the Champs Elysees, has been of late the scene of frequent incursions on the part of hooligans. One night this week Prince Jean de Bourbon was returning home after two o'clock when he heard cries for help in the Rue du Faubourg Saint-Honore.

Two Apaches had waylaid a cafe waiter and after throwing him down were plundering him of all he possessed and threatening his life. The prince came to the rescue, and on seeing him the two assailants took to flight.

Prince Jean de Bourbon thereupon went to the nearest police station and gave as near a description as possible of the two Apaches. Later in the night another man was attacked and robbed almost at the same spot, probably by the same individuals. He was found unconscious in the morning with his ribs broken and his face swollen.

MUCH SUFFERING IN SWEAT-SHOPS EXISTS IN ENGLAND

A Blot on Civilization and Humanity that Such an Evil Should Exist

COULD HARDLY BE EXAGGERATED

No Depth of Human Misery so Profound as the Lot of the Victims

London, Nov. 16.—Lord Ampthill, in the House of Commons, asked whether the government had considered the evidence taken before and the report of the Select Committee which was appointed by the house "to consider and report upon the conditions of labor in trades in which home work is prevalent, and the proposals, including those for the establishment of wages boards and the licensing of work places, which have been made for the remedying of existing abuses;" and whether, having regard to the recommendations made by the committee in favor of legislation at an early date to secure the establishment of wages boards in selected trades, and to make other provisions for improving the conditions of home workers in sweated industries, it was the intention of the government to introduce or to facilitate the progress of legislative measures to carry out such recommendations. The nation and parliament, he said, ought to be ashamed to think that eighteen years had been allowed to elapse—the period since Lord Dunraven's committee reported that the evil of sweating could hardly be exaggerated—without any determined attempt to apply a remedy. Surely it was a blot on our civilization and humanity that such an evil should exist. There was no depth of human misery so profound as the lot of the victims of sweated industries. He could not believe that the sufferings of the victims of pestilence, famine, fire or flood, wherever such calamities occurred, were greater than those of these poor people. After all, such calamities were incidents in an otherwise normal existence; yet we, as a nation, were always ready with sympathy and help when they occurred. It was only in the case of this greater, this certainly equal suffering that existed in our midst that we did nothing. Surely as a nation we neglected the maxim that charity begins at home. The government was engaged on a policy primarily of social reform. Was there any social reform which called for more support treatment than that which he had indicated?

OUGHT TO BE STOPPED.

The Earl of Crewe, Secretary for the Colonies said the noble lord had not over-stated the importance of the question, which in all its aspects appealed to all sections of humanity and to both houses of parliament without distinction of party. That was made clear by the debate which took place in the House of Commons in February last, when the Sweated Industries Bill was brought in by a private member. Very general sympathy was expressed with that measure, but there was undoubtedly a very considerable degree of nervousness as to the particular remedy which the measures proposed. It was generally agreed that for the system of mere cheapness in the sweated industries there was nothing to be said on the ground of economy any more than on the ground of humanity. It was also generally agreed that the miserable low wages paid did not mean, in the proper sense, cheap production, and there was a feeling that something ought to be done to put a stop to the system. The people who suffered under these disabilities could not help themselves in the way in which other trades helped themselves, namely by organisation. That was the cardinal fact in the whole situation. If they could organize as other trades had organised, the question would settle itself; but that, owing to the conditions of the work, was primarily impossible and it was rendered less possible still by difference of race, and by the class of those who were subjected or subjected themselves, to these lamentable conditions of work. If the noble lord came to think of it, he would see that the question is one to which he could hardly expect to receive a definite reply. The autumn session was in progress, and the government still found themselves with some of their principal measures of this year's legislative work suspended by the balance. In these circumstances it was hardly fair to suppose that he, speaking on behalf of the government, could make any intimation whatever of what their political attempts would be next year. Even if the government agreed to regard this matter as a social reform which yielded in importance to no other, it would not be possible for the government at this period of the year to make promises of the kind the noble lord sought.

Genuine Sportsmanship

Up in the far West of Canada, in the Province of Alberta, the town of Edmonton is setting an example in sport interest. It is sending a hockey team with a little squad of rooters 3,000 miles in an effort to bring home the hockey championship of the world. Christmas day in Montreal, the Edmonton hockey seven will meet the famous Wanderers of the old French city.

The Edmonton men are leaving home with the cherished hope in their breasts of returning as the world's champions. The spirit of the Canadians is an example for sportsmen everywhere. More than a score of the city's citizens will accompany the men.

A week from Sunday they will pass through Port Huron, en route to Montreal. On their return they will stop over at Detroit, and may be induced to make an appearance here.—Detroit News.

Field and Track Club Was Organized at the Y.M.C.A. Last Night

A Track and Field Club has been organized in connection with the Y.M.C.A., and it gets off to an excellent start. The need of such an organization has long been felt in the city. There is lots of the best sort of material to be had and as soon as the club gets going some future athletic champions will be undoubtedly developed here. There is a good bunch of sports at the head of the club and the management will be very satisfactory. The gymnasium at the Y.M.C.A. will be the headquarters, and starting on the sixth day of January, the first competition will take place. After that every Wednesday night there will be one field and one track event pulled off. It is proposed to have a good team in shape for the athletic events next summer and the club will also enter the hexaghelon, a yearly event in connection with the Y.M.C.A. of Canada.

The hexaghelon is a field day held by each association for the members. The records made in the various sorts are forwarded to the C.A.A.U., and are there examined and entered for the championships. The Peterborough boys fully expect to secure a few of the honors.

The colors of the club will be blue and white and the executive committee were authorized to select a design.

The officers of the club will meet before long to draft a constitution.

The officers were elected as follows;—

Hon. President—J. J. Howden.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—V. Eastwood.
President—C. E. Sisson.
Vice-President—J. H. Adams.
Sec.-Treas.—E. Wilson.
Executive Committee—S. W. Collins, P. W. Wallace, and G. Fowler.

Two Persons Unconscious From Peculiar Hiccoughs

London, Ont., Dec. 17.—Word has been received here that Mrs. William McKenzie of Putnam, and Donald Sutherland of Dorchester, have been unconscious for three days with hiccoughs.

All attempts to check the attacks which have been withhout intermission since Sunday afternoon have been futile, and a consultation of doctors has been called to deal with the strange cases.

The attack set in in each case on Monday afternoon, and although not paid much attention to at first, in a few hours, after all were known home expediencies for cure had failed. Dr. Banghart of Dorchester, was called. The few hours' delay had reduced the patients to such a condition that even medical treatment could not check the coughs. By Tuesday noon both were unconscious, and have remained in that state since.

The doctors, however, have not given up hopes of saving the lives of both.

The man and woman, who are neighbors, are middle aged, and well known in Dorchester township.

The Handsome Show Windows of Peterboro Hardware Company

As an artistic window dresser, and one who can use to advantage every article and all the space, Mr. James Squires of the Peterborough Hardware Company, can hold his own with the best. On previous occasions the Peterborough Hardware Co. have had very attractive windows, but the two Christmas windows are among the most handsome in the city. The one is devoted to winter sports and shows skates and a boy coasting down hill on a hand sleigh. The other is a display of silver ware, an article very valuable and most acceptable for Christmas gifts. The window is neat and attractive, and many hundreds of citizens and visitors are forced to stop and look in. Many others are also induced to purchase at this store where they are sure of getting good value for their money.

Naval Demonstration in the Pacific

London, December 18.—With a view to showing the British flag on both sides of the American continent, the Admiralty has ordered the cruisers Cambrian and Flora detached from the Australian and China squadrons respectively for a visit to the southern ports on the Pacific coast of South America. This will make three separate squadrons cruising in the waters of the American continent. The largest British force hitherto on the waters was composed of the squadron under Rear Admiral Sir Percy Scott and the slooops Shearwater and Algerine, visiting at Acapulco, Mexico, and other ports along the south-east coast.

Miss Lota Bennett of Montreal, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Bennett for the holidays.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Special Meeting of the Peterboro' Poultry Assoc.

Entries are being received by the secretary of the Peterborough Poultry Association every day, and as the date of the show aproaches the entries are arriving in larger numbers. It is expected that at least 800 birds will be on exhibition with bright prospects of 700 or 800. It is the first show held here for many years, but it will be a good one. The association has mailed about 1,500 prize lists to poultry fanciers through out the Dominion, and have distributed about 400 in the city and vicinity. All the lovers of the pet stock are enthusiastic over the show.

A special meeting was held last night and a large number were present. It was decided to place the admission fee at 15c. with 10c. for ladies and children, and between the hours of four and six o'clock in the afternoon, school children will be admitted for 5c. This places the admission within the reach of all and will ensure bumper houses all three afternoons and evenings. The show will open at 10 o'clock on January 5th, and will continue until January 7th, with two evening exhibitions.

The secretary, Mr. B. T. Huston, put in his resignation last night, as he will have left the city before the opening of the show. Mr. C. J. Hicks was elected to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Wm. Annis Took Stand and Told Story of Her Husband's Death

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 17.—Counsel for Thornton J. Haine declared today that the State's witnesses called to prove the charge that Haine was a principal with hiss brother, Captain Peter C. Haine, jr., in the killing of William E. Annis, will be subjected to severe cross-examination. Haine' lawyers assert that the prosecution's witnesses were all close friends of Annis, and that there is little doubt they have rehearsed the tragedy with the design of presenting an unvarying story. A new light on the case was shed this morning when Haine' counsel admitted that Thornton J. Haine had had some trouble with William Annis over the publication of a maganize article last June.

"I WILL GET EVEN YET."

It is said that T. J. Haine submitted a manuscript to Mr. Ripley, owner of the magazine on which Annis was employed in May, and that Annis induced Ripley to return it. Counsel for Haine state that the defendant then wrote a letter to Ripley saying he knew why the manuscript was rejected, and concluded with the words, "I will get even with him yet." This is the threatening letter referred to by Special Prosecutor White in his opening address, according to counsel for Haine, who further state that they will show that there was no threat in the defendant's communication, and that the episode simply indicated Annis' feeling toward T. J. Haine. The lawyers state that they will prove that Haine, some time previous to this affair, had Annis discharged from a position with a publishing company.

THE TRIP TO BAYSIDE.

It will be asserted, when the defence presents its case, that Thornton Haine and his brother went to Bayside to locate a home where T. J. Haine' young daughter, Molly, a sufferer from a throat affection, might have the benefit of country air.

The taking of evidence for the State was resumed with the opening of court.

WILL NOT ALLOW MODEL.

When court opened Justice Crane said;—"I have been thinking over night and I am not going to let you use this model. It is clear that this model is out of all proportion, and gives a false impression to the jury. I would suggested that you obtain a photograph to show its correctness and then it may be used."

Counsel for the defence noted an exception.

The State then called Dr. Johnson MacLeod, of Flushing, to the stand.

TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIANS.

Dr. MacLeod testified to having had Annis removed from the Yacht Club float, where the shooting occurred, to the Flushing Hospital. On cross-examination Dr. MacLeod said he thought Dr. Jones, then the house physician at the hospital, was now in Syracuse. Dr. Leo Schmack, a physician at the Flushing Hospital, testified as to the treatment given Annis.

"What did Annis die of?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"From shock and hemorrgage, brought on by some of the wounds I have described," said the witness.

The physician said he made no autopsy on the body.

Dr Joseph Bloodgood of Flushing, who also attgneded Annis at the hospital, took the stand. He related the treatment given to the wounded man and of the examination he had made.

Mrs. William E. Annis was then called to the stand. She was dressed in a dark suit and wore a seal overcoat. A heavy veil was flung back over a large flaring black hat. She spoke in a quiet, low tone. She said;

"I am the wife of William E. Annis. My name is Ellen Annis. I was present at his death. Dr. Schmock was there."

"Did you see your husband die?"

"Yes."

"That is all," said the district attorney.

Mr. McIntyre said that the district attorney should exhaust the witness upon all her knowledge of the case. Justice Crane said that it was not necessary at this time.

"Then I have no questions," said Mr. McIntyre.

Justice Crane drew from Mrs. Annis that her husband died about seven o'clock on Aug. 15.

Evidently the Scotch nation is not the nation that Carrie Nation can carry. The attachment to the old customs in Scotland is so firm that it is not possible to sever the people from them even with an axe.

Letters to the Editor

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Peterborough, Dec. 16th, 1908.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 14th, there appears a letter purporting to be written by Mayor Rush in reply to my letter re the management of the city finances. The mayor undertakes to say that my statements are "misleading," and that I misrepresent the conditions. Let us see who is trying to mislead.

I said there would be a deficit on the current account of $15,000, which would require an additional taxation next year of two mills to get square. The mayor says there are uncollected taxes and other items which will wipe out this deficit. But if the mayor wants credit for the amounts which came in after the close of the year he must take out the similar receipts at the beginning of this year and this he has not done. Who is trying to mislead? If the adjustments at the end of this year are equal to those of last year and surely the mayor will not lay claim to having left dragging behind a greater amount than that most incapable mayor of 1907, the figures I have given will be exactly correct. If they are less so much the worse for the present mayor. If we are $7,000 ahead at the beginning of the year and $8,000 behind when all accounts are closed after the year are we not $15,000 behind on the year's business.

But the mayor says that this year's council has spent so much more on the streets to give employment. Has anyone seen any improvement in the care of the streets. Is there anything to show for 50 per cent. increase in the expenditures. True there has been more work done with the road-roller but that is the very work which gives least employment for the money spent. True, the mayor who, because of the false cries upon which he was elected, began with a policy of economy, has found that sewers and sidewalks and cross ings and drains have to be built, but the mayor knows perfectly well that the cost of these works is not charged to the current account at all and has nothing whatever to do with the question of the deficit. Who is trying to mislead? What really happened was that the Board of Works finding the work to do went ahead to do it, while the mayor whose duties surely include the oversight of the relations of the departments of the city's work fell asleep till the board was jerked up in August with the notice that their appropriation for the whole year was practically exhausted. Perhaps the mayor would like to take credit for reducing the wages of the men while maintaining or increasing the salaries. Probably he would say that the men's cost of living has decreased but they haven't heard of it yet.

I have had to trespass so much on your space to explain the mayor's "misleading" statements that I shall have to deal with the sale of the debentures tomorrow. I shall mention but one other thing. There has appeared in the Review a letter signed "Critic." I have only to say that I do not answer a cad who writes a personal attack anonymously.

Yours faithfully,

R. E. McWILLIAMS.

Appetite Gone---Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified in Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter sorely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmore, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headache I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleaning, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring, vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength of every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Get Dr. Hamilton' Pills of Mandrake and Butternut—today—25c. at all dealers.

To Employers of Labor

In order to relieve the intense situation of the unemployed of this Province, who seem to gather in the larger centres during the early winter months, it has been decided by the Associted Charities to open a free employment bureau in Toronto. This appeal is being sent broadcast through the Province to the manufacturers, farmers and all people who employ labor to cooperate in this work; and it is earnestly hoped that anyone needing help of any kind, skilled or unskilled, will apply direct to the "Toronto Employment Bureau", 71 Victoria Street. Two Bureaus already has hundreds of capable men willing to undertake work of any kind that may be offered them, who prefer work rather than charity. The help of the people in this district will considerably lessen the necessity of appeals being made for large sums of money to be used for charity.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

BETTER THAN PROHIBITION

Those good men and women who see no way to abate an evil but by passing a law forbidding it are getting much superficial enjoyment at present but of the progress of Prohibition legislation. It is announced by their spokesmen as an achievement like the marriage which ends the conventional novel that in six states in the neighboring republic that prohibition of the liquor traffic is now in full force, while of the entire 46 states comprising the Union there are but eight in which prohibition legislation has made no progress. In a new book, "Profit and Loss in Man," published by Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York, Alphonso A. Hopkins, Ph.D., presents a powerful plea for prohibition, based upon purely economic lines. But like all the pleaders for that way of fighting the evil of intemperance, Mr. Hopkins assumes everything should follow the enactment of a prohibitory law but in fact hardly ever does. The experience of Georgia and other states that have adopted prohibition and thought to trammel up the consequence with a "Thou shalt not," is not encouraging to many equally earnest in opposition to drink and equally anxious to abate it as a national evil of gigtic proportions. The matter has been so recently discussed in these columns that the conditions sought to be abated need not be recited here, nor is it necessary to point out the futility of laws that forbid the traffic in what one class of people want to sell and another large class to consume. There are earnest temperance men who believe that if one-half the effort and means devoted to the passage of ill-enforced and practically unenforcible prohibition laws were expended in cultivating a public taste that should look down upon the gluttony of drink as upon any other species of debasement, much more would be accomplished for the cause of temperance.

Argument is hardly needed to establish the proposition that personal habits are the expression of personality and take little account of legal authority except where immediate and severe penalties are ever in present view. Such penalties can not be applied to the drinker whatever may be done with the purveyor of drink—when he is caught. The personal habit and desire for drink is the crux of the whole matter. Some men are ashamed to be seen in any gross indulgence. Their pride protects them from more evil than do laws and penalties. Fewer men are drinkers and there are fewer drunkards now because of growth of this feeling. The habits of men generally are better today, outwardly at least, ever before. "The world is saved by taste," so far as it is saved, or largely so. The prohibitionists could never have reduced the grossness of the habits and language of the eighteenth century by penalties. Refinement did what they could do by law. The elevation of personal dignity to the first place in the morals of a people is a surer guaranty of advancement in all personal habits than the fiercest of repressive enactments.

KEENE

The Farmers' Institute meetings which were held in the town hall were a decided success. The speakers gave many good points to the farmers which were appreciated very much. At the evening session the audience was favored with selections from Misses Bryce and Harrison and Master Joe McCarthy.

The Keene Gun Club held their monthly shoot on Tuesday, Dec. 15. There was a small attendance and the shooting was not up to the average of other meets. After the match the members adjourned to the Victoria House, where they enjoyed themselves and satisfied the inner man.

Dr. N. H. McWilliams has returned after spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Robert Brown who has secured the contract for managing the skating and curling rink, has commenced operations; and if the weather man furnishes him with the necessary cold weather, he guarantees skating for Christmas Eve.

Mr. Peter Gillespie, Hastings is running the blacksmith business of Mr. S. T. Wedlock, during the latter's illness. We are pleased to report that Mr. Wedlock is progressing favorably and is able to be out again.

The township council held their last meeting of this year on the 15th inst. All the business of the year was thoroughly arranged. Up to the present there are no new names mentioned for the ensueing year. Of course nomination day may bring forth many surprises.

The members of L.O.L. No. 494, are striving to make their annual ball to be held on Jan. 15th, 1909, the most successful ever held under their auspices. They purpose giving a concert, oyster supper and ball. As they are noted for their hospitality everyone may expect the usual good time. Good music will be provided for those who delight to trip the light fantastic.

It is reported that the village may have electric lights in the near future. If the capital of this town was expended in this way instead of rusting in the banks, it would certainly be a great benefit to all. This village is noted for its wealthy people; but it is not known that for enterprise, along any lines, relating to modern improvements that require capital that our village is about a century behind the times. But such is the condition of affairs.

Emma Goldman's Troubles

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 18. — Emma Goldman, Anarchist, after a series of arrests, is now at Blaine, on the Canadian boundary, unable to move north because the Canadian officials, acting under orders from Ottawa, told her she will be arrested if she puts foot on Canadian soil, and unable to return, because a choice of Canada or jail was given to her at Bellingham, on the American side. Miss Goldman was arrested in Seattle for forcibly entering a hall that had been locked against her. She was arrested at Bellingham on a charge of inciting to unlawful assemblage. She was placed on a northbound train after she had promised to leave the country.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

"Nossing, sare; it is in fine repair."

"But there must be some expense for me. Out with it."

"No, sare, nossing; I simply love your daughter and she loves me, and we wish to be married. Is not that enough? Is it not enough to ask you to give me your daughter without your expecting to——"

"Come to my arms!" exclaimed the American father, and tried to fall upon the neck of the delightful esumi.

But he awoke on the floor, having tumbled from the bed as a finish to his amazing dream.

WITCHCRAFT IN 1908.

Superstition Still Remains in Some Parts of Rural England.

That the belief in witches and witchcraft is not yet dead in parts of rural England was made strikingly plain the other day by the hearing of an assault case in Essex.

Curiously enough, that county has long share with Norfolk and Cambridge the doubtful distinction of being the principal home of this weird superstition.

In the latter shire, the "witch's bottle" is still made by the village blacksmith. It is really a hollow iron bomb, hermetically sealed and filled with water instead of gunpowder or dynamite.

Its effect, however, when placed in a fire, is much the same; for the heat converts the water into steam, which, finding no outlet, presently rends in pieces its metal envelope with explosive violence. The fragments are, of course, scattered in all directions, though more in some than in others, and, wherever they are most numerous, there or thereabouts live the witch.

It was a Cambridgeshire farmer, too, that, a little while back, earned for himself a sentence of three months' imprisonment by administering to a horse that had the glanders—but which, he believed, to have been bewitched—a "witch's potion," the principal ingredients of which appear to have been iron nails and bent pins.

Suspected persons have even been put to death in England for alleged witchcraft within comparatively recent years. At Castle Hedingham, Essex, for instance, in 1863, a poor old paralyzed Frenchman was drowned as a wizard by a mob of villagers.

But by far the worst case of the kind happened in Ireland, where, so recently as 1895, a young married woman named Bridget Cleary was burnt alive by a crowd of credulous peasants. She had been accused of witchcraft by her husband, who stood by at her "execution," a consenting party. He got twenty years' penal servitude, and five others of those implicated also went to gaol for lengthy periods.

Great Britain's Finest Shot.

Lord Walsingham, who has just celebrated his 65th birthday, has the reputation of being the finest shot in Great Britain. He holds the record, amongst many others, for the largest individual bag of grouse in a single day—421 brace to his own gun or guns. He is also an enthusiastic entomologist, as well as sportsman and agriculturist. His collection of moths and butterflies is the finest in the world. A large part of it is in the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, and it is a curious and little-known fact that ladies' fashions are directly indebted to Lord Walsingham and his collection. Dressmakers and designers of court gowns often go to the drawers and cases of butterflies and moths to study new combinations and contrasts in color. How many people, by the way, are aware of the curious fact that Merton Hall, Lord Walsingham's place near Thetford, Norfolk, is supposed to have been the scene of the immortal story of "The Babes in the Wood"? The wood where they laid down and died is—they say—still haunted by their ghosts. Anyhow, it is a fact that for many years a stuffed robin was given to every visitor to Merton in memory of the episode, legend or tradition.

Lucky Tenants.

How people lived in Hornsey premises for years without paying rent, and sublet at ordinary rates to other people, was described at Clerkenwell, Eng., when the judge dealt with claims against several residents in Turnpike Lane for possession of premises and mesne profits. One tenant, a wardrobe dealer, who was asked, "How long since you paid any rent?" replied, "Three and a half years." Another tenant, a blacksmith, who admitted not having paid any rent for several years, said no one had made any application to him for it. He was receiving 10s. per week from a barber and 9s. 6d. per week from other tenants. The solicitor remarking that a third tenant had been there over four years without paying rent, the latter retorted, "I expect you would do the same." In making orders for plaintiff, his honor remarked, "I am very sorry I have to awaken you all from this sweet dream, but this period of no-rent happiness must come to an end."

Mrs. Fitzgerald, Lakefield, was in the city yesterday.

uniform retreated in cowardly haste, the tasseled hat lowered, and the eyes beseeched.

A moment. Then the man smiled and shook his hat at her roguishly. "A-ah!" he said—in the tone of one who had made a discovery—"I didn't know before that a fairy lives in this grove!"

Marylyn glanced over a shoulder. "Does there?" she questioned, half whispering.

He took a forward step. "There does," he answered solemnly. "It's Goldenhair, as well as I can make out. But where on earth are the bears?"

Instantly she had her bonnet. "My, my!" she said. "Bears! Indians is bad enough." She peered into the long heaps of tangled grapevine.

"Oh, now!" he exclaimed self accusingly. He whipped a knee with the hat. "Now, I've gone and scared you! Say, honest! There isn't a bear in a hundred miles. I'd stake my stupid head on it."

"But Golden"— she began.

"Goldenhair?" He smiled again, by way of entreaty. "Why, Goldenhair is—you."

She clapped on her bonnet in a little flurry, pulling it down to hide the last yellow wisp.

Misunderstanding the action, he began to plead. "Oh, don't go; please don't go! I've wanted to meet you for months and months. I've heard so much about you. Lounsbury told me."

She gave him a quick look from under the bonnet's rim. "Mr. Lounsbury," she repeated and stiffened her lips.

"Yes."

"He don't know much about me, I reckon. He ain't been to see us for 'months and months.'" She began to dig at the ground with the toe of a shoe.

"Well—well"— he floundered. "He's been awful rushed lately—needed at Clark's—there now. I promised to—to tend to his business here for him. But he told me about you, just the same, and about your sister too. Say, but she is a brick!"

She gave him another look, slightly resentful, but inquiring. "What's a 'brick?'" she demanded.

"It's a person that's all grit," he answered earnestly.

"That's Dallas," she agreed.

He paraded in cavalry fashion until he was between her and the shack. Then he assumed a front that was cautiously humble. "Lounsbury's had the best of it," he complained. "He's known you from the start. And this is the first chance I've ever had to know you."

She stopped toeing. "But I don't know you," she returned. "Mr. Lounsbury's never told me"—

"Well, I'll tell you. I'm Robert Fraser, from the fort. That's really all there is to say about me. You see, I've only been in one fight—that was last fall—and I've never even killed an Indian."

She pulled nervously at her bonnet strings. "You're a soldier," she said. "And pa—pa'd be mad as a hornet if he knew I'd spoke to you."

Fraser took another step forward. "Pa won't know," he declared.

"Promise you won't tell?" she asked, blushing consciously.

He cast about him as if to find a proper token for his vow. "I promise," he answered, hat on heart; "I promise by the great horn spoon!"

"You're the first I—I ever talked to," she faltered.

"That's good."

"No; it's bad, because I promised pa once that I wouldn't ever have anything to do with a soldier, and now I'm breaking my word."

"But he's dead wrong"—

"That's what Dallas says."

"Does she? Bless her heart! Then why don't you both desert and come over to the enemy?"

"Pa says you are enemy."

"We were," he corrected soberly, "but the war is over now."

"Maybe it is," she said wistfully, "but pa is still a-fighting."

"And Goldenhair's drafted when she'd rather have peace. Too-bad!" He motioned her to the east by the gap.

"I can't; I mustn't," she said and moved a little toward the shack.

"Then I'll go," he said firmly. "I didn't mean to drive you out of here."

He also moved—toward the landing place.

At that she assented, fearful of hurting his feelings. But she could think of nothing to say and pulled thoughtfully at the grass.

He studied the farther bluff top and its warding gun.

"Peace," he repeated after a time. "It's a thing we're not likely to have this summer, and you folks must let us watch out for you, no matter how much you dislike us. The Indians are out and getting ready. They say there isn't a young brave left on any of the reservations up this way. They're all hunting—and we know what that means. They're collecting and arming for battle. Our troops go to find them at daybreak. See!" He bent forward, pointing.

Below the stockade on a level stretch showing yellow with mustard, where grain had been unshipped the year before, stood long, gray tented rows.

"They've moved out of barracks and gone into temporary camp."

"That land man back there's moved and gone too." She waited. Then, "Are—you going?"

He shook his head. "I'm scheduled to stay. It was a disappointment, but I expected it. I've an idea B troop won't be idle though."

Her brow knit. "Indians?" she asked.

"Your being on this side of the river assures you folks safety," he hastened to say. "And they shan't get to you while B troop's in post."

"All the same, I wish pa'd let Dallas take us away."

"If Indians show up you'll all come to the fort. And I'd like that."

"No. Pa wouldn't let us. He'd die first."

"And so maybe I shan't see you again—unless you come here some day. Do you think that you can?" He bent to see her face. The bonnet framed it quaintly.

"It's—it's a nice place," she asserted.

He held out his hand to her. "I shall come," he said gently. "But now I've got to go."

She gave him her hand. He got to his feet still holding it and helped her to rise.

"Goodby," she said bashfully, drawing away.

He freed her hand. "You don't know how glad I am that we've met," he said; "you don't know. It's been pretty lonesome for me since I came out, and you are a taste of—of the old life. You're like one of those prairie flowers that have escaped from the gardens back home. You sweeten the western air, Miss Marylyn."

She hung the cow horn to her wrist and turned away. Overhead the hearts

OCEAN AN ENORMOUS POOL.

Winds and Currents Keep It Moving Round and Round.

The discoveries of modern science have revealed monsters of the deep as terrific as any that ancient fancy created and have shown that oceans are not mere wastes of water, but the homes of an astounding variety of living things. More than this, it has been discovered that the seas themselves have each a sort of law of existence which they obey. The hydrographic office at Washington has for years been trying to learn something of the characteristics of the Atlantic ocean as a great moving body of water by means of bottles containing papers, which have been dropped overboard from vessels in many places to drift at the mercy of the winds and waves.

Many of these bottles have been found and picked up again either in the open sea or on shores where they had stranded.

Knowing from its records where the bottles had been thrown overboard, the bureau has been able to trace in a general way the path they must have followed in order to reach the places where they were found.

Being partially filled with air and then securely corked, the bottles float on the surface of the water and go wherever the winds and the currents of the sea carry them. Each bottle contains a record of the place and date of its starting. Some of those found have floated for many months on the bosom of the Atlantic and traveled thousands of miles.

It has been ascertained that bottles dropped overboard between the shores of the United States and England or France generally travel toward the northeast, following the course of that great river in the ocean called the gulf stream. Bottles started off the coasts of Spain or Africa travel westward until they arrive among the West India islands. Along the European side of the ocean the bottles take a southerly course and along the American side a northerly course.

Thus as a result of winds and currents the whole Atlantic is shown to be slowly circulating around and around, like an enormous pool. This accounts for the stories that were current in Europe hundreds of years ago of strange objects of human manufacture having floated from the new to the old world, thus giving a clew to the existence of undiscovered lands across the sea.

A Rare Nobleman.

The American father of the heiress greeted the count who was a suitor for her hand with dignified frigidity.

"Sare," said the count, "your daughter has done me so hunnaire of consenting to be my wife. I am called to complete so negotiations."

"All right," wearily said the father. "How much of a cash settlement do you expect?"

"Nossing, sare."

"What! How much will I have to pay for your roscoscums debts?"

"Nossing, sare; I do not gamble."

"How much will I have to put up to settle breach of promise cases brought by chorus-girls?"

"How much will I have to pay to rebuild your castle?"

"Nossing, sare; it is in fine repair."

"But there must be some expense for me. Out with it."

"No, sare, nossing; I simply love your daughter and she loves me, and we wish to be married. Is not that enough? Is it not enough to ask you to give me your daughter without your expecting to——"

"Come to my arms!" exclaimed the American father, and tried to fall upon the neck of the delightful esumi.

Ladies' True Blue Lodge Organized

The Ladies' True Blue Association added another lodge to their rapidly increasing number last evening, when the new lodge was organized for ladies in the city.

Bro. M. E. Ketcheson, District Organizer, presided over the meeting. The ladies took a deep interest in the Blue and White degrees, and this, together with punctuality, and so large a number the new lodge has every reason to expect a rapid and prosperous growth. They also chose a very suitable name. It will be known as Search Light No. 7, and the future nights of meeting will be decided later. Owing to the hall being so well occupied with other societies it could not be definitely decided. Watch Tower Lodge No. 277, had several members present and assisted in the different parts of the organization program.

During the intermission following the Blue Degree the members enjoyed a repast of choice fruits. The White Degree was conferred on the new members and the election of officers was taken up. Quite an interest rentered in the choice of a Worshipful Mistress, and several nominations were offered. The ballot proved favorable to Sister E. Bell whom it is expected will perform her duties in a creditable manner as worshipful mistress of a new lodge of the L.T.B. Association. There was also great interest shown in the election of Deputy Mistress and Sister M. Pickens had the honor of this office conferred upon her.

The choice of the lodge for recording secretary, was another office keenly contested and was finally decided in favor of Sister Clare.

The members thinking the hour quite late the district organizer declared an adjournment to meet again at an early date, when the election and installation of officers will be completed, and the Scarlet Degree which always causes such an interest in new as well as old members will be conferred.

The full list of officers will be published after the next meeting.

Board of Trade

On Monday night next a special meeting of the Board of Trade will be held to consider the money bylaws to be submitted to the ratepayers of Peterborough in January. The bylaws have to do with the expenditure of over $100,000 and it is important that they should be fully explained in order that the ratepayers may vote intelligently. The meeting is called for eight o'clock sharp and there should be a large attendance.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of those ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Peterborough Boat for the C. T. P.

The Peterborough Canoe Company is building a large boat to be used for passengers and freight traffic by the Grand Trunk Pacific on their line in New Ontario. This boat is 40 feet long by 11 feet wide, and it is fitted with a 6x6 steam engine. It will take one of the largest flat cars made to carry it to the end of the line; from there it will be put in a cradle, placed on rollers and hauled to its destination. It is large enough to take an upper deck, but will only be fitted with canopies at present. This is the third boat that the company will have sent into the wilds of Canada beyond the reach of the railways.

The company is also building a considerable number of special launches for the summer trade. The launches are 30 feet long by four feet wide, and will hold seven people comfortably; They are fitted with a 4 h.p. 2 cylinder engine and will have a speed of 12 miles an hour. About the middle of January they will have their show rooms open where they will show canoes, launches and also their supply of motor accessories which they are going to handle.

Sun and Earth.

The sun's greatest distance from the earth, about July 1, is nearly 94,000,000 miles; his least, about Jan. 1, rather less than 91,000,000 miles; his mean distance is about 92,333,000 miles. It may serve to give some idea of the vastness of this distance to say that a ball fired from a thirteen inch gun at the sun would require thirteen years to reach its mark, supposing its velocity to remain unchanged throughout the journey. The sun's diameter is 880,000 miles, exceeding the earth's about 109 times. The sun exceeds the earth in surface 11,750 times and in volume 1,280,000 times.

Rice Culture.

The best of all rice known in the market for size and quality is that grown in South Carolina. The year 1694 is the earliest in which rice is known to have been grown in this country. Rice culture is as old as history, having been known in India from time immemorial. The wild rice, still plentiful in the marshy, tropical countries of southern Asia, is undoubtedly the plant from which all forms of cultured rice have been derived.

Royal Chickens of Japan.

"The most beautiful and extraordinary chickens in the world are those bred by the royal family of Japan, the privilege of raising them not being accorded to any of the mikado's subjects," said Mr. L. J. De Courcy of Yokohama. "These chickens are celebrated for the wonderful growth of their tailfeathers, a full grown rooster's tail often reaching a length of twenty feet. The tail is of a lovely deep blue shade, while the body is buff, and about the neck is a white ring. A pair of these chickens has been known to sell to a wealthy Englishman for $1,000 on condition that he would take them out of the country.

"I believe that ere long the species will entirely disappear, as I heard before leaving Japan that it was the intention of his majesty to cease their breeding."—Baltimore American.

Reforming the Head Hunters.

A curious development is in steady progress in the Solomon Islands, the group in the south Pacific which lies to the west of New Guinea, whose people have gained such unenviable notoriety as head hunters. The young men of the tribes in these fertile and beautiful islands are abandoning the historic pursuit which has made them dreaded for centuries in the south seas and are taking to the copra industry. Copra, which is the dried interior of the cocoanut, is valued commercially for the oil which can be pressed from it, and some of the young Solomon islanders are accumulating considerable wealth by extracting it, though the older generation, to whom head hunting is still the only profession for a gentleman, are said to look down upon them as being "in trade."—London Standard.

Then He Got His.

A young Lancashire lad joined the army and soon after his arrival at headquarters got into trouble. Accordingly he had to face his commanding officer next morning.

The usual preliminaries were gone through, when, contrary to orderly room etiquette, the recruit commenced to defend himself.

"Silence!" roared the adjutant.

"Thou shut up," said the prisoner. "I'm not speaking to thee. I'm talking to the old chap in the chair."—London Scraps.

Too Much For Him.

"How true that old saying is about a child asking questions that a man cannot answer," remarked Popleigh.

"What's the trouble now?" queried his friend Singleton.

"This morning," replied Popleigh, "my little boy asked me why men were sent to congress, and I couldn't tell him."—Chicago News.

Charge Minister with Alienating Affections of Townsman's Wife

Fredonia Dec 17.— Deputy Sheriff James A. Holstein accompanied the Rev. Edwin F. Hard, who had been placed under arrest upon complaint of Daniel H. Boynton of Herkimer, from Fredonia to Herkimer, Tuesday, returned this morning.

Mr. Hard is defendant in a suit for damages in the amount of $20,000 brought against him by Daniel H. Boynton for alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Boynton. Mr. Hard's attorneys, Senator Mills and Assemblyman Fellows, are making an effort to have the bail fixed at $10,000 reduced on the ground of being unjustly excessive.

Deputy Sheriff Holstein says that in and near Herkimer, Mr. Hard's home town, the sentiment of the people in regard to the case is overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Hard, and the belief is strongly expressed that the suit is the outgrowth of differences between these men in regard to political and religious matters. Mr. Hard and his family resided at Newport, near Herkimer, several years, and Mr. Hard was pastor of a church in that place. Mr. Hard and family have lived in Fredonia a few months.

Closing Exercises of the Domestic Science Class was a Great Success

Splendid Exhibits of Photography and and Fancy Work

Demonstration of Lace Making, Spinning and Cooking

Success, financially and socially, was the result of the closing exercises of the Domestic Science class at the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon and evening. The class the past term has been in charge of Miss Johnston, a graduate of the Mechanics Institute, Rochester, and her work here was productive of much good. The class was large and all the girls enjoyed the lessons and profited by them. The Domestic Science Committee were responsible for the excellent program provided and to Mrs. H. D. Burnett, as convenor, is due credit for much of the success, as she was untiring in her efforts in the interest of the affair.

The green drawing room was devoted to an exhibition of photography by amateurs under the auspices of the Peterborough Camera Club. This exhibit occupied the whole of one side of the room, and many exceedingly good specimens of the art were to be seen. The prizes offered by the association were won as follows;—

1. Folding pocket camera, valued at $12, donated by Eastman Kodak Co.—N. A. Howard-Moore.
2. Scales, donated by Tate-Taylor Optical Co.—R. Pieard.
3. Year's subscription to Camera Craft—R. S. Rose.
4. Photo valier, valued at $2.25—Mrs. McCarthy.

Four prizes of memberships to the Camera Club were won by; Rev. Dr. Marsh, C. Painceaer, E. Mitchell

There was also an exhibit of domestic arts and crafts, with demonstrations of pillow lace making and spining during the afternoon. Many beautiful specimens of fancy work sent in by ladies of the city made a very attractive display and furnished many valuable ideas to the visitors.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING YESTERDAY

Biggest Year's Work Ever Accomplished in History of Society

FIRST SOCIETY IN THE PROVINCE

The Public Requested to Contribute to the Funds—Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon when the reports were read and the new officers elected. The past year has been the heaviest in the history of the society and more good has been accomplished than ever before. Something over a hundred cases were dealt with, and a large amount of money was used. The society at the present time are sorely in need of funds and the public is requested to remember this and to conduct themselves accordingly. A few dollars given to this society will help some poor child and secure for it a decent home, and for Canada a respectable citizen. If allowed to remain where they are or were many professional criminals would grow up in and around this city. Remember that charity begins at home and home missions come before foreign missions. The Children's Aid Society does a work of charity and also a great missionary work. A dollar given to this society will be a dollar well disposed of.

Secretary Goodwill read the minutes of the last annual meeting, which were confirmed.

President T. F. Matthews occupied the chair, and the meeting was only fairly attended.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

President Matthews stated that the bulk of the work of the society falls largely upon the secretary and treasurer, and they certainly did attend to their duties in a manner which is most creditable to them and to the society. The secretary then read his report as follows;—

Peterborough, Dec. 17th, 1908.

To the President, Officers, and Members of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough;

Ladies and Gentlemen;—

I have the honor to present my second annual report as secretary of the society, and am glad to be able to state that the past year has followed in the footsteps of those preceding and will be placed on record as a year of splendid progress, more work having been accomplished in the past year than in any previous year of the society's history.

The work has, of course, been similar in nature to that done in previous years, but by reason of our well equipped shelter we have been enabled to extend our work, and render assistance in numerous cases that formerly it would have been almost impossible, for us to have dealt with at all.

In the first place, it is our duty to express warm and cordial thanks to the City Council and Commissioners of the City Trust, for their liberal grant of the new shelter property, and to Richard Hall, Esq., trustee of the Nicholls Estate, for the liberal grant which enabled us to place this building in shape for our purposes. I think that I am safe in saying that we have the finest shelter property in Ontario, and of which the society and the city may well feel proud. It is in an ideal location, roomy and very warm and comfortable, and has adequate accommodation for a large number of children. It is heated by a hot water heating system, installed by Mr. R. J. G. Sutherland, who performed the work in connection with the installation in a manner which reflects great credit upon him and his assistants.

We express our warm and cordial thanks to the city and county councils for continued interest in the work and cheerful contributions to our finances, and it has been with pleasure that we have heard from time to time words of commendation in recognition of services which the society has performed for the municipalities.

We are also indebted to the general public for the kind assistance which has been rendered in many ways. Subscriptions of money come from most unexpected sources, and much good has been accomplished and pleasure to helpless children from the kindness of these generous patrons.

To the ladies of the city thanks is due. They freely contributed their aid and assistance in promoting the various entertainments and benefits for the society, and have on several occasions gathered at the shelter and held sewing meetings, at which new clothing has been made for the children without which the work of the society could not have been properly carried on.

Several organizations and associations have applied to us to have various entertainments carried on for our aid, and have sent us money, which has been collected in an undenominational way, and we have a good deal of satisfaction in feeling that the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough, is perhaps the only strictly undenominational work which is being carried on in the community, and appeals to all nationalities and creeds alike, and is able to offer spleu could not be reached through any other channel.

The thanks of the society is also due to the committee of citizens who interested themselves so strongly on our behalf and were the means of bringing to the city the Shieffield Choir, and arranged such favorable terms, as a result of which a large sum, the proceeds of the concert, was placed in our treasury.

Attached to this report is a reference to a few of the cases which have come under our notice since last annual meeting.

During the year as usual we were requested to take control of a number of infant children, which we were obliged to decline, as the society makes it a fixed rule not to take infants except in exceptional cases where we are obliged to take proceedings and have them made wards of the society in the regular way. Several small children however, have been in the shelter this year, one little boy, a ward of the C.A.S., Belleville, is now in the shelter, and for whom we are desirous of obtaining a comfortable home.

A perusal of the cases attached furnished some idea of the varied work of the society. Over one hundred children have passed through our hands during the year, of whom a large majority have been placed in comfortable homes. A number of others have unfortunately, and as a last resort, been placed in the Provincial industrial schools, the latter being, as a general rule boys and girls of more mature years. Twenty per cent. have been made wards of the society by order of the magistrates; 85 per cent. by the parents' voluntarily making the children wards, and of the remainder, a large number were children temporarily placed in the shelter while their parents were undergoing medical treatment in the hospitals and from various other causes of like nature.

Few of the Cases Dealt With

Some of the most interesting cases treated by the Children's Aid Society during the past year are as follows;—

Cases 510-511—Two boys under the age of 12, were several times brought before the magistrate on charges of theft and burglary. The mother was unable to manage and control them and they appeared to be rapidly travelling along the road to development into criminals. The mother, in delicate health was the only one providing for a family of six children. She consented to an order being made by the magistrate making the two boys wards of the society. They are now reported as progressing favorably and their education, which was for so long neglected, is receiving considerable attention.

Case 522—This is one of a number of cases of a boy of more mature years who had acquired a reputation for general badness, and although considerable pressure had been brought to bear upon us to have this boy placed in a reformatory, we succeeded in our plea of having him placed on a farm and obtained a home for him with a good-natured farmer, believing that his reputation was on a parallel with the saying, "Give a dog a bad name and it will stick to him." The boy is living up, in every respect, to our expectations, and is working hard and industriously. His employers speaks of him in the highest terms.

Cases 530 31-32—Three nice boys taken from the mother who was bringing them up under evil influences and who, on account of her life and surroundings, was not a proper person to have the custody of these children of tender years. Two of the boys are now adopted in foster homes, and their foster parents say they wouldn't part with them for anything.

Case 540—A particularly sad case, of a young girl, who figured in the police court on many occasions The society were unable to procure a home for her on account of her bad reputation. She was ultimately placed in the Reformatory.

Case 548—A young girl of 16, an orphan, residing with a relative, associating with evil companions, resulted in friction at home; and upon being checked for her conduct, ran away. The assistance of the society was requested. We had the girl located, and investigated the matter, with the realt that, with the assistance of Mr. Kelso, a new home in a distant part of the Province was secured for her among strangers. We received a letter from her a short time ago, expressing her thanks and gratitude. She reported that her new home was so nice and people were so good to her she felt she didn't deserve it at all."

Hanged Three Men at New Westminster

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 18.—Without assistance, James Jenkins, negro, Jack Pertella, negro; Lee Chung, Chinaman, walked to the gallows this morning at eight o'clock, and took the drop without a murmur. Only when Radcliffe tightened the rope about Jenkins' and Chung's necks did they commence to lose nerve, but Pertella never moved a muscle. They dropped together while a Salvation Army officer repeated prayers. Sheriff Armstrong giving the signal, and Radcliffe pulling the bolt.

The three men slept well last night Pertella remaining in bed till the guards roused him to go to the gallows. He smiled at the crowd of twenty-five before the cap was pulled down.

Jenkins murdered Mrs. Morrison at Haselmere, Pertella killed a mulatto woman in Vancouver, and Chung murdered another Chinaman. Chung and Pertella confessed; Jenkins did not.

Late John Irwin Laid at Rest Yesterday

The funeral of the late John Irwin, took place yesterday afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence, over the post office, to the Little Lake cemetery. It was largely attended, many prominent citizens turning out to pay their last respects to the memory of a life long resident of Peterborough.

There was a representation from the 57th regiment and the Veterans of '66 also attended in a body. The pall bearers were Col. H. C. Rogers, Col. Miller, Chief Rossel, and Messrs. Jos. Stewart, John Sawers and Finch Miller.

CAMERA CLUB.

A meeting of the Camera Club will be held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. McCarthy, 612 Concession street. Rev. Dr. Marsh will give a lantern slide exhibition on a trip to the West. Refreshments will be served.

Address on Work of the Sick Children's Hospital

Dr A. W. McPherson gave a most interesting talk to all the hall last night, on the history and work of the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto. Knox church and Murray street church boys were represented by large delegations. A bright song service was held first.

In opening Dr. McPherson gave a brief history of the beginning of the work for sick children in Toronto. It originated in 1873 through the benevolence of Mr. J. Ross Robertson He took up the building of the Lakeside hospital, and latter the present structure. He described the way in which the little patients put in their time with games and sports. The doctor described the treatment and gave the boys many interesting instances of the bandaging treatment. He specialized on club feet and bow legs, paralysis, tubercolar troubles, spinal troubles, burns, frost bites, etc, and he closed by inviting the boys to assist in the work of this institution.

Plan Governmental Reform in India

London, Dec. 17.—Lord Morley, the Indian secretary, speaking in the Houses of Lords this afternoon, unfolded a plan for the reform of the governmental administration of India, opening what he described as "a very important chapter in the history of the relations between Great Britain and India."

The government's proposals were;

First—To increase the membership of both the judicial and the viceroy's councils by nominations and election, giving the different classes of the community each its representative.

Second—To repeal the prohibition against the legislative council discussing matters of general importance.

Third—To increase the executive councils of Bombay and Madras from two to four members each.

Woman Who Shot at Jealous Man is Freed; Lover is Held

Hamilton, Dec. 17.—Kata Katerarfin, the Austrian woman arrested yesterday afternoon charged with shooting with intent to kill, was acquitted by Magistrate Jelfs today, while Harish Gaskparrovitch, the man she fired at, was held on a charge of aggravated assault. The evidence showed that the woman shot in self-defense when attacked by the man, who was in love with her and jealous.

Canada Demands the Possession of Murderer Who May be Deported

Manchester, N.H., Dec. 18.— The British consul of Boston, has made a demand that should Horace E. Berwick, alias Dan Williams, be granted a pardon by the governor and council at Concord tomorrow, he be taken into custody for robbing a bank at Danville, P.Q., of $10,000.

Berwick was found guilty of the robbery and sentenced to ten years by the Canadian authorities. He escaped from the Canadian prison, and killed two men in Dover, this state, July 4, 1900, for which he was given a sentence of fifty years.

Tomorrow's attempt to secure a pardon for this notorious prisoner will be the second.

A Question Vital to the Life of Rural England Has Come to a Crisis

London, Dec. 15.—A question vital to the life of rural England has come to a crisis in the little Essex village of Lindsell, near Dunmow, and today, as the first step in reformation, a request is to be brought before the rural district council to put the housing regulations into effect.

The bare fact is that the people have nowhere to live. They are being bounded out of the country into the town, they are absolutely prohibited from marrying by the rapid extinction of the cottage.

This holds good not of one, but of a hundred villages in Essex, and many in other counties. In Lindsell, where the case is, perhaps, at its worst, a single farmer has eight young single men working under him. They all live with their parents and half of them would marry at once if they could get a cottage.

One laborer is living in what was formerly a stable. A family of seven, all grown up, is living in a cottage with two tiny bedrooms, and one laborer said he was getting a permanent stoop from being unable to stand upright in his room. In the village of Lindsell one can trace the old garden rectangles of some twenty homesteads that have disappeared in the last fifty years or so. No others have been built, and many of the present cottages will be pulled down as not worth repairing.

"People will not live in the old mud cottages," said a prominent farmer. "The wife wants a house she can take a bit of pride in. They would rather have a nice cottage and twenty rods of land even than a small holding, and would pay good rent."

There would soon, he said, be no one left to cultivate the farms if something were not done quickly. He himself was quite ready to pay any one 3 to 4 per cent. for his money if he would build cottages in which he could house his men.

A landowner and farmer on the other side of Essex has recently built some wooden and corrugated iron cottages in defiance of the building regulations. When threatened by the local council, he simply said that the people must turn out into the road in that case—and no more was heard of the protest. There was not even an available hovel.

In another village situated in the Dunmow district the sanitary arrangements were something more than rudimentary, and one was not astonished to hear that the funerals exceeded the marriages by some 50 per cent.

Peterboro Men Given Option for Half Million

Mr. W. J. Kearns has recently returned to the city from New Ontario, where he was for some time on business in connection with a valuable mining property which he has secured. This property appears to be one of the richest in the country, and Mr. Kearns and his friends are negotiating for the sale of the mine for a round half million of dollars. In fact that is the amount of the option which was signed yesterday. Mr. Kearns deserves the success which appears to be assured for he one has worked more assiduously then he has in prospecting. He has one or more properties which he claims are equally valuable.

Should the above deal go through it will be a good thing for Peterborough, as Mr. Kearns contemplates a certain business proposition in this city which will give employment to a large number of hands, and means the expenditure of much money in the city. His friends will be pleased to learn of his success and hope that his expectations will be fully realized. The Times joins in wishing success to him also.

Curlers Had First Game Yesterday

From now on the curlers will be busy with broom and stone. Yesterday afternoon saw the first curling of the season in the fine new rink.

The veteran ice maker, Angus McIntosh, has the ice in fair condition and the opening of the active season was enthusiastically welcomed by the curlers.

This winter promises to be the greatest one in the history of the game in Peterborough. The membership list is a very large one and a deep interest is being taken

Letters to the Editor

(To the Editor of The Times:)

Dear Sir,—As the time is drawing near when the vote will be taken by the people of Peterborough, for the purchase of the present Exhibition Grounds, I hope that all good, and loyal citizens will come out on January 1st, next, and vote for the purchase of the Exhibition Grounds, as I fully believe that it will prove one of the best assets the city will have and the property will be increasing in value every year. It is one of the best Exhibition Grounds in this part of the province, and as it is quite necessary for an exhibition to be held in Peterborough, we must have grounds to hold that exhibition on. At the present time the grounds are under lease, but that lease will soon expire, and the directors of the exhibition do not feel like spending money on new buildings until the city buy the grounds. When the city owns the grounds the directors are ready to go ahead and put up new buildings and improve the grounds and make Peterborough Exhibition the best in this part of the Province, and I believe in a few years that this exhibition can be run for one week, and you all know what that would mean to Peterborough. It would bring a great many people to our city, and those people would spend a lot of money here, just as the National Exhibition at Toronto does, and we would all benefit by it. Then again these grounds could be rented out for lacrosse matches, baseball, football and many other sports, and when not in use could be used for a park. The grounds are very conveniently situated, and the street cars run right to the gates. There is another matter to be thought of in buying these grounds, the stables, sheds and buildings are there and go with the grounds. If new grounds were bought in any other part of the city these would all have to be built and that would cost a lot of money. The president and directors of the Peterborough Exhibition, have worked hard without pay to make it a success for the benefit of the public generally, so go to the polls on January 1st, and mark your ballot in favor of buying the present Exhibition Grounds, and show the president and directors that you appreciate their efforts and it will give them renewed energy to go ahead and put up buildings and present to you a first-class and up-to-date exhibition.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of your valuable space, I remain,

Yours truly,

J. J. TURNER, SR.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

SERVIAN ASPIRATIONS

One of the motives which are influencing Servia to resist the absorption by Austria-Hungary of Bosnia and Herzegovina is that she will thereby be cut off from the sea, and for lack of a seaport will be at the mercy of the dual monarchy in the event of war, and cannot even in times of peace prepare for her proper protection except by the consent of her powerful neighbor. As at present constituted Servia is an inland state, being separated from the Adriatic on the west by the two principalities which Austria-Hungary has annexed, and Montenegro, and from the Egean Sea on the south by Macedonia, which forms a part of Turkey. On the east Bulgaria lies between Servia and the Black Sea. The dream of the Servians is to absorb Herzegovina, Bosnia, Montenegro and the western part of Macedonia, and thereby secure a double sea frontage. The nation that would be thus erected would have an area of 100,000 square miles, and a population of 10,000,000, and would be a very formidable factor in Southeastern Europe.

The leaders of public opinion in Servia are endeavoring to arouse the pan-Slavic sentiment. They claim to be, recognized as the most representative of all the Slavic countries, but there is enough of this blood in the population of Russia to arouse a good deal of sympathy with the aspirations of the little state. Austria-Hungary has a large Slavic element in her population, and Franz Josef claims to have as good a right as the Czar to constitute himself the protector of that race. The aspiration of Servia for a seaboard and the pan-Slavic sentiment, which seems to be growing in strength, constitute the dangerous elements in the Balkan situation.

Thornton Hains on Trial for His Life

New York, Dec. 17.—Yesterday Thornton Jenkins Hains' fight for his life began in earnest in the dingy little court room at Flushing.

Two of the special prosecutors who have been employed to assist the District Attorney in trying the case are members of the Bayside Yacht Club. Most, if not all, of the witnesses are members of the club.

Annis was a big, jovial fellow, always ready for a laugh, or a frolic—a good fellow—one of the sort of men that the old French proverb describes as "the joy of the street and the sorrow of the home." He was popular. He was shot down among his friends, and Thornton Hains has nothing to hope from the witnesses for the prosecution. There will be no softening of a hard truth by them; no smoothing down of a doubtful situation, as there sometimes is when a man in the witness chair realizes that his words mean life or death to a fellow creature.

The first important witness was Mr. Edward Andrews, jr., a handsome prosperous, intelligent-looking man, who stands without reproach in the community in which he lives.

"I'M RUNNING THIS."

Mr. Andrews testified, in effect, that on August 15, he was with his son on his son's boat at the Bayside Yacht Club. Annie and another man named Louis Harway had just sailed a scrub race, and were coming into the float, when he saw Capt. Peter Hains crouching down under the boom of Annis' boat, and firing at him. Mr. Andrews says that as soon as he heard the first shot fired, he started toward Annis, but that he was stopped by Thornton Hains, who levelled a drawn revolver at his breast, and cried out; 'Stand back, I am running this!"

For a moment Mr. Andrews said he hesitated, and that when Annis crept along the side of his boat to the bow, and fell into the water, he and Mr. Roberts pulled the wounded man on to the float out of the water.

NOT AN AMERICAN.

After the shooting he saw Thornton Hains sitting on the bow of an upturned boat, smoking a pipe. Several men were about, and one of them, a Mr. Stephens, said to the defendant; "We don't do those things in this country. We fight them out with fists." To which Hains replied; "You are evidently not an American, then."

Mr. Andrews gave this damaging testimony against the prisoner, and then settled back in his chair. Mr. McIntyre arose sauvely and gently and genially in his place, and proceeded to put him through as gruelling a cross-examination as any hectored or badgered witness was ever called upon to endure.

LAWYER SCENTS A FIGHT.

At the beginning of the trial the famous criminal lawyer had declared himself nervous, but no sooner had he scented the battle than he fell once more into his old stride, and was the McIntyre of the Dr. Kennedy, the David Hannegan, the Fayne Moore, and a score of other great cases; the McIntyre who was sent to England by the Irish societies to save Edward Ivor from the clutches of the English law, when he was a accused of having conspired to blow up the Houses of Parliament and kill the Queen.

The prosecution claims that it can prove that Peter and Thornton Hains went to the Bayside Yacht Club, knowing that Annis was there to deliberately kill him. They assert that they hired a surrey and drove there from the railroad station, and that on the way they questioned the driver as to whether Annis was there or not, and they also enquired of a club servant if Annis was there, immediately upon their arrival at the club.

The prosecution also claims that when Captain Peter Hains drew his pistol and began shooting Annis, Thornton Hains stood with a revolver in his hands, warning back those who would have interfered to save Annis, and saying to one man, "Keep back or I will kkill you," and to another, "Stand back I am running this."

BLAMES WIFE'S CHARGES.

The defence denies this, and asserts that the Hains brothers went to Bayside to look at real estate, and that they especially went to the Yacht Club because they had heard that a certain real estate agent they wished to see was there. The defence claims that the meeting with Annis was purely accidental, and that, coming only two days after Mrs. Claudia Hains' cross-bill in which she charged her husband with infamous conduct, had been filed—and which Captain Hains believed to have been inspired by Annis—he became so overwrought that he killed the man who had ruined his home. The defence also asserts that Thornton Hains had no part in the captain's act, and that he did not draw his revolver until he saw the mob of Annis' friends start toward his brother, and a burly Swede sailor in the act of striking Peter. Then he protected his brother, calling out all the time, "I will arrest him. Get an officer; get an officer!"

Mr. McIntyre had brought into the court room a little model of the yacht club dock and float, with a tiny white sail boat and a handful of toy men and women such as children play with, and with these mannikins, he proceeded to reconstruct the scene and personnel of the tragedy, which brought the whole drama vividly before the eyes of the jury.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone is foolish—it is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine pains, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Nurniness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTORS

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making the offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

shaped leaves were trembling to the rush of the river. Her heart trembled with them and her voice. "We ain't eastern," she said, wistful again. "I was born down yonder in the mesquite, I"— She paused, glancing back at him.

He stood as she had seen him first. His face was flushed, his uncovered hair was rumpled. In one hand he held his rifle, in the other his tasseled hat. And his eyes were eager, admiring. "No, you're not eastern," he said; "you were born down in the mesquite, but remember this, Miss Maryiyn, it's the deepest woods that grow the sweetest violets."

She went on out of the grove. He lingered to watch her. Beyond the coulee road she caught sight of some dandelions and gathering her apron into a generous pouch started to pick a mess. Her bonnet fell off. She tied it by a string to her braid. Then, flitting here and there as she spied new clusters, she began an old Texas bunkhouse song:

"We saw the Indians coming,
We heard them give a yell.
My feelings at that moment
No mortal tongue could tell."

Her step was light. Her cheek was pink. Her eyes were happy. The corners of her mouth were turned upward smilingly. About her warbled the blackbirds. She mingled her tune with theirs.

CHAPTER XXII.

PIERCING its shrill way through the heavy mist that hung above the Missouri came a strange, new trumpet call from Brannon. The opening notes, reiterated and smooth flowing, were unlike the first sprightly lilt of reveille. As Dallas stilled the speaking of the well pulley to listen they fell upon her ear disquietly.

The summons ended. From behind, her father's voice called to her querulously. "Seem t' be changin' they mournin' toot over thar," he said. "Ah wonder of it means anythin' particular."

"I think the soldiers are going," she answered.

"Th' hull passel?" he demanded. Then, with a grunt, "Wast, good riddance o' bad rubbish."

Later on, as Dallas circled the shack with the plow turning up a wide strip as a protection against fires, she found that the reason she had given for the trumpet's varying was the true one. The sun, dispersing the fog, had unshrouded the river and unveiled the barracks and the bluffs. When she saw that, of the canvas row below the stockade not a tent remained and the campground lay deserted. While from it, heading northward through the post to the faint music of the band, moved an imposing column of cavalry. Arms and equipment flashed gallantly in the sun. Horses curveted. Handkerchiefs fluttered goodbys from the galleries of the line. Up Clothespin row the wives and babies of troopers waited in little groups. At the quarters of the scouts sounded the melancholy beat of a tomtom. Accompanying it and contrasting with it weirdly was a plaintive cadence—the monotonous lament of Indian women.

The column wound on its way, at its rear the heavy rolling, white covered wagon train. The band had ceased to play. The groups that had been waving farewells sorrowfully dispersed. The tomtom was still, and no wail of squaws was borne across the river. Then Dallas again started up Ben and Betty.

And now a sudden fit of depression came over her. The dew sparkled on the grass, the air was soft, the breeze caressing, the sun was warm on her shoulders. Yet with all the brightness on every hand a sense of uneasiness would not be shaken off.

She found herself reining often to look toward Clark's. Midway of the eastern ridge was a long buff blotch, the crossing of the coulee road. Would a horse and rider pass across that spot today? Probably not. A wave of loneliness and of undeserved injury swept her, welling the tears to her eyes.

She was halted close to the corn land when cheery singing reached her. Maryiyn had left the shack and was going riverward, dawdling with studied slowness.

We saw the Indians coming,
We heard them give a yell.
My feelings at that moment
No mortal tongue could tell.

We heard the bugle sounding,
The captain gave command,
"To arms, to arms, my comrades,
And by your ponies stand!"

We fought there full nine hours
Before the strife was o'er.
Such sight of dead and wounded
I ne'er had seen before—

Five hundred noble rangers
As ever saw the west
Were buried by their comrades.
May peaceful be their rest!

Dallas shivered. The song suggested a cruel end for the gay troopers who had just gone forth. "Maryiyn!" she called.

The younger paused to look back.

"Be careful, honey. Keep in sight."

Maryiyn nodded, threw a kiss and strolled on.

All day Dallas tried to work away her troublesome thoughts. When she had known that an Indian was signaling from Medicine mountain she had felt no fear. Why was she growing fearful now? For it was fear, not any more nervousness or sadness over the marching of the troops. It was even more. There was a haunting feeling that something was going to happen. There was a terrible certainty which-

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

-ing upon her—a certainty of coming harm.

Toward night she began to watch about her—southward to the shanty of the Norwegian; eastward to where the tent of the Sioux Falls man had been; west, where the setting sun touched the sentinel guns on the bluffs; along the coulee, where the darkness always crept first.

She found herself examining the tops of distant rises. Medicine mountain showed a dark speck at its summit—had she ever noticed that before? Other peaks looked unfamiliar—were they the lookouts of savage spies? And north, far beyond the "little bend," was the smoke of a campfire. In fancy she saw the one who had lighted it—a warrior with vindictive, painted face, who peered at the squat shack on the bend as he fanned and smothered the flame.

Night was at hand. The plover were wailing. The sad voiced pewits called. One by one the frogs began a lonesome chant. A light had sprung up in the shack. She glanced that way. And the window eyes of the log house seemed to leer at her.

A warm supper, Maryiyn's bright face, her father's placid retorts—all these did not suffice to drive away her forebodings. What was there in the coming night?

All her instinct spoke for caution. The lantern was shaken out before the table was cleared. Her father and sister early sought their beds. She only lay down in her clothes. The hours passed in a strange suspense. She listened to her father's deep breathing, to the mules when they wandered into their stalls, to the snap of Simon's long brush as he whipped at the mosquitoes. Her eyes kept searching the black corners of the room and the pale squares of the windows. Her ears were alert for every sound.

She fell to thinking of Squaw Charley. He had not come for his supper or brought them the daily basket. Was he growing indifferent—to them?

It was when she could no longer keep awake that her thoughts assumed even a terrible shape. She dreamed, and in her dream a head came through the dirt floor close to her bed. It was covered by a war bonnet of feathers. Beside it, thrust up by lissome fingers—fingers white and strangely familiar—was a tomahawk.

Soon she made out a face—Matthews'. She squirmed, striving to summon her father. A flame flickered up in the fireplace. The face changed from white to red, and Charley danced before her. She squirmed again. The face faded—

Fast Horses In Toronto.

A Toronto man was in Montreal and while standing chatting on a corner, part of the fire brigade passed on its way to a blaze somewhere.

"That's odd!" exclaimed the Toronto man.

"What's odd?" asked the Montrealer.

"Why, in Toronto our firemen always let the horses walk returning from a fire."

"But they're not returning from a fire—they're going to a fire," exclaimed the Montrealer.

"Going to a fire!" The Toronto man gazed incredulously at the speaker. "Why, do you know," he said, "the horses in the Toronto fire brigade go faster than that when they're standing still."

His Own Name.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the famous musician, was once traveling in Canada when the train pulled up at a little wayside station, and he was told that, owing to a blockade further up the line, he would have to remain where he was for some hours. Sir Alexander was anxious to get to his destination, and the delay made him anything but pleased. "Some hours in this hole of a place," he exclaimed, "away from all civilization! Why, I hate its very name!" Then, happening to put his head out of the carriage window, he beheld the name of the station in large letters. It was "Mackenzie!"

Curious Church Vane.

One of the most curious vanes to be seen on a church is that at Great Gonerby, a parish adjoining Grantham. It is in the form of a fiddle and a bow, and is unusually large. Its history is a curious one. Many years ago a peasant resided in Great Gonerby, who eked out a modest livelihood by performing on an old violin, which was almost a part of his life. At last he decided to emigrate, and out in the Far West prospered and became a rich man. One day he sent to the clergyman at Great Gonerby a sum sufficient to build a church, and attached to the gift the curious condition that a metal replica of his old fiddle and bow should be on the summit of the edifice. The gift was accepted, and the vane may still be seen on the church.

A Narrow "Street."

The town of Great Yarmouth contains a street that well may be considered the narrowest built-up street in the world. The thoroughfare is known as "Kitty Witches" Row, and measurement gives its greatest width as 56 inches. The entrance would seriously inconvenience a stout person, as 29 inches is all that is spared from wall to wall. The town contains many such streets as "Kitty Witches."

Her Ears In Danger.

Susie had left her toys about the kitchen. Mother (picking them up)—Susie, if you leave these things about the kitchen again I'll box your ears and throw them in the ash pit.

None but the contemptible are apprehensive of contempt.—Rochefoucauld.

CORRECT COURT DRESS

DRESS FOR ROYAL LEVEES RIGIDLY LAID DOWN.

Official Book on the Subject Has Been Issued to Secure Uniformity In Gorgeous Trappings of Those Who Surround His Majesty — Six Buttons Instead of Seven Is Now the Rule in Men's Coats.

Not the least important of the duties performed by the Lord Chamberlain's Department is that of instructing the ignorant as to the correct dress which should be worn by the different ranks and professions at the royal courts, levees, and state parties. So many different styles of dress are permissible, and such are the details to be attended to if one desires to be absolutely correct, that even the best court tailors are sometimes in doubt, and the result has been a want of uniformity which has often caused annoyance to His Majesty.

In consequence, an official book, entitled "Dress Worn at Court," has been published, which forms an authoritative guide for those attending His Majesty's court. From this book one learns, for instance, that there are two styles of court dress which may be worn by gentlemen who have no special uniform. In the coat of the new style one must be careful that it is of black silk velvet, single-breasted, and with stand collar. It must have plain gauntlet cuffs, with pocket flaps and three points on the waist seam. There must be two buttons at the waist behind and two buttons at the bottom of the tails, the body of the coat being lined with black silk, while the tails are lined with black.

There should be exactly six buttons and button-holes in the new style of coat, whereas the old style had seven. The latter also had three notched holes and buttons on the gauntlet cuffs, with six buttons behind instead of four, as in the new style. Often a civilian who has attended court has erroneously worn a coat combining features of the two styles.

Special attention must also be paid to the waistcoat that should be worn with both styles of velvet court dress, as these have hitherto often been of the wrong material. They should be of white satin or black silk velvet, not of white corded silk or black Marsella, these last two materials being only permissible with the cloth court dress.

Then, again, mayors often make mistakes in regard to their chains of office. These should never be worn with a military uniform; but a mayor who is also a clergyman may attend court in full canonicals, wearing his mayoral chain over his gown. With court suits, by the way, plain gold or pearl studs should be in the shirt front, and watch chains should not be worn. The black silk fob with seals, if worn, should hang from the fob pocket on the right side.

The ladies must observe the following rules amongst others: "Feathers should be worn so that they can be clearly seen on approaching the presence, with white veils or lappets. Colored feathers are inadmissible, but in deep mourning black feathers may be worn. White gloves only are to be worn, excepting in case of mourning, when black or grey gloves are admissible.

"The King has been pleased to permit that a high court dress, according to the following description, may be worn in future at Their Majesties' courts, and on other state occasions, by ladies to whom, from illness, infirmity, or advancing age the present low court dress is inappropriate—viz., bodices in front, cut square or heart shaped, which may be filled in with white only, either transparent or lined; at the back, high, or cut down three-quarter height. Sleeves to elbow, either thick or transparent. Trains, gloves, and feathers as usual. It is necessary for ladies who wish to appear in 'high court dress' to obtain permission through the Lord Chamberlain, unless they have already received it."

Small Postoffices.

Perhaps the smallest postoffice in Scotland is that of Berriedale, Caithness. The postoffice proper is so small that it only gives room for the operator and the machine. Notwithstanding its smallness, it is one of the most important in the north, as it is the receiving and despatching office for all the telegraphic communications of his Grace the Duke of Portland, whose famous Langwell mansion is only 200 yards away. Another small postoffice is Hartwood, which is only capable of accommodating two persons.

Corporation's Bad Investment.

For some years the Glasgow Corporation has held 200,000 square yards of unused lands, suitable for building, in the hope that the value might increase. The movement of people to outlying suburbs has now increased to such an extent and the holding has become so great a burden that a committee decided recently to recommend the corporation to put the land on the market.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, Lakefield, was in the city yesterday.

CROUP

THERE IS NOTHING that strikes terror to the hearts of parents more than to be awakened in the night by the ringing cough which accompanies an attack of croup. The child may retire with nothing but a slight cold and a few hours later the family be aroused by the ominous symptoms. Every home where there are small children should be prepared for these sudden attacks, as prompt treatment is necessary. Do not experiment with remedies of doubtful value, but get that has been in use for nearly forty years and never known to fail.

Mr. Homer Krohn, of Lisbon, Iowa, in a letter to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praises this medicine for what it has done for his children. He says: "It has not only saved them once but many a time. Only two weeks ago my boy had the croup so bad in the night that had it not been for having a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house he would have choked before a doctor could have gotten to the house. It is a medicine that no one should be without at any time." It is pleasant to take and many children like it.

"We guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says W. M. Parish, Palmerston, Ontario. "Out of the many bottles sold last winter not one was returned. We recommend it especially for children with croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its prompt cures of coughs, colds and croup. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse an attack of croup may be averted. This medicine is entirely free from narcotics or injurious substances of any kind and may be given to the little ones with absolute safety.

Attacks of croup are most likely to occur during the early winter months, and every family with young children should be prepared for it. Keep a bottle of CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY in your home. It only costs a quarter, large size 50 cents. Your druggist sells it.

Weary, Worn Out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly this Spring this Article is worth Considering.

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys fail to work properly, healthy surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding medicines. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proven in the case of James Burton of Lewistown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned off the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvellous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly.

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure helpful for old and young.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. His new idea—his prescription, Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak tissues or controlling nerves. It isn't an difficult, save Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if you expel it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely fail. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to declare and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Mr. Higgins Satisfied

It will be remembered that Mr. John Higgins, whose property is adjacent to the Hilliard estate in the north end of the city, threatened the city with a suit for damages if he was not recompensed for damage done his property on account of the corporation laborers digging too near his land in taking out gravel. A committee appointed by the council visited the place in question and were unable to make a satisfactory agreement with Mr. Higgins. The city is repairing any damage done to Mr. Higgins' property.

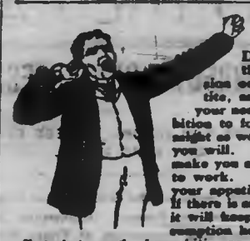
Thin Blood Made Strong

TIREDNESS AND WEAKNESS OVERCOME.

A Joyous Letter.

"I admit because I neglected early treatment I am entirely to blame for the condition of weakness that for nearly two years made my life a real misery," writes Mrs. Hasen, of Beauport. "At first I felt sort of flat in the morning and could do no more than pick at my breakfast. Later I remember my sleep was disturbed, that dreamy, restless sleep, from which you finally awaken, feeling as if you could never get up. Then I became thin, but my color, got nervous and fearful about nothing, and kept thinking about myself all the time, and was irritable, cross and easily made cry. What would have become of me if I had not taken Ferrozone, I can't imagine. Ferrozone put new life into me from the start. It strengthened my nerves and brought back my color, and in a little while, less than three months, no healthier and brighter woman could be found anywhere. I highly praise Ferrozone and advise sick people to take advantage of its health-restoring properties."

Ferrozone quickens the powers of both body and mind, simply because it forms lots of blood that's full of life and vitality. Ferrozone creates appetite, gives strength, vim and endurance. It's good for old people, good for everybody that needs better health. Thousands of men, women and children use Ferrozone every day and all say it's the best nourishing, strengthening tonic made; try Ferrozone yourself, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers.



Do You Feel This Way?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Children's Aid Society

The officers of your society note that some people when making their will kindly remember this society with a small legacy. It is to be hoped that this practice will become universal. A small legacy in a man's will will not be missed by his family when his estate is being wound up, and will go a long way to care for some poor and needy children.

The treasurer's report shows we began the year with a substantial balance in the treasury, but we close the year with that reduced and the prospect of a deficit to face in the near future. The great increase of our work necessarily also means a correspondingly large expenditure of money; that taken with the amount expended on account of the permanent improvements placed in our shelter, accounts for our present financial standing. We feel confident, however, that our many good friends will assist us as they have done in the past under similar circumstances.

All of which is peacefully presented.

E. L. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

SECRETARY RESIGNS.

In conclusion, Mr. Goodwill stated that he would have to tender his resignation as secretary. He did not like to take this action as he was interested in the work and liked it very much, but his own work had to be attended to and the Aid Society workk was growing so rapidly that he was unable to give it the necessary time. He would be pleased, however, to give all the assistance possible.

In moving the adoption of the report Mr. H. Burnham stated that there was no doubt of the grasp of the situation that Mr. Goodwill had and taking into consideration the magnitude of the work and hythe able manner in which he has handled it, Mr. Goodwill was entitled to all recognition possible from the society.

In reference to Mr. Goodwill's resignation, Mr. Burnham stated that the secretary should have an assistant to look after the mechanical part of the work, such as looking after the correspondence. It would be a serious matter to loose so valuable an official as Mr. Goodwill, and Mr. Burnham hoped that the secretary would consider such a proposition as an assistant.

Matrimonial Romance.

Particulars have just come to light of a strange romance connected with the will under which an English lady recently left an estate of nearly £200,000 to several charities. The owner of the estate had not finally decided how to leave her money a month before her death. She was then in her seventieth year, and casually remarked to a friend: "I might marry again if a baronet came along." The remark was repeated by a third person to a matrimonial agent, who was in touch with a baronet looking for a rich marriage to replenish his financial resources. The baronet agreed with the agent to marry the lady on the understanding that £25,000 should be settled on him, £5,000 of this amount being due to the agent as commission. In due course the baronet was introduced. He proposed, and was accepted. Twenty-four hours later the owner of the property received an anonymous letter informing her of the whole circumstances. She at once broke off the marriage, sent for her lawyer, and left her whole estate to charity.

Mr. Justice Warrington.

Many good stories are told of the cases tried before Mr. Justice Warrington, who is one of the most genial judges on the English Bench. On one occasion he was listening to a case in which an Irishman was called as witness. His ignorance was painfully evident as soon as he stepped into the box. A young lawyer, in his cross-examination, tried his best to obtain some information from the witness which might prove helpful, but all to no purpose. Then he asked him if he had read anything in is life. "Yes, sir," was the reply. "Then, tell the court what you have read." "Well, yer honor," replied Pat, innocently, "I have red hairs on my neck."

Backache, Headache Internal Pains.

"If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

MRS. JOSEPH LACELLE, 124 Brunson St., Ottawa East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache, headache and dragging pains for over nine months, and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable half-dead, half-alive condition.

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year.

"If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Mde. Joseph Beaudoin, 59 Rue St. Olivier, Quebec, P. Q. Can., writes:

"Peruna is wonderful for indigestion. I eat whatever I want and no longer feel any oppression. Having had dyspepsia for a long time and having tried various other remedies, I decided to try Peruna and with the fourth bottle of it I was perfectly cured.

"For this reason I recommend it to all those who are suffering with that terrible malady, dyspepsia. I hope that all who are afflicted in this way will take Peruna and Manalin as I did."

Chronic Nasal Catarrh.

Mr. Chas. H. Stevens, 122 Sixteenth St., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh.

"I suffered for some time with chronic nasal catarrh, but after five months treatment during which time I used seven bottles of Peruna I am pleased to say that I am entirely well, there not being the slightest trace of catarrh left.

"Peruna is without a doubt, in my mind, the greatest remedy known for catarrh."

Weak, Tired Feeling.

Miss Marie A. Lesser, 926 W. 35th St., Chicago, Ill., Worthy Secretary, I. O. G. T., writes:

"I am glad to give a good word for Peruna, and I hope that all who see this who are troubled with systemic catarrh as I was for years, will profit by it.

"I had tried many remedies, but none did more than give me temporary relief, and some did not even do that.

"I took Peruna at the suggestion of a friend, and was more than pleased and surprised at the results.

"I am now perfectly well and strong. That weak, tired feeling has left me, and I feel like a different person entirely."

The Slavery of Disease.

It is wonderful how many women in Canada and the United States have been practically made new again by the use of Peruna.

Not the victims of any organic disease, but just a half-dead and half-alive condition.

Miserable, dragging pains that keep a woman always from doing her best work, from being her best self. Cross and petulent, perhaps. Maybe even a slattern in her household, just because her health is continually below par. She never feels quite right. She gets the reputation of being sullen, or morbid, or ill tempered.

Her trouble is not a moral one at all, it is simply a physical one. Make such a woman well and she immediately becomes transformed into a new being mentally.

This is exactly what Peruna has done in a multitude of cases.

Germany Can't Swoop On Great Britain

Cologne, Germany, Dec. 19.—The Gazette, one of the best informed and influential of German newspapers, decides Lord Robert's recent alarmist utterances in the British parliament. In the course of a long article, the Gazette says:

Earl Roberts assumes that Germany with its army system is in a position during some months of the year, to bring together in the neighborhood of the North Sea ports, without noise or mobilisation, an army of 200,000 men, which, under existing organization and transport, could effect a landing in England.

That means that about one-third of the German army could be used for this purpose, say eight army corps out of the 23 which we possess. There are available on the North Sea coast and in the West Baltic Provinces, the IX. and X. Army Corps, behind these the VII., III., the Guards, IV., and XI. The two first could assemble quickly by marching or by train, in the harbors of Bremen, Hamburg, or Kiel, for the others the railways from the centre of Germany to the coast would be required, and some days would be necessary to accomplish this. A mobile army corps in Germany consists of 41,000 men, with 14,000 horses and 200 wagons, which require 118 trains for transport. From a given point, with a double line of rails, 13-4 days are required to move a corps.

Assuming that Germany could place 200,000 men in the ports without mobilising, that would mean eight army corps on peace footing, viz., battalions of 600 men, squadrons of 120 lances, and batteries, with four guns—then some wagons, medical corps and ammunition, besides field ovens, hospitals, pontoons, etc.

Lord Roberts, who conducted the march to Kandahar and the relief of Kimberley, must know that an army in face of an enemy cannot operate without the necessary transport. Even in a country with such rich resources as England, cartridges and shrapnels do not grow wild. Any invasion would require strong cavalry, to protect adequatgely the landing place. This means carrying a large number of horses. Is it intended that the German general staff would be guilty of the folly of sending 200,000 men on the most hazardous expedition in the history of the world, without the required columns necessary for moving and supplying the same?

Lord Roberts's remarks will not find acceptance in those states, the population of which is acquainted with the requirements of modern warfare.

Lord Roberts assumes that such is the power of the German Government that all this could be done secretly and without noise. We do not believe it. Then, for the sea transport, 270 steamers of over 3000 tons burden would be required. Again, could this be done without England's knowledge?

Great as are the shipping facilities in the North Sea ports, some days would be requisite before the army could be placed on board and the huge armada set in motion.

A single torpedo can sink a transport so until a fleet was crushed entirely, such things could not take place. How is the gigantic fleet of England to be wiped off the face of the seas? We do not know, and must leave it to Lord Robert's imagination. In justice to England naval opinion, we will state that they also do not believe in the possibility of such an invasion.

Count Moltke studied thoroughly the possibility of an invasion of Germany, and came to the conclusion that it was only possible if Germany were without a strong fleet.

First Serious Fire New Brigade Has Been Called Upon to Fight

Mr. Craig's Furniture Store was Doomed Had not the City Had a Modern Chief and Brigade

Big Fire was Confined to Upholstering Department—$600 Loss

The first serious fire that the permanent brigade in this city has yet been called upon to fight, was the one on Saturday night at Mr. John Craig's furniture store on George street. That Chief Howard and his men know how to handle a blaze of a serious nature was at that time amply proven to the satisfaction of thousands of citizens who gathered around the streets, and especially to Mr. Craig, who is loud in praise and deeply grateful to the firemen.

About a quarter to ten o'clock Mr. Craig was showing Rev. Dr. Langfeldt through his store, and as they entered the upholstering department upstairs at the rear of the building, the proprietor of the store struck a match, but the head flew off and landed in a pile of waste and stuffing which is used for upholstering. This being exceptionally inflammable, the whole room was at once a mass of flame and smoke. Mr. Craig being one of the pioneer volunteer firemen hurried out and closed the door behind him and sent in an alarm. The brigade was on the scene in remarkably short order and the chief with the information furnished by Mr. Craig, grasped the situation at once, and in less time than it takes to tell it had his men stationed where they could fight the fire to the best advantage. Chemicals played a prominent part in the fire and as a result of these and the efficiency of the chief and brigade, the whole building was saved from ruin and a fire running into many thousands of dollars prevented. When the chemicals were exhausted, Chief Howard then ordered the water turned on, and by the use of the controlling nozzles, the water was used with as little loss to the stock as possible.

Another new feature introduced by Chief Howard were the tarpaulins (large rubber blankets used for throwing over furniture or stock), were used to great advantage. The brigade so far has only two of these, but next year the council will no doubt see the wisdom of supplying more. The fire was under control and the building saved in remarkably short time. The extent of the damage will be probably $600 or $700.

Mr. Craig is more than pleased with the brigade, and is a strong supporter of the permanent force. Nearly every alderman in the council was present, and along with the citizens are well satisfied. Probably Saturday night's fire has done more to convince the public of the wisdom of the council in organising a permanent brigade than anything else, and today there are many who were previously indifferent or opposed to the action, who are strong supporters.

As a precaution a man was left on duty all night, and was not only a protection from fire but also from burglary.

Chief Howard telephoned the Times last night and wished to publicly express his gratitude to the police for the splendid service they rendered in handling the immense crowd, and in keeping the space between the fire and the apparatus free. It was a great assistance to the brigade.

Advantages of a Paid Fire Brigade

Just as the fire at Craig's store was got under control the chief received a telephone message from the fire hall to the effect that he was needed in a hurry at Cressman's store. He hustled down and there found a defective electric wire between the floor and ceiling of the first floor in a dangerous condition. He had a portion of the flooring taken up to expose the wire, and while no damage was done, a man was detailed on duty all night to prevent any danger. He was ordered to and did communicate with the fire hall every hour on the condition of affairs. The chief himself remained on duty between Craig's and Cressman's until about 3 o'clock a.m. This is one of the beauties of a permanent brigade. Men are on hand for such service at all times, and it costs the city nothing and at the same time the ratepayers and especially those who have valuable properties and who pay heavy taxes are assured of every protection from disaster.

Progress of Christianity in Foreign Countries

The congregation of St. Andrew's church had the pleasure last evening of hearing Rev. Mr. McKay, D. D. of Toronto, the secretary of the Foreign Mission Work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. It was Rev. Mr. McKay who visited the mission fields the past year and upon whose report the great laymen's missionary movement was started in Canada. He is a most impressive and earnest speaker and he holds the close attention of his congregation. He took as his text the first couple of verses of Psalm 98, "Oh sing a new song unto the Lord, etc." Many people, he said, stated that Christianity was making no progress in foreign countries. This is disproved and very deceively so. In one circuit in India there are 20,000 Christians alone, and the work is progressing very rapidly. The reverend gentleman dealt wholly with India last night and described how the work was prosecuted and how the people took to it. He remarked upon the remarkable memories of the natives, who could listen to a sermon and then recite it almost verbatum. His address was listened to with the greatest attention and a new interest and sympathy was created in the congregation in the missionary work of the church.

The Hams Lost Another Game to the Examiner

The Examiner B tgeam took three straights from the Hams on Saturday night in the P.B.C. tournament, although the Hams came within one pin of tying them in the second game. Joe was bowling in better form and in the last two games ran up 179 and 202. But Chris. Graham rolled the handsome scores of 84 and 97, and Hutchinson actually got 69 pins in his first game. The Hams, however, have not lost heart entirely. They expect to win a game before the season is over.

The score was as follows;—

EXAMINER A—
Huston	147	107	167—	421
Lacheur	162	128	146—	436
Cairns	145	140	144—	429
	454	315	457—	1286
HUTCH'S HAMS—
Graham	120	84	97—	301
Hutchinson	96	111	100—	343
Hay	147	179	202—	528
	363	374	435—	1172

Majority for Examiner A, 114 pins.

Notable Warning of Consequence of Failure of Territorial Army Scheme

London, Dec. 19—A notable warning of the consequence of the failure of the Territorial Army scheme was uttered by Lord Esher, chairman of the County of London Territorial Force Association and a member of the Imperial Defense Committee. Lord Esher was speaking at the distribution of prizes to the members of the London Scottish at its headquarters at Buckingham gate.

"I should like to remind you," said Lord Esher, "that on the very highest authority we have been told within these past few weeks that the Territorial Force, so far from being useless in principle is absolutely a national necessity.

"It has been laid down on the very highest authority, after a careful scientific inquiry into the principles of home defence, that although these islands can be defended by the fleet, it can only be on the condition that a military force of a certain strength is maintained within these islands.

"We have on papers a perfect organization, but there is no doubt a flaw in the system at the present moment, which is that we have not got a full complement of men.

So certain is it that the Territorial Force is essential in our scheme of defence that we must all realise that if the voluntary system breaks down in regard to the Territorial Force the country will have to have recourse to something else. I do not wish on this occasion to go into the question of compulsion, but I will say this, that before we can come to comulsion we shall have to alter the whole habits of the English people."

Lord Erroll called attention in the House of Lords to a "statement reported to have been made by the Secretary of State for War on Friday, November 20, at Guildford, to the effect that the Army was 90,000 stronger than it was three years ago," and asked for details justifying these figures.

"Do these additional men really exist in the flesh?" asked Lord Erroll, "or are they more in the nature of a stage army?"

Lord Lucas, parliamentary secretary to the War Office, to whose special charge Mr. Haldane has just committed the Territorial Force, explained his chief's speech thus;—

"There is a 40,000 increase in the regular reserve, 65,000 in the special reserve, and these, taking into account the reductions which have been made in the Regular Army, amounting to about 18,000, leave the net increase at about 90,000."

"It is hardly serious argument to throw bones of contention across the floor of the house," said Lord Middleton.

"If a foreign force landed on our shores tomorrow morning the government would prefer to meet that force, it seems, by the Territorial Army, without the support of the disbanded battalions of regulars. The secretary of State's utterances are calculated to mislead the public."

Two False Alarm Artists Were Seen Sunday Night Operate Box in East City

The false alarm artists are busy again, and on Friday night an alarm was sent in from Box 57 at the corner of Concession and Hazlitt streets in East City. Last night about seven o'clock, another alarm from the same place was sounded, and the brigade responded with its usual rapidity only to get there and find it a false alarm. To say the chief was angry is putting it mild. He had every reason to be too as the horses have been worked very hard the past few days and they cannot stand it. Box 57 is also the hardest run that the team could be given as it is one of the most distant boxes, so that it is the horses that are being killed, while the chief and his men are not injured in the least. The man who pulls a false alarm is therefore a fool. It just happens that the two fellows driving a little bay horse on Sunday night, who stopped at box 57 and sent in an alarm and then jumped into the cutter and drove fast to the top of the hill and waited to see the fun, were watched by the man who lives close to the box and he got a first-class discription of them. Chief Howard was informed, and now the police are after the pair. Chief Howard also had a glimpse of the clever guys, who it is expected will have lots of opportunity very shortly to reflect in solitude on their smart trick

Appendix is Not a Useless Organ

New York, Dec. 19.—A London despatch to the Times says the vermiform appendix, which has been looked upon hitherto as a useless and even a dangerous organ, has at last justified its existence, according to a statement made by the surgeon of a London hospital where the appendix has been shown to be a great help in treating diseases of the lower intestines.

"One of the greatest difficulties of medicine," said the surgeon, "is to apply medicines to the lower intestines. The appendix has now been made use of as a short cut by which we can gain readier access to this part of the big digestive tract."

The new operation is to cut down to the appendix, just as in an ordinary appendicitis operation, but instead of cutting out this organ, it is threaded through the various layers of muscles in the abdominal wall and attached to the skin. It is then opened, and by a tube passed through its lumen passage, any necessary medicine may be applied directly to the mucus membrane of the lower intestine. The appendix may with safety remain open in this position for the muscles of the abdominal wall act as an efficient guard.

A Wise Mother's Story

All Mothers and Daughter Read Carefully and Profit By It.

"I am convinced," writes Mrs. A. B. Bousfield from St. John, "that a majority of young girls who die of consumption do so because their mothers neglected their health at the critical time when carefulness insures vigor and sound health. If a girl's health is neglected from her eleventh to sixteenth year her body will be weak and she becomes a ready victim of typhoid anaemia, and in many cases consumption itself. In her sixteenth year my youngest daughter showed signs of failing strength. Some dyspeptic troubles developed, her heart became weak and palpitation frightened her dreadfully. She was irregular in the important bodily functions and rapid loss in a weight and a ruddy complexion pointed to a rapid decline.

She disliked making her troubles known to our doctor, a feeling I felt I should respect, and so by good fortune I was led to use Ferrozone with most gratifying results. My neighbor next door, Mrs. Woods, had found Ferrozone so good in nervousness that she persuaded me that it would restore Flossie's health, and from the time the second box was commenced her improvement was constant. She is now a big, strong girl, ruddy and plump, able to study hard and to take her share of household duties. I am an earnest advocate of Ferrozone. We all see it now as a tonic as it is certainly woman's best friend."

All dealers sell Ferrozone, 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50; prepare a supply today.

Alfred Parker Passed Away without Warning

One of the Best Known Citizens of Peterboro' Died Saturday Night from Heart Failure

Was Down Street Until 10.30 p.m—Passed Away at Midnight

With profound grief was the news learned of the shockingly sudden death of Alfred Parker, who passed away at his home on Park street about midnight Saturday. The deceased was down street three times on Saturday, and was feeling much better than usual. He was very cheerful and many of his friends were talking with him that evening, so that it was almost impossible for them to believe that he had gone to the great beyond.

The late Mr. Parker for some time has been in poor health, although it was not at all serious and did not interfere with him getting around. He had suffered one or two slight attacks of weakness but did not realize his condition. On Saturday evening he arrived at his home about 10.30 o'clock in the best of spirits, but soon afterwards he was seized suddenly and although medical assistance was summoned he sank gradually and rapidly until he passed away at midnight.

The deceased was one of the best known men in the city, and was one of the most highly respected. He entered into business here twenty-four years ago, when he established the Parker's Dye Works, and during his career he met with considerable success, and about three years ago retired from active life, handing the management of the business over to Mr. Robert Beach. About that time the deceased established his son Robert in the dye business in Hamilton.

The late Alfred Parker was a prominent member of the A.F. & A.M., and also of the Methodist church, in which he took a leading part, having been a class leader for some years, and also served in several other offices. He was also a member of the Board of Health for several years. As a man he was true and upright, and was a friend to every one and respected and liked by all.

He was born 49 years ago in Manchester, England, and came to this country when a small boy with his parents. They settled in Ottawa where he remained with them for 25 years. Then he came to Peterborough and started in business for himself.

He leaves a sorrowing wife and two sons and two daughters to mourn his loss, and to them the heartfelt sympathy of the whole city is extended. The sons are Robert, of Hamilton, and Harold, at home, and the daughters are Miss Madeline and Miss Ola. William and James Parker of Ottawa, are brothers. Mrs. Allen of Ottawa, and Mrs. T. Gemmell of Guelph, are sisters.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CHIEF HOWARD.
of the Peterborough Fire Department.

Great Demand for Turkey at Market Saturday

Turkeys were the top-liners at the market Saturday morning. There were piles and piles of them all in a row, and behind this precious barricade were rows of farmers' wives with one eye on their money bags and the other on the prepared poultry. There were turkey carcasses that sold from $1.25 up to $2.50. The former were adapted to newlyweds, just making a meal for two, the others—well there were some mastodons that would gratify the appetites of a family of 1.

Butter was down to 26, and eggs sold at from 25 to 27 cents. Next to turkeys, geese were most plentiful. The price ranged between $1. and $1.25. Many a mother expended her strength carrying home the Christmas turkey or goose; the wiser housewives worked a graft on their grocer by having him send it with the regular week-end order.

Beef was plentiful at five and six cents, pork at ten and eleven. Altogether the market was well up to the Xmas standard.

Victor Gregory McFadden Ordained a Priest by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor

A most interesting ceremony was performed at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning at the 10.30 mass when Victor Gregory McFadden, son of Mr. Martin McFadden, the well known furniture dealer and undertaker, was ordained into the priesthood. The ordination was performed by his lordship Bishop O'Connor, assisted by Rev. Father McColl as deacon, and Rev. Father O'Brien as sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Rosche, of St. Michael's College, Toronto. He took his text from St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, fourth chapter and 1st verse. After he had developed the text he talked about the functions and the duties of a priest and upon the priest's life work. It is expected that Rev. Father McFadden will be attached to St. Peter's cathedral.

A very large congregation was present at the service as the newly ordained priest was well and popularly known. Many friends from outside places were also present and took a deep interest in the proceedings.

Last evening at five o'clock the out of town friends of Rev. Father McFadden, with his lordship the bishop and the clergy of the cathedral, were entertained to supper at Mr. Martin McFadden's home.

A Countess Owns a Daily Newspaper

London, Dec 19.—Through the death of Lord Glenesk, his only surviving child, the Countess of Bathurst, becomes sole proprietress of the great London daily newspaper, the Morning Post, one of the oldest established organs of the metropolitan press of which Lord Glenesk became sole owner through purchase 30 years ago. While its foreign news is second only in prestige to that of the Times, the Morning Post has always been regarded as the newspaper par excellence of the great world of fashion, and during the hundred years or more of its existence has invariably devoted more space and attention than most of its contemporaries to the doings of the royal family and of society. It is an extremely prosperous concern, and will be the first London newspaper to be exclusively owned, controlled and directed by a peeress of the realm.

Lilias, Countess of Bathurst, as the only daughter of Lord Glenesk, was wont to do the honors for her father after the death of her popular mother. He was one of the most hospitable of men, whose house in London and place in Scotland were scenes of such constant entertainment that his famous French chef was wont to complain that service under him was almost as arduous as in that of a great hotel.

Lady Bathurst's husband, the Earl of Bathurst, will be recalled as having been selected by the British government during the war in South Africa to command the garrison of the Island of St. Helena, where Gen. Cronje and the other Boer prisoners were interned until the end of the conflict.

Supper for Boarders of Dominion Cafe

A very enjoyable supper was tendered by the Dominion Cafe to their regular boarders last night as a Christmas treat. The table was very artistically decorated and the menu included many fancy and dainty Chinese dishes. The spread was one which would do credit to any caterer and the boarders thoroughly appreciated the kindness of the management. When supper was over Barry Hamilton was presented with a pretty gold stick pin and Tom Him with a pair of gold cuff links as a slight token of esteem from the boarders.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Edmonton Hockey Team were in Toronto Yesterday

A wire received today by the Star states that the Edmonton hockey team, known as "Whiteroft's Stars," challengers for the Stanley Cup, will arrive in Toronto tomorrow night on their way to Montreal.

The challengers are coming via Chicago, and will only spend a few hours in Toronto.

They are in charge of Fred Whiteroft, who is manager, captain, and rover of what out West they claim to be the greatest aggregation of professional hockey stars ever gathered together. Whiteroft comes from Peterborough, and played on the O. H.A. team of that city for years before he turned professional. The line-up is as follows;

Goal—Charlie Quinn or Bert Lindsay.
Point—Lester Patrick.
Cover-point—Dodger Petrie.
Manager, captain, and rover—Fred Whiteroft.
Center—Joe Hall or Jack Miller.

This will be the team for the cup games in the arena, Montreal, a week from Monday, and Wednesday, Dec. 28. After the cup games, win or lose, the team will makeg a tour of Ontario, playing at all of the pro. towns and cities. It is expected to be the greatest drawing card that ever appeared in the circuit.

Whiteroft is evidently not taking any chances on an accident to a goal-keeper, as he is bringing two along. Lindsay, is an old Toronto League player, who has been playing in Renfrew for several seasons with great success. He is said to be one of the best goal-keepers in the business. Quinn is a Westerner with a good reputation.

Lester Patrick and Dodger Petrie will make a very fast defence. Both are wonderful rushers and dodgers, as well as being strong on defensive work.

The forward line is nothing but a burst of speed. Phillips is a streak of lightning, and is admitted to be the best hockey players in the world today. Hall is a rough strenuous player, but not as fast as Miller, who is a Westerner and not the Brantford man, as has been reported. Miller is said to be a veritable cyclone. Whiteroft can hold his own with the best of them, and McNamara plays the right boards to perfection.

The team, as a whole, has not had much practice, though five of them played together at Strathcona, whom the beat 22 goals to 0 a week ago last night. This exhibition game nearly resulted in the loss of the main mover in the venture. Manager Whiteroft being struck from behind by Kent of the Strathconas, and was unconscious for twelve hours. However, he is said to be all right again, though he had a very narrow escape—Toronto Star.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it?. Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

PICKPOCKETS OF EUROPE.

Make a Great Deal of Trouble For Unsuspecting Travelers.

"The American who travels in Europe and does not keep the closest watch on his valuables is almost sure to be relieved of his personal belongings by pickpockets," said a man who has just finished a two year tour of the world.

"The light fingered gentry are active everywhere from London to Cairo but I will give the palm for boldness and dexterity to the professionals of Italy, where the plunder of pockets has been reduced to a fine art. I am a careful man and did not need to read the constant warnings against pickpockets, and yet in the great piazza of Venice I was robbed of my letter of credit for $10,000. There was an enormous crowd that had turned out to hear the band play, the day being Sunday, and I was jostled two or three times by a huge fellow with a big black mustache. Finally, seeing that he was doing it purposely, I lost my temper and addressed a hot remark to him, at which he exclaimed, 'Pardon, monsieur,' dropped his umbrella at my feet and in stooping to get it managed in some way to get my letter of credit, although it was in an inside pocket. It caused me a lot of trouble, the sending of many cablegrams and some money, but I managed to have the payment stopped, and the thief profited nothing.

"In Rome on last Christmas day I went out for a ride in the suburbs to see some rare paintings in an old church. Wishing to see the country, I took a street car that was densely packed. The air was pretty crisp, and I wore an overcoat closely buttoned. How on earth the rascal managed to get to my watch and make away with it will puzzle me to my life's end, but he did the trick, as I found on getting off the car.

"Had it been only an ordinary timepiece I would never have said a word of the loss, but it was an unusually fine one, and I valued it much more than the $300 it cost me."

THE BEETLE HUNTER.

He Gets the Cockroaches Drunk and Then Carries Them Off.

The trade of the rat-catcher is sometimes a lucrative one, but that of the cockroach-catcher or "beetler," as he styles himself, is said to be still more lucrative, if somewhat limited.

For the modest sum of half a crown the beetler will undertake to clear the most infested kitchen of cockroaches in an hour or two. All he requires is that the kitchen be given up to him entirely for a couple of hours after dark, and when he leaves he guarantees that not a beetle shall remain.

His method is a simple one. He mixes a certain potent drug dear to the palate of the cockroach, and adds a pint of rum to the mixture; then he pours the decoction into shallow basins and deposits them in the dark corners of the room. He retires and waits for ten minutes, and when he revisits the basins he invariably finds them full of struggling beetles in an advanced state of intoxication. The strong smell of the rum, combined with their favorite drug, penetrates to the uttermost corners of the flooring and entices the erring vermin to their undoing. They feast on the drugged spirits till they are unable to walk straight, and at intervals of ten minutes the catchers clears the drunkards away and waits for the next batch. Not a cockroach will remain at the end of an hour.

The catcher takes the beetles away in a sack, and when they have slept off the effects of their debauch he sells them at a penny a hundred to bird-shops, where the songsters thrive on beetles as long as they last.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will straighten the deformed limbs of hopeless cripples, nor bring back youthful health to flagging spirits. What is impossible I will say nothing of the pains and pangs of this miserable affliction.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Berlin—I secured the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was perfected. Only after repeated experiments, I believed I had the formula complete. Whether it was the first combination of these ingredients, or the twenty-seventh, I cannot say. Suffice it that I had a remedy. I immediately tested many severe cases of Rheumatism; but never, at first, with entirely perfect results. Some would be relieved, others cured. Then would follow cases that baffled my every effort. Then I would change the combination, and so on, until I had a remedy that would relieve practically every case. Then I added to pure water and then, upon thousand dose packages would promptly relieve the severest case of Rheumatism. Only the cases of deformity seem to defy it. Even in such cases it relieves the pain and gives the sufferer hope. Write me about your case. I will tell you frankly what I can do for you. Address me personally, Dr. Shoop, Box 5, Racine, Wis.

"ALL DEALERS"

A Versatile Old Lady.

The attention of the class in history seemed to be anywhere but on the subject in hand, and the young teacher was getting impatient.

"Children," she said, "you must pay better attention to what you are doing. You cannot possibly do two things at the same time. No one can do two things at once."

At this point a small boy raised his hand and waved it frantically in the air.

"Well, Willie, what is it?" she inquired.

"Please, teacher," said Willie, "my granny kin do two things ter one't I seen her."

"No, Willie. I think you must be mistaken, but suppose you tell us what these two things are."

"Please, ma'am, she kin read an' soak her feet all ter one't."

Curious School Customs.

Mexican schoolmasters show their appreciation of a pupil's efforts in a curious manner. The diligent student is allowed to smoke a cigar during the lesson. When the whole class has given satisfaction, permission is given for a general smoke, and even the little Mexicans are allowed to light a cigarette for the occasion. Needless to say, the schoolmaster himself smokes a cigar of a size and quality proportionate to his superior position. But the scholars are not allowed to drink, this privilege being accorded to the master only. On his desk he always keeps a bottle of liquor, which, when empty, occasions much dispute among the parents of his scholars, as it is considered an honor to be able to fill the schoolmaster's bottle.

Waking a Deaf Person.

"To waken a deaf person who wishes to be called at a certain hour is about the hardest proposition a hotel clerk runs up against," said a member of that genial fraternity. "To ring the telephone is useless because the man couldn't hear if you rang until doomsday. Knocking, for the same reason, is equally futile. Now and then a guest who has lost his hearing suggests that he leave his door open all night so we can walk right in and shake him, but even though he does appear to be a dead game sport there are so many chances of somebody else less guileless than ourselves walking in ahead of us that we cannot consent to that. So far the only satisfactory way found for waking a deaf lodger is to tie a string to his wrist, pass the string through the keyhole and then tug away at it at the appointed time. That method, however, is rather primitive. It seems to me that the man who can patent a harmless artistic device for waking the deaf is sure of fame and fortune, not to mention the gratitude of hotel clerks."—New York Sun.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had been benefited from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW MARMOR TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment. HENRY O. LOCUST.

"It isn't cramp," said a life guard, "that carries off so many good swimmers. After all, what is a leg or arm cramp? Couldn't a good swimmer easily turn on his back and float till the attack departed? No, cramp won't account for the strange seizures that in a twinkling turn a very fish of a swimmer into a helpless, speechless, drowning paralytic. What accounts for this business is water inhaling. A swimmer inhales spray through the nostrils, it passes through the pharynx, behind the epiglottis or windpipe guard

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

The Plow Woman

By ELEANOR GATES,
Author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl."

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

She found herself sitting bolt upright. Her hands were clinched defensively, her teeth were shut so tight that her jaws ached. She was staring wide eyed at the door.

The shack was no longer in darkness. Morning was come, and its light made everything clear. She sprang up and lifted the latch, then fell back, her stiffened lips framing a cry.

Before the shack, driven deep into the nearest bit of unpacked ground, was a sapling new cut and stripped clean of the bark. From its top, flying pennon-like in the wind, was a scarlet square. And at one corner of this, dangling to and fro in horrid suggestiveness, swung a shriveled patch that held a lock of hair.

CHAPTER XXIII.

RIFLE in hand, forgetful of crutches, bewildered by sleep, the section boss came diving through the blanket partition to answer her call. "Wha's matter? Wha's matter?" he demanded thickly, rubbing hard at his eyes to unclog their sight.

Dallas leaned in the doorway, facing out. Her shoulders were bent forward heavily, as if she, too, were only half awake. Her head rested against a casing. She lifted it when she felt him beside her. "Well, dad," she answered grimly, "it's Indians this time, and—I reckon they got us stampeded." She smiled a little, ruefully, and pointed.

Winking into the light Lancaster followed her pointing and saw the pole. Up jerked his chin, as if from a blow on the goatee. He stared wildly. His jaw dropped. "W'y, Lawd!" he breathed perplexedly and his chest heaved beneath the gray flannel of his shirt. Slowly he bobbled forward in his bare feet, using his gun for a prop. Before the pole he halted and began tousling his grizzled crown with trembling fingers. Overhead the scalp weighted rag swung to and fro in the breeze, waving him its sinister salute.

Gradually his brain cleared and into it there trickled a hint of the pole's meaning and purpose. He stopped rustling his hair and caught up the Sharps in both hands. Then, all at once, the trickle swelled to a foaming torrent of suspicion that carried him close to the truth. Maddened, cursing, he dropped the gun and fell upon the sapling, pried it furiously from the sod and smashed it into a dozen bits.

Overhead the scalp weighted rag swung to and fro.

To Dallas, watching him in silence, the destruction of the pole was a sore reminder, for, better than ever before, she realised that her father could only accomplish the hasty, childish things; that beyond these he was powerless. Without a doubt she must ask elsewhere for aid.

As he came limping and raging back to her she hurried forward to relieve him of the rifle and to guide his crippled feet. "Dad, I think it's about time we had a' understanding at the fort," she said quietly and took him by an arm.

He brought up short and wrung himself out of her grasp. "Th' fort! Th' fort! Th' fort!" he repeated in a frenzy. "Lawd-a-mighty, Dallas, y' make me sick!"

"It's Indians," she replied steadily. "They're coming too near to be comfortable. We got to have help."

He raised his fists and shook them. "Help an' fiddlesticks!" he blustered. "That ain't no Injuns. It's that Shanty Town blackleg a-tryin' t' skeer us. Go look at th' groun'—go look at th' groun', Ah say. See if they's moccasin tracks thereabout. Ah bet y' won't fin' any." He turned back to the scattered splinters, pulling Dallas after him.

Together they got down, examining with care. As he had said, there were no prints of an Indian shoe in the soft earth, but mingling with the round, faint marks of his own naked heel were those, more plainly stamped, of a large boot. They led up to the spot from the nearest point on the river and back upon themselves toward the same point.

"W'at'd Ah tell y'?" demanded the section boss almost triumphantly. His voice quavered, however, and he gulped. "It's thet scalawag, an' he wanted us t' know it. Ain't ev'ry Injun in fifty mile shot up tight in you corral? Ev'ry one 'cept Charley, an' this ain't [illegible] An', then, th' mules didn' make no row las' night. They'd shore snorted if it was Injuns"—

"I guess that's so," agreed Dallas hastily and made him a warning sign. Marylyn was moving about inside and calling.

But he was beyond thought for another. "Bosh, bosh!" he cried. "She's got t' stop bein' coddled an' know w'at's w'at. You got t' stop talkin' fort. Ah'm goin' t' ketch thet low down skunk 'thout no soldiers. An' Ah'll pepper his ugly hide. Ah'll make him spit blood like a broncho buster. Th' idee o' his havin' th' gall!" He rammed the Sharps into its rack and laughed immoderately.

"Oh, pa!" expostulated Marylyn in a startled whisper and flew to Dallas. Her face, still pink from slumber, paled a little. She laid it against her sister. Long ago she had seen her father roused to the same pitch. The sight had terrified her and blunted some earlier and tenderer memories.

"You git you' clothes on," he ordered roughly, "an' rustle us some breakfas'."

She retreated, ready for tears.

Dallas walked up to him, gave him his crutches and put a hand on his shoulder. "Dad," she said firmly, "don't take out your mad on Marylyn. Keep it all for—him." She nodded south toward Brannon. "That's where it belongs."

"Dallas, you plumb disgus' me," he retorted. "Talkin' soldier when y' know Matthews could buy th' hull kit an' boodle with a swig o' whisky!" He arraigned the fort with a crutch.

"What do you think of doing, dad?"

"Ah'll fin' out where thet cuss was las' night—Charley 'll help me, y' see"—

"And then?"

"Ah'll see thet—thet Oliver knows o' this, thet he keeps a' eye on thet doggoned"—

"But it'll be easier just to go straight to the captain—not I, but you"—

"Yes, do, pa," urged Marylyn. "Oh, Dallas, what's happened?"

The elder girl told of the pole and the bootmarks, treating them lightly. Then she came back to her father, to find that her argument of a moment before, for all its short cut logic, had set him utterly against the plan he had himself proposed. And now he was for no man's help, but for a vengeance wreaked with his own gun. Hurling a final defy toward Shanty Town, he disappeared behind the partition.

No breakfast was eaten that morning. The section boss was too angry to taste of food, Marylyn was too frightened and Dallas had no time.

(To be continued.)

Another Way Out of It.

Nobody had ever had reason to accuse Abel Pond of being dishonest, but he was as sharp a man in a bargain as could be found in the county. When the building committee applied to him for a site for the new library he was ready to sell them a desirable lot, but not at their price.

"I couldn't feel to let it go under $600," he said, with the mild obstinacy that characterized all his dealings with his fellow men. "It wouldn't be right."

"You ought to be willing to contribute something for such an object," said the chairman of the committee. "If it's worth six hundred, why not let us have it for five hundred and call it you've given the other hundred?"

"M'm—no, I couldn't do that," said Mr. Pond, stroking his chin, "but I tell you what I will do. You give me seven hundred for it, and I'll make out a check for a hundred and hand it over to you, so's you can head the list of subscriptions with a good round sum and kind of wake up folks to their duty."—Youth's Companion.

A Real Apology.

"When the late Joel Chandler Harris was an editor here among us," said an Atlantan, "I called on him one day and found him very willing to correct an error about me that crept into his columns.

"We talked about newspaper contradictions, public apologies and the like, and 'Uncle Remus' took down a scrapbook and read me an apology that was an apology indeed. It had happened, he said, in a Transvaal paper. I'll never forget it. I agreed with Mr. Harris that it was the finest specimen of the public apology and retraction extant. It said:

"I, the undersigned, A. G. de Plessis, retract hereby everything I have said against the innocent Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout, calling myself an infamous liar and striking my mouth with the exclamation: 'You mendacious mouth! Why do you lie so?' I declare, further, that I know nothing against the character of Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout. I call myself, besides, a gratuitous liar of the first class.

"A. C. DU PLESSIS."

His Cough Cure.

"In my boyhood there came to our town," said a clergyman, "a gentle minister who, the very first Sunday of his incumbency, stopped effectually his coughing congregation.

"It was a congregation, too, singularly addicted to coughing. Rattling volleys of coughs ran over it every few minutes. The minister, indeed, that first Sunday could hardly make himself heard. He had rather a weak voice.

"Well, after his sermon had proceeded for ten or twelve minutes, now audible enough, now drowned under great waves of coughs, he took a resolution, and when the next outbreak was at its height he ceased preaching.

"At once the coughing ceased. There was a profound silence. The minister smiled.

"'My friends,' said he, 'it seems that when I stop you stop.'

"From that day in that church they coughed no more."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PUBLIC PUNISHMENT.

The Days of the Whipping Post, Stocks and Branding Irons.

Up until the end of the war and a little while after the whipping post and stocks stood not far from the northwest corner of the courthouse and between that building and the present postoffice, and there the last whipping took place, though as it began it was sought to be stopped by a federal officer. The sheriff was, however, simply carrying out the mandate of the old court of pleas and quarter sessions.

In those days the stocks and the whipping post, too, were special attractions, notably to boys. The latter were allowed to ridicule people who sat in the stocks, which held their hands and feet, but not to throw anything at them.

Of course this deprived the boys of some degree of pleasure, yet they contrived to get a good deal of fun out of the thing anyway. It seems odd now even to think of such scenes as these must have been. Figure to yourself passing by the courthouse green at Charlotte or Raleigh and seeing a gentleman held by the ankles and wrists by wooden bars, sitting there in the sunshine for all the world to look at.

Those were the days of the branding iron too. A set of gyves of iron, in use for holding the ankles or wrists, are on exhibition here, but of branding irons there are none. These were used here in January, 1865, for the last time.—Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.

VANITY OF CONVICTS.

The Way Some Men Spruce Up in the Penitentiary.

"The vainest lot of men I ever did know are behind those walls," remarked a convict in the penitentiary. "For fastidious dressing and cleanliness I have never seen anything like it. Those who have been accustomed to sleeking up on the outside grow much worse in here, and those who never even combed their hair on the outside have it as cleanly parted as they can. I know of a hundred instances where convicts have risked being paddled or having time taken away just for the sake of shaving. They get hold of a razor or improvise one and keep it in their cells. They all have mirrors in their cells along with the calendars.

"I know of one instance of a trusted prisoner who begged for weeks to be allowed to wear a hat instead of the prison cap because he thought he did not look well in it. Whenever they get an opportunity they press their trousers. They save collars for Sundays and appear very clean and neat and nice in chapel. I guess it is all because they have time to think about themselves more than ever. If a man has nothing but himself to think about he takes more pride in himself. Or maybe they want something with which to pass away the time in their cells."—Columbus Dispatch.

Blankets of Bark.

In Ecuador, one of the South American republics, the bark of a tree which grows on the slopes of the Andes is utilised for the making of blankets. The blanket is over six feet long and over five feet wide and is as soft and pliable as though it were made of flannel. It is about the thickness of a good flannel blanket and can be rolled up and put in a strap without hurting or injuring it. This tree or bark blanket is merely a strip of bark cut from a section of the trunk of the blanket or demajagua tree. The Indians make a cutting around the trunk to get it, and they prepare it by soaking it in water until it is soft. It is then pounded so that the rough outside can be stripped off and the inside alone left. The inside is of fine fibers so joined together by nature that it makes a beautiful blanket, warm enough to be used as a cover and soft enough for a mattress.

Then He Got His.

A young Lancashire lad joined the army and soon after his arrival at headquarters got into trouble. Accordingly he had to face his commanding officer next morning.

The usual preliminaries were gone through, when, contrary to orderly room etiquette, the recruit commenced to defend himself.

"Silence!" roared the adjutant.

"Then shut up," said the prisoner. "I'm not speaking to thee. I'm talking to the old chap in the chair."—London Scraps.

Too Much For Him.

"How true that old saying is about a child asking questions that a man cannot answer," remarked Popleigh.

"What's the trouble now?" queried his friend Singleton.

"This morning," replied Popleigh, "my little boy asked me why men were sent to congress, and I couldn't tell him."—Chicago News.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, Lakefield, was in the city yesterday.

CROUP

THERE IS NOTHING that strikes terror to the hearts of parents more than to be awakened in the night by the ringing cough which accompanies an attack of croup. The child may retire with nothing but a slight cold and a few hours later the family be aroused by the ominous symptoms. Every home where there are small children should be prepared for these sudden attacks, as prompt treatment is necessary. Do not experiment with remedies of doubtful value, but get that has been in use for nearly forty years and never known to fail.

Mr. Homer Krohn, of Lisbon, Iowa, in a letter to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praises this medicine for what it has done for his children. He says: "It has not only saved them once but many a time. Only two weeks ago my boy had the croup so bad in the night that had it not been for having a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house he would have choked before a doctor could have gotten to the house. It is a medicine that no one should be without at any time." It is pleasant to take and many children like it.

"We guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says W. M. Parish, Palmerston, Ontario. "Out of the many bottles sold last winter not one was returned. We recommend it especially for children with croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its prompt cures of coughs, colds and croup. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse an attack of croup may be averted. This medicine is entirely free from narcotics or injurious substances of any kind and may be given to the little ones with absolute safety.

Attacks of croup are most likely to occur during the early winter months, and every family with young children should be prepared for it. Keep a bottle of CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY in your home. It only costs a quarter, large size 50 cents. Your druggist sells it.

HOW TO TELL

If the Kidneys and Liver are Not Acting Well.

Thousands die every year from aggravated kidney distress that could have been saved if they only knew.

Your back may ache, you think it's tiredness or physical weakness.

You grow irritable and nervous—it's put down to loss of sleep.

Joints ache, muscles get sore,—that's all put down to bad weather.

Then digestion gets poor, appetite fades away, color bleaches, spirit droop.

Can't you see it's all from your over-worked kidneys, which can't keep the body clear of poisons that are now surging through the whole system.

Cure your kidneys with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"When I was so stooped and back weary, so lame and sore with kidney and bladder trouble, I cured myself quickly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills" writes C. C. Ferrier, a well known merchant in Plainsville. "Dr. Hamilton's Pills touched the spot, at once, gave my back ease, lifted depression and weariness, made a new man of me. I can also say for a good spring medicine to clear and enrich the blood Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal."

The housewife whose aching back makes every little duty a burden, the working man who is tired all day and can't rest at night, whose back aches, and whose feet swell—these people have kidney trouble. Women whose kidneys are sick, suffer continually from blind and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, bearing down pains, sharp twinges when stooping, distressing urinary troubles, aching muscles, and joints lack of apetite, and loss of sleep. Reach the cause. Cure the kidneys. Use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills, which have cured thousands, 25c. at all dealers.

A Small Fire

About five minutes to ten o'clock yesterday morning an alarm from box 33, called the fire brigade to a residence on Rubidge street, near the corner of Charlotte where a few minutes delay would have resulted in a very serious fire. A small child had been playing with matches in one of the upstair bedrooms when one of the matches lighted, and the flames caught onto the curtains. In an instant the place was in flames. The alarm was sent in and the brigade was on the scene in quick order and by the use of a chemical the fire was soon extinguished. As it was some of the furniture was destroyed, and a wooden partition was burned. The upstairs will also have to be repapered and painted as a result of the smoke. The brigade did splendid work and once more demonstrated the value of a permanent force.

Inthon Bible Class

The Inthon's met again yesterday afternoon, and were entertained with a talk on astronomy by Mr. Lowry, instead of the International lesson.

The talk on astronomy was very interesting and held the class for half-an-hour.

As the star of Bethlehem played an important part in the Christmas lesson, a talk on starts was just the proper thing.

Next Sunday the class will join the Sunday school to hear the memorial service to one of the former pastors of George street church.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to discourse and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Alderman Saw the Brigade Turn Out

One of the aldermen of this year's council, who is also a member of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, was in the fire hall on Saturday night when the alarm from Craig's store was received. What happened then was a revelation to him, and he was forced to admit that the turnout of the brigade was one of the fastest and most orderly he had ever witnessed in any city. He complimented Chief Howard upon the discipline of the men and their full realization of the meaning of a fire alarm. To the Times the alderman stated that he was delighted with the way the men got away and with the intelligent and speedy action of the horses. He afterwards went to the fire and was one of the spectators who could not help but admire the working of the brigade.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Royal Theatre was Crowded Saturday

Saturday morning the Royal Theatre, Peterborough's most recent addition to its places of public amusement, opened under most auspicious conditions. At 10 o'clock the wide front doors were thrown open to admit the scores of people who fully an hour previous had crowded the crowded the pavement in front. The general opinion, as gathered from expressions passes by patrons on their way out was to the unanimous effect that the Royal was born to a lusty career. The main portion of the day's patrons was naturally gathered from the farming community as they left the market. As the good people entered the building looks of incredulous surprise were cast at the automatically operated electric piano. "How does that instrument work." And others would remark, "Why look at those keys pounding away without anyone at the piano." Such remarks were frequent. As the crowds that thronged the place made their exit, exclamations of delight over the splendid performance were heard on all sides. The pictures shown were of high class, in fact the best ever seen in Peterborough, and fully equal, if not superior to those shown in the best theatres, of Montreal and Toronto, and leading American cities. Mr. Pappas, the enterprising proprietor of the Royal is to be congratulated not only on the splendid place of amusement he has provided but on the generous and general appreciation displayed by the public of Peterborough.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for womanhood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

FOOLED BOTH WAYS.

The Experience of a Visiter in a Lunatic Asylum.

"I was staying," says a writer in the Liverpool Mercury, "with an uncle who was on very friendly terms with a doctor who kept a private asylum and who occasionally gave a dance for the patients, while also inviting some of his friends.

"During my visit we received an invitation, and on the appointed evening we arrived to find the room crowded with people all in evening dress.

"My first partner was a man whom I thought looked decidedly queer, such a restless, hunted expression in his eyes, and occasionally during the dance he stopped and glanced searchingly around. Dear me, how glad I was when the dance was over, and, making some excuse, I hurried away, only to run up against my hostess and to be introduced to my second partner.

"Ah, me, what a handsome man, and, girl-like, I fell head over ears in love. I put out my most bewitching ways and hoped I looked my best and took care that I helped him find a cosy corner for the sit-out.

"It was delightful, and I was just lamenting that it was about time for the next dance when, horrors, clutching hold of my hand and frantically waving his other hand, he started roaring out tents, when suddenly, to my relief and astonishment, who should come up, followed by two men, but my first partner, whom I found to be a doctor, while my handsome partner was a religious maniac!"

AUSTRALIAN RAIN.

When It Does Fall It Pours Down in a Perfect Flood.

How different things are in the old world from what they are in the far-away tropics!

"They had no rain here for a fortnight, and they called it a drought!" wrote an Australian from Scotland in a scornfully superior tone calculated to induce the belief that it never rains in Australia and that droughts last a hundred years. Not so. Australia is the land of contrasts. A drought has lasted for seven years. But what is there even in Scotland to compare with the persistency of Australian rain when it does see fit to fall?

For eleven weeks without stopping did the rain continue to moisten the dry places of Sydney some years ago, washing out most cruelly the brief, bright season of winter, when the Australian looks for living instead of existence and peace instead of pressure. And what rain! It shot from the clouds like arrows, and the whole world was a battlefield during that July. As the arrows darted into the earth the earth rose and dashed into the air, and rain and mud met and grappled with each other day after day, night after night, week after week. And the battle was neither to the rain nor to the mud. A strange and horrid situation arrived. Sydney ran clean out of galoches.

For two weeks not a galoche was to be had in the rain drenched city for love or money. Then a fresh shipload arrived from somewhere or other. And then—the rain stopped!—London Mail.

One Trouble After Another.

"I have just found out about the woman opposite me after two years of mystery and anxiety," said the flat dweller. "She is a pretty, fat, rolly poly woman with a white complexion who sits at her window half of her time doing nothing. She has a boy of about ten. Her life seemed so simple and still I didn't see how she lived. Evidently she didn't support a husband, but who supported her? The thing worried me, but last night I found how it was. Her husband is a violin player who plays all night long at some concert hall and sleeps the livelong day. I'd rather work for my living than keep the house quiet for a husband who has to sleep all day, then gets up just at the time you want to go out for a little rollicking and plays the violin somewhere."

Poor Board.

"I see," said Mrs. Starvem, "that a certain scientist claims we'll soon get a palatable food from wood"—

"Well," growled the cranky boarder, "it seems impossible to get it out of board."—Philadelphia Press.

It is a brief period of life that is granted us by nature, but the memory of a well spent life never dies.—Cicero.

A Clock Case Made of Pennies.

A novelty in clockmaking consists of a timepiece whose case is made of English pennies. The coins, of which there are ninety-six, all bear the date 1797 and were beaten out to almost double their original size and then riveted together, while the figures were made of small strips of copper cemented on to the face. The clock stands fourteen inches high and is eight inches broad at the base. That "time is money" is an adage with which we all more or less agree, but this is a case in which the saying might be reversed and still remain true. The clock is owned by a resident of Laurel Bank, Ilkley, Yorkshire, England.

All Married Folks.

Mrs. Henry Polk, for seventy-six years a resident of New Boyne, Leeds county, died a few days ago. A peculiar circumstance is the fact that her daughters are all united in marriage to men of the same name, and yet are not related. They are: Mrs. W. J. Polk, Lombardy; Mrs. Samuel Polk, Port Elmsly, and Mrs. J. H. Polk, Burgess. The deceased was a sister of Mr. R. L. Joynt, ex-M.P.P., North Augusta.

Dis-Composing.

The sports had been a great success, and Colonel Proudem, delighted to be recognised as a magnate in the Midlands, had pulled out his chest with pride when he presented the prizes to their winners.

Eagerly the next morning he picked up the local newspaper, to see if his speech had been reported. A smile spread over his face as he read the preliminary remarks about his glorious services to his country, his many active engagements with the enemy; but suddenly he stopped:

"This battle-scared warrior——"

But the colonel could read no further. In a furious rage, he drove off to the newspaper office, and demanded a public apology. This was immediately promised, and regrets tendered for the mistake.

The next morning his feelings may be imagined as he read:

"We regret that through a printer's error, yesterday we styled Colonel Proudem as a 'battle-scared warrior.' We should have said 'bottle-scared.'"

Vegetable Stones.

"There are vegetable stones," said a geologist. "Stones, that is, that grow in vegetables.

"Here is a tabasheer. It is found in the joints of certain kinds of bamboo. It is always round and brown, like this. Here is the cocoanut stone. You find it in the endosperm of the Javanese cocoanut. Round or pear shaped, it has always this milk white luster, like a pearl. The smaller stone, with its pearly luster is a little tarnished, is found in the pomegranate. It is pure carbonate of lime. These stones are formed from silicious and calcareous juices circulating in the plant organism. They are the result of a diseased condition. Man himself, you know, occasionally puts forth stony growths, and they must be removed or the human stone grower dies in excruciating pain."

The Human Finger Bowl.

"I'm fond of the table d'hotes," said the table d'hote fiend, "but they are ruining the manners of the people. The other night I saw the prettiest girl at a table across from me, so pretty I could hardly keep my eyes off her. She was dressed in white, with a big white hat covered with a white veil, and had lovely blue eyes, and when she had finished eating her pear she licked every finger she had on both hands."

Backache, Headache Internal Pains.

MRS. JOSEPH LACELLE, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache, headache and dragging pains for over nine months, and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable half-dead, half-alive condition.

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year.

"If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Mde. Joseph Beaudoin, 59 Rue St. Olivier, Quebec, P. Q. Can., writes:

"Peruna is wonderful for indigestion. I eat whatever I want and no longer feel any oppression. Having had dyspepsia for a long time and having tried various other remedies, I decided to try Peruna and with the fourth bottle of it I was perfectly cured.

"For this reason I recommend it to all those who are suffering with that terrible malady, dyspepsia. I hope that all who are afflicted in this way will take Peruna and Manalin as I did."

Chronic Nasal Catarrh.

Mr. Chas. H. Stevens, 123 Sixteenth St., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh.

"I suffered for some time with chronic nasal catarrh, but after five months treatment during which time I used seven bottles of Peruna I am pleased to say that I am entirely well, there not being the slightest trace of catarrh left.

"Peruna is without a doubt, in my mind, the greatest remedy known for catarrh."

Weak, Tired Feeling.

Miss Marie A. Lesser, 9th W. 44th St., Chicago, Ill., Worthy Secretary I. O. G. T., writes:

"I am glad to give a good word for Peruna, and I hope that all who see this who are troubled with systemic catarrh as I was for years, will profit by it.

"I had tried many remedies, but none did more than give me temporary relief, and some did not even do that.

"I took Perunn at the suggestion of a friend, and was more than pleased and surprised at the results.

"I am now perfectly well and strong. That weak, tired feeling has left me, and I feel like a different person entirely."

The Slavery of Disease.

It is wonderful how many women in Canada and the United States have been practically made new again by the use of Peruna.

Not the victims of any organic disease, but just a half-dead and half-alive, condition.

Miserable, dragging pains that keep a woman always from doing her best work, from being her best self. Cross and petulent, perhaps. Maybe even a slattern in her household, just because her health is continually below par. She never feels quite right. She gets the reputation of being sullen, or morbid, or ill tempered.

Her trouble is not a moral one at all, it is simply a physical one. Make such a woman well and she immediately becomes transformed into a new being mentally.

This is exactly what Peruna has done in a multitude of cases.

The Engineer's Report on Smith St. Bridge

City Engineer T. A. S. Hay made the following report to the Board of Works Committee upon the proposed new bridge at Smith street;—

Ald. Phelan, chairman Board of Works,—

REBUILDING SMITH ST. BRIDGE

Dear Sir,—In May, 1906, I submitted a plan to the Board of Works for rebuilding Smith street bridge for a 2-span steel bridge truss of 150 feet each on concrete abutments and piers at estimate as follows;—18 ft. roadway and two walks, $37,200; 24 ft. roadway and two walks, $46,200.

I considered it advisable to allow for contingences and placed the cost at $40,000 and $49,000 respectively. I now submit plan for reinforced concrete 3-arched span of 100 feet each. the net estimates as follows;—For 18 ft roadway and two walks, $37,500. 24 ft. roadway and two walks, $46,500; and allowing for contingencies the amounts would be $40,000 and $49,000.

If the latest design is adopted I am of the opinion that by leaving out the north sidewalk there would be ample space, if necessary, for one street railway track on the north side, still leaving a roadway of 15 feet wide which would be sufficient for the traffic carried by that bridge and will save the cost of one sidewalk ($225) and allow almost the road capacity of the higher priced bridge.

Hains Talks of Some Surprises--Believes that He will be Acquitted

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 21.—The trial of Thornton J. Hains was resumed today, and District Attorney Darrin continued the presentation of testimony that is designed to prove the author, a principal with his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, jr., in the killing of William E. Annis, the publisher. It is not unlikely that the week will be taken up in the presentation of the State's case.

"I am satisfied with the developments of the trial so far," said Thornton Hains today, "and believe that I will be acquitted. Only the State has been heard, and the evidence developed shows more than a reasonable doubt, which in itself would acquit me. There will be some surprises when the defense unfolds itself."

TO CALL MRS ANNIS.

The prosecution plans to call Mrs. Annis on the stand either today or tomorrow. Through her testimony the State expects to prove not only that Thornton Hains drew his revolver when his brother first opened fire, and by so doing prevented anyone form saving Annis' life, but that the brother went to the Bayside Yacht Club in search of the publisher. Mrs Annis was in the stage going to the club when the Hains' brother drove by, and it is said that when the brothers saw Mrs. Annis, a remark of "We've got him now," was overheard by the wife of the publisher.

Tests with a revolver similar to the one with which Annis was killed showed that it can be discharged with extreme rapidity, or the shots

Commencement Exercises at Collegiate Institute

A most interesting program was presented last night in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, and it was enjoyed by a very large number of friends of the students. The occasion was the commencement exercises and the presentation of prizes, medals and diplomas. It was the first entertainment held in the new hall and was of double interest. The students were out en masse as it was the only function of the year which is all their own and they did themselves credit by their conduct towards and treatment of their guests. One of the features of the evening were the choruses rendered by the P. C. I. choristers. This is a new musical organization, and is conducted by Miss Helen Davies. Their selections were greatly appreciated.

The program was as follows.—

Chorus by the P.C.I. cheristers. Miss Helen Davies, conductor.

Presentation of Nicholls Scholarships by Dr. Park of Normal School staff.

Presentation writing prize donated by J. Crane, by Inspector Mowat.

Instrumental Duet. Miss Katie Leary and Miss Stella Shearer.

Lover's Fatal Fall on Return from His Courting

Guelph, Dec. 21.—While returning from visiting his sweetheart in Brampton, Harry Lanadale, a young man, 25 years of age, who was employed at Gallow's blacksmith shop, and boarded at the Grand Central Hotel, met with an accident from which the doctor thinks it is impossible for him to recover.

Lanadale was in the habit of visiting his fiancee every Sunday in Brampton, returning on the midnight train. Not wanting to wake any other boarders in the house, he climbed up an open stairway to the flat roof of the hotel stable, twenty-five feet high, from which he meant to jump across to the roof of Knechtel's shoe store, which would give him easy access to his bedroom.

It appears he was in the act of leaping across from one roof to the other, a distance of five feet, when he slipped on the snow and fell between the two buildings to the pavement below.

Constable Rae heard him fall, and found him lying unconscious in the alleyway. A doctor was called, and the young man removed to the General Hospital.

Upon examining the spot from which he fell, the constable found a parcel containing a Christmas present and a note from his sweetheart in Brampton. He had not opened it, and will probably not live to make use of the present, which was a handsome shaving set.

Property Committee

A meeting of the Property Committee was called yesterday afternoon, but nothing in particular was done. The committee has received the preliminary plans for the new public library from the American firm of architects, and they certainly present a very fine appearing structure. The plans were admired by all who saw them.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by his use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

What the Board of Works Did With the Money They Spent This Year

City Engineer Presented His Report on the Local Improvements and the Special Work Undertaken

The following report will be read with a great deal of interest by the ratepayers of Peterborough. It is a statement from the city engineer to the chairman of the Board of Works of the moneys spent during the year on local and permanent improvements. A perusal of the report will furnish valuable information and should satisfy those who have complained that not sufficient information is forthcoming from the council. The report also shows where the money went to that so much has been heard of in letters to the press and on the streets.

After the ratepayers have gone over the work done there is little doubt but what they will be perfectly satisfied with the conduct of the Board of Works during the past year. Ald. Phelan, as chairman, proved himself a capable man and one who could grasp a proposition and carry it through. Besides the ordinary local improvements he undertook and did carry out many jobs that had been hanging for several years. He deserves great credit for his personal interest in the work and for the great deal of time he gave to the city. The members of his committee are also deserving of credit for the part they played in the business. On the whole the ratepayers will find very little to complain of in the work which was undertaken and accomplished.

The report is as follows;—

Ald. Phelan, Chairman Board of Works;—

Dear Sir,—In accordance with your request I herewith submit a list of special works carried out during the season of 1908;—

Rheumatic Liver, Overstrained Kidneys

Caused Sickness that Puzzled All Physicians. Was Cured by Ferrozone.

A REAL MIRACLE.

"My doctor told me I had gouty or rheumatic liver and kidneys," writes G. O. Forde, from Halifax. "I guess he was right for I was a might sick man and felt the game was pretty nearly up. So many remedies failed that the doctor was completely puzzled. As for symptoms—I had bushels of them in the morning a sort of nausea. Sometimes the bowels were constipated, at other times quite relaxed. I felt dull, and a sense of weight in the back and over the liver was very distressing."

LOST 15 POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

"My color resembled a yellowish pallor, and gradually I lost weight to the alarming extent of fifteen pounds. I looked jaundiced and felt sure I would die.

"Then I read of the wonders worked by Ferrozone and in desperation I bought six boxes. At once I began to mend. Ferrozone must have put a jog or two into them ervous system or things at the end of the month began to look up. In three months I felt like new, but kept on taking Ferrozone. In six months I was cured."

FERROZONE SAVED HIS LIFE.

"Were it not for Ferrozone I wouldn't be alive today. I am sure it will cure any weakness, rheumatism, gout, debility, poor blood or nervousness. My condition embraced all these, and Ferrozone cured me." Leader, get Ferrozone today, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

Meat for over Seven Million

A Glance at Chritmas in Smithfield Market London, where Hang, Mile After Mile, Hooks of Meat

London, Dec 22.—Since the world resolved itself into social system there was surely never an institution more remarkable than the London Central Meat, Poultry and Provisions and General Market—commonly known as Smithfield Market. Always extraordinary, it is at Christmas time a fearful and a wonderful place. It is marvellous a neighborhood it was always a spot for the offering up of sacrifices, but where the victims once were human, they now hang dead, in rosy rows, upon hooks mile upon mile, and are brought from every corner of the earth.

For the slightly imaginative there is no need of a brush to paint it. One has only to state that in the Christmas week, for seventeen hours or more out of the twenty-four, 2 000 men are constantly engaged in swiftly running from conveyances of all sorts to hooks of uniform pattern with great carcases upon their stooping shoulders. With that and the mists and the fitful lighting, you have a somewhat gruesome picture of domestic utility which Gustave Dore could never have faithfully represented—two thousand men carrying dead things day and night — things that lowed and chewed cud merry berries, things that scurried through the prairie grass, skipped through the forest, or flew brightly over the heathend. You may even find bears there, with wild boars and other monstrosities of suc

May Put the I. C. R. Under a Commission

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Hon. George P. Graham, asked as to the report that the Intercolonial is to be leased to a private railway, stated that he has under consideration the betterment of the management of the line and that various projects looking to that end are under consideration.

"Suggestions have been made," he said, "looking to placing the management under a commission of one or more, while, as you may have noticed in the papers, some people favor leasing the line to a company.

The whole consideration so far has been general, and no decision has been arrived at, or is in sight. Mr Graham added that after a year's experience he feels that some improvement in management must be possible, and that he is casting about to arrive at that improvement.

Board of Trade Recommend Amendments to the By-Laws

A good number of citizens turned out last night to the Board of Trade meeting, which was called for the purpose of discussing the various bylaws being submitted to the ratepayers at the January elections two weeks from last night. There was a whole lot of opposition to the proposed sums and the manner in which it was proposed to expend it as will be seen by the discussion reported below.

President Dr. Morrison in his opening remarks explained the object of the meeting being to discuss the bylaws to be voted on by the people in January.

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., stated that in public affairs there should be much open discussion of public affairs, and specially in connection with money bylaws. One thing there was never any proper advertising of the bylaws. The advertisement that is published is worded in the merest legal manner which he claimed was very inefficient. He thought the council should make this matter as widely known as possible, so that the people could vote intelligently. The people need more information. As it is the people go to the polls and vote without knowing what they are voting for. Full details of bylaws should be given to the public.

Speaking of the bridge bylaw he said that he was assured that a bridge must be built at Smith St. But whether its should cost $49,000 or not, he did not know. But a bridge must be built there. There may be a new traffic bridge over the new water works dam farther up the river.

As to the extension of streets, he said that the great mistake made was in not buying the necessary land ten years ago, when it could have been purchased for half the price. The streets in question have to be opened and a lot of money has already been expended. He presumed the bylaw was right and he would be free to vote for it.

He did not know, however, so much about the $30,000 for a fair grounds. He thought that as the farmers were getting the full benefit or at least one-half of it, and they should these for through the county council rate half of the cost. $30,000 was a tidy sum and it would require $2,200 per year for 20 years to pay for it. Thirty acres of land at $1,000 per acre, was a big price. The King Edward school property was bought for $500 per acre. He thought that 15 or 20 acres of the land would never be used for anything. The corporation should never buy land for the sake of having land. Let the farmers take their share of the expenditure and the city will take its.

Speaking of the financial condition of the city. On the 31st of this month this city will owe $1,063,580 32 for public debentures. That is the gross debt at the end of 1908. The city has however assets to the value of $600,000. Of this $140,000 is in cash in the bank to pay debentures when they come due. We have an assessment of $7,000,000 with only $70,000 debt against it or like a $1800 farm with a $100 mortgage. He said and to do it quickly it would be necessary to build all the arches with timber before the cement work was started and that was the reason of the estimate being so low. (Mr. Moore was right in stating that not enough money did not think it would be well for the ratepayers to pay much attention to the published big debt as the financial position of the city was excellent.

J. H. LARMONTH.

Mr. Larmonth spoke to a certain extent in favor of all the bylaws. He said the Smith street bridge should be built. He did not think the sum asked for was too much as it was to be a permanent concrete bridge and would be very handsome and permanent. It was to be a three arch was furnished by the council.

He favored the bylaw for the extension of streets and also the purchase of the fair grounds, but it was a question in his mind whether the ground asked for should be purchased. He thought the land to the south on the water front which was much better could be got much cheaper. He said he was not opposed to the amount of $30,000 But if possible to get land at $15,000 he would favor giving the fair the balance for for buildings.

R. H. LEARY.

Mr. R. H. Leary stated that he was well pleased to hear the discussion on the bylaws. He was in favor of the bylaws and he gave his reasons. In speaking of the exhibit on grounds. The money was to buy recreating grounds for the southern section of the city. The exhibition association asks the city to buy that land and hold it in trust so that the exhibition would have a permanent place to erect their buildings on. He spoke of the great necessity of new buildings which the association would erect.

D. HUGHES-CHARLES.

Mr. Charles stated that he was in favor of all the bylaws. He especially thought a new bridge should be erected at Smith street at once. As to the exhibition grounds. Mr. Charles said that four years ago they had an option on the grounds of $70 per acre, while today they ask $1,000. The people should therefore see the necessity of buying land now. He thought, however, that the land was too high. The buildings were no good and they should be torn down at once and rebuilt. He thought a better park and put up better buildings and give the people better satisfaction for $30,000 than the present site. He was not opposed to the $30,000 bylaw but he wants to see it spent in another part and on the river front.

WM. LANGFORD

Mr. Langford stated that looking at the bylaws the sum of $100,000 was considerable, but it was 25 per cent. of our net debt. All these bylaws are non-revenue producers. The street extensions were necessary and will no doubt carry. He thought the fair ground's bylaw was nonsense, as the fair has not been a success for 15 years and yet they ask for $30,000 for grounds. As to the bridge Mr. Langford said that this city could not afford to pay $50,000 for a handsome bridge like the plans proposed. We want a permanent bridge and one which will last for 50 or 100 years, and he claimed that a bridge which would be just as good for half the money. He mentioned another bridge of steel with concrete bottoms can be built for $22,000, and it will last 50 years. It will carry a 12-ton load on two axles 10 feet apart. What he wanted was to get the best bridge for the least money.

W. H. MELDRUM.

Mr. Meldrum was in favor of the extension of streets bylaws, but was it necessary at this time to extend them now. What was needed most in this city was to spend money on improvements that would produce a revenue and build up the city.

R. SHEEHY.

Mr. Sheehy was opposed to the exhibition grounds and the Smith street bridge bylaws as they were too large a sum for the requirements of the city and he would vote against both of these bylaws.

W. H. DENHAM.

Mr. W. H. Denham agreed with the necessity of a new bridge on Smith street. The nature of it he was not prepared to say. He favored the street extension bylaw, and he agreed with several who wanted to see $30,000 raised for the purpose of grounds, etc., for exhibition purposes, but they should be on the water.

DAWSON KENNEDY.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy strongly advocated the purchase of exhibition grounds by the city and pointed out many reasons why this should be done. He stated that he intended to support all the bylaws.

MOTIONS PASSED.

The following motions were then passed;—

Moved by Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles and W. H Denham, that this meeting approves of the bylaw for street extensions.

That it approves of the bylaw for building the bridge at Smith S., but that the proposed bridge is too expensive.

That it would approve of a bylaw to purchase a park to be used for exhibition purposes in the south end of the city, but the proposed grounds are too expensive for such a purpose.

That a copy of this resolution be sent to the City Council.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. W. H. Moore and Robt. Fair, that in the opinion of this meeting better advertisement and the fullest information the subject is capable of should be given in all cases of money bylaws submitted to the ratepayers for approval. The meeting feels this has been neglected in the past.—Carried.

The meeting adjourned.

CHURCH UNION

The joint committee on church union, representing the Presbyterian, and Congregational churches closed a fifty conference the other day in Toronto with the adoption of a resolution to the effect that the organic union of the negotiating churches was practicable. No more important declaration in its bearing upon the religious life of the people of Canada could have been made. There have been movements before this for the co-operation of several communions in what might be called the common work of the church. In this way, the Laymen's Missionary movement, now in process of organization, embraces even more religious bodies than the new United Church of Canada, the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists would take in. But the obstacles to an organic union, a merging of these three general bodies have been admittedly formidable, and they appear to have been overcome only through the exercise of much wisdom and patience and as the conference acknowledge, through the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Having declared for the practicability of the organic union of the three churches the joint committee suggests consideration of the results of the conference by the courts and membership of the various churches. It remarks that the extension of the conference to other Christian communions has not yet been found practicable, but expresses the hope that in the event of this union of the three negotiating churches a still more comprehensive union may be realized.

But for the present it is of value to observe that the official representatives of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches in Canada have declared that there is no obstacle in the way of the organic union of the three bodies. And it is expected that the union will be projected officially in 1911 and the plan for a United Church of Canada accepted or rejected. The matters as to the administration of the funds and enterprises of the churches, of the education of candidates for the ministry in the United Church and the reconciliation of points in doctrine are said to have been already adjusted.

The union of these three churches, all of spiritual and intellectual power, would doubtless be of great value to themselves, to the common country and the great cause in which they are all serving. It would eliminate the non-essential, cut away much wastage in effort and money, and concentrate the attention of a preponderating influence in the religious community of Canada upon the performance of a common task. Such things must be as good in religion as they are in ordinary business. The union of the churches would involve not only a great spiritual asset but would follow moreover the lines of patriotism and of common sense. It is to be hoped that the union will to shortly an accomplished fact.

Has the "Old Man's" Sun Set?

Speaking of "Whiteroft's Stars," who were in Toronto Sunday, on their journey from Edmonton to Montreal, to play for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the hockey championship of the world the Toronto Star has the following;—

BILL CROWLEY ON THE JOB.

Bill Crowley, the old Peterborough hockeyist and Rughyist, is the trainer of the team. Bill says the bunch look good to him, and he believes the trip will not be in vain. "Good wishes will help we'll win the cup, sure," said Bill. "We're playing them all along the line." Bill says he is still playing Rugby, though they barred him out of hockey because his son had sec. He says Edmonton is a great town. He thought he'd never forget Peterborough, but Edmonton now has the call. Still, Bill is glad to be East again, and may take a last fond peep at the old home, and the scene of former triumphs.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

THE KAISER'S HARD TIMES

After the Prince de Soubise had entertained Louis XV. for a day and a night at a cost of $100,000 "I fear that you are in debt," remarked the king. Whereupon the prince frowned and yawned. "I shall inquire of my steward," he said. "And inform your majesty."

The German kaiser is of far other than the de Soubise order. He has castles and many substantial things to show for his money. He has paid the price of his enthusiasms for art, for music, for yachts, for kingly sports and for stately surroundings. According to the advices from Berlin, he has no need to consult his stewards in order to know that his financial outgo has outrun his magnificent income.

To meet current expenses of Wilhelm's establishment, it is decided that a few castles must go. Perhaps a crown jewel or two may follow. Or a bit of the imperial stable. These forced sales by the German monarch will contrast curiously with that dispersal of a $10,000,000 art collection which King Leopold of Belgium is said to have decided upon as an act of spite to keep the treasures from his daughters.

Louis IX of France in the exceptional year of the Crusade of 1251 spent $775,000. The luxury-loving Francis I maintained himself and court on $259,000 a year. Louis XIV.—"Louis the Great"—had less than €4,000,000 for all the expenses of an extravagant establishment. In his struggle to make both ends meet after a fashion befitting the dignity of the family Wilhelm II. has broken these and all other records. His ability to make $10,000,000 look small should commend him to Mr. Carnegie as a shining exemplar of one way not to die rich and disgraced.

Bargains, bargains; come to the Times Bookstore to buy your presents. We will make the price low enough as we do not want Xmas stock left over.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a blinker tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first made the cause of all this palpitation, pain, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is to-day directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds them—makes them strong. It offers real, genuine heart help. It would have strong Hearts, strong, dependable Hearts, strong Nerves—nothing less is wanted, with Saving Work.

In the home of one woman where single beds are in general use the spreads are made of honeycomb material bought by the yard and hemmed. They are easy to wash and require no ironing. In the same home cream white madras is used for bedroom window draperies because of its good wearing qualities. It comes out of the wash with flying colors. She trims them with ball fringe and does not have them wrung very dry and wrung by hand, of course, as the wringer would flatten the little balls. She uses small rugs all through her house save the dining room, because they can be taken outdoors every week by the one maid of the establishment. Another woman saves work by having her luncheon brought to her sitting room on a tray, and another, belonging to a family that seems doomed to perpetual mourning attire, supplies her maid with very light cotton dresses in white and black because there is already too much gloom in the house.

A Photography Hint.

With a fixed focus camera the endeavor should be to get the principal objects in a good light and at such a distance from the camera that they will be nicely rendered without the necessity of stopping down the lens. The distance will take care of itself, and the foreground, too, unless there be any very prominent feature in it, when the picture is likely to suffer by unsightly diffusion or a want of sharpness.

With ordinary good fortune as regards weather and subjects, the amateur photographer who proceeds with intelligence can bring back a collection of excellent pictures, even though she has never used a camera before, and the pleasure to be derived by looking from time to time to these reminiscences of some weeks at a delightful country or seaside resort will be such that she will not readily go away in the future without an instrument which so readily records the chief incidents of a holiday.

Salt in Cooking.

If one portion of a vegetable is cooked in pure water, the other half in salted water, a decided difference is perceptible in the tenderness of the two. Those boiled in pure water are vastly inferior and in many cases will be almost tasteless. Salt brings out the delicate flavor of cauliflower, cabbage, potatoes, peas, beans and practically all vegetables. Onions cooked in water without salt can be rendered almost tasteless. As salt increases the temperature of boiling water, its cooking advantage is at once apparent. Salt in cold water is used to drive insects from vegetables growing above ground.

Human Ostrich.

A remarkable case is under treatment at the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary. In June a young postman was sentenced to nine month's imprisonment for appropriating small postal orders, and after his removal to prison he began to swallow all manner of things. First, he swallowed a portion of a blanket, then 24 iron pins, each about two inches long, a considerable number of stones, pieces of iron, and bits of a water jug which he smashed. When he told the prison officials what he had done they disbelieved him, but after being taken to the infirmary the various articles were located by the X-rays. A consultation was held by the doctors, but it was deemed advisable not to perform an operation. The patient is still confined to bed, though apparently quite well and normal in every respect, notwithstanding his extraordinary experience. In the infirmary he is known as the human ostrich.

Ancient High Buildings.

In the Rome of the Caesars trouble was experienced with high buildings. A law was passed restricting the height of fronts to sixty feet. In order to evade it builders adopted the practice of carrying up the rear portion several stories more. Other laws bearing on the heights of buildings were passed in olden times. There was a tendency to diminish the height of stories as the buildings increased in size, and a height of 130 feet was probably attained. It is believed that the ceilings were so low that a man could not stand upright in the rooms.

His Trick Dog.

One day as a doctor was driving into a village he saw a man a little the worse for liquor amusing a crowd of spectators with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor watched him awhile and said:

"Sandy, how do you manage to train your dog? I can't teach mine to do anything."

Sandy, with the simple look in his eyes so common in some rustics, said:

"Well, you see, doc, you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothing."

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for branching your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery are installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

for she was busy with the mules, carrying them and putting them before the wagon. "Can't help what you think about it this time," she said when her father asked her where she was going. "I've made up my mind that if you won't say the fort, why then I'll have to drive to Clark's for Mr. Lounsbury. We don't know for sure what that pole meant. We must ask."

"Aw, you ain't got a snitch o' pride," he taunted jealously. "Goin' t' Lounsbury. Waal, waal! You think a heap o' him, don' y'? More 'n you do o' you' father! That sticks out like a sore finger."

"No," she answered simply. "I'm putting my pride in my pocket, dad. I'm going to Mr. Lounsbury because I care so much for you and for Marylyn. And I want to say something—I hate to say it—you've almost discouraged me about Brannon lately. We came here to raise stuff to sell over there. But I can't see how we can sell over there if we won't even speak to a soul. It looks as if we're going to give all that up—as if a lot of my work is for nothing."

It was a new thought for the section boss. And while Dallas disappeared behind Betty he pondered it with hanging head. She came around soon to hitch Ben's tugs, when her father looked up shamefacedly. "Ah'll tell y', Dallas," he said by way of compromise, "ef Lounsbury don't come back with y'"—

"He will," assured Dallas stoutly.

"W'y, we'll go t' th' fort, as you say."

"All right, dad," she replied, giving his back a pat.

He began to hobble up and down. "You ain't scairt t' go?" he ventured at last. "Ain't afeerd o' nothin'?"

"No, and I'm going on my own book, remember. It's not your fault."

"Y' kain't think o' no other way"—

She paused in front of him. "Can you?" she asked.

He could have sworn, but there was something in her face that forbade it. "No—no," he said explosively and so matched her determination with his hot stubbornness.

He left her and, taking the rifle and all the ammunition there was, seated himself on a bench placed just outside the door. There he was—a pitiful sentinel—as she circled the shack and relied.

And now another question was presented: Should Marylyn stay or go? Dallas was for her remaining, so that in case of need help could be summoned—from somewhere. Marylyn sided with her. And it was long afterward, when many things were made clear, before the elder girl understood her sister's action—one that seemed so contrary to what the younger one felt. But their father opposed them both and vehemently.

Dallas upon the wagon seat, prepared for her long drive, had softened and touched him. She bore herself so bravely. She was so respectful and concerned.

"You take Marylyn," he insisted, "an' the pistol. Ah c'n git along fine by myself. Charley 'll be comin', an' Ah'll hang on t' him. Ah reckon between us we'll be O. K.. 'Sides, y' know, Ah got a weasel's tail."

The mention of Charley won Dallas to her father's view. He would not be alone all day, for the outcast would surely appear. On the other hand, she longed to have Marylyn with her, where she could shield her from cross words and possible harm. "We'll have Mr. Lounsbury with us coming home," she said.

At that Marylyn waxed still more eager to remain. And it took some pleading to overcome her reluctance and to bring about her consent. Finally, however, the two girls drove away.

Before she started the team Dallas climbed down to say goodby. In all their lives few caresses had ever passed between father and daughter, and those had been during her babyhood. But now, moved by a common impulse, each reached out at parting to clasp the other. And there were tears in the eyes of both.

As the wagon trundled out of earshot that one of the trio least consulted in the affairs of the shack was hard beset by a temptation—to tell Dallas about Lieutenant Fraser and his earnest, oft repeated promise of protection. But Marylyn hesitated, afraid to speak—no less afraid of her sister than of her father. She realized that if she mentioned the officer she would have to admit their meetings. And such a confession would undoubtedly result in an end to those meetings and perhaps in severe blaming. Yet—it would also cut short the drive to Clark's. And what might not be awaiting them on that journey? Still there were only two likely dangers—Indians and the interpreter. "But Mr. Fraser says this upper side of the river's safe," she remembered. As to Matthews, he would not be lingering beside the road to waylay them. Her fears for her own safety were thus argued down.

There was yet her father's safety to consider. Well, her gallant new friend would look to that. "He'll be across again this afternoon," she thought, "and he'll watch the house careful. He couldn't do any more if he knew about the pole." So, her conscience satisfied, she decided to keep her own counsel. That decision cost her abundant grief and penitence in the months to come.

While Marylyn was busy with her troublesome problem a similar one was running in Dallas' brain, where it called for calculation. Would Matthews threaten the shack that day? It was scarcely probable. Night offered the best hours for an attack. Therefore the wagon must return before night. But could Ben and Betty make Clark's and the return trip before then? So far they had never done it. The previous summer the drive was begun at dawn, when dawn was at 3 o'clock. "We'll just have to hike along," she said aloud to Marylyn.

Into the coulee slid the wagon, its long tongue in the air, the loose tugs hitting the mules in the back. When the team had scrambled up the farther side Dallas put them to a trot by a flick of the blacksnake. Then she bent forward over the dashboard, her eyes fixed eagerly on that distant brown blotch at the eastern ridge top. But Marylyn as they drew away looked regretfully backward—to where a clump of tall cottonwoods, shaking their heart shaped leaves in the wind, dappled a flower studded stretch below the coulee mouth.

Rod by rod the mules climbed the gently sloping prairie. The morning was perfect and belied in its beauty even a suggestion of lurking harm. The air, crystal clear and exhilarating, brought far things magically near to the eye. On every hand shimmered the springing grass, now a pale emerald with the wind brushing it, again in the still places a darker green and yet again under the ravine's fringing willows, where the deer sibbled, a cool black. Out of it the meadow larks showed their good luck waistcoats and rippled their tunes. Out of it countless wild roses smiled up pinkly to the sun.

But all the loveliness of the new day only mocked at the lonely girls in the wagon. To them the gray sands of their desert home, the blistering "northers," the brassy skies, were unconsciously synonymous of safety and peace. More than once as they pressed on the old, red painted section house rose before them, a very haven.

Behind, the squat shack was gradually lessening in size. A jutting corner had already shut from view its [illegible].

There was little conversation. Marylyn for a time could not dismiss the subject that had confronted her at the start. Finally, however, she put it aside impatiently and let herself drift on a pleasant current. And Dallas—her thoughts were also harried, for as her home dropped mile by mile in the distance and she was forced to meet the question of what she would say and do when she arrived at Clark's her feelings underwent a marvelous change. It had been easy enough in

HIS MISTAKE.

Why Lawyer Bunsen Ceased to Be a Kidder.

Bunsen was always a great kidder. He isn't any more.

Bunsen is a lawyer, although, of course, he is known by a different name. Don't ever get the idea, though, that this didn't really happen just because Bunsen's real name isn't mentioned.

Well, as we were saying, Bunsen used to be pretty much of a kidder. He would even kid his own patient little wife. Those who care to read on down a little farther will learn why he ceased to be a kidder.

One evening last week when Bunsen got home his wife had a new hat to show him. It was some hat. Anybody could have seen that it was the final phrase in female headgear.

But Bunsen started in to make fun of it. He said it looked as if it had been trimmed by a cross eyed milliner on an empty stomach. And he made a lot of other disparaging remarks that were extremely harassing to poor Mrs. Bunsen. "D'je buy it sight unseen?" he inquired. "Say, how much do they pay the girl that sold you that? She ought to have a raise. Any girl who could put that one over a customer must be something of a smooth saleslady, I'm here to remark."

Mrs. Bunsen was almost in tears. Bunsen had to go into the other room to have a quiet laugh at her expense. Oh, he was the great kidder, all right!

The next day, though, he had forgotten all about the hat.

The day after that he was reminded of his little jokefest. Mrs. Bunsen handed him a slip of paper when he came home to get his victuals that evening. It was a bill for retrimming that hat—$18.34 it came to.

Bunsen paid it without a murmur and said the revised edition of the hat was just exactly right. He isn't making fun of hats any more.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Minor Matter.

A young broker in Boston while visiting a certain household in the Hub not long ago encountered a number of young women graduates whose conversation suddenly turned to a discussion of the development of the English novel.

The dealer in stocks and bonds speedily found himself "out of it." Presently during a lull one young woman asked him:

"What do you think of Fielding, Mr. Brown?"

"Oh, fielding is important, of course," quickly responded the broker, "but it isn't worth much unless you've got good pitchers and men who can hit the ball."—Harper's Weekly.

A STRANGE DISCOVERY.

Scientists Find That a Beam of Light Produces Sound.

One of the most wonderful discoveries in science that have been made within the last year or two is the fact that a beam of light produces sound. A beam of sunlight is thrown through a lens on a glass vessel that contains lampblack, colored silk or worsted or other substance. A disk having slits or openings cut in it is made to revolve swiftly in this beam of light so as to cut it up, thus making alternate flashes of light and shadow. On putting the ear to the glass vessel strange sounds are heard so long as the flashing beam is falling on the vessel.

Recently a more wonderful discovery has been made. A beam of sunlight is made to pass through the prism so to produce what is called the solar spectrum, or rainbow. The disk is turned, and the colored light of the rainbow is made to break through it. Now place the ear to the vessel containing the silk, wool or other material. As the colored lights of the spectrum fall upon it sounds will be given by different parts of the spectrum, and there will be silence in other parts.

For instance, if the vessel contains red worsted and the green light flashes upon it loud sounds will be given. Only feeble sounds will be heard when the red and blue parts of the rainbow fall upon the vessel, and other colors make no sound at all. Green silk gives sound best in red light. Every kind of material gives more or less sound in different colors and utters no sound in others.

The discovery is a strange one, and it is thought more wonderful things will come from it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Abdul Hamid's Joke.

Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, thoroughly distrusts his ministers. He once said to Professor Vambery: "But what is there for me to do? If I change them I shall get others who are probably more dishonest." One evening his grand vizier gave a dinner party, at which with the sultan's sanction several court officers were present. One of these the next day gave Abdul Hamid a verbal report of the exhibition of magic which a dervish provided after the dinner. "In a most wonderful way," he said, "this practicer of black art swallowed silver spoons in rapid succession."

"Do you consider that wonderful?" interrupted the sultan. "The feat of swallowing silver spoons is as nothing to the feat which Hassan Pasha, the minister of the navy, used to perform. He swallowed entire ironclads apparently without any trouble."

Hassan Pasha was notorious for the barefaced audacity with which he diverted moneys granted for new ships to his own use.

The MacGillycuddy.

It was a saying of that interesting and bulky member of parliament, The O'Gorman Mahon, that there were only three individuals entitled to the prefix "the." They were himself, the pope and the—well, the gentleman who is rarely mentioned in polite society. He forgot, however, The MacGillycuddy of the Reeks, whose fifty-sixth birthday occurred recently. He is, if ever there was one, an Irish chieftain and descendant of Irish kings. He owns no longer that fine chain of Kerry mountains known as the Reeks, although he retains the title and also a residence of the same name. The surname MacGillycuddy dates from ancient Roman Catholic times and means the son of the servant (or devotee) of St. Cuthbert, whose name "Cuddy" is an affectionate diminutive. The wives of The MacGillycuddys, as of other feudal Irish chiefs, are always distinguished by the title of "madam."—St. James' Gazette.

Cows in Hot Weather.

Spray the cows before they are turned out to pasture in the morning with a mixture of equal parts of coal oil and fish oil. One gill, applied with a spray syringe, will cover the neck, shoulders and legs of one cow. The following mixture is recommended by the Wisconsin experiment station: Resin, one and one-half pounds; common soap, two cakes; fish oil, one-half pint, and water, three gallons. Dissolve the resin by boiling in one gallon of water and the soap cut fine. When dissolved add the fish oil and the remainder of the water. Stir thoroughly before using. Apply with syringe or brush. This is an excellent fly repellent, cheap and effective.

A Veterinarian's Advice.

When the hog seems to be losing the use of its limbs, feed less corn and more bran and oats chop. If the trouble is very bad, give eight or ten drops of nux vomica in the feed twice a day. An abundance of green feed should also be given.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his "prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Arthur Hodder Died as Result of Kicks From Horse on Father's Farm

With blood poisoning from several wounds in his face and head, little Arthur Hodder, aged seven years and six months, was brought from his father's home in Smith township shortly after midday Monday, to the Nicholls Hospital, suffering from kicks from a horse. So severely had he been injured that a few hours later he passed away. The accident occurred Monday shortly after midday as the little fellow was playing with a handsleigh. He worked his way too closely to the heels of a young horse, which had been recently shod. The animal kicked viciously, striking the boy about the face and head. He emerged from the accident in a terribly mangled condition and was shortly afterwards removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where he was attended by three doctors.

LOST RIGHT EYE.

It was found on examination that the face bones had been broken, and that the right eye of the unfortunate youth had been kicked completely out. The base of the brain had also been fractured, and but for this the doctors could possibly have saved his life. Death came about eight o'clock.

Arthur Hodder was the son of Mr. Henry Stephen Hodder, poultry keeper, residing on the Chemong Road, just beyond the city limits. He was a bright youth and friends of the distressed family sympathize with him in their hour of trouble.

The Sale of Debentures

To the Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir,—To avoid trespassing on your space I cut short my last letter in reply to the Mayor and dealt only with the large deficit on current account. Unfortunately a rush of other matters has prevented me writing a reply to his answer re the sale of debentures until to-day, but I would like now to correct some more "misleading" statements in the Mayor's defence.

Mr. Rush admits that the sale made this year of debentures was extravagant and costly but seeks to throw the blame on the Council of 1907 for their failure to sell these debentures. What are the facts? When the Council of 1907 took office they found $59,000. of debentures nearly ready for sale for sewers and sidewalks of the two preceding years, all computed at four per cent. and no sale possible at that rate. We made an arrangement with the Commissioners of the City Trust to take up those for the sewers and had to raise the rate to 4 1-2 per cent. in order to sell those for sidewalks. At no time during the year could we have sold our debentures at less than 4 1-2 per cent. and rather than sell at that rate—12 1-2 per cent. higher than the rate at which we had been selling for years—the Mayor, the Finance Committee, the whole Council of 1907 agreed to hold back the sale and if necessary pay the Bank an increased rate for temporary loans. Mayor Rush knows or ought to know these facts and he has no right to misrepresent the facts to throw blame on his predecessor.

How does the action of the present Mayor compare? Instead of trying to save the money of the present and future taxpayers he sells an unprecedented quantity of debentures at the worst possible time. Instead of trying to satisfy the Bank by a partial sale he sells $120,000. of debentures to cover an overdraft of $138,000. when he took office. To get down to exact figures. It would have been cheaper for the City to have paid the Bank 16 per cent. and sold the debentures at the rates now prevailing, than to have made such a sale as Mayor Rush made this year. If the rate goes down to 4 per cent. before spring as seems probable, the City would have been better off paying 22 per cent. for one year. It is publicly said that there are $3,000,000.00 on deposit in the Banks of this City. Does anyone mean to say that an offer from the City to pay 6 per cent. for one year loans in small amounts would not have been jumped at by people getting 5 per cent. in the Bank to an amount far in excess of the $200,000 required by the City. All that was needed was a little grit and foresight in the Mayor's chair and the City will pay $1,000. a year for the next thirty years for the lack of these qualities at a critical time.

One other remark. The Mayor would like to hide behind the responsibility of the Finance Committee. The Mayor knows that almost the same men composed that Committee last year and that I did nothing in regard to the finances except with their approval, but when I was attacked in the last elections and when he was permitting himself to be the instrument of an attack which he knew to be false did he say one word about the responsibility of the Finance Committee instead of the Mayor? Does the Mayor consider it an honorable course to win an election under false colors and then confirm when the same test is applied to him?

I charge that both in the sale of debentures and in the spending of this year's funds the present Mayor's management has been the most reckless and most extravagant that this City has known in a generation, and, as I said before, I am prepared to stand by this charge at any public meeting.

Yours faithfully,
R. S. McWILLIAMS.

Mr. Stratton will Appeal to the Supreme Court

Toronto, Dec. 22.—Mr. Justice Britton has given judgment in the action to have the petition in the West Peterborough protest set aside on the ground of insufficient service. He decides against the objection on two grounds, viz.:

1—That it is too early in the proceedings to dismiss the petition.

2—Under a rule of the High Court of Justice there is power to order substituted service at any stage.

The decision is in direct opposition to the specific wording of the statute which says that substituted service can only be ordered after the time ordered by the court for personal service has expired. As this time had not elapsed, Mr. Stratton's counsel contended that no order for substituted service could be made, and that the court had no jurisdiction to make any such order.

Mr. Stratton has given notice of the matter being taken to the Supreme Court.

Mr. George Duncan will be a Candidate

Mr. Geo Duncan has announced himself a candidate for the council next year. He is entering the municipal field again because he feels that he can be of assistance in conducting the city's business. He is not tied to any cleque or clan and will, if elected give an independent support to all measures in the interests of the city. He has been in the council before and the result of his work is known to all.

Funeral of the Late Alfred Parker

The funeral of the late Alfred Parker, under Masonic orders, was held yesterday afternoon at three o'clock from his late residence on Park street. Interment took place at Little Lake cemetery where Rev. Mr. Mason said the last sad rites over the remains of a highly respected brother. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. M. Pearson of the George street Methodist church, and Rev. Mr. Henderson of Charlotte street Methodist church. The pall bearers were, Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, R. Winch, R. [illegible] Harrison, B. Shortly and Mayor Rush. A large number of friends called at the house and paid their respects to the deceased who was one of the best known and best liked men in the city.

FOUND STOLEN FURS IN WILKIN'S HOUSE

Simcoe Constable Is Said to Have Confessed that He and Chief Malone Went Through Soveren's Store and Stole Furs

Simcoe, Dec. 22.—Among other depredations that have been recently committed in Simcoe, S. M. Soveren's dry goods store was entered, and between $200 and $300 worth of furs were taken. Mr. Soveren received an intimation that if he went to Wilkin's house he might regain his property.

He acted on the suggestion, and got back his goods, two fur coats and a quantity of women's furs, last night. Mr. Arthur Soveren visited Wilkin's, who confessed to him that he had gone through the store with Chief Malone, and they had taken the articles. This confession was so astounding that Mr. Soveren sent for his father, Mr. S. M. Soveren, who also heard Wilkin's story.

The hearing this afternoon will likely be of a formal nature, as Wilkins is not yet in a condition to allow him to attend, and in all probability the Crown will ask for a further remand. No further light has been thrown on the attempted murder.

Malone, who is, of course, in jail, is in good health and spirits. He professes to feel certain of acquittal.

Tom Longboat Signed to Meet Arthur Shrubb

Toronto, Dec. 22.—The chances are that Tom Flanagan will this afternoon do what he said yesterday he would do—sign Tom Longboat to run Alfred Shrubb, the marathon distance indoors, at Madison Square Garden.

P. T. Powers, the Madison Square Garden impressario arrived today hot foot from New York to shake Tom Flanagan's determination not to let the Indian run Shrubb indoors. Flanagan was firm until Powers insisted that he had given his word, after the Dorando race, that he would let the Indian meet Shrubb and that, on that understanding he had involved himself to the extent of $2,000.

This took the wind out of Flanagan's sails, and he finally consented to run Shrubb the distance if Shrubb would in return sign to meet the Indian the Marathon distance out doors there in the spring.

So the matter stands now, but the chances are the agreement will be signed this afternoon. The Shrubb date may be Jan. 8th or 9th, but Flanagan is holding out for a longer date to give the Indian a chance to rest up between the Dorando race at Buffalo, which by the way will be 15 miles, but will not be run New Year's Day. The chances are that it will be run Jan. 2nd.

On an indoor track Shrubb may beat the Indian with his clever head work. Out doors the Indian should win on his merits.

Widow Says Hains Pressed Revolver Against Her Back

New York, Dec. 22.—Mrs. William E. Annis, widow of the man who was shot to death by Captain Hains of the United States army, at the Bayside Yacht Club last August, yesterday sprung three surprises on the defence of the captain's brother, who is now on trial for his life as a principal in the killing.

Here are the things to which Mrs. Annis testified, and which made the defence quiver, from John F. McIntyre, through the defendant, even to the latter's aged father, who has never for a moment lost the idea that his author son was absolutely innocent.

"As my husband's boat approached the float I saw Thorton Hain beckon his brother, the captain, and then they went down the runway to the float. Thornton preceding the captain.

POINTED REVOLVER AT WIFE.

"As I ran down the gangway, Thornton Hains made one or two steps forward and pointed his revolver at me. I turned around as quickly as I could. Then he put the revolver at my back and kept it at my back and said, "You move, and you'll get the same."

"I stood a moment, and then went up the runway again."

"What did you hear?" asked District Attorney Darrin.

"I did not hear; I felt—I felt the revolver at my back. I did not hear it," was the positive testimony of Mrs. Annis.

Of course, it did not all come out in answer to one question, but the effect was the same. Thorton Hains, writer of Heroic Sea Tales, and the avowed protector of his brother, put his loaded revolver in the back of a woman, and she felt the barrel, according to her sworn statement.

MY SWEETHEART HAS WON.

The third blow came after Mrs. Annis had nearly fainted in the witness chair, and Mr. McIntyre for the moment declined to cross-examine further. It was Darrin who asked the question, and he had to ask it several times before he got it to suit Judge Crane.

"Was there any demonstration on the pier?" was the way he finally put the query.

"When I saw that my husband had won his race from Mr. Hill I cried out," answered Mrs. Annis.

"And what did you say?" demanded the prosecutor.

"Hurrah! My sweetheart has won the race!" answered Mrs. Annis, with one of the rare smiles that lightened her face during the ordeal. No member of the corps of attorneys employed by the defence had ever heard of any of these vital points of testimony before, although the evidence which the prosecution was supposed to have had been carefully studied over.

THE DEFENCE WORRIED.

For the few minutes that remained of the direct examination they were clearly puzzled, and perhaps more sorely tried because their chief cross-examiner, John F. McIntyre, could not roughly question the beautiful woman, widowed by the tragedy, as he had done with Annis' fellow members of the Yacht Club.

Before Mr. Darrin was through asking Mrs. Annis the questions which brought out her direct story of the killing, the defence was back in line. Mr. McIntyre approached the cross-examination red-faced and apologetic.

HER STORY DISCOUNTED.

The one point he made in a long cross-examination, which in spite of its gentleness, finally made Mrs. Annis half swoon in her chair, was that she had never told anyone about Thornton Hains beckoning to his brother until she had first visited the Flushing Town Hall last Wednesday, when the prosecution began to present its case. The revolver incident she had told of, but her story was discounted to a certain extent, by the fact that the Bayside Yacht Club members, who have already testified to the most minute details, all declared that Thornton Hains pointed the gun at them most of the time and only waved it at Mrs. Annis.

CAME AS A SURPRISE.

The recalling of the widow of Captain Hains' victim was one of the few surprises that Prosecutor Darrin has given the crowd which fills the ancient court room. It was generally believed that he would wait for the effect of making her the last witness for the prosecution that the impression on the jury might be the more direct. This he did not do.

"What was your feeling when you recognized Captain Peter Hains?" was one of the prosecutor's first questions.

"I became very frightened," answered Mrs. Annis.

She saw some one else, she testified but at that time she did not know whom it was.

"I have since learned that it was Thornton Jenkins Hains," she said firmly, with a quick glance at the defendant, who was staring fixedly at her.

This is how Mrs. Annis described the shooting of her husband; "After the first shot, I saw Mr. Annis rising in his boat. After the second shot he got up to walk from the stern to the bow of the boat around the mast. Then his leg gave way, and he fell into the water. I saw him fall."

"After you saw him fall into the water, what then?" continued Darrin.

"I was taken to the club house. I didn't see anything after that." And Mrs. Annis' direct examination was at an end.

John F. McIntyre arose to his end of the examination with a sigh. His position was an extremely difficult one. He began with the softest questions but failed to shake her testimony.

By the time Mrs. Annis had been on the stand more than two hours, most of the time under cross-examination, she suddenly half-swooned in her chair. She nearly fell over before the court attendants noticed her condition.

"I shall not cross-examine any further," said Mr. McIntyre.

After Mrs. Annis had regained her composure, Mr. Darrin called her in redirect examination. The examination brought out but one thing of importance, and that a sensation, as well as a blow at the defence.

"Was there any demonstration on the dock while the race was going on?" asked Mr. Darrin.

"My husband was racing with Mr. Hill," began Mrs. Annis.

"When I saw he had won, I cried out to my friends, "Hurrah! My sweetheart has won the race!"

Judge Crane finally allowed it, and the third hurdle that Thornton Hains will have to vault to escape was set up.

Mr. Darrin nearly left the case last Saturday night, according to accounts given by his friends. He had his resignation to Governor Hughes written out, and was about to despatch it by special delivery, when friends intervened. He feels that the court and the press have been unduly critical of his conduct of the case. Mr. Darrin would not discuss the proposed resignation yesterday.

ROPER—WRIGHT.

A quiet wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Potter yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Edward Wright, 223 Perry street, when Miss Gertrude Wright became the bride of Fred R. Roper. The bride was attended by Miss Adina Gordon, while Mr. John Wright supported the groom. The happy event was witnessed by a number of the friends of the contracting parties.

More Startling Arrests to be Made in Pittsburg

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 22.—Following the sensational arrests here last night of seven council men and two bankers on charges of alleged corruption in conducting the public affairs of this city, it is intimated today that even more startling developments will transpire today or tomorrow.

In the meantime the people of Pittsburg are surprised almost beyond description at this suddenness of the arrest of the nine men who are well known.

During the night the nine defendants and their attorneys and friends held a number of conferences, while the officials of the Voter's League, who worked up the charge against the defendants, together with attorneys and municipal officials, also held a meeting, at which it is said plans were perfected for the arrests of other men alleged to be implicated in the bribery scandal.

Attorney A. Leo Weil, president of the Voters' League, stated today, "This is the beginning. The end is not yet."

Following are the men accused; Councilmen William Brand, John F. Klein, J. C. Wasson, T. O. Atkinson, Jacob Soffel, W. H. Melaney, and Hugh Ferguson. Former President W. W. Ramsey and former Cashier A. A. Vilsack, of the German National Bank, are also accused.

Information against all the seven members of council charges them with bribery and corrupt solicitation.

BAIL OF $30,000 DEMANDED.

From Brand, Wasson, and Klein bail in the sum of $30,000 each was demanded. The bail of the other four members of the council was fixed at $15,000 each.

The information against Ramsey and Vilsack charges them with giving Klein $17,000 as a bribe. Bail demanded from each is $14,000.

While all the defendants were taken by surprise when arrested last evening each secured the necessary bail.

First Protest Entered in the Bowling Tournament

The first protest of the season in the ten pin tournament at the P.B.C., was entered last night by the Belmonts against the Iroquois. The charges is that there was not an official referee. It appears that a referee was appointed but deserted his job and another fellow took his place. The last officia called a foul on Waram on his last ball. On that ball Waram got seven pins and had the foul not been allowed he would have won the game by one pin. The Iroquois, however, claim that if the protest is pushed they will take steps to upset all three games.

Two games were played last night. The Pacifics won two games from the Hams and lost one, and the Belmonts won two games from the Iroquois and lost one.

The scores are as follows:—

Union Bank of Canada

The forty-fourth general meeting of the Union Bank of Canada, was held in the Banking house in Quebec, on Saturday, Dec. 19th, 1908. The shareholders were largely represented and the meeting passed off very harmoniously. The business of the past year was all that could be desired and the shareholders are well satisfied. The Union Bank of Canada is one of the best financial institutions in the country, and it is steadily expanding and increasing its business and profits. The past year has been a very good one in spite of the depression in the times.

Like all other banking houses the times effected the Union Bank, but dividends were paid in four quarterly payments at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, amounting to a total of $222,687.95. $100,000 was added to the rest account; $100,000 was written off bank premises, and $10,000 was contributed to the officers' pension fund, the balance of $55,262.15 was carried forward to next year. On another column of this issue will be found the bank's financial statement which will prove valuable reading matter.

Curlers Busy at the New Rink

The curling rink has been the scene of many exciting games every afternoon and evening since the first ice was available. From two to four rinks are playing all the time in spite of the rush of Christmas business. The past couple of days there has been great weather for making ice, and by Christmas Mr. McIntosh will have an elegant sheet all over the rink. The Rink Company is now constructing a brick wall in the basement inside the stone wall in order to prevent the heat from the furnace getting through to the ice.

Woman Fainted on George Street

After spending several hours in the stores shopping a visiting lady to Peterborough yesterday, had a fainting spell on George street, in front of Mr. Blewett's real estate office. After coming out of one of the stores the lady scarced up George street. At the corner of Hunter she was compelled to stop for a few minutes and when she had revived a little she again proceeded up street but in front of the real estate office she stopped again and leaned against the building. A local physician spoke to her and at the same instant she collapsed. The doctor carried her inside where he was successful in reviving her in a short time.

ARE YOU WEAK AFTER SICKNESS?

Later on It Will be Harder to Get Strong than Today. What are You Doing to Get Well?

A case in point is well exemplified in the following letter from Mrs. V. J. Wilder, wife of a well known citizen of Pittsfield, who writes; "I had a nervous disorder that completely prostrated me. I couldn't sleep, and would lay and toss about all night, rising in the morning more tired than ever, head heavy, eyes dull, and every bone and muscle aching. I tried to get along without calling in a doctor, but was finally driven to it. He treated me for some time, but with no perceptible improvement in my health. Some one recommended Ferrozone. The closings it effected in my system was not noticeable almost instantly. I gradually took on flesh. The 'all-gone' feeling left me. In less than six weeks I was fully recovered from what looked to me like an everlasting sickness. I will always recommend Ferrozone feeling with sincerity that it is an honest, powerful, health-giving tonic.

Try Ferrozone today!

The nourishment and vital energy it supplies is wonderful.

Ferrozone in you you feel better at once, it's good for men, for women; for children—just the thing for everybody seeking better health. Sold by all dealers 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50.

Carried 2340 Carcases of Deer

During the hunting season in Ontario for the year 1908, the Canadian Express Company carried 2348 carcasses of deer with a total weight of 264,900 lbs. The season included a period of fifteen days between November 1st and 15th, inclusive, and the figures show an increase of 181 carcasses over the year 1907. All of these shipments were from points on the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System, the heaviest shipments being made from Burks Falls, Haliburton, Huntsville, Kinmount, Powassan, Scotia Junction, South River and Trout Creek. This number does not give any idea of the number of deer killed during the open season, and as each hunter is allowed two dear on his license and as from eight to nine thousand hunters were in the district, it is probable that 10 to 12,000 dear were killed during the season. This is estimated from the fact that a large number of deer are eaten in the hunters' camp and a great many are transported by the settlers' by other means than through the railway.

The Greatest Hero of the Twentieth Century

Roanoke, Va., Dec 22.—D. W. Williams, a business man of Floyd county, has the distinction of having married his mother-in-law. His bride occupies the dual relation of grandmother and stepmother to his two children, a bright little boy and girl. Williams first married Miss Mary Sours, but after several years the young wife died. He courted his mother-in-law, who was a widow, and they applied to the clerk of the courts, who issued a marriage license. Later he concluded it was illegal to issue a license for a man to marry his mother-in-law, and revoked it.

The couple, not to be outdone, eloped to Tennease, where they were recently married.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

THE UNEMPLOYED

In these days when the problem of the unemployed is engrossing the attention of so many interested in social reform and kindred movements in all parts of this country and also in other lands, the article on the manner in which the unemployed are dealt with in Switzerland, which appears in the Twentieth Century Magazine, from the pen of Miss Edith Sellers, will prove of more than usual interest.

"The conviction there," says Miss Sellers, "is that a man who is out of work must be helped to find work and when it is found that he must be made to do it." This is not so much in the interest of the individual as of the State, and the authorities consider it equally their duty to punish the man who is too lazy to earn his bread. The idler is looked upon as one who wishes to rob the community by receiving from it a living for which he has not paid. In Switzerland work-houses and jails are not regarded in the light of hotels. There is no street begging and there is very little vagrancy, as the police receive extra pay for every beggar or vagrant arrested. If a man is out of employment he must look for it, and if his search ends in failure, the authorities will help him. When a job is procurred and he does not faithfully attend to his duties, he is promptly transported to some penal servitude, where military discipline prevails, and compelled to work to the full extent of his strength. Some of these institutions are revenue producers, and thus the would-be vagrant is in no case a source of expense to the State.

Care is taken to distinguish between those who are out of work because of their own misconduct, and those who have been subjected to misfortune. Those in the latter case are assisted in every way possible, and without unnecessary humiliation, until work can be procured for them. If they are in absolute want, they are assisted from State funds, which are set apart for this purpose, or else they are given opportunity to earn, in municipal labor, wages slightly lower than are paid by individual employers. The respectable unemployed find in every town food depots, where casual assistance is distributed, but drunkards, loafers and criminals are never allowed to enter these places.

A new feature in handling this large problem is an insurance system against unemployment, but the plan has not been in operation for a sufficiently long time to be regarded as a probable permanent success.

Fortunately in Canada, until the last year or two, there has usually been work for all who were willing to labor, and probably no permanent machinery for providing for the unemployed is necessary. Even now it is probably sufficient that care be taken to prosecute all the municipal and private works possible during the winter months.

A FLYING MACHINE.

Directions For Making—a Pretty and Amusing Toy.

A feather flying machine is a very simple thing to make, but it will only fly up, as there are no wings to support it when flying horizontally. The motive power is furnished by a whalebone bow, which causes the aerial screws to revolve as it unbends.

For this model you will need eight feathers. They should be carefully selected of the same size and shape. The best are good stiff wing feathers. From them form two screws by sticking them in corks, as in the illustration. One must be arranged to revolve to the right, the other to the left, because the bowstring turns the upper in one direction, while the reaction tends to turn the lower in the opposite way, and if both screws were right handed or left handed they would work against each other and produce little or no effect.

The upper screw is fastened to the spindle, while the lower is attached to the bow. The spindle turns in a hole bored through the bow and into the cork. It moves freely because it simply rests in the hole and is not fastened to the lower screw. The bowstring is tied to the spindle near the top.

When finished, hold the lower screw in one hand and turn the upper with the other until the string is wound on the spindle. Now let go the upper screw and toss it gently into the air, when it will fly until the bow straightens.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A GRAIN OF MUSK.

Perfume Diffuses Odor For Years Without Losing Weight.

Wonderful stories are told of the number of years that some of the old Egyptian perfumes last, but we need not go to Egypt to find a thing like that. We have it here in the common perfume, musk, says Chicago News. It is said that a grain of it will diffuse an oder through a room for twenty years, and you know, perhaps, that all perfumes give off their odor by sending their particles through the air—that is to say, by giving off all the time little parts of their own substance. How small, then, must these particles of musk be when after a continuous diffusion of them for twenty years the original grain has suffered no diminution of weight.

But you can find an illustration of this wonderful divisibility of matter nearer home. Ask a scientist about a drop of blood that falls from your cut finger, and he will tell you that it is a drop of liquid in which are floating a million red globules and that these give it its color. And these million globules may be divided into smaller globules still. Finally, take the familiar illustration of the thread spun by the spider. It is so fine that 25,000 miles of it would weigh only eight ounces, and yet it is made up of a thousand filaments.

Discovery of a Planet.

The glory of discovering the big planet belongs to two men. An astronomer in Cambridge and another in Paris, each quite ignorant of what the other was doing, applied themselves to the task simultaneously. Each independently declared that if the laws of motion and gravitation were true there must be at a certain spot in the heavens a certain mass of matter hitherto unknown to astronomers. The presence of such a mass of matter in such a place would account, they said, for the disturbances that had been noticed in the movements of Uranus. When the telescope was turned to the point indicated the planet which we now know as Neptune was discovered. This brilliant piece of work was done by Leverrier and Adams on the 23d day of September, 1846.

Conundrums.

If a man should give 15 cents to one son and 10 cents to another, what time would it be? A quarter to 2.

Why don't they collect fares from the policemen on the street cars? Because you can't take a nickel from a copper.

When are prisoners like gas? When escaping.

When are houses like books? When they have stories in them.

When is a step like a great burden? When heavy.

What is that which goes from Philadelphia to New York without moving? Answer—The railroad tracks.

The Clever Yankee.

And wondrous wise was he.

He once cut down a tree.

And when the tree was wholly down
He worked with might and main
And straightway took another ax
And cut it up again.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery is installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realise something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

the excitement following her discovery to contemplate a meeting with Lounsbury. But that excitement having dwindled not a little the idea of seeing him and of talking to him mounted in proportional importance. She saw herself drawing up before his store or standing just within as she related her story. She saw his face, the blue eyes, full of fun—and she had not met him since that evening! Her heart began to thump with the picturing, its poundings playing up to her throat and down again. Want of food was giving her a sensation of weakness and sinking. But this seemed also to be the result of mental and not physical suffering. She was torn by a desire to retreat.

Then darted through her mind the remembrance of Marylyn's midnight confidence. It was a blow on a wound. She glanced at her sister entreatingly. And what she fancied she read in the other's eyes instantly altered the desire to turn—made her send the mules forward at a better pace. Marylyn was sitting stiffly upright, bracing herself with her hands. Her head was up, her look was eager and fixed. There was a smile on her parted lips.

"She's happy about seeing him," thought Dallas and was overwhelmed by a sense of her own guilt.

A diversion soon came in a horrid guise. The road touched the coulee again, bringing close the giant cottonwoods, where the Sioux dead were lashed, and the girls, glancing toward the trees, suddenly caught a glimpse of long, wrapped bodies.

Marylyn edged toward her sister. "Oh, I hope it'll be light when we get here coming back," she whispered, shuddering.

"We won't be alone," answered Dallas reassuringly.

The coulee was deep and dark at that point and full of queer shadows. From the boughs that cradled the braves came uncanny flutterings as the wind shook loosened scraps of the sleepers' covering. The dead seemed to be moving restlessly upon their bier boards and waving an imploring summons to be freed of the thongs that bound them. Overhead was full cause for fear. Floating on motionless wing, with bare necks craning hungrily, circled black watchers.

"They say," whispered Marylyn, watching nervously behind—"they say the Indians are scared to come near these trees; never do till one of 'em dies. I don't wonder. It gives me the shivers just to see that bunch."

Dallas drew the whip across Betty. "A dead Indian's not dangerous," she said, smiling. And forgot to ask Marylyn where she had heard the tale.

Six miles were gone. But the way ahead was still long, the brown blotch at the ridge top was still only a blotch. And the team was fast tiring. When Murphy's Throat was reached Dallas drove out to the left, watered the thirsty pair at a slough and ate with Marylyn the long deferred breakfast. After that they went at a better pace for a time. Soon, however, the road became steeper, and Betty slacked up. The sun was high now and unpleasantly warm. So the wise old mule merely humped her back as Dallas applied the lash and doggedly refused to increase her speed.

It was noon when the wagon approached the summit. It did not rest there a moment. Behind was spread out a wonderful landscape. The Missouri threaded it quarteringly; the western bluffs walled its farther edge to the sky. Its eastern boundary was the ridge over which the wagon was rolling. From this undulating line the verdant land slipped down and down and down—to the fantastic turnings of the river. But the girls, peering back upon it through a haze that was softly blue, were wholly indifferent to its beauty. They sought and in vain for a remote dot that might be the shack—the shack they had left at the end of that unswerving road.

And now they went forward again. The scene on the farther side of the summit was newer than that on the other, but did not rival it. Short coulees had eaten the bluff slopes into flutings and spilled small rivulets upon the plain. Yet, barring these and a lake that sparkled, a round sapphire, on the right, there was superb uniformity. Not a stream, not a butte, not even a nubbin of rock, varied the view. And not a herd of cattle! To the south moved a score of yellow animals—antelope. But these and a village of saucy prairie dogs were the only signs of life. The land dropped away by imperceptible degrees. As imperceptibly it melted into a mellow sky.

Dallas and Marylyn were each intent upon Clark's, lying far ahead and to the left, a dun colored line which seemed scarcely to get nearer as the time went. But after an hour their patience was rewarded, when the dun colored line resolved itself into two and they saw the cow camp—a narrow street flanked by low shanties of canvas and board.

Again Dallas and Marylyn were absorbed, each with a mental conflict. The younger got fidgety, then petulant and began to complain of thirst. For once the elder girl showed scant sympathy. She was hurriedly planning some new speeches.

At the southern end of the camp their destination was made plain to them by a sign reading "General Merchandise." It was nailed along the hip of a large building that stood midway of the street. Looking to neither side, they made straight for it.

When the team came to a stand before the store the girls saw to their surprise that the door was shut. They waited. A minute passed. No one came out. Then Dallas climbed down and knocked. There was no answer. She waited again. Finally she tried the knob. It resisted her effort. From within came the rattle of a chain.

"It's locked." She went back to Marylyn. The two looked at each other. Over the younger's face swept a flush of relief. But Dallas had forgotten her dread of seeing Lounsbury in a keen disappointment at finding him gone. She glanced anxiously up and down the street.

It was deserted and still. Dallas climbed back to the seat. "Maybe he's at the fort," she said encouragingly. "We'll drive home quick. There's a lot of it downhill." She clucked to the team.

At that moment the door of a nearby shanty opened. A man came out, waving a letter. "Say, hello!" he bawled. "Don't you want your mail?"

Dallas checked the mules.

"I got a letter for you," he went on. It was Al Braden of Sioux Falls.

Dallas gave Marylyn the reins and reached for the letter, noting that the real estate man did not doff the floppy hat or make any swinging bows.

"A letter?"

"Yep, from Lounsbury. I told him I was going to lope back down to the bend—but I didn't." He snickered.

"Where's he gone?" she asked, slitting the envelope with shaking hand.

"Dunno," answered Braden. He was leaning on a wheel now, surveying Ben and Betty with a critical and somewhat disdainful eye, for each was hanging upon three legs to rest a fourth. Presently he glanced up at Marylyn, and his eye lit impudently. "Dunno," he repeated. "You're his girl. You ought to know."

But Dallas did not hear him. She

THE PRETZEL.

Its Simple Figure Scheme and Infinite Possibilities of Variety.

The pretzel is one of the most remarkable creations of the human mind and hand. It stands almost alone as an artificial product displaying the countless varieties of form produced by nature in the leaves of trees and blades of grasses. Of the millions upon millions turned out by the pretzel bakeries since the inception of the industry it is not probable that any two were exactly alike.

The general figure scheme of the pretzel must have been an inspiration. It would have been impossible for the human mind to conceive a scheme so simple and yet permitting such approach to infinite variation. Because of the peculiar shape of the pretzel its construction is most easily described by employing sailor men's terms. A bight is taken in a roll of dough, and the ends are given a half twist and brought back upon opposite sides of the bight. This makes the article somewhat heart shaped. There can have been no sentimental reason for this shape, for there is no product of art or nature further removed from the realm of sentiment than is the pretzel. The finished article looks as if it had been varnished and exposed to a sandstorm before the varnish dried.

The pretzel is unique as an article of internal use. It cannot be classed as food or drink. It is not a dessert, nor is it a medicine. Perhaps it should be classed as an appetiser—an appetiser not for food, but for drink, and therein lies its uniqueness. It is the great thirst producer. It is the third of a Sahara doze up in a twist of dough. If any one could invent something that would quench thirst as effectively as the pretzel can produce it his fortune would be made.

The home of the pretzel is Germany, where it is called bretzel or pretzel, according to whether it is in north Germany or south Germany, but in America it is pretzel all the time, whether in North America or South America. The name is commonly regarded as being derived from words in the Latin language meaning bracelet. But Germans are not fond of taking words from the Latin tongues. Perhaps the pretzel owes its name to the fact that it is baked on a flat, boardlike surface. The German word for board is brett.

READING THE STARS.

An Author's Mastery of the Science of Navigation.

"By the end of the week, teaching myself," writes Jack London in Harper's Weekly of his mastery of the science of navigation, "I was able to do divers things. For instance, I shot the North star, at night, of course—got its altitude, corrected for index error, dip, etc., and found our latitude. And this latitude agreed with the latitude of the previous noon corrected by dead reckoning up to that moment. Proud? Well, I was even prouder with my next miracle. I was going to turn in at 9 o'clock. I worked out the problem self instructed and learned what star of the first magnitude would be passing the meridian around half past 8. This star proved to be Alpha Crucis. I had never heard of the star before. I looked it up on the star map. It was one of the stars of the Southern Cross. What, thought I! Have we been sailing with the Southern Cross in the sky of nights and never known it? Dolts that we are! Gudgeons and moles! I couldn't believe it. I went over the problem again and verified it. Charmian had the wheel from 8 till 10 that evening. I told her to keep her eyes open and look due south for the Southern Cross, and when the stars came out there shone the Southern Cross low on the horizon. Proud? No medicine man near high priest was ever prouder

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is an topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, enters nerve tissue, enriches, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about restored strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general help to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"ALL DEALERS"

Then He Got His.

A young Lancashire lad joined the army and soon after his arrival at headquarters got into trouble. Accordingly he had to face his commanding officer next morning.

The usual preliminaries were gone through, when, contrary to orderly room etiquette, the recruit commenced to defend himself.

"Silence!" roared the adjutant.

"Thou shut up," said the prisoner. "I'm not speaking to thee. I'm talking to the old chap in the chair."—London Scraps.

Too Much For Him.

"How true that old saying is about a child asking questions that a man cannot answer," remarked Popleigh.

"What's the trouble now?" queried his friend Singleton.

"This morning," replied Popleigh, "my little boy asked me why men were sent to congress, and I couldn't tell him."—Chicago News.

IN A ROBBERS' DEN.

Sir William Magnay Tells of Adventure on the Continent.

In the course of a more or less adventurous tour on the continent in the early 'seventies, which has given color to several of his novels, Sir William Magnay, whose popular story, "The Heiress of the Season," forms the latest addition to the Newnes' Sixpenny Famous Novel Series, met with several thrilling experiences. Once on a stormy evening he had taken shelter in the ruins of a mediaeval castle in the Abruzzi, and on presently groping his way out, preparatory to returning to his hotel in the town some few miles distant, he suddenly heard voices in the darkness. Then a match was struck and applied to a lantern, by the light of which he saw four of the most villainous-looking fellows he ever set eyes on. That they were robbers was apparent from their next proceeding, which was to produce and divide a quantity of jewelry, watches, and cash. The watcher's retreat was effectually cut off; to have betrayed his presence would have meant his almost certain murder. Presently a quarrel arose over the spoil, ending in a fight in which one of the men was stabbed, apparently to death. This happily caused the robbers to hurry their departure, and so released their unsuspected observer from his unpleasant situation. On his arrival at the town he gave information of what had happened, but when the police made a tardy visit to the spot the dead or wounded man was not to be seen. Only the bloodstains were left to corroborate his story.

ys This Medicin Has Mystic Powers

It's in the spring that health slips out—that folks begin to feel draggy, weary, tireless,—hate, to eat, look pale, feel discouraged

If you've reached this state read what J. W. Jervell, well known in Morristown, has to say about the medicine that cured him. "Last winter I caught a heavy cold that settled in my back. My kidneys and liver were affected and my health failed. By spring I was in bad shape —couldn't sleep like I used to —felt tired in the morning—ate very little—was terribly depressed, pale and anxious looking. Twinges of rheumatism, frequent neuralgia attacks over the temples, made matters worse. The doctor prescribed three times, but didn't help. Then I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.— They possess mystic powers surely, for I gained and improved day by day and now am in perfect health again. I will praise and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills till I die."

The ingredients in Dr. Hamilton's Pills are pure and wholesome—come right from the storehouse of Nature in the form of vegetable juices and extracts,—consequently this gentle invigorating laxative tonic and blood purifier is safe for old and young alike. We assure you of enormous benefit from Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which revitalize delicate glands, search out the seat of hidden disease, flood the body with vigor and health that has caused thousands of broken-down, despairing men and women to join in a mighty song of praise for the beneficent aid that comes from this king of all tonics. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day. 25c at all dealers.

The Private Secretary

Mr. Irving Beers whose thrice given "All the Comforts of Home," made such a decided hit here is busy making arrangements for the local production of the "Private Secretary." He has already secured some members of the cast and the public will look forward with much interest to the presentation of this sparkling comedy. Rehearsals will be held at an early date.

As an appreciation of Mr. Beers' skillful direction of "All the Comforts of Home," in Lindsay, the clever company of amateurs which put it on in that town have decided to repeat it for his benefit on Jan. 2nd.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

Obituary

MR EDWARD CHAMBERS

The death of Mr. Edward Chambers, sr., of this village, which took place at his residence on Hond street was last week, removes one of the oldest, and most widely known residents of this community. Deceased had been in poor health for some time, but his condition was not considered serious until a few days before his death, when he suffered a paralytic stroke. Edward Chambers was born in Stromness, Orkney, Scotland, on May 13th, 1833, and came to Canada at the age of 13 years with his parents who settled in the township of Monaghan. Forty-two years ago he came to Fenelon Falls, and some time later took up a farm in Verulam township, where he lived until eight years ago, when he returned to the village. He is survived by a widow, six sons and two daughters. The sons are Joseph, James, Edward and Frederick, of Fenelon Falls, David, of Benefort, Monaghan; and Thomas, who lives on the old homestead in Verulam. The daughters are Mrs. John Thompson, of Verulam township, near Dunsford, and Mrs. Robert Brown, of Toronto.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

MRS. JAMES MAHER

The death occurred suddenly on Sunday in Lindsay, of a well-known and respected lady, Mrs. Jas. Maher, mother of Mr. M. J. Maher, of the firm of Lang & Maher, of Peterborough and Lindsay. The late Mrs. Maher, whose maiden name was Curtain, was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1838, and came to Canada with her parents when but four years of age. They settled in the township of Brock, where she resided until her marriage with Mr. Maher some forty-two years ago. A couple of years later the young couple removed to Lindsay.

The funeral was held yesterday.

Government Order withdrawing Lakes

The announcement made exclusively in The World yesterday morning that the government had decided to withdraw from prospecting the bottoms of the lakes in Gowganda district will be received with great interest by prospectors in the north country and the public at large.

In the wild making of claims around Gowganda everyone seemed to have overlooked the water claims until a few weeks ago. Then someone thought about it and three claims were staked on the west side of Lake Gowganda. One of these was recorded by Mr. Hitz, editor of The Montreal River Paper.

The government acted promptly and has probably averted largely the litigation and litigation arising out of the sale of Cobalt Lake. The lakes that have been withdrawn include all those in four surveyed townships and will affect Wigwam, Lost, Leroy, Everett and Calcite lakes. With the bottoms of the lakes which are withdrawn there will also be withheld, 66 feet of shore line in each case.

In any discovery which may be made on the shore of Lake Gowganda it will be necessary to sink shafts on the solid strip and tunnel under the lake. It would be impracticable from an engineering standpoint to drain Gowganda, which is quite a large lake, some six or seven miles in length and four miles across, and which is part of a chain of connected waterways extending north and south.

The lakes on the discovery ridge are embraced in the claims already staked and surveyed, and these will not be affected. All claims staked out before Dec. 15 will be exempt from the order.

Miller Lake is already surrounded and covered by staked claims and the order will therefore carry little public value there. The same may be said of Leroy Lake. Some water claims have been started in Everett Lake, Lost Lake, Calcite and Wigwam Lakes.

There is still little doubt but that there will be an outcry from the prospectors who work in the face of great difficulties and who are impatient of any limitations which may be imposed by the government. The government has not acted hastily, however, and has the support of a large public sentiment that the people as a whole have some interest in this country. The value of the water claims, too, is still problematic.

CROUP

THERE IS NOTHING that strikes terror to the hearts of parents more than to be awakened in the night by the ringing cough which accompanies an attack of croup. The child may retire with nothing but a slight cold and a few hours later the family be aroused by the ominous symptoms. Every home where there are small children should be prepared for these sudden attacks, as prompt treatment is necessary. Do not experiment with remedies of doubtful value, but get that has been in use for nearly forty years and never known to fail.

Mr. Homer Krohn, of Lisbon, Iowa, in a letter to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praises this medicine for what it has done for his children. He says: "It has not only saved them once but many a time. Only two weeks ago my boy had the croup so bad in the night that had it not been for having a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house he would have choked before a doctor could have gotten to the house. It is a medicine that no one should be without at any time." It is pleasant to take and many children like it.

"We guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says W. M. Parish, Palmerston, Ontario. "Out of the many bottles sold last winter not one was returned. We recommend it especially for children with croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its prompt cures of coughs, colds and croup. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse an attack of croup may be averted. This medicine is entirely free from narcotics or injurious substances of any kind and may be given to the little ones with absolute safety.

Attacks of croup are most likely to occur during the early winter months, and every family with young children should be prepared for it. Keep a bottle of CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY in your home. It only costs a quarter, large size 50 cents. Your druggist sells it.

President Gompers and Mitchell Sentenced to Imprisonment in Buck Case

President of American Federation of Labor Sentenced to a Year in Jail and Vice-Pres. to Nine Months

Washington, Dec. 23.— The famous contempt case of the Bucks Stove and Range Company against President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell, and Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, was decided today by Justice Wright, of the Supreme Court, of the District of Columbia, adversely to the Federation officials.

Gompers was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, Mitchell to nine months, and Morrison to six months.

The case grew out of the alleged boycott of the company's products, and the putting of that company on the "unfair list," and the Federation's alleged violation of Judge Gould's recent mandamus, attracted wide attention.

The Bucks Company's prosecution of the officials of the Federation began in August, 1907. The original action was a test case, wherein it was sought to enjoin the Labor Union from using the "unfair" lists and "we don't patronise" lists in their fight against firms and individuals. Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, issued an injunction, which later was made permanent, forbidding the publication of the company's name in these lists.

President Gompers, in an editorial in the Federationist of January last, made known his intention not to obey the court's order, contending that the injunction issued was in derogation of the rights of labor and an abuse of the injunctive power of the courts. Gompers, Mitchell, and Morrison subsequently were cited for contempt an dthis phase of the case has been before the court for several months, the proceedings taking the form of a hearing of testimony before an examiner.

A SCATHING DENUNCIATION.

Judge Wright's decision was a scathing denunciation of the defendants. He recited the conditions anteceding the injunction, and referred to the fact that for twenty-five years the Bucks plant had operated as a ten-hour shop, and always had had an open shop. He spoke of the numerical strength of the American Federation of Labor, with its 2,000,000 members, and of its repeated endorsement of the boycott of the Bucks Stove and Range Company, through the American Federationist, the Federation's official organ, speeches by the defendants, letters, circulars, etc. The court referred to the use of the "We don't patronise" list and "unfair" list of the labor organizations, and said that members of labor unions were forced and coerced into supporting it "whether individually willing or unwilling, approving or disapproving" by various methods.

INTIMIDATION AND COERCION.

The court read extracts from members of resolutions of labor organizations bearing on the Bucks case, as tending to show the methods of influencing members of unions, "and these methods," the court remarked, seem to be known as persuasion."

The customers of the stove company, the court said, had been intimidated, browbeaten, and coerced out of their business relations with their customers "by direct interference with, and boycott of, their (the customers') trade relations with their own customers, and the public generally."

ON BAIL, PENDING APPEAL.

Pending an appeal to the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, all three defendants were released on bail, the amount being fixed as follows; Gompers $5000, Mitchell $4000, and Morrison $3000.

A local surety company furnished the bonds.

Each of the defendants before sentence was passed upon them made statements in response to the usual inquiry if they had anything to say.

Successful Concert at Indian River

The Indian River Public school was the scene of a most successful and enjoyable concert on Tuesday night. It was the annual event of the school and it reflected much credit upon the teachers and pupils. The proceeds amounted to $16 and this will be sent to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto, as a contribution from the scholars. The chair was very ably filled by Mr. W. H. Borland, who kept the program moving and also added much to the pleasure of the evening.

A much regretted feature of the evening was the announcement of the resignation of Miss Rose Spence who has so successfully conducted the school for the past two terms. She was well liked by the parents and was popular with the pupils.

Gave the Foreman a Handsome Clock

A pleasant affair took place in the Peterborough Light and Power Company's office Tuesday night after work, when Mr. Herbert Fife was presented with a handsome clock, as a Christmas present from the linemen of whom he is foreman. Mr. Jas. Grisdale made the presentation which although informal, conveyed the best wishes of the men and the compliments of the season. Mr. Fife was taken entirely by surprise, but in a few words thanked the men for their kindness and in turn expressed the hope that they would all enjoy a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Postal Surplus of $1,082,301

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The report of the postmaster-general is one of the first of the 1908 departmental reports to make its appearance from the Government press. It shows that in spite of very large expansions in the postal services, including the establishment of 446 new post offices, the year closing with a net surplus of $1,082,301, which constitutes the best showing in the history of the Canadian post office.

It is estimated that 306,011,000 letters were posted in Canada in the twelve months ended March 31st last.

This means, if it is correct, an increase over the previous year of 31,116,000 letters.

Three Men Killed in a Cobalt Mine

Cobalt, Dec. 23.—Early this morning three men were killed at the Columbus property, situated about about six miles northeast of Cobalt. The accident seems to have been caused by the cable slipping from its wheel as the men were descending the shaft in the bucket, about two o'clock. They are; Wm. Hamilton, aged 33; S. McNulty, aged 27, a Frenchman, unknown. The latter had just started to work at the Columbus, and his name had not been put on the list.

The three men had been carrying out blasting operations, and at midnight came on deck for dinner, but forgot to turn on the air. Hamilton went down again, and attended to this, and then returned to the top. About two o'clock this morning the three were sent down again in the bucket, and up to the time of an investigation the rest is a matter of surmise. It is supposed, however, that when they were about 75 feet down the cable slipped off the wheel. The engineer stopped immediately, and steps were at once taken to see how matters stood; Mr. Shovell, the captain, was hastily called and descended by the rope ladder. At the depth of 75 feet he came across the bucket, which was empty, and rang for it to be raised. More men having arrived down the shaft, the party proceeded to the bottom, a depth of 240 feet. Hamilton was not dead when found, but the other two men had breathed their last. Five minutes afterwards Hamilton expired.

Over 3,000 People Paid to Witness Burns Train

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 21.— When Tommy Burns, world's champion and the Rockefeller of the ring, saw the last of the 3,000 persons who paid for the privilege of seeing him train leave his quarters yesterday, he crumpled a facsimile of the $30,000 check he is to receive—win, loss, or draw—for fighting Jack Johnston here Saturday, and ecstatically cried, "Easy!" with a long-drawn-out E and a snappy Z like sound at the end that awoke his trainers from their nap oer silver pieces.

Burns feels that he can afford to be defeated, but he evidently doesn't intend to. After whirling through six rounds with Pat O'Keefe and O'Donnell, the Australian middleweight champion, he left the gaping thousands eyeing and tinkering gymnasium apparatus while he trotted five miles over the roads at Darling Point.

The squatty champion insists that he is in better condition for the most remmerative fight in his career than he ever was. His appearance indicates confidence and strength. The glow of health extends from head to toe, and he is so intensely active that his trainers are continually calling, "Slow up, Tommy; save your speed for the big smoke."

JOHNSON ACTIVE AND STRONG.

Wily Sam Fizzpatrick eyes twinkled when the correspondent visited him at Manley. Here, on the rolling sands of a beautiful beach, Johnson reels off miles as though they were mere skips to a well stocked training table. "Do you like him?" asked the old maker of champions. And there was much in that grinning giant to admire as he tripped lithely along the beach, with hundreds plodding in the rear.

"It's a simple problem, if you can call it by as hard a name," said Fitzpatrick. "Jack is twenty pounds heavier, five inches taller, has had more experience, and is so much cleverer that there's no comparison. Can he hit? Well I never saw any of the big fellows who hankered after a chance to meet him unless they hogged all the profits. That's what Burns has done, but as a champion Johnson can make enough to get even. It's the chance we've traveled 12,000 miles for, and Jack isn't going to let anything stop him now that he has the world's title dangling within easy reach. I hope my American friends will not be misled by statements to the effect that this fight is fixed. Johnson has too much at stake for thatg."

Training camp declarations and Johnson's splendid physical condition and massive frame cannot turn the odds in favor of the negro. Burns is a 7 to 5 favorite, and thousands have been wagered at 4 to 5 that Burns will win by a knockout inside twenty rounds.

There's something in Johnson's record that is as dark hued as his kin. Sporting men cannot understand why a championship seeker should not have a stack of knockout records behind his name. Burns has 'em, and he has shown the sporting men here some of his power against the best fighters in this part of the world.

Englishmen who have recently in London bring the report that Johnson has to "pull" in his battles in order to get the champion to meet him.

BILL LANG HAS HIS SAY.

Bill Lang, whom Burns quickly put down for the count, is in Johnson's training camp. Of Johnson's last Australian tour Lang stood up before the negro for nine rounds. Lang insists that the negro will peck his shorter opponent to pieces.

"I've mixed with 'em both, and I can't see where Burns has a chance to win," Lang declares. "Why, Johnson is so awfully clever that he can worry a fellow weak and then toss over the settler. Johnson's a big bit faster than when I fought him, and Fitzpatrick has made a great fighter out of a wonderful boxer."

The fight will be a record breaker. Ten thousand tickets have been sold and 20,000 more persons are expected in the open air arena. In addition to the $35,000 offered by Hugh D McIntosh, the promoter, the men will receive $5,000 each for training expenses and valuable moving picture privileges.

Will Enlarge the Steamer Rainbow

A new experiment is going to be tried by Capt. Frank Burnett, of the steamer Rainbow during the winter. He proposes to enlarge his steamer by adding 15 feet to its length at the bow. This is the first time local mariners have ever heard of a boat being enlarged from the bow. In the past the Rainbow pushed the water ahead of her and the new bow is expected to overcome the difficulty. All new machinery will also be put in and the boat made one of the fastest on the river. The work will be done at Birdsall's Landing, on Rice Lake.

Worried One Witness Till He Begged for Relief --Prisoner to Testify

New York, Dec 23.—District Attorney Ira Darrin of Queen's County brought another surprise into the trial of Thornton Jenkins Haina late yesterday afternoon, when he told Judge Crane it would be two or three days before the State finished its case.

Thornton Haina' attorneys at once declared that this could mean but one thing—that he had persuaded Mrs. Claudia Haina, sister-in-law of the defendant, to risk cross-examination, and that he would put her on the stand as his climax witness.

Late last night this bulletin came from the quarters of the defence at the Flushing Hotel; "Mr. Darrin has succeeding in finding the missing witness, Tonning, the Swedish boatman employed by the Yacht Club. We are convinced that the State is holding Tonning back as a rebuttal witness."

HARWAY WAS WORRIED

The Haina' defense settled down doggedly yesterday to counteract the effect of th etestimony of Mrs. William E. Annis, widow of the victim of the tragedy. This was evident from the moment McIntyre began the cross-examination of the first witness called by the State.

Always a bulldog on cross-examination, McIntyre was a regular lion yesterday. His new tactics were so wearing on the witness that Louis C. Harway, known as the "man in the boat"—because he was Annis' sailing partner in the race which ended in a tragedy— broke down completely, and appealed to the court for time in which to collect his thoughts.

ANOTHER INCIDENT.

It was of th esame back-to-the-wall fighting of the chief attorney for the defence which led to the most exciting incident of the day. On the witness stand was William W. Knapp, who had sailed against Annis in Hill's boat. Knapp had testified in great detail on direct examination as to his observations of the movements of Mrs. William E Annis. He had told how she had run down to the float, then rushed about, until she "stopped," or was stopped—the witness at different times put it both ways.

"Now, don't you know that Mrs. Annis wasn't on the float at all?" shouted McIntyre at the height of his cross-examination, shaking his fist at the witness, a little gray-haired man.

"I object," cried Darrin. "I won't have any man approach my witnesses in a threatening manner."

"With the permission of the court," retorted McIntyre, "and with the help of heaven, I am going to do my duty by this defendant, who is charged with his life."

A GENTLE REBUKE.

"You are all just a little overheated," said Judge Crane. "This always happens in a trial like this. You have the cause on your mind, Mr. McIntyre and I am not reprimanding you. But don't let it happen again, for the court cannot allow it. Ask your questions quietly."

Mr. McIntyre did not repeat the question, but asked many others, playing on the different words used by the witness when he said h. saw her "stop" in one instance, and in another saw her "stopped."

"Were you speaking truthfully when you testified on the direct?" was one of the questions. "Are you drawing on your imagination now?" was another.

"This is an insult to the witness," said Mr. Darrin, but Judge Crane could not see it. The witness eventually was allowed to say that he was telling th etruth as he had sworn to do.

Mr. McIntyre said late last night that he was absolutely convinced that Mrs. Claudia Haina, wife of Captain Haina, was within reach of the prosecuting attorney, if, indeed, she was not being maintained by the State in seclusion where she could be brought to the trial room at any moment.

WHAT ABOUT CLAUDIA?

"I do not know just where she is, and I don't particularly care," he said. "They cannot make me call her, but if the State does I shall be delighted to cross-examine the lady." It is always "the lady" with Mr. McIntyre. "I will not be handicapped as I was in the case of Mrs. Annis. The prosecution knows that they have not made out a case my defendant, despite the desperate frame-up in which several witnesses have taken part. This is why they are bringing Mrs. Claudia Haina into the case. I honestly believe she will be th elast witness for the State."

Mr. Darrin last night refused to discuss Mrs. Claudia Haina or the prospects of her testifying.

"Why is it going to take you two or three days to complete your case?" he was asked.

"Am I going to disclose my case in advance for the benefit of the newspapers?" was his smiling answer. "I have a number of witnesses."

"Are the Annis children to be called?" was another question.

"I have not yet reached the stage in my professional career when I would resort to such sentimental tactics," said Mr. Darrin. "Besides, the Annis children are too young. They know nothing of value."

PRISONER TO TESTIFY.

That Thornton Jenkins Haina, the defendant, would take the stand has been said all along by his attorneys. He said so himself yesterday, and with such definiteness that he has convinced all who heard him.

McKinley Wills Killed by Blast

Prince Rupert, B. C., Dec. 23.—Dynamite was the nemesis of McKinley Wills, who was killed at Knoxville, six miles south of here today, by a rock from a blast striking through the roof of his little shack.

His life has been one long series of misfortunes, and dynamite has had a part in most of them.

He came here from Port Essington last spring and started a bakery. He set up his little shop near a grade working. This was destroyed by a misdirected blast. He moved the shack, but again it was destroyed and his life was spared only because he having learned to dread his foe, always left at blast warnings. He sold out and moved to Knoxville. The grade work led to this place and another blast, unheralded, broke his leg.

Scarcely had he recovered from this when the huge rock was sent by his old enemy. It crashed the roof and crushed him beneath its weight.

Degeneration of workins Classes

London, Dec. 24.—"Unless measures are taken to prevent the widespread degeneration of the English working classes, caused by the operation of the poor law and by promiscuous charity, this nation's downfall seems inevitable."

This striking statement was made today by Sir Hiram Maxim in the course of an interview. Sir Hiram was commenting on Thomas A. Edison's recent observations on the inferiority of London workingmen, which are being discussed in the newspapers here now.

"After wide experience here and in America, I indorse Edison's opinion," Sir Hiram continued. "A large part of the workingmen in London will not work unless they are watched and forced to it. They do not take the least interest in their work, nor do they understand what they are doing.

"People may accuse me of prejudice because I am American born," Sir Hiram went on. "Still I do not hesitate to say that I have found the American workingmen, both skilled and unskilled, to be the best in the world. They are the best behaved also; their morality is much higher than that of English and European workingmen."

Case was Adjourned Until After Christmas

Peterborough horsemen are interested in the civil case which was heard yesterday before his Honor Judge Weller. Dr. Leash, owner of Holland Boy, and Gerald Dunsford, manager of Hazel Belle, are suing the West Peterborough Agricultural Society for money which was paid to Mr. Hodgins, Orillia, manager of Walter G, the horse that was protested by them under the suspicion that he was Little Hector, or in any event that the horse was not the one claimed to be. Hazel Belle and Holland Boy started with the Orillia horse on the first day of the races at the Peterborough Fair last fall in the 220 class and owing to the fact that the Walter G. was protested, first and second money, respectively is claimed for them.

Dr. Johnston, president of the Peterborough Turf Club, and chairman of the speed committee for the exhibition directorate and Mr. Martin Connors, the starter at the races testified at the hearing of the suit yesterday that they notified Secretary Hall of the Agricultural Society that Walter G. was under protest and instructed him not to pay Hodgins any money pending the outcome of the protest. It is alleged that Mr. Hall acting under instruction of President Leary of the Agricultural Society, paid the money over to Hodgins.

The Peterborough Turf Club was given authority to settle the protest by the National Trotting Association under whose rules the races were conducted. The track at the fair grounds is an association track.

The protest was decided against Hodgins and in view of this the above mentioned parties decided to sue for the money which they claim is legally theirs.

Mr. George W. Hatton appeared for the plaintiffs, Mr. F. D. Kerr for defendants, and Mr. Tudhope of Orillia, for Mr. Hodgins.

The hearing began yesterday morning and was continued in the afternoon. His honor adjourned the case until after the Christmas holidays.

WORRIED TO DEATH

INDIGESTION, LOSS OF SLEEP, HEART PALPITATION.

A Case that Proves Prompt Action is Wise when Health is Poor.

"At night I would wake up with vague feelings of fear and numbness in my hands and other parts of the body," writes Mr. E. X. Smeaton, of St. John's. "I had grown thin and pale, and at night it was very difficult to get enough warmth in my feet to get asleep. My digestion was poor, and appetite very uncertain. The form of nervousness that worried me most was starting at every little thing, which resulted in such violent heart action as sometimes frightened me. Finally I had to give up my work, which was inside office work, so languid, nervous and weak had I become. Through the intervention of a friend I was induced to use Ferrozone. My appetite improved at once, circulation also improved and Ferrozone accomplished the renewal of my blood and natural warmth seemed to come back to my limbs. At the same time Ferrozone built up my constitution. I became quite strong and resumed my occupation. In brief, I am well."

Ferrozone is the only remedy of its kind in the world—it makes you feel better at once; when you are tired, dull, dispirited—when you feel there is nothing in life for you, that's the time to take Ferrozone.

What a change Ferrozone makes! Your blood rings through your veins, carrying nourishment to every nook and corner of the body, you feel the exultant thrill of abundant nerve force, you learn the luxury and delight of being at your best—in perfect good health.

Just try Ferrozone and see how much better you feel; it's the one remedy in all the world that will get you thinking health at once. Sold everywhere, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

The Toboggan Slide was Opened for the Season

There was a big crowd at the toboggan slide last night to participate in the formal opening of the slide for the season. The slide was in excellent condition and this very popular exciting and healthful winter sport is just as popular as ever. The Street Railway Company who conducted the slide provided a much appreciated pastime when they erected the slide and they have met with considerable success also. Several improvements have been added which will be greatly appreciated such as a refreshment booth and a large cloak room. The skating rink will be open on Christmas Day.

The lighting system was in good shape last night, and the colored globes make a brilliant picture, as one approaches on the car. The lights along the allide are all that can be expected and furnish splendid light for the tobagganists.

Warm Talk on the Shrubb-Longboat Indoor Marathon

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Tom Longboat's next race will be 25 miles, in Buffalo, Jan. 2, against Dorando. This is the Marathon race postponed from New Year's Day.

Then, as announced in yesterday's papers, he will take on Alf. Shrubb at 25 miles 385 yards indoors at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 26, and get a return match outdoors in Toronto in the spring.

The race on Jan. 26, if Longboat wins, will settle effectually all this haranguing about the relative speeds of the great little Englishman and the Indian flyer.

If Longboat is beaten, the controversy will be on again more bitter than ever, for the Indian is an indifferent indoor runner. His friends never claimed him to be Shrubb's superior anywhere else than at the Marathon distance outdoors.

Already Tom Flanagan is being hotly taked over the coals around Toronto for letting the Indian even start against the Englishman indoors.

SOME WARM VIEWS.

"Call him a good manager?" one man said. "Why, he is as erratic as the Indian himself. The idea of a man in the frenzy of victory making a crack to Pat Powers about running Shrubb by anyone else, and then letting the New Yorker come along here and jolly him into putting it into black and white. Would Pat Powers do it if he were in Tom Flanagan's shoes? Not much! He would simply say 'Pahaw! that was idle-talk; I won't run my man.'"

"Tom Flanagan knows the Indian hasn't a chance in a dozen against such a tactician as Shrubb on a 10-lap track. Why does he run him against this dangerous man, when he could be meandering around getting the easy money? What will he get for this Shrubb race? Say it is $5,000, and he takes that $5,000 plus a beating. That settles Mr. Indian as a drawing card. Just now he is a wonder, and could take a whirl at a dozen men, getting from $500 to $2,000 a race, and not hurt himself. Then he could come back to Shrubb in the spring, outdoors, beat him, and get his $5,000. He could follow this up with races at 10 and 15 miles and get from $1,500 to $2,000 apiece on them, and even if he lost both, could keep right on going. If he loses now to Shrubb, how many people are wise enough in this running game to figure out that indoors isn't the redskin's race or condition? Not more than half, and to this uninformed half a defeat is a defeat, and they won't want to see him meet Shrubb again. Tom Flanagan don't want to get the awelled head because Longboat beat Dorando. The Italian is a no-account, and he knows it. If the Indian had been stacked against a half-decent runner that night, a man who would have carried him a good hard 15 miles, he might not be today the world's champion. Give him credit, though, he won, and won handsomely, but at the same time a real wise guy wouldn't let Shrubb, an experienced indoor runner, and a man with more racing brains in a minute than Longboat has in a month, get the Onondaga where he has something on him. As sure as there are squares on a turtle's back Shrubb will lap him early and stick in behind him and worry his heart out. The only question is, will Shrubb last to the distance? Well, if it was on the road, and Shrubb had to make his own pace out in front to maintain his early lead, and with the big Indian lumbering alongg on the back trail, I would say no, but with little Alfie indoors, where he is at home, and with a pacemaker to glue to, his chances of sticking the entire route are improved 75 per cent. Little bursts of speed from Longboat won't worry this speedy chap from the old land, and it devolves into a question of how long and how courageously the Indian will fight a forlorn hope like that. The Indian is afraid of Shrubb right now, or I miss my guess, and a race like I have outlined will beat him—make a monkey of him. Of course, I may be away wrong. I will admit I couldn't figure the Indian to beat Dorando in the condition the Indian was in, and I admit I was away but, but if the true inside of that race were known I guess Dorando was feeling the effects of the climate. He ran like the good Canuck boys did in England—a dopey, listless race—and only his courage took him as far as it did. There is one thing that I will say, and that is that there is no question in my mind as to whether a Shrubb-Longboat race is on the level. I have followed racing pretty closely, and I have never had any idea but what the Indian always ran to win, while Shrubb's honesty does not admit of the slightest questioning."

All of which is pretty shrewd talk, and shows how a big section of the public stands on the matter of this Shrubb-Longboat clash indoors.

$10,000 in Tomato Can

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 23.—Patrick Sullivan, an ice wagon driver, found a $10,000 bill in the bottom of an old tomato can which he picked up in an alley in the residence part of the town. Conrad Reebe, cashier of the Southern Illinois National Bank, examined the bill through a microscope, and said it appeared to be a genuine gold certificate. The bill was taken to the sub-treasury in St. Louis for further examination.

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

[illegible] and the crop is good, and you get 70 [illegible] crop would be a farm topic of conversation, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and [illegible] a pretty strong price, isn't it?. Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

THE VACANT CHAIR

To-night the vacant chair tells us of one who is gone, who was with us this time last year, but whose voice is forever hushed, and to-night we sit pensive, thinking of the one whom we will see on earth no more.

Perhaps it is grandmother who has gone. We used to think that she was old-fashioned and odd, but we miss her for her counsel, for she had lived and learned. To-night her glasses are laid awry and her knitting needles are beside them, for she was ever busy, and we miss her in this hour.

And to-night, mother or father, we miss you. Last year at this time you were with us, glad with us in our successes, sad with us in our sorrows, but a Great Hand stretched down and you put your hand in His and went away and we are lonely because of the vacant chair. You were good to us, but we sometimes resented it. We were blind then, but we know it all now, and through the mistiness of tears we see that it was only because you loved us, and beholding that vacant chair, we are strangely desolate to-night.

Husband or wife, are you alone to-night, and do you yearn for the one whom you love dearer than life, the one whose name you share, whose shadows fell on you, too, whose sunshine also spread across your path? None can know the sorrow that you feel. Last year that chair was filled, for the one you loved was there, but now it is but a silent reminder of the inevitable, and thinking to-night, your soul yearns for the spot where the immortals are. Where, we cannot reason, where we cannot tell, but something whispers to us that there is a land where spirits dwell, and to-night we know that they are there, for they were kind and true.

Sweetheart, are you lonely to-night?

One year ago the object of your adoration was here.

You wrote often, or you met, to feel affinity.

But to-night the gladness of Christmas seems sacrilege and you feel that the world should weep, for your sweetheart is gone.

The chair in the parlour is vacant and you will hear the voice no more.

Mother, has the child been taken? Do you often look at the toys and little dresses? Dry your eyes, they tell us it is all gladness in the somewhere, that land where little children go.

Christmas day and the broken circle and the vacant chair. Yet death is not awful, it is but a branching out, and as bu' natural as the falling of the apple when the hour has come.

Let us all be glad when we can, death is the graduation only to better things.

MRS. CARRIE NATION AGAIN ON A CRUSADE

Carrie Nation, having set the rum-soaked heather of the United States afire, has gone to England, there to continue her crusade against the bar-room. Her methods are so crude that they are not apt to prove attractive to many serious temperance reformers in the British Isles, where public sentiment is so far behind that of Canada and the United States in this matter. Nor were they relished even in her own home. There Mrs. Nation was rather an object of ridicule than of admiration; but despite the laughter, Carrie Nation and her hatchet did a work for temperance that will be better understood in the future. The woman may be slightly deranged, but great reformers before her have suffered the same reproach in their time, only to be canonized by another generation.

CARRIE NATION ON LOVE.

Her autobiography, "The Use and Need of the Life of Carrie A. Nation," is a strange mixture of unintentional humor and pathos. The English and grammar are often atrocious, but as an autobiography the work may claim the rarer virtue of sincerity. Listen to he ron the subject of Love: "I used to think a person could never love but once in their life; but I often now say I would not want a heart that could hold but one love. * * My native modesty prevented me from ever dancing a round dance with a gentleman. I cannot think this hugging 'school compatible with a true woman.'" Mrs. Nation's opinions on love are founded on a couple of marriages. Her first venture was with a Dr. Gloyd, who astonished her one evening by giving her a kiss. "I felt shocked," she says, "and threw up my hands to my face, saying several times, 'I am ruined.'"

TWO UNHAPPY MARRIAGES.

Though the kiss did not ruin her, the fact that she subsequently married Dr. Gloyd was one that she had reason to regret, for he became an inebriate. Her bitter experience with her first husband furnished her with the following aphorisms:—

Drinking men neglect their wives.

The drink habit in men destroys the appreciation of a home life.

A woman loses love for her husband through his indifference.

Drinking men are drugged and diseased men.

Alas! her venture with the man whose name she has made famous, was not more satisfactory. Nation deceived her, she says, and she hated him. So once more her home life was destroyed, but, as she says: "Had I married a man I could have loved, God could never have used me."

DESTROYING THE HOME WRECKER

Her own unhappy home life made her more observant of the lives of others, and she became impressed with the belief that the saloon was the greatest of home wreckers. She determined to do what she could to destroy the destroyer, and the first weapon that came to her hand was a brickbat. This she heaved through the window of the nearest saloon, and finding the weapon effective she was not long in smashing the windows, mirrors and glassware of four other groggeries. The jail sentence that ended her first sensational crusade was a terrible ordeal to her. It was punishment as bitter as her most determined enemies could have devised, but, as she says, she was put in jail a cub, she came out a roaring lion, resolved to make "all hell howl."

HER KANSAS CAREER.

But the successive imprisonments and beatings which marked Mrs. Nation's Kansas career were magnificent in advertising results. Once she destroyed a dive in Kansas. The proprietor rushed out and held her, while a number of abandoned women beat and kicked her. Each blow raised up for Carrie Nations a thousand defenders and thereafter she encountered only passive resistance. She was closely watched, and news of her approach was the signal for the closing of a threatened saloon. More than once in her struggles with maddened bartenders her part was unexpectedly taken by some patron of the dive, and incidents of the sort greatly encouraged her.

DOWN ON TOBACCO, TO

From the autobiography the following thoughts are culled:—

Preparation for war is inhuman.

Angels wept, and devils yelled with diabolical glee.

It ought to be a crime to manufacture or give away tobacco in any form.

A man has no more right to poison the air I breathe than the water I drink.

Cigars are like snakes—they are all bad.

If it is manly to smoke, why isn't it womanly to smoke?

It is my place to meddle with the devil's business.

The nation is what its homes are.

Develops Growth by the Use of Medicine

London, Dec. 24.—The experiment of treating with thyroid extract a girl physically and mentally undeveloped has had remarkable success. The patient, Mildred Hart, although 23 years old, had the development of a child only 7 years and was 33 inches tall. Her teeth were the same as a child's, her skin cold and harsh and her features were undeveloped.

The soft spot on the top of a baby's head could be felt on hers. She had no appetite and was mentally unobservant.

This continued to October last. A physician then diagnosing the absence of the thyroid secretion took charge of the case. He administered 12 1-2 grains of extract of the thyroid glands daily. The patient has now grown 2 1-2 inches. Her skin is moist and warm, her face is considerably developed, and she has cut several new teeth. She is constantly hungry.

The most wonderful change, however, is in her mental condition. She has become extraordinary loquacious, using a vocabulary she could not have acquired in two months, which shows that she unconsciously listened to and stored up words without the power of employing them.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WAISTED

IN EXPERIMENTS

These Millions Have Been and Are Being Waisted in Experiments With Mills and Other Treating Plants

Ours is no experiment. Our new smelting process has Been tested in every detail. We KNOW wha it will do and we know that it will do what we claim for it.

You know what a cheap smelting process will mean to the mining industry all over the world. Miners as well as investors in mining stock must pay their share in unreasonable charges to some smelter under the present system. Why not interest yourself in a company which will help you—which will help the miner as well as the investor in mining stock---to

SAVE MORE THAN HALF YOUR PRESENT SMELTER CHARGES

We will erect a smelter of fifty tons right near your mine. Our smelter thus erected will save 85% in treatment. freight charges and hauling the ore to the railway. This is the crying need of the mining industry to-day.

Think what this means in the treatment of the ores from your mine. Think what this means in the treatment of the ore at present upon the dump. No matter how low grade the dump ore, so long as we have some high grade in every charge, we can get you the values from the ore now lying worthless upon the dump.

We have the practical smelter of the new era. It is not an experiment ; it is now in practical working order. We are now ready to erect smelters everywhere. We will build the smelters right at your mines, and thereby overcome all the obstructions which may be placed in our way by the railroads and trust smelters.

Why lament the fact of the present smelter overcharges, when here you have the chance to get a smelter right at your mine, which will treat the ore at $2 per ton, without difference for grades?

We are offering only 100,000 shares of stock in the Kuenzel's Process Smelter Company at 75 cents a share. The proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used towards erecting several of our smelters near producing mines, when we will begin at once to make money for ourselves and for the mine owner.

We have a large plant, a completely equipped machine shop, capable of building at least two 50-ton smelters every month. The preliminary. development stage of our enterprise has passed. We are ready to make money. Why not join us as a stockholder?

The money which you in this company is represented in full value in property and other assets. You are investing in a reality when you buy these shares.

Buy stock in this company now and you will help to realize upon the low grade ores in your dumps which otherwise must remain in waste and valueless. Let us tell you all about this new era smelter, the practical operation of which actually means the revolution of the mining industry. Write for full particulars. We will convince you that this is, indeed, the best gilt-edge investment on the market, from every point of view.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something now on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

Loses Her Husband

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 24.—John T. Fay, husband of Anna Eva Fay, the mental telepathy specialist, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head in his room at the Hotel St. Mark.

Fay had long been suffering from nervousness and considered his case incurable. He shot himself while alone in his room. He was 51 years old and was born in Ohio.

The Fays have been known on the vaudeville stage since 1882. Their act was exceptionally clever and aroused much discussion among persons interested in the occult. The Fays never contended that their act was anything other than that of mind reading helped out by mechanical means.

canning a page closely written and addressed to herself.

"A telegram has come calling me home [ran the letter]. It says my mother is ill—'seriously ill'—and I am afraid it's put that way to hide something worse. It is the only thing that could take me out of Dakota now. But I am not leaving you unprotected. Before I left Brannon I arranged to have Matthews watched every hour of the day and night. And he is the only thing that might make you trouble, for if the Indians get nasty I know Oliver will insist on bringing you in. Still, I shall worry terribly till I get back. I wish I could write all I would like to. But it would be what I have already told you—you will understand."

Thus it ended.

Dallas thrust it into the pocket of her skirt, took the reins and lifted the blacksnake. Ben saw the threatening movement from behind his bridle blinds. He sprang forward. The wheel rolled from under Braden's elbow.

"Well, I'll be d——d!" he growled. "Ain't you going to say ta-ta?" He strode along at the tailboard, smirking up at the two in an attempt to be friendly. "Maybe you'd like company going home," he said. "Lonely trip for girls, 'specially when they ain't got a gun." He gave Marylyn a bold wink.

"Thank you," replied Dallas shortly. "We don't want company—and we have got a gun." She lifted the pistol from the seat.

Braden fell behind. "Stop and drink some beer anyway," he called. "Got some in here. You mustn't be mad at me because Johnnie's mamma sent for him. Come on back."

To this no answer was made. Dallas gave the team a few smart cuts. The wagon rumbled out of the street.

And now began the return journey. Five hours had been consumed in reaching Clark's. Ten minutes had been wasted there. Another five would be passed at the first clear water. But allowing for the team's faster gait when they were headed for home and for twelve miles of down grade, they should not take more than four hours to reach the bend. Twilight would be settling then.

Dallas figured the return thus—but it was soon plain to her that sunset would find them miles from the shack. Poor feed, with the plowing and the harrowing, had thinned the mules. After the first spurt they paid no heed to the whip and fairly crawled. Maryln, tired, gave way to passionate complaining. Dallas folded a blanket in the bottom of the wagon and coaxed her sister to lie down upon it, her face shielded by the seat. To further disheaten the elder girl Ben and Betty showed signs of sore footedness. Guided out upon the grass they traveled better.

It took three precious hours to gain the summit. The afternoon was then far gone. Across the wide valley dark clouds were piling upon the western range. They added to its height and augured the day's early closing. When the Throat gaped alongside, the fleecy horizon had rolled still higher, and beneath it the setting sun showed through like a harvest moon, blood red.

Swiftly the day withdrew and the stars came out. Then the breeze lulled and a mist rose from the coulee's wooded bottom. From it came the tremulous call of an owl. Dallas slipped to her feet and wielded the blacksnake vigorously.

The mules shot forward for a wagon length. The sudden jolt awakened Marylyn. She got to her knees—and there were the cottonwoods with the laden boughs!

"Spunky little sister," encouraged the elder girl and helped the other to the seat.

The road was so dark now that it took on the aspect of a standing man, who was no sooner overridden than he rose again in the lead. This was a beginning for all manner of fears. Dallas fought her own. But she could not conquer them, for they enlarged enormously and changed to a premonition that ran riot.

Listening and watching, she had suffered the previous night. Yet that suffering was nothing compared to the agony that stole into her heart and held it—till she forgot Maryln's presence. She seemed to see a figure skulking through the dusk about the shack. It entered the lean-to and crouched in hiding. She saw it come forth again, keeping close to the logs. Its eyes shone in the dark.

Her father was beside the door, where she had left him. He was gazing straight ahead, as if he expected the enemy to approach only from the front, as if he had no thought of treachery. His figure was relaxed wearily. His face was drawn. But his eyes—like the other's—were strangely luminous.

Ah, the figure was creeping toward him noiselessly step by step!

"Go in! Go in, daddy!"

The cry was torn from her, though she strove to keep it back. The strain of the past night and day was telling. Frantically she begged Ben and Betty to hasten. Knowing home was not far, they obeyed her voice and presently were setting back in their collars to block the descent of the wagon, were splashing through the backwater at the coulee crossing and jerking their load out upon the level. Eastward the shack stood out dimly in the starlight. They made for it at a trot.

But all at once they stopped and began stepping this way and that, as if ready to leap the tongue. Dallas and Maryln recalled, forsaking the seat for the shelter of the box.

There was a moment's wait in a stillness as vast as the prairie. The mules, sidled to the left, shifted their long ears nervously. The girls listened, the younger shielded by the elder's arms.

inserted houses of Shanty Town sounded the long, soul chilling howl of a dog.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A BROKEN crutch lying close to the shack on the river side, a blood bespattered pane in the window just above, a rifle ball imbedded deep at a gun's length beyond the pane—these were the traces that on the following morning gave an inkling of a deadly clash.

Squaw Charley found them when the day was yet so young that no human eyes save those of an Indian could have used its scanty light. Four raps upon the warped door had brought no answer. Loudly repeated, they had set the wooden latch to shaking lonesomely. Mistrustful, he had entered and groped about the dark room. Table and benches were in place. The blankets hung before the bunk. To one side, rolled up neatly, was the mattress upon which Dallas and Maryln slept. But nothing else met his expectant hand and foot. Next he had visited the lean-to, where he felt his way carefully from stall to stall, discovering no occupant. Then he had gone out to pry around the yard and lit upon the marks that told of the struggle.

The absence of the wagon was a clew. He stole along the outgoing tracks, between which small, circular and clearly stamped, were the hoof prints of two mules. Near the coulee crossing the tracks ran into others and fresher ones that diverged sharply into the corn. The hoof prints be-

THE BERKSHIRES.

A Farmer Tells Why He Prefers Them to Other Breeds.

Writing of Berkshires in Rural New Yorker, F. D. Squires says: After trying nearly all of the various breeds I am thoroughly convinced from a business standpoint, in dollars and cents, that the Berkshires are the most profitable animals I ever tried. There are just four reasons why I should choose the Berkshires for the business farmer's business hog. And when I say the business hog I don't mean a hog for show, as I don't believe in show animals for the average business farmer. If by chance he should produce a show animal my advice would be to sell it for a show animal to a show animal man and invest it in an animal for profit.

A BERKSHIRE BOAR.

First, activity, combined with strong digestive and assimilating powers, returning a maximum quantity of flesh for food consumed.

Second, their pigs are strong, active and vigorous at birth.

Third, their flesh is of the highest quality of pork, and their loins are much sought by butchers as being of finer quality than any other breed.

Fourth, they can be fattened at an early age on less feed than any other known breed.

The breed sow should be long and deep bodied, with ribs well sprung, jowls full and heavy, running well back on neck; shoulders smooth and even on top and in line with side; ham deep and thick; legs and feet short, straight and strong, set wide apart with hoofs nearly erect, and, above all else, she should have at least twelve well developed teats.

Treat her kindly and give her plenty of nourishing food, but not fattening, during farrowing season, and she will present you with a fine sample of her progeny, and at killing time you will never be sorry you selected the Berkshire for profit.

Pasturing Sheep on Alfalfa.

Every now and then the statement is made that sheep may be successfully pastured on alfalfa. In some instances they can. In other instances they cannot. Under some conditions they can. Under more conditions they cannot. In a very dry atmosphere sheep may be safely grazed on alfalfa when accustomed to it. If fed dry food early in the day, such as grain, they may safely graze on it.

But the fact remains that there is usually some danger that sheep will be lost through bloating more or less while being thus grazed. Moreover, the further fact remains that the sheep graze so closely that under many conditions they injure the alfalfa plant and shorten its period of growth. When the alfalfa grows with grass crops, the element of danger from bloat is practically eliminated.—Professor Thomas Shaw.

THE DAIRYMAN.

I used to have a lot of trouble feeding calves their milk, says a dairyman. He will anybody who sets a pail over the fence and lets the calves do with it as they have a mind to. But finally I woke up to the idea that stanchions are just as good to feed calves in as they are for cows. I picked up a few pieces of boards such as are to be had on almost any farm and fixed up a nice little pair of stanchions, with mangers to feed hay in besides. That ended my troubles in that line.

A Big Influence.

The bull is one half of the herd. The cows are the other half. The bull exerts his influence, his breeding, over every cow in the herd, whether it be for good or bad. If his breeding or pedigree is of the wrong sort—that is, for example, of a poor dairy sort—his influence is for bad, and the young stock will not be of the kind that develop into useful animals. This influence is not on one cow, but on all the herd. With cows it is different. If in the herd there be a poor cow her effects are felt only on her calves, while the calves of her sisters in the herd will be good or poor according to the individual cow. The good bull will make his good qualities felt in all the cows.

Protect the Cream.

A great deal of cream leaves the farm in fine condition for the creamery, but in being exposed to the sun on the road to the creamery or receiving station the development of souring germs rapidly begins. In delivering a can of cream throw a wet blanket over the can and a dry cover over the wet blanket. The dry blanket prevents the evaporation of water from the wet blanket and will enable the farmer to deliver cream only a few degrees warmer than when it left the farm.

Testing the Milk Giver.

The farmer can learn to operate a hand tester in a half hour. His results will not be accurate to a fraction, but close enough for all practical purposes. There is no way to determine the actual value of a cow except the milk be weighed and tested. It is worth many dollars a year to know what each cow is doing and is worth while to buy a tester and find out. The more a farmer knows about his dairy the better he will be pleased with the creamery treatment.

Conundrums.

If a man should give 15 cents to one son and 10 cents to another, what time would it be? A quarter to 2.

Why don't they collect fares from the policemen on the street cars? Because you can't take a nickel from a copper.

When are prisoners like gas? When escaping.

When are houses like books? When they have stories in them.

When is a step like a great burden? When heavy.

What is that which goes from Philadelphia to New York without moving? Answer—The railroad tracks.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere. Pain its own self. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. This tablet—called Dr Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful, too. Though subtly, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablet simply distributes the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and almost it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain always is. It's simply Oxol-ness.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The remains were taken to Kinmount cemetery for interment. The services were conducted by the Rev. A. C. Cummer. The pall bearers were; Messrs. George Train, C. Wellstood, J. Graham, G. Dettman, A. POPULAR OBSERVANCES OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a historic and world-wide festival. It belongs alike to the Protestant, Catholic and Greek Churches. It is essentially a day of thanksgiving and rejoicing—a day of good cheer. Though Christians celebrate it as a Christian festival, the festivities that mark the epoch are part of the universal history of the race. To investigate the origin of many of its customs it becomes necessary to wander far back into the regions of past time, long ere Julius Cæsar set his foot on British shores or St. Augustine preached the doctrines of Christianity to the men of Kent. In pagan Rome and Greece, in the days of the Teutonic barbarians, in the remote times of ancient Egyptian civilization, in the infancy of the race, East and West and North and South, the period of the winter solstice was ever a period of rejoicing and festivity.

The holly and the mistletoe are a survival of ancient Druidical worship, the Christmas carol is a new birth, purified and exalted, of the hymns of the Saturnalia; the Christmas banquet is a reminiscence of the feasts given in honor of ancient gods and goddesses, when, as Cato said of the analogous feasts in imperial Rome commemorating the birth of Cybele, the prospect that drew one thither was "not so much the pleasure of eating and of drinking as that of finding one's self among his friends and of conversing with them." The very idea of the Child-God, which gives its meaning to the Feast of the Nativity, was prefigured and foretold in the infant gods of the Greek, the Egyptian, the Hindu and the Buddhist. Great as is the feast, nobody knows anything definite about its origin, nobody knows who first celebrated it, or when or where or how.

POPULAR OBSERVANCES.

Two popular observances belonging to Christmas are most especially derived from the grim mythology and worship of our pagan ancestors, the hanging up of the mistletoe and the burning of the yule log. The former comes from the Danes, the latter from the Scandinavian. The whole festival is a combination of quaint and historic customs.

In some places, as in Suabia, it is customary for maidens, inquisitive as to their future lovers, to draw a stick of wood out of a heap to see whether he will be long or short, crooked or straight. At other times they will pour melted lead into cold water and from the figures formed will prognosticate the trade or profession of the future husband. The maidens of Pfullingen, when they wish to ascertain which of them will first become a wife, dress that the Christ-Child may not stumble in passing through the village. There is also a widespread opinion that a pack of wolves, which were no other than wicked men transformed into wolves, committed great havoc upon Christmas night.

CARES OF LIFE FORGOTTEN.

In Germany the decoration of the house begins as early as the morning of Dec. 24th. One room, from which all save "die mutter" is rigidly excluded contains the Christmas tree and all the presents, set in a shining row upon the table. Greens are hung from the window and door, and garlands upon the walls. Upon the dining table a great cold supper is spread. Family and guests begin to gather at five o'clock. The children's eyes are glued to the sliding doors which are presently to open and disclose the tree. Six o'clock—a bell rings. Back swings the portal, and there it stands, resplendent with lights and tinsel. The children pounce upon it. Everybody kisses everybody else, and for two or three hours the care of life are forgotten. Then the late supper and to bed. Thus the German Christmas is well over before the day arrives, the day being spent in paying and receiving visits.

Christmas Eve is a feast in Paris, and the Grand Boulevard possesses a character distinctive of the occasion. The "reveillon," or Christmas Eve supper, is more important to the Frenchman than the Christmas dinner, and the indulgence in it may somewhat account for the general atmosphere of almost gloomy abstinence that seems to hang over Paris on Christmas Day. Impecunious clerks and reckless Latin Quarter students go dinnerless for a week before that they may participate in the "reveillon."

In the rural life of Russia, Christmas Eve is an important event. At sunset young and old assembled in the principal street of the village, and, forming a procession, visit the houses of notables, where they sing carols and receive coppers in turn. This is called the "Kolenda", and is followed by a masquerade. As soon as the evening star appears above the horizon, the collazia, or supper, is served, and is religious in its character.

In no land is Christmas more generally celebrated than in Scandinavia. The courts are losed, old quarrels are adjusted and feuds are forgotten. A pretty symbol of the spirit that reigns is the Yuletide practice of placing in a row every pair of shoes in each household, typifying that during the year the family will live together in peace and harmony.

A Christmas celebration in Peru has peculiar features. The streets and squares are crowded with gaily-dressed people. Droves of asses are to be seen in every direction, laden with fruits, boughs from the mountains, liquors and other merchandise. Ice stalls, provided with chairs and benches, are crowded by the perspiring pleasure-seekers, who find ice necessary on sultry Christmas.

The ante-bellum period in the Southern States was signalized by a special celebration at Christmastide, handed down from these English folk, gentle and simple, who first people Virginia and the Carolinas, and whose descendants have spread over the face of the country south of Mason and Dixon's line.

Extraordinary Revelations at Hearing of Grafting Councillors and Bankers

Pittsburg, Dec. 24.—That the extent of the boodling of Pittsburg's law-makers was almost beyond belief was shown here today, when the seven "boodling" councilmen and two bankers were given hearings before Police Magistrate Frank Brady and were each held for court under heavy bail. The prosecution, under the watchful eye of Mayor Guthrie, did not show all its evidence, as there was much more than enough to hold the accused for court.

The flashlight picture of a certain councilman getting the money was in court, but was not placed in evidence, but there were several pictures in evidence showing the plan of rooms at the Fort Hill Hotel, where detectives had listened and looked at deals being made in the next rooms, etc., Among these more startling features brought out at today's hearing were;

CANDIDATE IMPLICATED.

That 88 city councilmen are accused of taking money from the "Big Six" for passing ordinances; that there are but six councilmen in the local body who cannot be bought; that T. Hart Given, president of the big Farmers' Deposit National Bank of Pittsburg, is accused by Councilman Klein of manipulating some of the boodle money; that William H. McGee, Republican candidate for the nomination for mayor, was reported by the gang as being "all right;" that the so-called boodling gang is supporting the wife of former Councilman William A. Martin, who is in the penitentiary for boodling, the gang having been shown that Martin refused $10,000 to squeal on them; that there was no set price for the vote of a Pittsburg councilman, rates ranging from a street car ticket up to $100; the cheaper councilmen being dubbed "hoodlums" by Klein and the "Big Six" and that on one occasion a bank president and cashier left $17,500 on the table in a room with Councilman Klein, the gang's collector, it being understood that both Klein and the money would disappear together, which they did.

DETECTIVE'S STORY.

The principal witness today was Robert Wilson, a private detective and superintendent of the Municipal League of Scranton, Pa., who is employed by the Voters' League of Pittsburg, which brings the complaint against the nine defendants.

Mr. Wilson's testimony was sensational. Aided by an assistant, it was told that Wilson engaged a room in a local hotel, cut holes in the door and walls of an adjoining room. Then a series of meetings were arranged with councilmen. His assistant, Herbert Jones, posed as a business man desiring certain ordinances passed, and during his conferences with the councilmen Wilson and a stenographer were stationed in the next room making a full record of transactions.

During these conferences, Councilman Klein had a great deal to say regarding how complete councils were controlled by the accused men, the detective said. It was also testified that Klein and Brand each accepted $500 from Jones in payment for securing the passage of an ordinance.

At a meeting held in another local hotel, Klein, it was testified, told Wilson how hard it was to divide money among the councilmen. To illustrate his remarks, it was testified, Councilman Klein told of how $45,000 had to be split among 60 councilmen. This money was alleged to have been received in connection with the construction of filter beds at the new filtration plant of Pittsburg.

Xmas Tree at Park St. Baptist Church

A very successful concert and Xmas tree was held Wednesday night by the Park street Baptist Sunday School.

A tree most artistically decorated by the teachers, made a happy attraction for the little folks, and their joy flamed in its fullness, when Santa Claus made his appearance with the presents and candies. The school is in a very flourishing condition, as the reports of the Treasurer and Secretary revealed.

Miss Maggie Mann, who for twenty years has been the energetic and consecrated superintendent of the school, was the recipient of a beautiful piece of silver ware from the teachers and officers, by whom she is held in the highest esteem.

The pastor was also presented with a gold-headed umbrella from the members of his Bible Class.

Two More Bombs were Thrown at Officials

Calcutta, India, Dec. 24.—The attempts to assassinate British officials have not been abated by the passing of the new Summary Trial Act and the reform measures which Viscount Morley spoke of in the House of Lords a few days ago. Another attempt was made upon the life of Public Prosecutor Hume yesterday. Two bombs were thrown at the special train in which he was traveling near Jodhpur, but the bombs were thrown wild.

A similiar attempt was made upon the life of Mr. Hume on Nov. 25, when a bomb loaded with dum-dum bullets was thrown at a railway carriage in which he was traveling, but fell short and exploded outside. The man who attempted this assassination was made a hero by the Bengalis the next day.

The Old Folks

Few of us realize the tragedy there is in growing old. To feel that one is thrust into a corner while the world in which he once bore an active part goes whirling on without him, must more than account for the "peculiarities" of old age. Make Christmas at least bright and helpful to the old folks. Do not count expense or trouble in visiting the old home and cheering the hearts of those who gave thought and effort to your welfare when you were getting your start in life. When you miss the dear old faces from the fireside you will wish many and many a time that you could run in and say a pleasant word or leave some little love token. The sweetest recollections you will have in after life will be those which call to mind the little things done to smooth the way for those on the other side of the hill on their way down into the valley of shadows.

The Season's Harvest in Canada is Valued at Over $432,532,000

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—According to a statement issued today from the Census and Statistics Office an area of 27,505,663 acres of field crops has yielded a harvest which, computed at average local market prices, has a value of $432,533,000. Wheat, oats and barley aggregate in area 16,297,100 acres and in value $209,070,600; hay and clover off 8,210,900 acres have a value of $121,884,000.

Robbers Plundered the Royal Tombs

Stockholm, Dec. 24.—The cathedral at Rothkilde, the traditional burying place of the Danish Kings, was profaned by robbers last night. Many valuables were stolen. The object of the thieves was probably to plunder the royal tombs of their treasures. They forced an entrance through a window, and then cut the iron gates separating the Royal mausoleum from the main part of the cathedral. They carefully and leisurely chose the most valuable things. They cut up velvet palls covering the coffins apparently to wrap their booty in, and then escaped without being detected. The robbery seems to have been hurried, as they dropped a golden fyre stolen from the tomb of Queen Louise, while outside the cathedral golden oak leaves, from wreaths, were scattered on the ground. It was the discovery of the latter that gave the first intimation of the sacrilege. The exact extent of the plunder is not yet known, but in addition to other valuables missing are a golden wreath, which was subscribed for throughout Denmark for the tomb of the late King Christian, another, given by his children, including Queen Alexandra; two presented by the Russian Imperial family; a silver wreath deposited by President Fallieres last July; a silver cross and two silver shields. The only clue is finger prints on the glass lids of the coffins. It is believed that the thieves were probably foreigners. The outrage has caused the greatest popular indignation.

Subjects Omitted from Matriculation Exams

Grammar and Arithmetic will not in future be included in the list of subjects to be taken by students at matriculation examinations for the Ontario universities. The decision was arrived at yesterday at a conference held at the University, Toronto at which all the Provincial universities, with the exception of the Western, London, were represented. President R. A. Falconer presided, and the delegates about thirty in number included Principal Hutton Chancellor Burwash, Chancellor McKay, and Principal Gordon. The chief object of the conference was the fixing of the subjects for the matriculation examinations, and as stated already it was decided to omit two of what may be described as elementary subjects. It was the opinion of the majority of the delegates that it should be presumed under the educational system of the Province, that students presenting themselves for matriculation should be so grounded in arithmetic and grammar as to render further tests in these subjects unnecessary.

The question of a further raising of the standard of matriculation was also under consideration. Generally the desirability of action along this line had been conceded by university men, and in connection with it the views of the instructors throughout the Province had been sought. As a result of these inquiries a number of opinions were submitted to the Council, but the views expressed as to the subject as in which the test should be made more severe were so diversified that it was decided to refer the whole matter to the various faculties for further consideration. The questions, however, will again be taken up at the inter-university conference which is to be held after Easter.

Annual Sunday School Concert in Otonabee

The annual concert and Christmas tree, in connection with Cotteringe Union Sunday School of Otonabee, was held last night, and it proved a success in every way. The hall was well filled, the programme was an excellent one and the unloading of the Christmas tree at the conclusion delighted the hearts of the children and the grown folk as well. Decoration suitable to the season made the interior of the building much brighter. Miss Bennett, superintendent of the Sunday School, occupied the chair and presented the following programme:

Opening chorus—Merry Christmas Bells by the children.
Welcome, Welcome Everybody—Ten little girls.
Recitation—Mary Tully.
Exercise—God With Us—Five little girls and four boys.
Dialogue—"Taking the Census."
Action song—While the Christmas Stars Are Shining—the children.
Solo—Miss Oxboro.
Christmas carol—By young ladies.
Dialogue—"Mrs. Snooper's Surprise Party."
Wisdom Treasures — Six young ladies.
Selection—The Tall Top Hat—By the young men.
Dialogue—"Miss Dexter's Personal."
Chorus—Kriss Kringle — By the children.
God Save the King.

A citizen residing on Algonquin near its southern extremity states that there are some persons who are acquiring the very bad habit of robbing hen houses and his in particular has been suffering of late. If the hens continue to disappear he intends to give the matter over to the police and make it hot for certain individuals, whom he has good reason to believe are the guilty parties.

Intercolonial Proposal Arouses Storm

St. John, N.B., Dec. 25. — Nearly every member of the St. John Board of Trade is strongly opposed to any arrangement whereby the Intercolonial Railway will pass from the control of the Government. Several of the more prominent business men of the city say they, as a body, will oppose any action of this kind.

"To transfer the Intercolonial to a private company would be a direct slap in the face for the Maritime Provinces," said one member of the Board of Trade. "What we want is less party politics in the administration of the road, not transference to a private concern."

F. H. McAlpine, K.C., a prominent Liberal and strong advocate of government control of the Intercolonial, said. "It would be ruinous to the Maritime Provinces if the I.C.R. be taken over by a private company. We will never submit to it. I believe the the merchants and public men here would rebel."

Ald. Baxter declared;—"Such a procedure would be absolutely destructive of the interests of the Maritime Provinces."

The St. John Board of Trade has called a meeting for this afternoon.

The Christmas tree in connection with the Salvation Army will be held this evening beginning at eight o'clock. The officers have received a few presents from some of the friends but are still very short of the required number. Any person or persons wishing to assist in providing presents for the children may do so by applying at the barracks.

Pope Suspends Receptions

London, Dec. 24.—It is officially announced that the Pope will dispense with his usual Christmas and and New Year receptions to the cardinals, diplomatists and other exalted personages, partly because of the felicitations recently offered on the occasion of his jubilee, and partly because he has not regained his normal strength since his late illness. His physicians insist that he must not fatigue himself.

LIQUOR EMPTIED ON ROAD

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 23.—A large quantity of liquor was seized this morning at W. A. Davis' hotel, at Yarmouth Centre, which is in the local option Township of Yarmouth. Davis appeared this afternoon before Magistrate Hunt, who ordered all the liquor to be emptied out on the road. This included 300 bottles of ale and gallons of whiskey, gun and rum. Davis was fined $30 and costs.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Getting Ready for Opening of the Legislature

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Legislation will be needed for the proposed change in the date of the Ontario government's fiscal year. At present it closes on Dec. 31st. It is purposed to close the next year on Oct. 31st, necessitating a short term fiscal year of ten months.

Next session the legislature will consequently be asked to provide estimates for ten months in order to carry on the business; however estimates for the following twelve months will also be submitted. These will necessarily be somewhat light as many of the expenditures cannot be estimated so far ahead. This will be remedied by providing heavy supplementary estimates in the following session of the legislature.

Good progress is being made with the accounts and business will be in good shape to rthe session early in February.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED)

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

THE PATRONAGE SYSTEM

The theory and the actual operation of the patronage system, with reference to appointments to the public service, remarks the London Advertiser, are very far apart. When an office is to be filled, what happens? In theory the Government (nominally the crown) selects the person who is best qualified to discharge the duties of the position, or who is at least as competent as any who are willing or can be induced to accept it. In practice the choice is confined to members of one political party, and considerations other than mere fitness sometimes determine it. In practice also, by far the greater number of appointments are not made directly by the Government at all. The authority is delegated in most cases to members of Parliament or party candidates. There is something to be said for this arrangement. The members of the Government cannot be personally acquainted with all the candidates for office, and find it convenient to have a confidant in each electoral division who is presumed to be able to advise them properly as to the disposition of patronage in that particular riding. Of late years there has been another and second delegation of this power. The local representative voluntarily or otherwise, has devolved it upon the local patronage committee, a very recent institution in this country, which has further complicated the machinery of government and of party.

The control of the civil service and of appointments thereto, by the Government of the day, is strictly constitutional; but this authority, except in respect of the judiciary and a few higher posts, has in reality passed out of the Government's hands, both in Federal and Provincial affairs. The patronage committee, in which it is now largely vested, is a body that has no constitutional justification. It has not even in its favor the arguments that excused the exercise of patronage by the local representative acting as the agent of the Government. Many a member of Parliament is glad to escape this worry, but the defect of the other method is that electors cannot fasten responsibility upon any responsible person or organization. A party candidate must answer to the electors for his use or misuse of patronage, but they cannot call the patronage committee to account. While the patronage system is sound in theory—i. e., the government of the day should be directly responsible for its appointments to office, as for its administration of other public affairs—the operation and application of the system reveal defects and abuses, which can be removed only by abolishing the system and eliminating party considerations.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. These leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to the most distressing Cough, and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

A Sign of The Times

The Revolution of the Oyster Trade

To the oyster industry the appearance of the Sealshipt System, with its methods of packing, transporting and selling oysters, has been an event of incalculable good, and has done more to promote the delivery of the delicious bivavle in all its native, sea flavor and taste, to consumers at interior points than all the pure-food laws thus far enacted.

The Sealshipt Oyster Carrier, the nucleus of that organization and the potential factor in the rapid reformation of the oyster industry, is the invention of a Texan engaged in the industry in a section where the Sealshipt System now has affiliation with a large number of shippers operating under its contract and control.

The invention "took". Throughout the country, as fast as it was seen and its value demonstrated, the people embraced this prophet which is leading the oyster industry out of the wilderness of its old-time tribulations.

The Sealshipt carrier promised perfectly pure, wholesome and healthful food in the shape of the greatest delicacy ever placed upon the table. Promised that, with its delivery to any point on the continent, regardless of distance, the delicious flavor, the native salt-water thrill and "tang" of the real oyster should accompany it, and that nothing but the SOLID OYSTER MEATS should ever be sold under its trade-mark.

These promises have been kept. Today the oyster-lover in, say Denver, who has eaten the bivalve direct from the shell in any of its native haunts, gives his order, and the genuine oyster, with all its delicious reminiscences, is placed before him as quickly as a Sealshipt Carrier can be opened and a dipper scoop it up.

The Sealshipt Carrier is a departure from all ancient rulings in this industry.

The Oyster Meats, after removal from their shells, are immersed in clean, fresh water just long enough to clear them of shell-crumblings and sand adhering to them. They are then drained, freed as thoroughly of moisture as is possible, and at once packed in massive, oval-ended steel containers of 5 gallons each. This filled receptacle is then sealed—air-tight, dirt and germ-proof, so completely and effectively that its contents can never be disturbed or exposed to the outer air until that seal is broken at the dealer's store.

Upon delivery of the package to the retail distributor, the terms of his contract with this Company regulate the manner in which he shall handle the stock. He sells no other oysters than Sealshipts during the life of such contract, and is under a rigid obligation to dispense to his customers only the SOLID OYSTERS under the Sealshipt trade-mark,—precisely as they are forwarded to him by the shippers.

Under these precautions and rules, the Sealshipt Oyster has established for itself a reputation throughout the United States and the Dominion. It is everywhere giving proof to our people and those of the States, as to what "Oyster" really means—something never before fully assured under the former methods of handling the goods.

Nothing has been left undone to guarantee the consumer, the one who eats the oyster, a food-delicacy in every way exactly as it came from its native element, the ocean. That the efforts and precautions of the Sealshipt organization have been appreciated; that its work has been successful, are shown by the spread of its business throughout the continent, from the Atlantic to the Pacific; from Alaska and the Hudson Bay territory to the confluence of the Rio Grande.

From our observation, and actual knowledge of the character of the goods, it looks as though the prediction and purpose of the Sealshipt people were to be fulfilled at no distant date. The absolute displacement of the "tub" oyster and the methods of handling it.

It is in line with the order of the day.—Progress.

Smuggling Gang

Windsor, Dec. 24.—The Detroit United States immigration authorities say there is a huge organization here that is smuggling Chinamen across the river into the United States. Men shipped in a box car from Detroit were arrested yesterday on information said to come from here. Today local detectives and immigrant inspectors are patrolling Detroit in hopes of capturing the white men who took the Chinamen to Chicago and escaped the officers of that city after a revolver battle, and are reported to be on their way back to Windsor. J. O. Frick, head of the Detroit immigration office, believes that a company controlled by Chinamen and possibly in which Americans are interested has offices in Windsor and Chicago. He is positive of the identity of the men who escaped from Chicago and thinks they will be under arrest in a few days.

Big Lumber Merge

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 24.—Official announcement of the new $20,000,000 lumber merger known as the Virginia and Rainy Lake company, was made public today by Edward Hines, president of the corporation. The new company is the amalgamation of the Edward Hines Company, the Weyerhauser interests and the Virginia Lumber Company. In the amalgamation what is known as the Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg railroad will become the property of the Canadian Northern railroad.

The Grain Crop

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—The steady returns from farm industry in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, of which Winnipeg is the commercial clearing house city, has made a record year. From this territory the 1906 harvest has yielded over 100,000,000 bushels of wheat of which 21,500,000 bushels still remain in the farmers' hands for export. There has been inspected to date at Winnipeg 48,685,350 bushels and dealers have in store at country points 15,000,000 bushels; the remaining 15,000,000 bushels will be consumed by local mills and for seed purposes.

MILLIONSOF DOLLARS WASTED

IN EXPERIMENTS

These Millions Have Been and Are Being Waisted in Experiments With Mills and Other Treating Plants

Ours is no experiment. Our new smelting process has Been tested in every detail. We KNOW wha It will do and we know that it will do what we claim for it.

You know what a cheap smelting process will mean to the mining industry all over the world- Miners as well as investors in mining stock must pay their share in unreasonable charges to some smelter under the present system. Why not interest yourself in a company which will help you—which will help the miner as well as the investor in mining stock—to

We will erect a smelter of fifty tons right near your mine. Our smelter thus erected will save 85% in treatment. freight charges and hauling the ore to the railway. This is the crying need of the mining industry to-day.

Think what this means in the treatment of the ores from your mine. Think what this means in the treatment of the ore at present upon the dump. No matter how low grade the dump ore, so long as we have some high grade in every charge, we can get you the values from the ore now lying worthless upon the dump.

We have the practical smelter of the new era. It is not an experiment ; it is now in practical working order. We are now ready to erect smelters everywhere. We will build the smelters right at your mines, and thereby overcome all the obstructions which may be placed in our way by the railroads and trust smelters.

Why lament the fact of the present smelter overcharges, when here you have the chance to get a smelter right at your mine, which will treat this ore at $2 per ton, without difference for grades?

We are offering only 100.000 shares of stock in the Kuenzel's Process Smelter Company at 75 cents a share. The proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used towards erecting several of our smelters near producing mines, when we will begin at once to make money for ourselves and for the mine owner.

We have a large plant, a completely equipped machine shop, capable of building at least two 50-ton smelters every month. The preliminary development stage of our enterprise has passed. We are ready to make money. Why not join us as a stockholder?

The money which you In this company is represented in full value in property and other assets. You are investing in a reality when you buy these shares.

Buy stock in this company now and you will help to realize upon the low grade ores in your dumps which otherwise must remain in waste and valueless. Let us tell you all about this new era smelter, the practical operation of which actually means the revolution of the mining industry. Write for full particulars. We will convince you that this is, indeed, the best gilt-edge investment on the market, from every point of view.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinitely. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 50 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 31.—John T. Fay, husband of Anna Eva Fay, the mental telepathy specialist, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head in his room at the Hotel St. Mark.

Fay had long been suffering from nervousness and considered his case incurable. He shot himself while alone in his room. He was 51 years old and was born in Ohio.

The Fays have been known on the vaudeville stage since 1893. Their act was exceptionally clever and aroused much discussion among persons interested in the occult. The Fays never contended that their act was anything other than that of mind reading helped out by mechanical means.

tween these pointed eastward. He forsook the outgoing and turned back across the field.

At first the course of the wagon puzzled. After veering north until the canyon yawned the team had made along the brink, keeping perilously near it. Farther on, at the upper end of the plowed strip, the direction abruptly changed. The mules had swung out to the right upon the open prairie, traveling straight for the middle of the gap. So far they had gone at a furious gallop. Now, however, they slowed to a walk, when the course no longer puzzled. To and fro it wended, this way for a few feet, then the other—proof that Ben and Betty had fed.

Squaw Charley halted. The horizon was faintly yellow. Upon it was a moving object, which presently took the clearer form of a wagon and span. He set off, his loose hair whipping at his back. The team was also traveling rapidly. Behind was a reddish follower that lowed in protest of the speed.

When the mules came by Dallas was standing at the dashboard plying the lash. Her face was ashen, her eyes were hollow. She did not see the Indian, for her gaze was upon the shack. He swung himself into the rattling box. There lay Maryiya, still in the grasp of the stupor that had bound them brain and body through the night.

Before the mules brought up at the lean-to Dallas was over a wheel and tottering in quest of her father. Out of the shack as she searched it sounded her plaintive cry: "Daddy, daddy, where are you? Oh, daddy, daddy, come back!"

Squaw Charley, bringing Maryiya in, found the elder girl kneeling behind the partition, her arms thrown out to grasp the vacant bunk.

He put his load down gently; then, unbidden, rushed through the door for Brannon.

When Captain Oliver arrived with Fraser, a surgeon and a detachment of mounted men Dallas was seated in the doorway, rocking Maryiya against her breast. She looked up dry eyed as he hurried to her.

"What'd they do it for?" she asked him brokenly. "How could they hurt you, dad? Oh, the land wasn't worth it, the land wasn't worth it!"

Something to quicken life in Maryiya was the first thought. Then food and drink were given the girls. Meanwhile the troopers were sent out under Fraser to range the bend and beat the coulee.

Oliver stayed. But to his questions Dallas, her reason tottering like her steps, could only return others that were heartrending.

"He'll come back, won't he? They wouldn't kill him? Oh, you don't think he's dead?"

"We'll find him," said the captain. He was pitiful in his regret. This tragedy was striking home to him as even the Jamieson failure had not. His long, sad face was more like a walrus' than ever.

"Mr. Bond said we'd have good luck here," she went on despairingly. "But there was danger by night, wasn't there? There was danger!"

"She's knocked silly," Oliver murmured to the surgeon. "The child doesn't know what she's saying."

"You're right. Clean blunted," was the answer. "But I'll straighten 'em both out by noon."

A long halloo summoned the captain to the door. A group of men were gathered in the swale between the shack and Shanty Town. Fraser was among them. Oliver signaled, and the young officer wheeled and came galloping in.

"What is it?"

"Old man's gun, discharged, out there in the grass"—

"Yes?"

"And two sets of footprints coming and going across that bit of low ground. One set looks about two days old and was made by boots; other is newer and made by moccasins."

"Ah!"

"There's something strange about these last. Coming this way the marks are so light you can hardly see 'em, going back they're sunk way down."

"Carried a load, eh?"

"It looks like it." Oliver mounted and they rode off to the swale.

Noon was past when the captain called at the shack again. He found the surgeon gone, but his ministrations had gone far to revive his patients physically. Tears had mercifully combined with returning strength to right their minds.

This time the elder girl met Oliver with no incoherence, but with brave quiet. All her self command had returned. She asked him in and showed a tender forethought for Maryiya by sending her out into the sunshine and the garden before she listened to what he had to tell. When he was done she began her story with the finding of the pole.

"Redskins!" he exclaimed.

"Boot marks were around, though," she said.

"You are sure? I wish your father had asked my advice. I feel as if I had come short in my duty."

"Please don't," she entreated. "You see, we thought we could tend to it—long 's we knew who it was."

He turned astonished eyes upon her. "Knew!" he exclaimed. "Well, for heaven's sake out with it then!"

"Matthews—he wanted the land."

"The interpreter! But last night's tracks were made by moccasins. There's one Indian free"—

She let him go no further. "It's not Charley," she declared. "Matthews meant us to think it was Indians. Moccasins are easy to get."

"That's true." He frowned. "H'm! Well, I shall inquire into his whereabouts during the last two days." And the captain fell to studying the figures on the Navajos.

Outside Lieutenant Fraser was passing the shack. He rode on to the cornfield, where he flung himself off his

QUALITIES OF THE AYRSHIRE.

C. M. Winslow, secretary of the Ayrshire association, says: "While an Ayrshire cow should be shapely and handsome to look at as she stands or walks, she should when handled reveal much looseness of vertebra, flatness of rib and width between the ribs, indicating large dairy capacity. The Ayrshire is a tough, hardy cow, with a vigorous appetite, and not too particular what she eats. She is always hungry, eats greedily and chews her cud rapidly. You can rarely see an Ayrshire cow when not taking in food or chewing what she has already gathered. While at pasture she does not wander around looking for sweet patches of grass, but goes to work rapidly gathering what is most convenient, either of grass or browse, and when full lies down to chew her cud, with no time wasted, and when going to and from pasture will chew her cud while walking and often continue to chew when started into a run.

"The general appearance of an Ayrshire as you look at her is striking. She is alert and full of life and reserved energy. She is a healthy cow, rarely having ailments of body or udder, and you seldom see an Ayrshire cow that does not have four healthy quarters in her udder, yielding a uniform quantity of milk from each. She is a very persistent milker, giving a uniform quantity well up toward calving, and many of them are dried off with difficulty.

"She is very intelligent, quick to learn and of a retentive memory, easily taught to take the same place in the stable and, if required to change, will in a few days readily take the new place. She is quiet and pleasant to milk, not easily disturbed and will, as a rule, yield her milk as readily to one milker as another and does not seem disturbed by any amount of noise in the stable.

"As a dairy cow she is particularly adapted to the production of milk for the milkman and for table use, as her medium size, vigorous appetite and easy keeping qualities make her an economical producer, while her even, uniform production makes her a reliable supply, and the richness of her milk in total solids places it above suspicion from city milk inspectors. Her milk is particularly adapted to transportation, as it does not churn or sour easily, and when poured back and forth a few times will readily mix the cream back into the milk, which will not again readily separate, giving it a uniform quality until the last is sold or used. It has a good body, a rich looking and never looks blue. The milk itself, being evenly balanced with casein and butter fat, is a complete food, easily digested, nutritious and is particularly adapted to children and invalids. Stomachs that are weak and unable to digest other milk find no trouble with Ayrshire cows' milk."

Keep Stock Separate.

There used to be a theory that everything could run together in the barnyard—the colts, the calves, the cows, pigs and chickens should all have access to the same yard. After the farm-

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! I commend this very much myself, and others should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chances, particularly with your children. Ladies can have Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding we began to keep better stock they saw the advisability of giving each class a yard for itself. It is hardly right to keep the cows and the calves in the same lot for evident reasons. The colts and the cows will not harmonize because the exuberance of the former tends to irritate the latter and lessens the milk flow. The chickens and the pigs should not be kept together because there is a chance that the hogs may get to eating hens. Every farmer has had experience with all of these things. The only peaceable plan is to have a yard for each kind of stock. If you want to run the pigs in the barnyard, do so for a time each day, but not when the calves and hens are there. It is just as advisable to keep stock upon the farm separate as it is to use separate fields for the crops.

Clover For Winter Feeding.

The question is asked if clover can be ensiled for feed next winter instead of corn silage. Clover may be ensiled and will make a good feed if it is correctly handled, but it requires more care in the handling than does corn. It should be cut when in full bloom. If allowed to get old and woody it is apt to overheat and mold or fire fang and have little feeding value. If ensiled with too much moisture on, as after a shower or heavy dew, it is apt to become more acid than is desirable. The material must be well distributed in the pit and should be thoroughly tramped and covered to exclude the air. Clover silage is apt to slime if not well packed when put into the silo. —L. W. Lighty.

Variety is Spice For Stock.

Animals relish a variety of feed and will give better results when they have it. A feed of corn stover now and then and a barrel of salt lying in the yard, with four or five staves cut out between the hoops so that they can always help themselves, is a good thing.

Conundrums.

If a man should give 15 cents to one son and 10 cents to another, what time would it be? A quarter to 2.

Why don't they collect fares from the policemen on the street cars? Because you can't take a nickel from a copper.

When are prisoners like guns? When escaping.

When are houses like books? When they have stories in them.

When is a step like a great burden? When heavy.

What is that which goes from Philadelphia to New York without moving? Answer—The railroad tracks.

Had Face Injured

At the Quaker Oats Company's factory yesterday a rather severe accident happened to Mr. John Curtis, Bolivar street. It was understood, that one of the large driving belts was in need of repair, but it was thought it would last over the day. It was temporarily spliced to make stronger. However, yesterday morning the belt broke hitting Mr Curtis in the face and knocking him over on the cement floor. Dr. Eastwood was summoned and on examination found that he was suffering from an ugly wound at the back of his head and he will in all probability lose the sight of one eye. The Dan Spence ambulance removed him to Nicholls Hospital.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative — is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Hastings News

Hastings, Dec. 22.—The approaching municipal nominations are creating a good deal of quiet discussion among the villagers. It looks very much as though there might be quite a change in the composition of the council for 1909. The inequality of the assessments in the village is the main topic, and it is likely to be a leading issue in the election for reeve and councillors. Mr. Thos. Howard will again be nominated for reeve, and possibly Mr. Learmouth will ask for the further confidence of the electors. It is a hot time is expected, as the contest last year between these two gentlemen resulted in Mr. Howard being defeated by only two votes.

The storekeepers have all been doing a satisfactory business this season and the Christmas trade is quite up to the usual mark. McClellan's jewelry, English's drygoods, Howard's grocery, and Wilcox & Lambert's stores show their stocks to good advantage, and make first-rate displays in their different lines.

A rather serious accident occurred on Tuesday to Mr. Henry Johnston. It appears that he was walking near the post office in company with Mr. Case Fisher when he fell cavily on the frosty walk. His friend immediately came to his assistance and endeavoured to lift him up by the arm, which caused Mr. Johnston great pain. He was brought to the Spellman House and Drs. Warde and Edmison called in, when it was found that a bad dislocation of the shoulder had occurred. After considerable difficulty the doctors succeeded in resetting the shoulder, and Mr. Johnston was put in bed with the consolation that he would require to rest for three weeks before he could be permitted to be around again. Apparently this sentence of a protracted rest weighed heavily upon Mr. Johnston's mind; for, after a brief mental struggle with himself he rose from his bed, dressed himself, went down to the dining room and enjoyed a good supper, afterwards walking across the village to the hall where an organ recital was being held and took it all in. Needless to say, the doctors were astonished at their patient's remarkable actions, and wonder was expressed at the vitality and pluck of a gentleman of Mr. Johnston's years.

Master Willie Spellman who has been attending St. Michaels' College, Toronto, is home for the Christmas season.

Hastings Court C. O. F. is having its membership increased. Mr. J. A. Happeny, the organizer has been here this week and has been instrumental in adding quite a number of new applicants.

The comforts of the travelling public are still being looked after by Mr. A. B. Spellman, the popular proprietor of the Spellman House. Improvements in the interior of the house are noticeable and the business is increasing. Mr. Forney Spellman, the wine clerk, is a capable assistant.

The Toy Makers and Their Industries

The industry behind the Santa Claus myth is one that not much attention is paid to, especially in Canada, where it is an insignificant one. In Germany however, toy-making is considered one of the most important industries in the country. To such huge proportions has it grown that there are many factories kept busy all the year round, not in making toys, or even a single toy, but just one part of a toy, like a body of a doll or the whistle on the end of a child's whip. It is these specializing manufacturers who make work for thousands of German families, including even the grandparents and the little children not too old to play with dolls themselves.

NOAH'S ARK.

Labor competent to turn out toys of certain kinds is so cheap that they can be produced by hand more profitably than by machine. The animals for the Noah's Ark that almost every child in a Christian country has played with are almost invariably hand-made. They are manufactured by the millions each year in Saxony, where the heads of thousands of families cultivate a little patch of orchard in the Summer, and spend all Winter in cutting out toy animals. Even in the making of the crude little horses there is specialization, beginning with the growing trees, there are woodsmen who cut the timber so that it can be sold most economically to the woodturner. He saws it up into rough blocks; and so it passes on to the regular toy maker, who takes the block cut out, across the grain and draws the profile outline of a horse.

THE EXPERT RING MAKER.

His scroll saw then cuts out the pattern and he splits the blocks into perhaps half a dozen blank little horses. The outlined animals are turned over then to younger members of the family to be smoothed and painted. The work of making toys has given to the woodworkers of Germany more than one expert specialist. The most prominent is the ring maker. This artisan cuts from the end of a round stick of timber a disc of wood, the thickness equal to the desired height of the animals to be made. Mounting the disc in a turning lathe, he begins work on the body of the wood at the disc's outer rim, turning away the material in such shapes that when the rim is finished, and cut apart, it will show the outline of the animal thus fashioned in it. As the result of the work cannot be shown until it nears completion, the necessity for expert workmanship is obvious.

THE LIMIT OF SPECIALIZATION.

The demand for exact work has specialized ring-making. There is the horse ring maker, the cow ring maker, the giraffe ring maker, and so on through the whole menagerie. Each man contents himself with one variety, and a horse ring maker would no sooner attempt to make a ring of cows than he would undertake to manufacture the mainspring of a watch. Competition has cut down the earnings of the toy makers, but little though they earn, according to our standards, the occupation is more profitable than any other that is open to them, and they are so well satisfied that they are content to devote their lives to one branch of the manufacture of a wooden horse, worth perhaps a quarter of a cent when completed.

TEDDY BEARS.

The manufacture of animal toys of a higher grade is another branch of the great industry that gives employment to thousands of families. It is no German monopoly, however, for in the United States to-day there are several factories devoted to Teddy bears alone. It is said that one woman left with several children and $1,000 on her husband's death, invested her little capital in a Teddy bear factory and cleared $100,000 in three years. In New York's East Side there are hundreds of families whose members do nothing but make toy sheep. The fleece with which these toys are covered is bleached and carded at home, and then glued to the wooden frames.

MECHANICAL TOYS.

But more capital is invested in mechanical toys than in any other department, for these are the toys in which millions are spent each year. The ride toy steam engine that can be bought for five cents is at one end of the mechanical toy industry, and at the other is the miniature railway system that costs $1,000. The latter has engines, freight and passenger cars, tracks, repair shops, signal systems, etc., all operated by storage batteries. Speaking of costly toys, it is now possible for a man to pay $1,000 for a toy automobile which a four-year-old can operate, and which would be destroyed in a collision with a bob sleigh.

THOUSAND DOLLAR DOLLS.

Another thousand dollars a man may give for a talking doll, and there are probably thousands of seamstresses who work all the year round making doll's clothing. Each year the toys become more expensive; some new extravagance is discovered in which fond and affluent parents can squander money. That, with all their expenditure, they can buy anything that will please their pampered offspring more than the 50-cent jackknife or the 25-cent doll delights the average child may well be doubted.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE POLICE COURT

At police court yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pitman were charged with being the keepers of a disorderly house at the corner of King and George streets. They were arraigned on the charge a few days ago and pleaded not guilty. Mr. Gordon was present to look after their interests yesterday, and considerable evidence was heard in regard to the house and its people.

Several people testified that as far as they knew the general reputation of the house was bad, while P. C. Newhall and Meharry gave evidence to the effect that they had watched the house closely and told of some of the suspicious things that they had observed in connection with the case.

It was near 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon before the evidence in the case was concluded, and after hearing it all the magistrate reserved judgment for one week.

The case of William Rattray, charged with stealing $863.12 from Martin Connors, was remanded.

he Case for the Prosecution Closed--A Motion to Dismiss Heard

ushing, N.Y., Dec. 26.—The out- of the defence of Thornton J. , charged with being a princi- with his brother, Captain Peter Hains, jr., in the killing of Wm. E. Annis, last summer, will be pre- ted to the jury today. No testi- y will be taken until Monday, h the calling of one of two min- witnesses by District Attorney rin this morning, the prosecution l rest, and Eugene Young, one of ins' counsel, will move to dism s indictment against the defendant.

OUTLINE OF DEFENCE.

r. Young's motion to dismiss and arguments thereon, will consume t an hour, Joseph Shay, assist- counsel to John F. McIntyre, l submit the outline of the defence the jury. The defence will en- or to show that Thornton Hains his brother started out to make al estate purchase in the neigh- borhood of Bayside on an appointe- ment, but something happened which caused the two brothers to go to the Yacht Club. This point, Mr. Shay will argue, will convincingly prove that the defendant and his brother had no intention of going to the Yacht Club until they learned that a Mr. Bugg, who had property in the vicinity for sale, was there. He will maintain that by this evidence the defence will shatter the State's contention that the two brothers started out on a mission to slay Annis. Following the opening of the defence, an adjournment will be taken until Monday.

PRISONER'S MOTHER ILL.

Mrs. Peter C. Hains, mother of the writer now on trial for his life, is ill in New York. Counsel desire to call the mother to the witness stand to testify that after Captain Hains' trouble with his wife, she told Thornton to keep careful watch on his brother. The health of Mrs. Hains, it is said, will hardly permit her to come to court.

Accused Husband of Bigamy Sensational Charges

That he had had a wife and family when he married her, that he had shot two people with intent to kill, and that he was afraid to go to Toronto for fear that he would be arrested on that account; that he had stolen toys on Christmas Eve, and coming home drunk had tried to hit his little son with an axe because he would not accompany him on another thieving expedition, were some of the sensational charges made by Mrs. Charles Rotchford, against her husband, who was charged this morning with creating a disturbance. Rotchford when asked to plead answered that he didn't know anything about it.

Mrs. Rotchford was called into the witness box and told the following story; "He came home on Christmas Eve, drunk, and with a sleigh and several other toys which he said he had brought home for the children. I asked him where he had got them and he said that he had flapped them under his coat. He told me I could get plenty of furs in the same way and asked me to go down with him after ten. I refused and then he ask d the little boy to go. The boy commenced to cry and said that he was afraid to go, whereupon he got an axe and smashed the sleigh which he had brought, and then swung the axe and was bringing it down upon the boy's head when I knocked his arm away. He then seized me by th throat, but I escaped with the boy and ran into the street.

He hasn't worked for three months and I have had to keep him and two children. He has another wife and family in Canada, and the police are looking for him in Toronto for shooting two people with intent to kill. He is afraid to go back there on that account."

"You knew I had another wife nine years ago," shouted the prisoner.

Mrs. Rotchford went on to say that she had been compelled to have her husband before th emagistrate in Bowmanville because he had ill-treated her.

Rotchford was remanded for a week while the police will look into his history.

Mad Royalist Struck President Fallieres

Paris, Dec. 26.—A weak-minded Royalist named Mathis struck President Fallieres on the Avenue d'Iena as he was taking his usual morning walk with M. Rimondo, his private secretary, and two friends. Stepping aside as if to allow M. Fallieres to pass, the man suddenly threw himself on the President, squeezing his throat. Two detectives who were behind, immediately handcuffed him and removed him to a police station. M. Fallieres continued his walk, and returned to the Palace of the Elysee, where Premier Clemenceau was awaiting him. Mathis had on him a picture of the Duke of Orleans, a medal of General Mercier, formerly minister of war, and a membership card in the Patrie Francaise, a league of dreamers, and formerly an anti-Dreyfus organization. Mathis is 35 years of age.

He declared to a magistrate that did not wish to harm the President, but only to "strike a great blow" as a patriot, M. Fallieres having contracted scandalous alliances with Freemasons and other enemies.

The Intransigeant suggests that the police may have wished to create a diversion to draw away attention from the recent scandal concerning the death of Advocate Philippe Astresse, in which the name of Andre Fallieres, the President's son, was mentioned as having carried on an intrigue with M. Astresse's wife.

Immigration Question A Very Vexed One

Col. Lamb and Mr. J. Obed Smith Discuss in London the Report of Mr. W. R. Trotter

London, Dec. 27.—The Morning Post says; The summary which was published of the report of Mr. W. R. Trotter, British representative of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, on the question of alleged misrepresentation to intending immigrants has once again drawn attention to the sharp conflict of opinion that exists between philanthropic emigration societies in this country and a considerable section of the working classes of the Dominion. While the report, on the one hand, demands that if there is to be any system of immigration from Great Britain at all, "it must be wholly controlled and directed by a department of the government," the charitable institutions affected in this country are, on the other hand, inclined to look upon the report as the partisan production of a jealously-guarded labor "ring" that wishes to maintain a high rate of wages by limiting the supply of workers. It must be remembered, however, that apart from the philanthropic agencies the Canadian Government has its own emigration department in London, and that its functions have been considerably enlarged by the order-in-council, by which since April of this year any emigrant to Canada whose passage has been paid wholly or in part by any charitable organization, or out of public moneys, must obtain a covering certificate from an official of that department.

GOVERNMENT LITERATURE.

Mr. Obed Smith, the Assistant Superintendent of emigration, informed a representative of the Morning Post yesterday that as far as he could make out the stricture in Mr. Trotter's report could not apply to his Department. "I do not wish," he said, "to enter into the vexed question of the work of the philanthropic agencies. If an intending emigrant wants to know exactly what Canada requires all he has to do is to consult the literature published by our department and sanctioned by the Government. There he will read that Canada is anxious to find men who will develop her land, and he should test his capabilities by that standard."

"Colonel" Lamb, of the emigration department of the Salvation Army, refused to discuss Mr. Trotter's report. "Mr. Trotter paid a long visit to this country," he said, "but he never took steps to ascertain at headquarters the principles on which the Salvation Army carried out its emigration work. But in regard to the question as a whole, I would like to point out that the Army does nothing to create an artificial supply of emigrants. Owing to the religious basis of our work and its international character, we are forced to give advice to intending emigrants, and to help them when they reach the land of their adoption. The mere fact that not more than twenty per cent. of our emigrants have to be assisted financially proves that the desire and the will to emigrate come from the people themselves.

CANADA REQUIRES MEN.

Again, we always bear in mind that Canada requires men with an agricultural training, and, as a matter of fact, that is what we want our emigrants to be, as the man on the land is always more independent than the artisan. Finally, we always act on the advice of our agents in Canada. If we were informed that there was no longer an effectiv demand for labor in the Dominion we would at once abolish our emigration machinery. But, as I said before, I do not think that Mr. Trotter's report warrants serious consideration."

At the offices of the Central Emigration Board our representative was informed that if the circumstances demanded it an official statement would be issued in reply to Mr. Trotter's strictures after the report had been considered in detail. At the same time the secretary of th Board pointed out that if Canadian immigrants did in some cases flock to the towns, it did not follow that they were sent out by charitable institutions, but were probably composed of those who had gone out on their own initiative. He insisted on the fact that the board picked out men for emigration who had been brought up on the land, or had been engaged in pursuits subsidiary to agriculture.

About 11 o'clock Saturday night, ht of the Royal Theater perman- t staff, met at Mr. Pappas' cigar re, where an address appreciative the thoughtful and courteous treatment accorded them by that gentleman was read and a handsome piece of silver plate, suitably engraved, was presented. This address contained congratulations to the recipient over the business at the Royal and expressions of satisfaction over the treatment received at the proprietor's hands. Mr Pappas who was greatly surprised at the presentation expressed the pleasure it afforded him. He remarked that the manifest success attained at the Royal was to a large extent connected with the intelligent and thoughtful work done by the staff. He concluded by saying, "Boys, I am going to see that ladies and children, who form a large proportion of our audiences will never see a picture or hear a song that could be objected to by the most exacting and I am sure from the experience of the past week or so since we opened that you are all backing up my desies splendidly. Christmas Gift for Pastor

A much appreciated Christmas gift is an Ellams Mimeograph, which was presented to Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The mimeograph is a particularly handsome one of suit case type and is highly prized by the recipient.

A Christmas Party

Among the many pleasant Christmas parties was a purely Anglo-Canadian social gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, at 365 Mark street, Ashburnham. It was the first visit to Peterborough for some of the guests, but the hospitality extended by the host, hostess and family, will always be remembered by the fortunate ones, and it was generally admitted that the Christmas spent in the dear old Electric City, was the happiest of many Christmases. Among the guests were Mr. E. Rollings and P. Proverbs of Toronto, Mr. A. Crates of Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. Dunnett, Mr. Thurston and G. Marshall of Peterborough.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription — Dr. Shoop's Restorative— is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments — the weak inside or controlling nerves, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and seet improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Makes $100 a Week Killing Rattlers

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 26.— H. T. Brown, of Newton, claims to be the only rattle snake hunter in the North west. Hunting diamond-marked rattlers forms his sole mode of earning a living. Oftentimes his income for a single week will amount to over $100.

Brown sometimes hires himself to a farmer for a week as an expert rattlesnake killer on a salary basis, and other times he is a free lance and roams the country, collecting only the bounty on the snakes he has killed. Brown's price for his services a week are $50, and he guarantees to rid a 160-acre farm, if not too rocky, of all the snakes in a week, and destroy the homes of the reptiles.

For fifteen years Brown has been hunting snakes. In all that times he has not been bitten.

One day last fall, while working in the hills south of La Crosse, he killed thirty-one snakes. The next day he foraged in nearly townships and killed twenty-seven. The following day he killed forty-two. The State pays fifty cents for each rattler, while the skin and oil add to the profitable nature of snake hunting. Brown gets $3 an ounce for oil, and a good skin will bring $1.50. The biggest snake caught last fall was in the town of Farmington; it bore twenty-two rattles.

A stout hickory club is Brown's only weapon in his hunting. He never allows a snake to get directly in front of him and moving away, for in that position a rattler can strike a deadly blow. Brown follows the snake from the side, without fear of a strike. He says one may place his hand within an inch of a rattlesnake's head, on the side, and be safe from danger. "The rattlesnake cannot strike from the side he declares.

"When the snake turns, if you can get him to do so, strike your blow, quickly and firmly. The occupation is not hazardous if you know what you are doing, but I won't vouch for a beginner. I have had a few snakes strike at me, but when the rattler's trail is away from you, and you are at his side, you are safe.

"Sometimes I take my dog with me and he can smell rattlesnakes. All dogs can, and he serves as an alarm clock for the reptiles. Rattlesnakes like rocks, but won't live where there is much noise. That is why they aren't found in stone quarries, but only in wild places.

"I once made $128 one week, but I can't keep it up. I average between $50 and $100 a week during the summer, but in the winter I don't do anything.

Will Roosevelt Help the Labor Men?

Washington, D.C., Dec. 26.— The Times today says; Developments yesterday make it unlikely that President Roosevelt will take any official notice just now of the plight of the three labor leaders sentenced for contempt. But when the case reaches him through the ordinary channels there is little doubt that he will at the very least reduce considerably the sentence imposed by Justice Wright. The possibility is even hinted at including President Gompers in his act of partial amnesty in order to bring his commutation of the other sentences under the general principle of reducing possible excessive sentences.

In many quarters the length of terms imposed by Justice Wright's sentences is attracting comment, even where the justice of the judgment making the men guilty of contempt is not questioned. The fact that in States where there is any limitation thrown around the discretion of the courts in regard to punishments for contempt the sentence is almost invariably limited to six months, while the shortest term of the three two days ago by Justice Wright equals this limit, has frequently been refered to as a justification of executive interference.

Cigarette Destroys Temperance Statute

Brockton, Mass., Dec. 26.—Temperance, as represented by a bronze statue erected as a fountain at Main and School streets by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union acted in a manner quite unbecoming anything connected with the temperance cause. Since 1893 the statue had stood commendably serene. Suddenly with a terrific report it leaped into the air, landed across the street on its head, and broke into pieces.

Services near the fountain had just been conducted by the Salvation Army, but that was no explanation, hence officials investigated. It was discovered that the statue was entirely excusable. A Brockton gas main had leaked, the gas flowing through an electric light wire conduit and a waste pipe of the fountain until the hollow bronze was filled. A youth whose name of Bassett will become famous in Woman's Christian Temperance Union annals, who had been observing the Salvation Army gathering, concluded his observance by lighting a cigarette. Bassett threw his match away as the base of the fountain. Boom! The noise brought hundreds of people to view the fall of temperance.

Death or Insanity

NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS, WORN OUT.

Expected to Die or go Crazy With Nervousness.

"I could not sleep—I could not rest—was ready to cry on the least occasion—yet I was plump and fat. Can you imagine a more distressing condition than weakness of body and mind?" writes Mrs. Wensley, of Halifax. "I lost myself in a sort of self pity because health seemed so shattered, and with the mental distress that grew with my bodily weakness, I was a burden to myself and a greater burden to my family.

"Though I sought and really needed pity, I got very little, for I did not look so very sick. It was only my nerves that were sick, and anyone who has sick nerves knows too well how awful a sickness it is.

"From the first Ferrozone strengthened my nerves, and it seemed to help them for I became stronger, more composed, slept more and grew more hopeful. When I had taken Ferrozone for about two months I lost that miserable sense of dread, I never would tell what I was afraid of, but expected something dreadful was going to happen me. Ferrozone gave me the strength to throw aside all these fancies and made me well again."

Go at once to any druggist, get a few boxes of Ferrozone—start right on the road to health and vigor. Ferrozone will keep you there—will show you what it means to be healthy, vigorous, full of nerve energy. Once you're braced up and energized with Ferrozone you'll never again be content with ill-health.

All dealers sell Ferrozone, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50.

Remembered Their Leader

The choir of George street Methodist church, presented their leader and organist, Mr. W. McCann, with a group photo of the choir handsomely framed. It was sent to him as a Christmas gift on Christmas eve. The photo was the work of Mr. J. Li Richmond, Hunter street, and is a credit to his artistic ability.

THE RING

Jack Johnson, the Texas negro, who won a comparatively easy victory over Tommy Burns, when he defeated him in Sydney, Australia, in 14 rounds on Dec. 26th, has good prospects for some easy money in the theatrical world. It is stated that he has been offered as high as $1750 a week to appear on the stage, and this is the highest figure ever offered to a world's champion by a theatrical manager or syndicate.

Jeffries is out with a challenge for Johnson to meet Al. Kaufman at Jeff's club in San Francisco, and this will likely be the next fight the new champion will have, although it may be some time before it is pulled off.

Mr Jas H Louden, chief engineer on the Steamer Norseman on the Great Lakes, during the past eight months has returned to the city.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Greatest Sin in the World is the System of Making Criminals Suffer

Retributive Punishment—New Considerations on Evils of Modern Penal System

A Thinker from Whom One May Learn a Wholesome Lesson

THERE is nothing more despicable than the attitude which some men of education assume towards the so-called common and unlettered man. The spiritual pride which causes the former to have no respect for the opinions of others is thoroughly reprehensible. For often the common man, artisan, mechanic, grocer, even laborer, is a veritable Socrates —a thinker from whom one may learn a wholesome lesson in practical philosophy.

The other day I went into the store of a newsdealer whom I knew very well and with whom I often engaged in conversation. I bought some magazines from the clerk, and as I was about to pass out, the newsdealer himself, who was absorbed in a book, looked up from his reading and said (I quote literally); "'By George, that fellow Buxley was a rip-roarin' snorter! Say, it a caution the way he lambastes the preachers. I was just reading here where Huxley says an old guy named Berkley claimed that the world isn't real —it's only our ideas. I can't understand that, I don't believe it. Does Berkley mean to say that this book the telegraph pole, the street car, the bricks in this store are a lot of mere ideas! Why, our ideas are coming and going all the time; no one ever saw, or felt, or weighed an idea, but our bodies and other things are permanent and can be seen and touched—they are real; ideas are not. Ain't I right!"

RETRIBUTIVE PUNISHMENT.

Retributive punishment of criminals is based on the theory that brute force is the only thoroughly efficacious method in dealing with sinners against society. As a matter of fact, it is totally unpsychological, and therefore unjustifiable before the bar of reason. That it is not efficacious is proved both by the penal and the police records. In Canada and the United States there are released from the prisons and penitentiaries on an average each year about fifteen thousand criminals, who, note, immediately return to the life of crime. The police records of the large cities in these countries readily prove that when a crime of unusual daring or atrocity occurs, it turns out to have been done, note again, by one or more members of the class of discharged criminals who suffered retributive punishment.

Further, these very men when in prison actually have declared, first, that when discharged they mean to keep on at crime, and, secondly, that they were going to do so to get "square" with society for their suffering while in prison. In other words, under the system of retributive punishment brute force is returned with brute force for force, hate with hate, vengeance with vengeance—and the return is on psychological grounds, natural and inevitable. If a penal system is judged as it must be by its results, what are we to think of a system which not only does not reform a criminal but, on the contrary, discharges him from prison a worse man in his heart than when he entered the institution? A worse man for the reason that when he entered he had only committed a crime and was not hardened, but on being discharged from the prison goes forth with burning hate in his heart, ready for any deed to get square with society, yes, even if it costs him his life. Surely this is the ruductio ad absurdum of the system of retributive punishment.

CRIMINAL LOGIC.

Now, the criminal, in taking this attitude unconsciously uses good logic. His logic is that the State in applying a system of retributive punishment is actually asserting the right of all to private vengeance, or at any rate the righteousness of revenge. The state, however, just because it happens to be bigger than the individual, has no more right to

SUFFRAGETTES AND LOVERS.

In England a movement is going on in which women are fighting for the cause of equal suffrage with men, in the matter of voting. Today the leader and her colleagues are in prison. She would not have been there had it not been for an idea, which neither ridicule, spite, rough usage and the threats of imprisonment, or any degree of physical and mental suffering could remove. That idea of the right of women to equal suffrage was immovable as Gibraltar—nay, more so, because the mighty fortress can be blown to atoms by natural forces.

Or, here again, is a gentle, coy maiden, physically weaker, of course than her lover. He protests his love for her, pleads and begs for her hand and heart in marriage. But this gentle, coy maiden has made up her mind that she will not marry this handsome strong young man who besieges the citadel of her heart day in and day out. The tiny citadel within remains impregnable as Gibraltar—nay, more so, for the engines of destruction can be applied against the fortress and remove it from the face of the earth, while, on the other hand, the idea in the mind of the gentle damosel the (so-called) frail creature of the weaker sex remains fixed forever. Congenially, her body may be carried to the uttermost parts of the earth. It may be imprisoned, tortured, even dismembered, destroyed, and thus become nothing and unreal; but the idea that she will not marry whom she does not love remains indestructible—it is more real than the body.

This, then, is what Berkley meant. The "really real"—the everlastingly real, the genuinely permanent—is man (Spirit, he called it); and the real in man is mind (Idea he called it).

It was easy enough to rely that only half-baked philosophers ever understood Berkley to say that the outside world was a whirligig of human ideas; but it was more difficult to make the newsdealer understand that Berkley meant that the "really real" is mud. And to do this I had to take his own notion, that permanency, fixity, was the test of real existence. The common sense man always contrasts mind with the external world, which the mind knows from the side of permanency. The outside world, he says, is always there, fixed, hard, always the same. Well, be it so. Yet in a moment the argument fails. For there is nothing so adamantine—so hard, impervious, immovable—as an idea. Take one or two salient instances.

If this is so, the inevitable conclusion is that the greatest sin in the world is to treat one's fellows as if they were things and not minds. Now, in nothing do we so completely and stupidly deny the Reality of Mind and the Power of Ideas as in our totally unpsychological treatment of criminals, social sinners and moral derelicts. Of all the ungodly and insane heresies and sins against the children of the Father in heaven the greatest is that which puts into deliberate and stern practice the belief that the human spirit is a thing of wood or stone which if it become crooked or unshapely or ugly, may and must be straightened, remodelled or be unified by brute force.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Canada Cuba Land & Fruit Company

Stop raising $50 crops on $100 lands. Raise $500 crops on $40 lands. (LIMITED).

We Will Gladly Tell You How

WHY MEN GET RICH IN CUBA: Conditions count; that is why they get rich there; the ideal conditions prevailing insure wealth to the thrifty northerner who grasps the opportunities presented, and goes in for the things which count.

TEN ACRES planted in an orange orchard means an income, when the grove comes into full bearing, of from $2,700 to $5,000 per annum for life.

IF YOU SOW WHEAT, and the crop is good, and you get 70 bushels to the acre, your crop would be a farm topic of conversation. Now, say you get $1.00 per bushel for the wheat, and that is a pretty strong price, isn't it? Well, your one acre has earned $70.00, and it is safe to say that there was a lot of hard work about it; besides a new crop must be sown next year with chances of failure. The land is worth little, if any, more than the previous year.

NOW AN ORANGE ORCHARD IS DIFFERENT. Ten acres of the best land in Cuba will not cost you as much as in the Northwest, and on every acre you can plant 100 orange trees at a cost of 30c each; in four years' time this growth will bear profitably. In the meantime you can raise pineapples, bananas and other fruits and vegetables between the rows of orange trees that will net three times the profit that northern crops will.

ORANGE GROVES AT 8 TO 10 YEARS OF AGE ARE WORTH $1,000 to $1,500 PER ACRE, and these trees live, after the planter is dead and forgotten, bearing the same luscious fruit, more and more every year. Don't you think it will pay you to investigate? We believe it will, and that your children and your children's children will thank you for so doing. This investment insures you and them an absolute and sure income for life.

OUR COLONY is no venture, but a practical success, producing fruit of a most luscious quality. The groves planted on our estate have more than come up to our expectations.

NO INVESTMENT, with so small an outlay, will produce the same income as will such a grove of oranges, grape-fruit and pineapples. There is a ready market for all that can be produced, with shipping facilities direct from the Company's dock and excellent railway accommodation.

PROSPECTUS. Write for further firmly founded facts, when prospectus, etc., will be sent you by return mail.

THE WHITE PLAGUE

It is exceedingly gratify to note the attention that is being given not only by eminent scientists, the great medical profession, leading philanthropists and prominent social reformers, but as well as by people in almost all walks of life to methods for stopping the ravages of consumption. There is, in fact, no more cogent sign of th etimes than this warfare that is being carried on against tuberculosis throughout the world in the present day.

In the recent past the International Congress on Tuberculosis was held in Washington, and as the result of their deliberations certain very important recommendations were made and given out as advice to the general public. The Congress recommended:—

1. That health authorities should be notified of and should register every case of tuberculosis.

2. That all means should be used to prevent contagion from man to man, which is the most important source of the disease.

3. That all means should be used to prevent contagion from bovine tuberculosis and that the possibility of the propagation of this to man be recognized.

4. That the public and all Governments be urged to establish hospitals, sanatoria and camps.

5. That well considered factory laws, child labor laws, laws regarding women's work, etc., be insisted on.

6. That instruction in school and personal hygiene be given in all schools.

7. That colleges require for entrance and for graduation studies in hygiene and sanitation.

Dr. A. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, some months ago delivered an address in this city, in which he sounded a warning, note similar to that embodied in the recommendations made by the International Congress. For years Dr. Hodgetts has consistently endeavored to rouse a more lively public opinion concerning the ravages of tuberculosis and the means that should be taken by individuals and municipalities to protect themselves from the scourge. Ontario has reason to feel proud of the work being done by this capable and energetic official, who has done, and is doing, so much to improve hygienic and sanitary surroundings in the province.

St. Catharines is now preparing to take an advanced step in the fight against consumption. Subscriptions are now being received from the public to supplement the amount already on hand, through the generosity of Mr. Leonard and other public spirited citizens, and the commendable efforts of the committee of ladies who have interested themselves in the work, to be applied to the equipment and maintenance of a tuberculosis hospital. At this gladsome season of the year a large number of liberal subscriptions should be handed in by citizens, as there is no cause in our midst more worthy of support at this time.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing cough, and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Big Soap Merger

A huge amalgamation of soap manufacturers into a two million company has been officially announced. The interests involved include the Royal Crown Soap Co. of Winnipeg, the Standard of Calgary, and the Royal of Vancouver. The headquarters of the new company are at Winnipeg.

Leading business men of Winnipeg are interested in a financial company that will have a capitalization of $5,000,000. A board of expert examiners will be appointed to investigate the manufacturing possibilities of industrial undertakings and will, if satisfactory, undertake to underwrite the necessary bonds to float such enterprises as are recommended, thus assisting to a great extent the industrial development that has of late had considerable activity.

The following industrial incorporations are announced in this week's Manitoba Gazette: Thos. H. Lock & Co., Ltd., wholesale grocers and manufacturers; capital stock $200,000. Geo. E. Ellis & Co., manufacturing jewelers; capital $120,000. Northern Fruit Co., capital $50,000. Winnipeg Silver Plate Co., capital stock $40,000. The Lake Lumber Co., capital $30,000. Western Canada Food and Products Limited, capital stock $100,000. Harmer Implement Co., Ltd., capital stock $25,000. Northern Shirt Co. has increased its capital from $5,000 to $25,000.

Greatest Sin in the World

be a mere avenger than has the private individual. The criminal sees the fallacy with unerring judgment. The history of the system readily reveals wherein the fallacy lies.

In Adamantic times retribution by the sufferer or his kin, and even by any individual whatsoever, who came across one who had been guilty of a crime was the course of justice. This idea prevailed down to the time when people formed mass and states; The punishment of crime was committed by law to private vengeance. Eventually, as civilization advanced men came to see that the best part of private vengeance was altogether against the main enemies of public order. Consequently the state assumed the right of punishing crime; but, note, in so doing the state held to the Animistic ideal of vengeance; the party injured—this is the legal notion—the party injured is conceived to be the state, and merely takes the place of the individual sufferer as the avenger of the crime.

The criminal is quite justified in asking, as impartially by his conduct as he can: Wherein does the state differ from the individual in assuming the right, as the individual does, to take vengeance? If the state has a right to vengeance, then the individual also has. The state, however, assumed this function because it was seen that private vengeance was against the maintenance of public order. But now, as appears from the facts, since legalized retributive punishment results only in hate and the making of hardened, revengeful criminals (15,000 of them yearly in America), this system itself is positively incompatible with maintaining public order. Its results are its most conclusive disproof.

REFORMATORY DISCIPLINE.

It is not my aim to outline another method of dealing with criminals. I am only interested in showing that the penal system of retributive punishment has no justification in psychology; that its historical basis contains a fallacy; in short, that it misconceives both the nature of human beings and the function of civil government. But it may be well briefly to point out the general nature of a true method of dealing with criminals—a method that squares with psychology and proper conceptions of the function of civil government.

Let it be granted, then, that criminals should be imprisoned, not for vengeance, but for the sake of public order. Is there no method by which public safety may be guaranteed after the release of the criminal, and by which imprisonment may justify itself? There is, namely, reformatory discipline, which shall so work changes in the mind and heart of a criminal that on his release he has "put off the old man and become a new creature"—fit for good citizenship. To imprison him for the purpose of instilling in him right ideals of conduct is to do him a justice and kindness; to give him his freedom when he has earned it, is to guarantee public safety; for imprisonment, under a retributive system, guarantees public order only so long as the criminal is within the walls; reformation makes decent citizenship permanent. The one is a case of brutal and senseless infliction of pain, in spite; the other is practically the working of a "cure"—healing the soul within; it regards the convict as a mind, and by kindly treatment, moral influences and social agencies brings him to see the light and to desire to do all good things. Thus, coming to understand and believe that the state means to be his best friend, his heart softens; he repents and is saved. But the retributive system only creates in the convict the heart of the devil, and drives the poor, God-forsaken creature to madness and dire revenge.

SAD CASE IN POINT.

An instance of the spirit of the retributive system will easily show its inhumanity. About a year ago a telegraphic report from Winnipeg to the daily newspapers, said that a poor, ignorant Indian, who was dying from rapid consumption, brought on by close and foul confinement in prison, had been sentenced to be hanged a few days before Christmas—"the date of execution being fixed sooner than otherwise to prevent consumption from cheating the gallows of a victim." If that is not vengeance with a vengeance, what is it? And what a ghastly commentary it is on the Angel's Christmas chorus.

Peace be on earth and
Good will to men!

Christ, centuries before Bishop Berkley, told us that there is nothing so real on earth as man; nothing so real in man as mind, and nothing so real in mind—so deathless and potent—as Love. Immortal Love is God. And when we deny, as we do profoundly in our practice with criminals and social sinners, the potency of Love, we deny the reality of God. Deeper still; If God, as though seeing the futility of Force to work repentance in the hearts of men, and the efficacy of Love, sent Love into the world to redeem the world, shall we finite creatures reverse His order, deny the power of Love; assert the efficacy of force and supplant the Deity's methods with the methods of Hate?

The human heart is more unmovable than mountains, more adamantine than a cell before Hate; yet more mold'e than water and softer than a baby's kiss before Love. But in our treatment of the criminal and social sinner we have forgotten that as hell her forces, nor hate, nor death can prevail against the righteous, so also are they futile against the sinner; only love can work in them true repentance and the fruits of holiness.

Thus did that which began, in a homely way, as a simple conversation, come to a right noble conclusion—in which two men, who are not of sound faith, and therefore are accounted not of the household of God, saw that God is Spirit and Love and that Man who is made in his image shall be redeemed by love.

Father Kelly Lost on the Ocean

Queenstown, Dec 23.—When the steamer Arabic arrived here today from New York the officers reported that one of the passengers, who was registered under the name of Father Kelly, of Paterson, N.J., was drowned on the voyage. He fell overboard at three o'clock on Thursday morning. It is not known whether the death was due to accident or design.

Paterson, N.J., Dec. 23.—Father James A. Kelly, who was lost overboard from the steamship Arabic, was forty-three years old. He was ordained at Seton Hall College, South Orange, sixteen years ago. He was assigned as curate to various churches in the diocese of Newark, and three years ago was appointed to a pastorate at Ridgewood, N.J. He came to St. Agnes' Church here one year ago. Following a mission which was conducted at the church, Father Kelly decided to make a trip to Ireland to spend Christmas with his sister and brother in County Sligo, where he was born.

Father Kelly had suffered from gastritis for two or three years, but at no time had been considered seriously ill. It is believed by his friends here that his death must have been the result of an accident, as there is no known reason why he should have wished to end his life.

Up To Date

You should see Mary Anne; she is putting on style.
In a way that's surpised us, it's so up-to-date.
She has all of the other girls beaten a mile.
And she's moving along at a terrible rate.
She is wearing a hat with the lampshade effect,
With the dinkiest frills sticking out from the crown.
And that isn't the worst that you have to expect.
Mary Anne has just bought a directory gown.

Mary Anne has a notion she's turning the trick,
You can't make her believe that she's getting too rash.
When she carries around a large ebony stick
And is looped with a thing like an officer's sash.
Her incroyable collar spreads out on each side
In a way that will make her the talk of the town;
It's a great revelation, it can't be denied.
Mary Anne has just bought a directory gown.

I may be quite the rage, but it isn't the thing,
So some people declare who are easily shocked,
That is all just because the new skirt has a swing,
And it seems that poor Mary Anne's hosiery's clocked.
I pronounce no opinion myself. It may be
I should hold up my hands in great horror and frown,
On the whole, though, I'm not very sorry to see.
Mary Anne has just bought a directory gown.

MILLIONSOF DOLLARS WASTED

IN EXPERIMENTS

These Millions Have Been and Are Being Waisted in Experiments With Mills and Other Treating Plants

Ours is no experiment. Our new smelting process has Been tested in every detail. We KNOW wha it will do and we know that it will do what we claim for it.

You know what a cheap smelting process will mean to the mining industry all over the world- Miners as well as investors in minir g stock must pay their share in unreasonable charges to s me smelter under the present system. Why not interest yourself in a company which will help you—which will help the miner as well as the investor in mining stock—to

We will erect a smelter of fifty tons right near your mine. Our smelter thus erected will save 85% in treatment. freight charges and hauling the ore to the railway. This is the crying need of the mining industry to-day.

Think what this means in the treatment of the ores from your mine. Think what this means in the treatment of the ore at present upon the dump. No matter how low grade the dump ore, so long as we have some high grade in every charge, we can get you the values from the ore now lying worthless upon the dump.

We have the practical smelter of the new era. It is not an experiment; it is now in practical working order. We are now ready to erect smelters everywhere. We will build the smelters right at your mines, and thereby overcome all the obstructions which may be placed in our way by the railroads and trust smelters.

Why lament the fact of the present smelter overcharges when here you have the chance to get a smelter right at your mine, which will treat the ore at $2 per ton, without difference for grades?

We are offering only 100,000 shares of stock in the Kuenzel's Process Smelter Company at 75 cents a share. The proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used towards erecting several of our smelters near producing mines, when we will begin at once to make money for ourselves and for the mine owner.

We have a large plant, a completely equipped machine shop, capable of building at least two 50-ton smelters every month. The preliminary. development stage of our enterprise has passed. We are ready to make money. Why not join us as a stockholder?

The money which you in this company is represented in full value in property and other assets. You are investing in a reality when you buy these shares.

Buy stock in this company now and you will help to realize upon the low grade ores in your dumps which otherwise must remain in waste and valueless. Let us tell you all about this new era smelter, the practical operation of which actually means the revolution of the mining industry. Write for full particulars. We will convince you that this is, indeed, the best gilt-edge investment on the market, from every point of view.

Values for Your Investments

Have you any stock or other investments that have been slow or unprofitable?

And would you like to make a turn of them for new interests in a going proposition?

I can and will offer you cash values in exchanging any of them for stock in a live mine.

Here is your opportunity for bringing your undesirable investments up to date and making them as good as new.

My principal object in making this offer is to keep doing business, diversify my own holdings and not carry all my eggs to market in one basket.

The mine is on the California Mother Lode, where the finest quartz mining in the world is still found, and which is the original source of the one billion five hundred million dollars in gold that was weathered down and picked up in placer mining. The price of this stock is 10 cents per share.

Power and hoisting machinery installed and paid for. Development work is done exposing a quartz ledge 20 feet wide at 170 feet depth, extending laterally and down indefinately. Assays of this immense body of ore prove up a great mine. The usual mining risks are therefore practically eliminated.

I consider this a genuine opportunity for many persons to realize something new on mining stocks, industrials, real estate or city property, that have already waited long for results, and that may not be able to realize anything for 20 years more.

Write me, giving full information of what you have to exchange.

Her hands came out in wild imploring. "You won't, you won't, you won't," she begged. "Don't you understand? My keeping still was just as if I'd killed pa! Oh, it was! So I can't tell—now!"

"Maryly'—"

"Promise you won't; oh, promise you won't!" And she went down, crumpling into a little, miserable heap.

Quickly he lifted her. "Well, we won't tell her, then; not if you don't want to, but we'll have to some day."

"Some day—maybe—but not now."

"All right, then—not now." He led her from garden to coulee and back again, trying to comfort her all the while as best he could.

"You see, Maryly'," he said, "you're wrong about its being your fault. It's mine. I promised Lounsbury I'd look after you folks."

She stopped short. "Did you tell him about you and me?"

"No."

"Oh!" She was relieved. "You mustn't, either. Not him or any one."

"I don't see how I can ever look Lounsbury in the face again," he said bitterly.

Whereupon she straightway began to comfort him.

At the shack Oliver and Dallas had arrived at the question of future safety.

"I must insist," the captain was saying, "upon your coming to live at the fort. I cannot spare a permanent guard for this side of the river—a scouting party up and down once a day is about the best I could do. We have our hands full already."

"Live at the fort"— Her lips tightened a little. She got up to walk. She was thinking of the cold stares, the "Ahs," the "Ohs and the laughter of the post ladies in their bowling ambulance; the nudges and the grins of the passing musicians, and "there's allus room at the fort when there's good lookin' gals in the fambly."

She shook her head.

"You love your sister," he reminded. "Think of her."

"I am thinking of her. I'd go to the fort if there was danger. But—answer me honest—outside of what's happened here, do you think there's really any danger?"

"From Indians, you mean? Well, I'll tell you—this was a complete surprise, a shock to me. Because so far we haven't seen a sign of the hostiles beyond that signal in the spring. North of here, at Lincoln, they've shown themselves. But they're largely concentrated in the northwest to meet the troops."

"Then there's no danger from Indians?"

"Still, there might be, and I want you to come. Frankly, I've omitted to tell you of one disquieting report that has reached us. After the recent battle on the Rosebud one of the warriors of Crazy Horse was captured by General Crook. The prisoner said that within a day's ride to the west of here one and your need friend"—

She stopped him, lifting her hands to her face. "Not him!" she whispered. "not him! Oh, he was so good to us, captain!"

Oliver sighed. "I fear it's so, yet it's only a report."

Some time went by. Meanwhile she walked about the room in silence. Her lips were trembling.

"You'll come?" he said.

"When you're sure"—she spoke with difficulty—"the Indians are going to make trouble I will. But—but I think I'd rather stay. I made dad a promise once. I'd hate to break it—now."

"Your father didn't like us, I understand. I'm sorry. And of course you feel that you should keep your promise to him. Well, I can send a convoy with you to Bismarck."

"We haven't a cent. You see. I'm counting a heap on my garden."

"Oh, we would get something together for you."

She flinched. "No, I wouldn't like that. And dad'd hate it worse than if I broke the promise. Besides, I'm going to pay back B troop."

"B troop! My troop? What do you owe B troop?"

"Why, B troop's been sending us its surplus rations."

"You sure?"

"Well, the sutler said so."

"I think there's a mistake. B troop has had no surplus rations"—

"Had no"— she began, amazed.

"Must have been the sutler's own stuff."

"But he wrote"— From between the leaves of a book on the mantel she produced a folded paper.

"Or some one else's," went on Oliver.

She had been about to hand him Blakely's letter. Now, as if struck by an idea, she put it back into the book. When he turned her eyes were swimming.

"It likely was 'some one else,'" she said.

"God bless you anyway! To think of such a thing in the midst of your worry! Even if you did owe B troop it would vote you its full rations and be proud to go hungry. Please think again about Bismarck for the summer."

"I can't, give up the claim, captain. I want to know what happened—I want to be here if—if dad comes back."

"But aren't you forgetting that, Indians or no Indians, there's danger from this secret enemy?"

"Secret enemy," she echoed; "secret enemy! Go to Bismarck is just the thing he wants to see us do. You heard what he did in the winter? Well, he came again yesterday. He saw the wagon leave, and he thought it was a good chance to move in."

"Move in?" rejoined Oliver. "If that was all, why did he bother about moccasins?"

"You're right!" she cried. "He meant to kill!"

And now as if some great hidden spring of feeling had been touched she came round upon the officer, defiant, resolute and undaunted.

"Maybe I'd 'a' gone before. I'd go this minute for Indians. But that man! He's had his price for this claim; he's had his price. Now, the bend belongs to me, and I'm going to stay."

The captain bent toward her. "Too risky (no riskky, Miss Lancaster," he advised. "unless we get the man. For how could you ever do any outside work"—

Dallas interrupted, intrepid spirit ringing in her voice.

"Get him or not, I'll stick it out all the same. And my outside work—I'll plow and I'll plant just like I used to. But this time I'll do it with a gun."

Monkeys Like Scrapping.

"Monkeys are in a class by themselves," said the circus man. "If one of them has red hair he is sure to be a dandy scrapper. The best fighter is always the leader. They hang together and bow and scrape before the boss just like a good many people. Monkeys with red faces and flat heads will whip the life out of those smaller than they are, but will run like the wind when it comes to an even break. A monkey riot is a funny spectacle. Even in the same cage you will find groups herded together as if there was some class distinction and the lines were drawn tightly. If two of the big ones come together in a row the others generally stand off and let them have it out, but if any of the little ones get to scrapping then the father and mother are apt to mix in, and the next step is a general row. We separate them by turning on the hose and punish them by locking up the den so that they cannot get any peanuts from the crowd and hold back their meals. This plan puts them on their good behavior for awhile at least. The monkey likes to eat and likes to be noticed."

Slightly Mixed.

They had just set up housekeeping and were working on the plan of economy. The bathtub needed a coat of varnish. He promised to attend to it if she would order the varnish.

"You'll find the varnish in the closet with the groceries, dear," she said a day or so later, "and the can opener in the knife drawer."

He opened the can and, according to his contract, applied the coat of varnish and then left it to dry.

The soup for dinner that day had to be abandoned, for somehow it possessed a peculiar paint shop odor that was nauseating. After dinner he took her to inspect his work on the bathtub. Now that it had dried it had a certain unnatural appearance. The top and sides were streaked, and here and there little lumps clung to it.

"The man said that was the best varnish," she explained, taking up the can of varnish for an examination, "but—why, dear, you have varnished the bathtub with the ox tail soup!"

"Then it was the varnish we ate, dear," he added, horror stricken.—Lippincott's.

A Model Hotel "Boots."

It was in a Dublin hotel, and as I closed the bedroom door, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian, I noticed that the end of one of my boot laces was inside the room, the boot to which it was attached having been placed as usual outside. When I awoke next morning the boot lace end was still there, and I opened the door expecting to find that the boots had not been cleaned, but I was wrong. A very careful hotel servant, a very model among "boots," had found the lace tightly gripped by the door and rather than disturb me had carefully removed it from the lace holes and carried away the boot. Presently I heard a quiet noise outside the door. The model boots had brought my boots back again and was industriously relacing that one which he had unlaced.

Cheese in the Middle Ages.

Cheese must have been a rather dear or scarce article of food in 1502, for it is recorded in the "Black Books" of the Honorable Society of Lincoln's Inn that at Easter term, 1502, it was "agreed by the governors and benchers this term that if any one of the society shall hereafter cut cheese immoderately at the time of dinner or supper or shall give cheese to any servant or to any other or shall carry it away from the table at any time he shall pay 4 pence for each offense. The butlers of the society shall present such defaulters weekly under pain of expulsion from office."—Law Times.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your home. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." (Sure) Very good!! Hereafter for this very reason, others, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, also is now by law to be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

A FLYING MACHINE.

Directions For Making a Pretty and Amusing Toy.

A feather flying machine is a very simple thing to make, but it will only fly up, as there are no wings to support it when flying horizontally. The motive power is furnished by a whalebone bow, which causes the aerial screws to revolve as it unbends.

For this model you will need eight feathers. They should be carefully selected of the same size and shape. The best are good stiff wing feathers. From them form two screws by sticking them in corks, as in the illustration. One must be arranged to revolve to the right, the other to the left, because the bowstring turns the upper in one direction, while the reaction tends to turn the lower in the opposite way, and if both screws were right handed or left handed they would work against each other and produce little or no effect.

The upper screw is fastened to the spindle, while the lower is attached to the bow. The spindle turns in a hole bored through the bow and into the cork. It moves freely because it simply rests in the hole and is not fastened to the lower screw. The bowstring is tied to the spindle near the top.

When finished, hold the lower screw in one hand and turn the upper with the other until the string is wound on the spindle. Now let go the upper screw and toss it gently into the air when it will fly until the bow straightens.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Hospital for Sick Children

REMEMBER That Every Sick Child in Ontario Whose Parents Cannot Afford to Pay for Treatment is Treated Free.

The Hospital is not a local institution, but provincial. The sick child from any place in Ontario, who can't pay, has the same privileges as the child living in Toronto.

The Hospital, though not provincial, had last year in its beds and cots 1,245 patients—368 of these were from 247 places outside of Toronto. Seventy-five per cent. were children of poor people who could not afford to pay.

This Charity appeals to fathers and mothers of Ontario for funds to maintain the hundreds of sick children that it nurses every year.

Since its foundation the Institution has treated 14,458 children. 10,800 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.

BEFORE. AFTER.

There were 61 cases of club feet treated last year.

If you know of any child in your neighborhood who is sick, or has any deformity, send the parent's name to Secretary.

"THIS IS YOUR HOME."

The Hospital's Cry is not for Gold, but for the Children, so your Dollars go not to the Hospital but to the Children.
